During the electrical storm Wednesday forenoon lightning struck and killed Hjalmer Carlson, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Carlson, living about four miles west of town. The boy had just driven into the barnyard with a load of rye when the lightning struck the load upon which he was riding, instantly killing the boy, knocking down both of the horses and killing one of them, and the shock being felt by the father, mother and little sister who were at work in the house and barn. Two neighbor boys in the field felt the shock, but were not stunned. The load of rye was burned and it is thought the other horse will never be of service should he survice the shock. The blow to the family was a severe one and in their loss the entire community joins with The Spectator in extending their heartfelt sympathy. The remains were prepared for burial by the Holmes morgue and the funeral will be held today from the house at 1 p.m. and from the United Norwegian Lutheran church at 2 o'clock, Rev. Wangensteen holding services. Interment in the cemetery east of town.

About Chewing.

Gladstone's forty chews have been added to from time to time by different medical authorities who advise that the chewing process last until the food is reduced to a liquid. It is safe to say that ninety-nine persons out of a hundred swallow their food before it reaches the liquid state. For a real liquid food golden grain belt beer is all that could be desired. Its food value is recognized and it is a valuable aid to digestion. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

A Word Contest.

The pupils of Riverside school will please prepare a list of words. The words are to be any words you can spell and you must make sure that you can spell all the words on your list.

You will be tested on your own list, and if you miss a word your list will not be accepted. Arrange the words alphabetically, that is, the words beginning with "a" must not be mixed up with words beginning with "b" etc.

All pupils in third reader and above be prepared to define your words. Your list will not be rejected, however, if you fail on some definitions.

Ask your parents to provide you with a pocket dictionary. We expect that the parents will do all they can to help their children along this line of study; and I would suggest that other teachers provide their pupils with outside work along this line.

The time for making up your list will be from now until the first week in November, when the final hearing will be. The names of the pupils having the largest lists in each grade will be published in The Spectator, together with a statement of their number of words.

Respectfully,
OTTO E. OLSON.

THE RETURNS GROWING

The Secretary's Report of the St. Hilaire Creamery for July Shows a Good Increase.

Take notice to the list below! Is it not a nice one? It must mean prosperity as we have over fifty patrons receiving such large checks, and we can say that our dairy industry is yet in its youth.

What is going to happen when every one of these patrons has a silo and gets fully prepared? Banker Hansen will need two safes to be sure. Just think of it—$3,886.30 paid out for July! Twenty-six cents a pound is a price that makes all dairymen smile and will encourage them to go into selected dairy cows and prepare the right kind of feed. Taking our test association for a trimmer and we will soon beat the Danes.

Let's Talk It Over, Anyhow.

A friend from a western town writes:

"We can trace at least a thousand increase of population the past year from the fact that the fifty-four members of our Commercial Club about a year ago all agreed to have printed on the back of their business letterheads a description of the town, its location, climate, natural advantages, possibilities for business, etc. Thus every letter they wrote was an advertisement for the town. The town booming matter was artistically printed, and the catch line being visible as the folded sheet was taken from the envelope, few persons failed to read it. Inquiries for more information came pouring in, and then the people came pouring in. Why don't you try to have your people do likewise?"

Now that looks like a sensible proposition. Suppose fifty of our citizens should have their stationery printed with such matter on the back! Say they will average a thousand letters a year. That would be fifty thousand little booms for the town, going out to all quarters of the compass.

One of these letters might strike the eye of just the right party and bring us a new factory, an educational institution or even a good substantial family looking for a desirable home place.

It is worth trying.

We can get up the descriptive matter for you and do the printing.

Why don't you start the ball?

LET'S TALK IT OVER, ANYHOW.

Painting for Profit

No one will question the superior appearance of well-painted property. The question that the property-owner asks is: "Is the appearance worth the cost?"

Poor paint is for temporary appearance only.

Paint made from Pure Linseed Oil and Pure White Lead is for lasting appearance and for protection. It saves repairs and replacements costing many times the paint investment.

The Dutch Boy trade mark is found only on kegs containing Pure White Lead made by the Old Dutch Process.

Convincing.

In the cafe they were speaking of the proposed new tax. "But then," cried the novelist Z., furiously, "what can I do when I wish to prove that I am not making money?"

Y., his kind confrere, replied: "Do as the merchants do, show your books!"

A PECULIAR ALLIANCE.

That Made by the Doctors and the W. C. T. U.

For the purpose of fighting "patent" medicines the doctors, as represented by the American Medical Association, have made an alliance with the W. C. T. U. who have been deceived into believing that the alcohol in "patent" medicines is a menace. In this alliance the good ladies of the W. C. T. U. are apparently put in the position of dragging chestnuts out of the fire for their allies. There is no class so firmly convinced of the necessity for alcohol in medication as the doctors who, with a few exceptions, not only prescribe it freely but use it, as indeed they must whether they would prefer to or not, as a solvent and preservative. On the other hand the W. C. T. U. contends that the whole medical and pharmaceutical world is in error; that alcohol is not only useless but that it is dangerous and harmful in any quantity in any medicinal preparation. While their principles are so wholly at variance the doctors and the W. C. T. U. ladies have cheerfully allied themselves in a war on "patent" medicines, and the W. C. T. U. is placed in an even more ridiculous position by reason of the fact that the doctors do not confine their fight to those medicines which contain alcohol, but lump all "patent" medicines in one class. And this, too, despite the fact that, according to figures printed in the Journal of the American Medical Association, about 70 per cent of physicians' prescriptions are for "patent" or "proprietary" medicines.

The inability of many physicians to prescribe any but ready-to-use remedies is frequently commented upon by the medical press, and by physicians of the better class when assembled in conventions. That three-fourths of the physicians graduated each year in the United States are incompetent and a peril to the communities in which they practice was charged openly at the annual meeting of the Committee on Medical Education of the American Medical Association, held in Chicago in April of this year. The total number of graduates annually was placed at 4,000 which means that at least 3,000 incompetents are turned loose annually. It was stated at this meeting that an average of 58 per cent of the graduates from medical colleges failed to pass state examinations. These failures either go back to school, or go to some state where the requirements are not so high.

That many doctors are so ignorant in matters pertaining to pharmacy that they know nothing about the properties of the drugs they prescribe, was stated by Dr. M. Clayton Thrush, a professor in the Medico-Chirurgical College at Philadelphia in an address before the Annual Convention of the American Medical Association at Atlantic City in June of this year.

Dr. Henry Beats, Jr., President of the Board of Medical Examination for the State of Pennsylvania, in an interview in the daily papers said: "About one quarter of the papers show a degree of illiteracy that renders the candidates for licensure incapable of understanding medicine." He criticizes the colleges for awarding degrees in these cases.

MAN WAS A MISFIT

NOT BUILT FOR THE ORDINARY PARK BENCH.

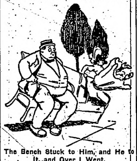
Girl Tells of More or Less Amusing Adventure in Which She was a Somewhat Unwilling Participant.

"They never think of trying to make these park benches to fit people," said the girl who sometimes sits awhile in the park. "That is, people of extraordinary size. The other day at about six o'clock I was sitting near the fountain at Union square when a man who must have weighed about 300 pounds and was about seven feet tall came and sat down at the other end of the bench I was on. He fitted mighty snugly in the chair—you know how those benches are divided into about six chairs—so snugly that I kept looking at him, wondering to myself how he ever was going to get up.

"I looked at him till he thought I was flirting with him—imagine flirting with a man so large he could pitch you into the fountain if he happened to take a dislike to you—and tried to flirt back.

"Discovering there was nothing flirtatious about me, he began to try to get up. I was waiting for it. I knew what was coming. The bench stuck to him and he to it, and over I went.

"I picked myself up and sat down again, and he tried to look as if nothing had happened. Then very quietly, his eye on me, looking out of the corner, he made a second move to get up with the same result. Over I went.



The Bench Stuck to Him, and He to It, and Over I Went.

"When this happened a third time I began to get a trifle tired of it, so I got up and walked around the fountain to where a tall cop was standing.

"'If you don't get a shoe horn,' I told him, 'and pry that man out of the chair he'll stay there all night.'"—N. Y. Press.

GOLFERS' CURIOUS DRIVE.

Playing from a Tree-Top—Ball That Bounded Back to Starting Point.

An odd incident occurred during a match at the Golf Club de Paris, near Versailles, France. Two players in the open amateur championship were at the fourteenth tee, when one sent his drive up a tree. The ball remained fixed between two branches; a caddie, climbing up, discovered its presence there.

A great consultation arose as to what should be done. The committee was hastily summoned and stood beneath the spreading branches of the tree, much in the fashion in which St. Louis dispensed justice in primitive France. Evidently the ball was not out of bounds. Finally the judges decreed that either a new ball should be dropped on the tee, counting two, or the ball should be played from the spot. To save the point, the golfer bravely shinned up the tree and played his ball from the embedding fork, making, indeed quite a stroke.

Later in the afternoon from the same tee I witnessed a curious incident. The player had driven, and his ball, striking the sand box of the ladies' tee, 50 yards ahead, bounded back to its starting place. The player then drove into the bunker with his second shot, which is also something of a performance.

A Great Bonfire.

The biggest bonfire ever seen in this vicinity was the burning Saturday night of the old Portsmouth, N. H., government drydock, which was towed to the Point of Pines a few weeks ago to be broken-up for junk, says the Hartford Courant.

The immense structure, which cost $1,000,000, went up in smoke for the amusement of about 20,000 people. The old dock was fired at 7:30, and so solid was the timbering that after blazing for six hours the frame still stood. It was 360 feet long and 110 feet wide, and contained millions of feet of heavy timber. Great sheets of flame shot up hundreds of feet and the column of smoke made a beacon that was seen far out to sea. Scores of yachts and launches took out pleasure parties and lay in the vicinity to watch the burning.

Herring Carry a Boat a Mile.

The latest fish story to come in is that of James Maddock, a fisherman, who was caught in the midst of a large school of herring in Gunpowder river, and claims that his boat was fairly carried along on the backs of the fish.

According to Maddox, despite his efforts at the oars, he was carried nearly a mile out of his course before he succeeded in extricating his boat from the school. In one haul of a big 600-fathom seine so many herring were surrounded that it was impossible to land the seine.

Schools of herring moving into the head waters of Chesapeake bay to spawn are now so thick that they dam the river and rowboats cannot get through them.—Minneapolis Journal.

"Love Buttons" in Vogue.

When you see a man wearing a photograph button in his coat lapel you may be pretty sure that he is either engaged or married to the lady whose portrait adorns him. Instead of wearing an engagement ring it has become the fashion among certain classes of men to wear "love buttons."

A Weak Defense.

"That is no defense at all," said Senator Curtis, during a discussion of emotional insanity at a dinner. "What you have just said, sir, is as weak a defense as the young automobilist's.

"The young man's father said to him:

"'Look here: I am ashamed of you. You spend all your time choo-chooing around the country in a motor car.'

"'Not all my time, father,' said the youth gently. 'Only half of it.'

"'And the other half?' asked the mollified old man.

"'That is passed underneath, sir, with a monkey wrench.'"

SPOILS OF AUSTRIAN COURT.

How They Are Divided Among the Attendant sUpon Royalty.

Court etiquette in Austria is more stringent than in other European courts.

The attendants come in for large perquisites, as comestible articles are never allowed to appear twice on the royal tables. It must be a good thing to be one of these attendants, as to one man falls all the uncorked bottles, to another the wine left in the glasses, and the game, fish, and sweets are equally divided in the same way.

Each morning a market is held in the basement of the palace, where the Viennese come to purchase the remains of the banquet.

This custom is a revival of one that obtained great favor in the Middle Ages. Then the great lords of the land were not above accepting the remains of a feast and the lord chancellor was entitled to the ends of one large candle and forty small ones each day.

He in his turn made capital of this perquisite and undoubtedly his exchequer was greatly increased by it at the end of the year.

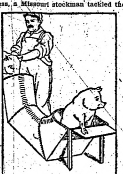
BATH DEVISED FOR PIGS.

Ingenious Arrangement Credited to a Missouri Stockman.

The unfortunate pig has always had the reputation for being the most uncleanly animal in existence. This is not entirely the fault of the pig, as his environment is generally accountable for his cleanliness. Pig raisers seldom attempt to give the pigs a bath, as it is almost impossible to catch and hold them, even for a minute. Nevertheless, a Missouri stockman tackled the problem and succeeded in planning an apparatus by which the pigs are given a good washing before they are slaughtered. It should also prove equally as useful at other times. The construction and operation of the dipping tank, as it is called, will be plainly evident by a glance at the accompanying illustration. Resting on the ground is the water tank, which is connected to an inclined inlet and outlet. On the incline of the outlet are tiny stairs to assist the pig in ascending. In preparation for his "annual" the pig is forced down the incline into the water, and if his common sense does not direct him on to the incline he is prodded from behind with a bar. In fact, in time this device may become very fashionable with pigs, and it would not be surprising to hear of them taking their daily "dip" hereafter.



HAWK DROVE COWS HOME.

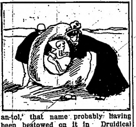
South of Ireland Farmer Certainly Can Boast of Wonderful Bird.

A farmer in the South of Ireland has a herd of about 35 cows, which are turned out to graze daily in a pasture some distance from the farmhouse, and it has been the duty of the farmer's son, a lad of 16, to go after the cattle each night, and drive them home to be milked. Some time ago the boy found a hawk's nest, took the young ones home, and raised one as a pet. Since then the hawk has always accompanied the boy. One day recently, the boy hurt his foot, and was unable to go after the cows. The farmer had no one else to send; but at the usual time the cows came trooping in, not one was missing, and flying along in the rear of the herd was the pet hawk. Next evening the hawk again started out after the cows, but this time he was watched. First the bird drove all the cows together by assailing each straggler separately. Then the entire drove was started towards home. If a cow loitered the hawk flew after her, pecked at her back, and beat her with his wings. When all the cows were in motion the hawk perched himself on the horn of the rear one, and calmly watched the progress of his charges.

BELIEVE IN STONE'S VIRTUES.

Ancient Superstition That Still Survives in English Shire.

Near the little village of Lanyon, in Cornwall, England, there is an ancient stone to which considerable mystery is attached. It is known as the "men-an-tol," that name probably having been bestowed on it in Druidical times.



Many superstitious Cornishmen and women, too, even in this enlightened age, believe that the stone has curative properties. Children afflicted with St. Vitus' dance and other nervous ailments are passed naked through the hole in the stone three times, and are then drawn three times along the grass against the sun. The same rites are practiced for spinal diseases.

There is nothing possible to a human greater than simple faithfulness. And the word stands out as the hopeful, possible thing about our lives.—Maltbie D. Babcock.

Shot Bear From Automobile.

Hunting bears with an automobile is not exactly the kind of sport that F. D. Marsh of San Francisco was looking for when he made a trip to Crater lake, Oregon, but he arrived in this city last evening from the north and had four claws of a bear tied to the dashboard of his 60 horse-power whiz wagon.

Marsh says that he and his party ran across a big brown bear by the roadside. Without leaving his seat he fired a shot that was fatal to bruin. He does not say that the bullet pierced the heart of the bear, but he shows the four claws as evidence that he is telling a straight story.—Sacramento Bee.

"'Well,' said the lady, 'I want a dozen absolutely fresh eggs for myself, and——' She touched the arm of her maid, who stood beside her—— 'and a half-dozen not quite so fresh for my maid here.'"

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. F. Gerald Blattner, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "Your Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, always obtaining the desired results."

Dr. Gustave A. Eisengraeber, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I have used your Castoria repeatedly in my practice with good results, and can recommend it as an excellent, mild and harmless remedy for children."

Dr. E. J. Dennis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used and prescribed your Castoria in my sanitarium and outside practice for a number of years and find it to be an excellent remedy for children."

Dr. S. A. Buchanan, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria in the case of my own baby and find it pleasant to take, and have obtained excellent results from its use."

Dr. J. E. Simpson, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."

Dr. R. E. Eskildson, of Omaha, Neb., says: "I find your Castoria to be a standard family remedy. It is the best thing for infants and children I have ever known and I recommend it."

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Edwin F. Pardee, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

SMALL ORDERS A GENERAL STTIKE

PRESIDENT OF TELEGRAPHERS' UNION CALLS OUT ALL OPERATORS.

CONFER WITH LABOR LEADERS

ASSOCIATED PRESS MAKES DECIDED IMPROVEMENT IN ITS SERVICE.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—S. J. Small, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, this morning issued a general order to all commercial operators to cease work immediately where contracts with the union have not been signed. Mr. Small arrived in Chicago early in the evening, and an hour later was in conference with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. George W. Perkins, president of the cigarmakers' union, and Wesley Russell, national secretary of the telegraphers' union were also present at the conference. Labor Commissioner Neill will leave for Washington to-day. He took no part in last night's conference and said that he would make no effort to do so until a request for such action had been made. During the day both telegraph companies made a material increase in their board of trade force and the occasion was greeted with lutsy cheers by the traders.

A. P. Service Improves.

Decided improvement was made yesterday on the condition of the Associated Press wires. The entire leased wire circuit between San Francisco and New York was placed in operation shortly after 6 o'clock last night. Up to that time the Western wires had terminated at Denver. A number of operators who went out on Monday returned to their work during the day.

No Change in New York.

New York, Aug. 16.—There were no developments of moment in the telegraphers' strike in this city and at nearby points yesterday. The Wall street brokers and their operators were eliminated from the contest last night when the local telegraphers' union met and for the second time tabled a resolution calling upon the operators of the financial district to go out.

Say More Wires Are Working.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—No progress was made yesterday by certain labor leaders who intervened to bring about a settlement of the telegraphers' strike by arbitration. President Small of the telegraphers' organization met Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and Labor Commissioner Neill during the day, but last night sair it was only in a social way and that it was too early in the fight to talk of arbitration.

Increase Working Force.

Despite the general strike order sent out early yesterday, both telegraph companies, by actual test, were able to handle business with greater promptness than at any time heretofore since the inauguration of the strike.

The officials of both companies declared that instead of desertions in response to the strike order, the reverse was the true state of affairs, as many recruits had been added to the working forces of both companies during the past twenty-four hours.

Few Respond to Call.

New York, Aug. 17.—Interest in the telegraphic strike centered yesterday in the probable effect of the general strike order issued by President Small. Throughout the East there were few if any responses to the call. This was explained on the ground that all operators who would strike had already quit work, and here the strike order was given importance only as affording official sanction of the action already taken by the strikers without the previous approval of the national officers.

Wires Work Better.

Both the Western Union and the Postal companies claimed not to have been affected by President Small's call and to be working their wires better yesterday than since the strike was declared. The Associated Press was not affected adversely.

Both Sides Play a Waiting Gome.

New York, Aug. 20. — As though by mutual agreement the parties to the strike of telegraphers took things easier yesterday, and the usual claims and counter-claims of the day's developments were not made public. There was little doing at strike headquarters and nearly all of the higher officials of the Western Union and Postal companies spent the day out of town. Those left in charge of the companies' offices said that business was moving smoothly. Reports of the strikers stated that reports received were favorable from the standpoint of the men who are out.

Demands on Brokers.

The local union met last night, and later it was announced that it had been decided to make certain demands upon the Wall street brokers, so that the brokerage houses that had not already done so would be given until noon to sign the union scale. It was also stated that the strikers had decided to begin at once the publication of a daily paper, which would set forth their side of the controversy.

The special leased wire news service was materially improved throughout the country yesterday.

TRIKE SITUATION UNCHANGED

TELEGRAPH COMPANIES AND STRIKERS CLAIM TO BE SATISFIED.

New York, Aug. 22. — There have been no important developments in the strike of the commercial telegraphers in the East. The telegraph companies claim to be satisfied with conditions. As far as the movement of press dispatches throughout the East is concerned the strike has lost significance.

The messenger boys of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies met last night and took steps to organize a union. They are promised a charter from the American Federation of Labon. The boys were encouraged by officers of the telegraphers' union.

The telegraphers will attempt to organize the clerks employed by the companies, and if they succeed will have all branches of employment by the companies represented in the ranks of organized labor. A largely attended meeting of the strikers was held yesterday afternoon, at which addresses were made by members of the union and by T. M. Pierson, vice president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers.

OUSTED MAYOR KILLS SELF.

Paul C. Barth Commits Suicide by Shooting.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 22. — Paul C. Barth, for a year and a half mayor of Louisville and ousted recently by a decision of the court of appeals, shot and killed himself in his private office at the headquarters of the Utica Lime company, of which he was general manager. Since the ousting of Mr. Barth's administration by mandate of the court of appeals, two months ago, the acts of the officials during his term have been subjected to severe scrutiny.

Nothing was found that reflected any discredit on Mr. Barth personally, but the method of conducting some of the city institutions had been criticised both in official reports and in the press.

Mr. Barth was sensitive to criticism, and his friends at times remarked that the condition of affairs seemed to worry him.

NEUTRALITY OF NORWAY.

Kaiser and Czar Agree to Follow Great Britain's Desires.

London, Aug. 22.—It was learned in diplomatic circles yesterday that one of the principal questions discussed by Emperor William and Emperor Nicholas during their recent meeting at Swinemunde was the neutrality of Norway.

The subject was thoroughly gone over and an agreement was reached under which Germany and Russia undertake to regard Norway as neutral territory. This is in accordance with the desire of Great Britain, which has been heartily supporting Norway's endeavors to secure guarantees in this direction.

ROOSEVELT SEES WALL STREET PLOT

NO CHANGE IN POLICY AND NO VINDICTIVE ACTION WILL BE TAKEN.

NATIONAL INCORPORATION LAW

WILL NOT LET UP IN EFFORT TO "PUNISH MALEFACTORS OF GREAT WEALTH."

Provincetown, Aug. 22.—The laying of the corner-stone of the Cape Cod Pilgrim memorial monument here yesterday gave President Roosevelt his first opportunity of the summer to break silence upon public questions.

The feature of his address was the advocacy of a national incorporation law and his stand in relation to violators of the law, especially corporations. He declared that the administration would not waver in its determination "to punish certain malefactors of great wealth."

No Change in Policy.

Continuing, he said: "There will be no change in the policy we have steadily pursued; no let-up in the effort to secure the honest observance of the law, for I regard this contest as one to determine who shall rule this government—the people, through their governmental agents, or a few ruthless and determined men whose wealth makes them particularly formidable because they hide behind the breastworks of corporate organization."

The president said the government would take no action of a vindictive nature and no action that would inflict great or unmerited suffering upon innocent stockholders and upon the public.

He spoke of the charges that the recent depression in markets was due to the administration's attitude toward corporations, and declared that the only way in which that attitude could be influencing the markets is in the conduct of a plot on the part of the interests which are being attacked to cause such depression in the country at large as to bring discredit on the conduct of the government in the minds of the pople at large.

Prosperity for the Honest.

He said that the government's policy in its ultimate analysis meant "healthy and prosperous expansion of the business activities of honest business men and honest corporations."

At one point President Roosevelt departed for a moment from his address as originally prepared to remark: "All that I have said as to desirable and undesirable citizens remains true."

The day was noteworthy in the history of Cape Cod. The monument, which will rise to a height of 250 feet, will commemorate the first landing of the Pilgrims on American soil, their six weeks' exploration of Cape Cod bay in search of an abiding place and the signing of the famous compact on board the Mayflower.

Accidents Cause Two deaths in a Few Hours.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 22.—Three accidents, two resulting fatally and the other in serious injury, to miners occurred in the mines here within a few hours of each other. Two happened in the Parrot mine and the other in the Pennsylvania.

Tim Crowley was killed in the Pennsylvania mine by falling rock, his partner, John Powers, narrowly escaping a similar fate.

A premature blast at the Parrott killed William Sappina, a Finn, instantly, and so badly injured Joe Simpson that he probably will lose his sight.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Aug. 22.—Mercury dropped several degrees below the freezing point in the lowlands last night and reports are that many cornfields were badly damaged.

Deputy Sheriff Harper of Belle Fourche held an inquest, after which the body was buried near the wagon. The young man was a stranger and his name could not be learned.

OFFICE IS ATTACKED BY MOB

EVERY WINDOW IS BROKEN AND LIVES OF OPERATORS ENDANGERED.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 22.—An armed mob attacked the office of the Postal Telegraph company at Ashfork, Ariz., early yesterday and broke every window in the building with bullets. The lives of four employes were endangered, but so far as known no one was injured. The office is now guarded by Sheriff Lowery and two deputies who arrived yesterday by special train from Prescott.

One Man Arrested.

The sheriff has arrested a man known as "Spec" Smooth for alleged complicity in the shooting. It is said, however, that Smooth is not a telegrapher.

Several men were implicated in the shooting, which broke every window in the telegraph office, and it is understood that the Postal will offer a liberal reward for the arrest and conviction of the guilty.

The shooting began at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The Postal employes made no resistance.

Appeals to Washington.

Vice President Nally of the Postal company wired from New York that he had taken the matter up with the authorities at Washington, and Supt. Lewis of this district wired the following to Gov. Kibbey:

"Last night an armed mob attacked our office at Ashfork, shooting into the office with revolvers and endangering the lives of our employes. They threatened to renew the attack to-night. I call upon you to protect the lives of our employes and the property of the company at Ashfork. Please act promptly."

Gov. Kibbey replied that he would act immediately.

GOMPERS WILL FIGHT.

To Contest Van Cleave's Suit to the Court of Last Resort.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Commenting on the suit of James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, against President Gompers and other general officers of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Gompers said yesterday that he would give the action the utmost publicity in the publications of the federation. He said, if necessary, the case would be carried to the supreme court of the United States, and that the federation would make its fight to sustain the "unfair list" on the general constitutional ground of freedom of speech and press. The suit seeks to enjoin boycotting and publication of the unfair lists.

OPEN THIRTY-THREE YEARS.

Famous Restaurant in New York Is Closed for First and Last Time.

New York, Aug. 22. — Another city landmark, Lyons' restaurant, on the Bowery, just around the corner from police headquarters, is passing away. The place has been closed by the sheriff and it is thought will hardly be reopened.

Mike Lyons started the restaurant thirty-five years ago, and its prosperity has been measured by the rise and fall of the Bowery. For thirty-three years it was Lyons' boast that his place had never been closed. In fact he claimed to have thrown away the key. Then came the uptown movement of night life and with it the decadence of the Bowery's famous restaurant.

$250,000 IS STOLEN FROM POSTAL CAR

THREE MAIL SACKS, CONTAINING TREMENDOUS SUM, DISAPPEARS FROM TRAIN.

OFFICIALS REFUSE TO TALK

WILL NOT SAY HOW MUCH WAS STOLEN—ROBBERY IS NOT DENIED.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 22.—Three mail sacks, containing about a quarter of a million dollars, disappeared from a Burlington train Sunday night between Denver and Oxford, Neb. The postoffice officials have just made the theft public. Detectives and postoffice officials are at work on the case.

Refuse to Say How Much.

According to reports made last night to railway postal officials in Lincoln, the amount of money stolen from the postal car on the Burlington last Thursday night was not $250,000, as at first rumored, or anything like that sum, but the authorities refuse to say just what the amount is.

Money Is Missed.

That some money is missing and that it disappeared near Oxford, Neb., is not denied. The packages were sent from Denver for Chicago, and their disappearance was first noticed when the checking up of registered matter began just after the train left Oxford. It is denied that there was any transfer of mails from one car to another at Oxford.

GOV. MAGOON SCORES CUBANS.

Woeful Neglect of Sanitary Precautions Cause of Fever Outbreak.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The war department yesterday made public a long cabled report from Gov. Magoon of Cuba, which startled the medical officers, showing as it does that in the short period since the withdrawal of the American government of intervention and the reassumption of American government by the Cuban army of pacification there has been a woeful neglect of sanitary precautions and an almost complete disregard of the treaty obligations under which the Palma government was to keep the island healthy, so that it should not be a source of infection to the United States and other countries.

The governor's report also discloses that the fever in this last outbreak has not been confined to the hospital corps, but has extended to other soldiers. He also indicates that the evil sanitary conditions cannot be cured this year, in spite of the most vigorous efforts by American authorities, in which it appears they received little support from native Cuban physicians.

Before he left Washington Secretary Taft became seriously concerned for the safety of the American troops and residents in Cuba as the result of yellow fever at Cienfuegos. He cabled Gov. Magoon for a full statement of conditions and urged the governor to take every step that prudence could suggest to eradicate the disease. Gov. Magoon complied by sending yesterday's report.

The report says there are three cases in town, exclusive of soldiers. Twelve soldiers contracted the disease and three of them died. The soldiers contracted the disease in the hospital. No cases have appeared in soldiers' quarters.

TO SETTLE FISHERIES DISPUTE.

The Unite States and Great Britain Will Let Hague Tribunal Decide.

London, Aug. 22. — The American government, which has taken the lead at the Hague peace conference in endeavoring to promote arbitration, will be responsible for giving the Hague tribunal the most important case yet submitted to it in the Newfoundland fisheries dispute, which undoubtedly will be taken there as a result of negotiations conducted in London between the foreign office and the American ambassador, Whitelaw Reid.

Both the foreign office and the embassy maintain diplomatic reserve, but it has been learned from unquestionable sources thatthe long correspondence between the two governments made it clear that their contentions could not be harmonized and had reached an impasse. Finally Mr. Reid presented a proposal to submit the dispute to the Hague tribunal. After a week or two of consideration the British government accepted the proposal. While the matter is in process of arbitration the fisheries will be conducted under the same modus vivendi as last year.

BOAT UPSETS; TWO DROWNED

LAKE EMILY, NEAR ST. PETER, MINN., IS THE SCENE OF FATAL ACCIDENT.

St. Peter, Minn., Aug. 22.—Two men were drowned and a third barely escaped a similar fate at Lake Emily last night. A boat capsized and Swen J. Carlson and Peter Almquist, both of this city, tried to swim to the shore and lost their lives. John Johnson, who could not swim, clung to the boat and was saved.

The three men had been fishing in a rowboat and were about to start for the wharf. Carlson stood up in the boat to raise the anchor, and when one of his companions began to move about it was overturned. When they were thrown into the water Carlson and Almquist swam about ten yards and then sank, death overtaking them when they were not more than a hundred feet from safety.

Johnson went down with the others, but he manged to reach the anchor rope and draw himself back to the boat. Twenty minutes after the accident he was seen from a passing launch and when rescued was in a partially unconscious condition, so exhausted by fatigue and exposure that he could not speak.

Mrs. Margaret Emmerich, of Clinton St., Napoleon, O., says: "For fifteen years I was a great sufferer from kidney troubles. My back pained me terribly. Every turn or move caused sharp, shooting pains. My eyesight was poor, dark spots appeared before me, and I had dizzy spells. For ten years I could not do housework, and for two years did not get out of the house. The kidney secretions were irregular, and doctors were not helping me. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me quick relief, and finally cured me. They saved my life."

The Wise Course.

"Sir," said the tramp, "I have not tasted food for seven days; another half an hour of fasting and I must die!"

"Then," said the philanthropist, "you shall live. Take this ticket; it will admit you, in my stead, to a sumptuous banquet; course after course, meats, wines and dessert—a feast three hours long; glorious company—Mr. Talkforhours, Mr. Toofew, Mr. Longyard and other eminent men."

"Will there be any after-dinner speeches?" asked the starving one.

"Columns of 'em," said the philanthropist.

Then the tramp handed back the ticket and crawled wearily away into a silent lumber yard to die.

Origin of the Sedan Chair.

Perhaps some expert in the Siamese language will tell us what is its word for "sedan chair." When the king of Siam's ministers, protecting against his majesty's favor toward motoring, suggested recently that "the royal sedan chair" was always at his disposal, it is improbable that they used a word reminiscent of the French town.

For it is from the scene of Napoleon III.'s collapse that the sedan chair takes its name, and perhaps remote posterity will suppose that it had some connection with that event. But sedan first produced these conveyances centuries ago, and they were seen in England in 1581. One used by James I.'s Buckingham provoked great popular outcry against the employment of men as beasts of burden. Sir S. Duncombe is credited with having introduced them to London in 1634.

Heavyweight Kitchen Folks.

"It will do you more good to smell food that is being cooked than it will to eat it after it is cooked," was the astounding statement made by a restaurant man.

"That is the reason why so many professional cooks are heavyweights. You never saw any one who became a chef and stayed at it any length of time but became fleshy. Cooks never eat to any great extent, except to taste the food at times while it is being cooked in order to see if it is done. It is the odor of the food in the kitchen that makes them fat.

"The same will apply in the case of the housewife. Continuous work in the kitchen makes fleshy women and healthy women. Cooking is the healthiest occupation in the world."

You can never tell what will happen when an exnert butts into the game.

FOOD FACTS

Grape-Nuts

FOOD

A Body Balance

People hesitate at the statement that the famous food, Grape-Nuts, yields as much nourishment from one pound as can be absorbed by the system from ten pounds of meat, bread, wheat or oats. Ten pounds of meat might contain more nourishment than one pound of Grape-Nuts, but not in shape that the system will absorb as large a proportion of, as the body can take up from one pound of Grape-Nuts.

This food contains the selected parts of wheat and barley which are prepared and by natural means predigested, transformed into a form of sugar, ready for immediate assimilation. People in all parts of the world testify to the value of Grape-Nuts.

A Mo. man says: "I have gained ten pounds on Grape-Nuts food. I can truly recommend it to thin people." He had been eating meat, bread, etc., right along, but there was no ten pounds of added flesh until Grape-Nuts food was used.

One curious feature regarding true health food is that its use will reduce the weight of a corpulent person with unhealthy flesh, and will add to the weight of a thin person not properly nourished. There is abundance of evidence to prove this.

Grape-Nuts balances the body in a condition of true health. Scientific selection of food elements makes Grape-Nuts good and valuable. Its delicious flavor and powerful nourishing properties have made friends that in turn have made Grape-Nuts famous. "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Bemidji has voted a franchise for an electric street railway.

Some of the state political aspirants are round already looking after the fences in their territory.

There is no need of a man complaining about work now-a-days if he will get busy and look for it.

Statistics show us that the United States stands first in peace, first in war, and second in naval strength with the other nations of the world.

Texas has tacked up a shingle of warning to consumptives, and the governor will assess a $500 fine for a railroad company hauling a person affected with the disease into the state.

The Walker Pilot says "If we could all hang onto money like we do our bad habits, Bro. Rockefeller wouldn't be so much in a class by himself, in giving away millions in his old age.

Heatwole's Dairy Paper: Over in Austria more than 100,000 persons are kept busy making imitation ivory products from skimmed milk, and they do their work so well that the average person cannot tell them from the genuine article. Milkstone, as this skimmed milk substance is called, is hard and tough. Besides piano keys and collars, pepper and salt shakers, pen holders and ink wells, umbrella handles, boxes, doll heads, door knobs, mantle pieces, clocks, paper racks, pinheads, collar buttons, picture frames, rubber and amber imitations, glue and putty and many other articles too numerous to mention are made from skimmed milk.

A large number of our exchanges are of the opinion that oil will be "up in price" as a result of the fine assessed the Standard Oil Company by Judge Landis, and many of the readers of such rot are preparing for the worst by buying five gallons at a time. Just what the company may decide to do after the law in its final shall decree that the $29,240,000 fine be paid is hard to fortell, but it will not be to raise the price of oil. A raise at this time would prove disastrous to Rockefeller, his lights would flicker out and no more would hair grow on the top of his head, but the angels would find a place in heaven for him beside the coal baron and ice man.

Willmar Journal: How quickly will a man change his tune in regard to the newspaper man? When the sun is shining bright, and there are no clouds in sight, he sometimes heaps indignities where none are deserved, with impunity. But when the sky becomes suddenly overcast, and something happens that he desires suppressed, then how he will try and explain, beg. And generally the newspaper man will swallow his feelings and show how magnanimous he really is. The feelings of an enemy have been spared and the public denied a choice morsel. And the newspaper man knows that the man he has spared will stab him again at the first opportunity. Such is life.

Seemingly the county seat fight is yet in infancy, and it promises to be a long and hard struggle. The removal of the seat of government from Red Lake Falls the citizens of that city think unjust, while Thief River Falls wants the plum and will battle to a finish to get it. Their latest move was the application of M. V. Evenson before Judge Watts for an injunction restraining County Auditor O'Brien from fixing a date for the meeting of the county commissioners to consider the first county seat removal petition, which it is claimed has been lost or stolen. The claim of Evenson is that proceedings under the petition have been abandoned. Attorneys Grady and Boughten of Red Lake Falls asked to be allowed to intervene in the case in behalf of A. P. Toupin. The objection made by the attorneys of the plaintiffs was overruled and the intervention allowed. After listening to the arguments the Judge granted the application of the plaintiff for a temporary injunction during the pendency of the suit restraining the county auditor from calling a meeting of the county commissioners to consider the first petition which in reality has disappeared. The case will be brought up for trial at the October term of the district court.

The Bemidji attorney who said "the girls who live under the dominion of our lady of snows have big, flat feet," will hereafter spend his winters in the south instead of taking an outing in Canada during the warm weather.

The Ruling Passion.

A celebrated musical critic was married in church some years ago, and after the ceremony, as the wedding procession marched down the aisle, the organist played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." When near the door, the bridegroom stopped in the march and addressed the wondering assembly thus:

"I know I am committing a breach of etiquette as well as propriety in doing this, but I am not to blame. It is my mental organization which has become ineffably sensitive by reason of the critical nature of my duties."

Then he drew from the pocket of his dress coat a well thumbed copy of the score of "Lohengrin." Opening it at the march, he went over to the organist and said:

"What offended my ear was the fact that in the seventeenth bar of the da capo passage you flatted very badly, and in the andante movement you slurred the appoggiatura. Now," putting his finger upon the passage, "let us try that again."

Once more the organ pealed forth, and this time the player, conscious that the great critic was listening to him, accomplished his duty with credit to himself and to the great satisfaction of the critic.—London Standard.

The Sick Chinaman.

Perhaps nowhere in the world is family affection stronger than among the Chinese, yet their method of dealing with the sick is pitiable to the more enlightened world. When a favorite son falls ill his life depends largely upon a package of joss sticks. The grieving father seeks a joss house, procures a handful of these sticks and, taking them home, lights them. He shakes them gently. Soon one falls. Is it lighted? Eagerly the father watches it. Will it burn to the end or go out? If it is entirely consumed the son will survive; if it goes out he will die. It goes out!

The Chinaman reasons thus: His son was chased by a devil and when the devil touched him he became ill. The devil demonstrated by means of the joss sticks that his son must die. Had the joss sticks burned to the end it would have signified the future recovery of the patient. Joss men would have been called in, a most fearful din would have followed, and the devil and all his lower imps would have been driven away.—New York Herald.

"I saved them for you from last summer," she answered. "You said you always had to buy flies when you went a-fishing."—London Answers.

A Cool Convict.

A life convict in the Andamans had served some long period when an order recently came for his release. Nelson is surely to be congratulated upon his showing as a dairyman, he being the first person in this locality to receive better than one hundred dollars for cream delivered at the St. Hilaire creamery for any one month. Constable K. R. Killand on Tuesday delivered into Sheriff Nelson's custody Chris. Bangen, the young man held for fishing with a net last spring. He was fined twenty-five dollars and costs by Justice Jens Nelson, or sentenced to twenty days at the county bastile. On the plea of no funds he was given an opportunity to work out the fine here at home, but when he tried to make his get-a-way, the fatal result sollowed.

A decidedly novel feature of the Minnesota State Fair this year will be the flight of a real, sure enough ship of the air, twice a day. This is not a hot air balloon, from which a man descends to earth hanging to a parachute, but a real steerable vessel of the air, which will rise, sail over the heads of the people like a bird, and return to its starting place. The sailor is of long experience in his line and the exhibition will be something entirely new. The air ship will make flights three times daily weather permitting. This year's fair opens on Monday, Sept. 2, when Dan Patch will be the star attraction. It closes on Saturday, Sept. 7, with a great automobile show and race meet.

Capt. H. C. Doughty was up from St. Paul the first of the week looking to the welfare of his farm out southeast of town. He made this item factory a brief visit to order the paper sent to his address at Prescott, Wisconsin, that he might keep posted on the doings of our creamery as well as those of the surrounding country. Mr. Doughty spoke of the difference in the price paid for butter-fat here and at his home down in Wisconsin; the product there bringing only twenty-one cents per pound on the eastern market, while the St. Hilaire butter sells at twenty-six cents a pound or two cent above the market. There is a big difference in our favor when you take into consideration that Mr. Doughty's farm in Wisconsin is worth eighty dollars an acre, while his ranch here cost him but twenty dollars per acre, and besides the grasses and feed grown here are far more productive of butter-fat that those grown elsewhere.

A goodly number of baseball sports followed the local team over to Wylie last Sunday to witness the contest between that team and the local club. The game waxed warm from the start and it was a hard fought contest all through the nine innings, when at the final the score stood eight to seven in favor of our lads. Berg, of Thief River Falls, was in the box for Wylie, with Ford as back-stop, while Ittner and Martz alternated with the Lund brothers as battery for the locals.

A large addition has been added to the Crookston College this summer. The building is up-to-date in every respect and will now accommodate 500 students. The college catalog is just printed and you can get a copy free by writing to J. C. Sathre, Crookston, Minn.

Soon the merry chimes of the school bell will announce to the small children that it is time to open their books and learn new ideas, review the past and prepare for the future. No child should neglect his educational opportunities.

We desire in this manner to express thanks to the many friends who assisted us in the time of sorrow, and especially the United Lutheran pastor for his services and the use of their church.

France's Earliest Artists.

The caves of southern France are the most remarkable in the world for their wall pictures, made by prehistoric men. Some of the pictures are engraved in the rock, some are painted with different colors. They usually represent extinct animals, such as cave-lions and cave-bears. But more remarkable than this is the fact that the daily use of golden grain belt beer will build up and feed your nerves and insure perfect health. Serve daily with your meals. Handsome Catalog.

Professor Sathre, of the Crookston Business College, may well feel proud of the excellent catalog which he has put out this year and which he is sending to prospective students all over the northwest. It is probably the finest specimen of catalog work ever turned out in the northwest.

The book is not only an advertisement for the school but is also a splendid advertisement for Crookston, as it tells of the advantages of this city in a clean, concise manner. Every word uttered by Mr. Sathre through his catalog is fact, and this is one reason for the remarkable success of the Crookston Business College since its establishment here in the nineties.

Since last year Mr. Sathre has added considerable additional room for the accommodation of his constantly growing school and this year will without a doubt prove the best year which the school has ever experienced.—Crookston Times.

Chance to Write for the Paper

Who has not at times had ideas which he or she would like to see in some newspaper? Many a good thought has slumbered in the brain of the thinker because of the difficulties and rebuffs which are always supposeed to lie in the path to the editorial sanctum. The Chicago Record-Herald, however, welcomes such ideas and has a page in its Sunday issue called "The Battle Ground of Modern Thought," which is devoted exclusively to letters from its readers. The best articles received each week are carefully edited and printed over the writers' names. The amount of really valuable matter that finds its way into the department is remarkable and is proof that the ability to write well and entertainingly is not confined to professional writers. The only restriction the Record-Herald puts upon writers for this interesting page is that articles must be of a controversial nature and devoted to the discussion of some current topic.

HIGH BUTTER SCORES.

Geo. L. Austin, of the St. Hilaire Creamery, is a Prize Winner and Premium Getter.

While Geo. L. Austin, buttermaker for the St. Hilaire Creamery, may send samples of his butter to the various county fairs and enter it in competition with the product of other buttermakers throughout the northwest, it would be egotistic for him to say he won first prize every time, when in fact his butter is a prize winner at all times. We are pleased with the product he sends out and the patrons of the creamery are highly satisfied with the two-cent premium the butter brings in New York City, and also the score given him by experts in the city, then why should we care if the other fellows receive a few favors around home. At the North Dakota state fair, with forty contestants and 94½ as high score, G. L. Austin took eighth place with a score of 92½; at the Red Lake county fair the score gave Plummer first with a score of 94½, St. Hilaire second, 94, and Thief River Falls third, 93½; at the State Educational six months' scoring contest of the "Gathered Cream Class," the score for Red Lake county stood Thief River Falls 93½, Red Lake Falls 92, Lillo 90, St. Hilaire 90, while the score of the experts at New York follows, together with a letter from the commission house with which the St. Hilaire Creamery does business:

The Big Holler.

Once a certain Genius who thought that the Moon was inhabited proposed that at a certain moment on a certain night every man, woman and child on earth should holler just as loud as possible, so that the Man in the Moon might hear the sound and know that he had neighbors.

Everybody said it was a Fine Idea. Everybody agreed to Holler with a big H. For a month in advance everybody practiced lung exercises, so as to cultivate the Biggest Holler possible. Everybody was sure that the Moon Man couldn't help but hear the Vast Volume of Vociferation.

The Eventful Night arrived. The Moon Man was looking down through a cloudless sky. Everybody on earth drew in two large lungfuls of air and got ready for the Big Holler. The Mighty Moment came at last!!!

Silence! Absolute silence! It was the silentest moment since the morning stars first sang together.

When the returns came in it was known that only one man, a negro in Darkest Africa, hollered, and one woman in Oshkosh, Wis., who was so excited that she just couldn't help it, let out a faint hysterical shriek.

Everybody else had kept Mum in order to hear the Big Holler that all the others were going to make.

But nobody made the holler because they all waited for the other fellows to do it—all except the African, who had no curiosity, and the Oshkosh lady, who had hysterics.

And the Man in the Moon just laughed!

It was enough to make a comet splutter, for it revealed a very amusing trait in human nature.

> You will find lots of people right here in this community who refuse to join in the Big Holler because they want to get the full benefit of the holler when the other people make it. Sometimes by making a Big Holler all at once we might get a new factory located here, but when 999 men stand around, each waiting for all the others to do the hollering, and only one man hollers, the man looking for a factory site doesn't hear any sound.

If it takes a Big Holler to get what we want, every fellow must lend a lung.

This is not just a funny story. It is Full of Philosophy. It ought to set you thinking.

MORAL: Now's the time for the Big Holler!

All Are Sinners.

Genevieve's father occupied the pulpit. "Let him who is without sin among you be the first to cast a stone," he chose for a text.

Genevieve listened earnestly to the entire discourse. At the close of the service her mother tried in vain to dislodge her from the ministerial pew. Genevieve stood her ground till the rest of the congregation had passed out, then she looked up with a sigh of relief.

"Well," she said, "I guess they've all sinned. Anyway, nobody threw it."

GOLFER'S CURIOUS DRIVE.

Playing From a Treetop—Ball That Bounded Back to Starting Point.

An odd incident occurred on Saturday during a match at the Golf Club de Paris, near Versailles, says the Pall Mall Gazette. Two players in the open amateur championship were at the fourteenth tee, when one sent his drive up a tree. The ball remained fixed between two branches; a caddie, climbing up, discovered its presence there.

A great consultation arose as to what should be done. The committee was hastily summoned and stood beneath the spreading branches of the tree, much in the fashion in which St. Louis dispensed justice in a primitive France. Evidently the ball was not out of bounds. Finally the judges decreed that either a new ball should be dropped on the tee, counting two, or the ball should be played from the spot. To save the point, the golfer bravely shinned up the tree and played his ball from the embracing fork, making, indeed, quite a good stroke.

Later in the afternoon from the same tee I witnessed another curious incident. The player had driven, and his ball, striking the sand box of the ladies' tee, fifty yards ahead, bounded back to its starting place. The player then drove into the bunker with his second shot, which is also something of a performance.

WHAT'S THE USE?

To Pour in Coffee When It Acts as a Vicious Enemy.

Fasters have gone without food for many days at a time but no one can go without sleep. "For a long time I have not been sleeping well, often lying awake for two or three hours during the night but now I sleep sound every night and wake up refreshed and vigorous," says a Calif. woman.

"Do you know why? It's because I used to drink coffee but I finally cut it out and began using Postum. Twice since then I have drank coffee and both times I passed a sleepless night, and so I am doubly convinced coffee caused the trouble and Postum removed it.

"My brother was in the habit of drinking coffee three times a day. He was troubled with sour stomach and I would often notice him getting soda from the can to relieve the distress in his stomach; lately hardly a day passed without a dose of soda for relief.

"Finally he tried a cup of Postum and liked it so well he gave up coffee and since then has been drinking Postum in its place and says he has not once been troubled with sour stomach."

Even after this lady's experience with coffee her brother did not suspect for a time that coffee was causing his sour stomach, but easily proved it.

Coffee is not suspected in thousands of cases just like this but it's easily proved. A ten day's trial works wonders. "There's a Reason."

NORTHWEST NEWS

STORM CAUSES IMMENSE DAMAGE

REPORTS FROM SECTIONS OF NORTHWEST TELL OF HEAVY DAMAGE.

CROPS BEATEN TO THE EARTH

St. Paul, Aug. 21.—Reports received yesterday from various points throughout Minnesota and Wisconsin showed that the electrical and rain storm which struck the Twin Cities Sunday evening spread over considerable territory and worked havoc among the buildings and crop wherever it hit. In some instances streams overflowed as a result of the deluge of rain, and almost every point reported some damage by lightning.

It appears that there was no loss of life, though several building were hit and others badly damaged. Stock suffered in some places, and some horses and cattle were killed by lightning or drowned.

Damage Is About $100,000.

The total amount of damage done may amount to all of $100,000, as crops were beaten to the earth in some localities and many buildings were damaged, but the loss in no one place appears to have exceeded $25,000 or $30,000.

The storm damaged the tracks of the interurban line between St. Paul and Stillwater, and it was 10 o'clock this morning before traffic could be resumed. A barn belonging to Albert Lohman of Lake Elmo, near Stillwater, was destroyed, causing a loss of $3,000.

Crops Badly Lodged.

Crops in Chisago county were badly lodged and several farm buildings were blown down.

In the vicinity of Blue Earth the storm was the worst of the season, causing considerable damage to standing grain.

At Ellsworth, Wis., the furniture store of George Hoyer was damaged by flood. Loss, $1,000. The large barn of Mrs. John Birkel was destroyed with its contents. Loss, $2,000. Lightning also destroyed the barn of Christ Freier, together with its contents.

Lightning Hits Farms.

Considerable damage to crops and other property occurred in the vicinity of Maiden Rock, Wis. The sewers in the town overflowed, causing considerable damage to streets and private property.

Lightning struck on six farms in Eau Claire county, Wisconsin. Three cows and eight horses were killed, and four barns and their contents burned and one damaged.

In the vicinity of Red Wing the storm washed out roads and bridges and did damage estimated at $50,000.

Girl Is Fataly Injured.

Yesterday's report of the Sunday storm show that the country surrounding St. Paul and Minneapolis was struck by even a more violent wind storm than were the cities, the summer colony at Lake Independence, in Hennepin county, suffering the most. Several persons were injured and Miss Minnie Johnson probably fatally hurt. The storm demolished many of the summer cottages.

Low Water Is Encountered and Work Is Abandoned.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Aug. 21.—After working on a big log drive on the Chippewa river below Holcombe for thirty-five days a crew of about fifty men have arrived here, having given up the effort to move it. The rear of the drive is at Brunette Falls. Twenty-five days ago the gang encountered low water, and during that time were able to move the drive only six miles. There is no water in Little Falls dam and it is impossible to move the mass of logs any further.

SAYS LAW MUST BE ENFORCED

ATTORNEY GENERAL NOTIFIES MAYOR OF NEW ULM THAT LID MUST BE PUT ON.

St. Paul, Aug. 22.—Attorney General Young took action yesterday on the complaint filed by citizens of New Ulm. He notified Mayor Silverson that the Sunday closing law must be enforced. Otherwise he will proceed under the law for the mayor's removal from office. Mayor Silverson has taken the stand that as long as the people of New Ulm do not want the Sunday law enforced, he will not take any steps to enforce it. The attorney general's letter to Mayor Silverson says in part: "It is unnecessary to call your attention to the fact that it is your duty as mayor to cause the laws of the state relating to the regulation of the liquor traffic to be enforced in your city. Under the same law it is my duty to cause the removal and punishment of municipal officers who willfully neglect to enforce such liquor laws.

"The saloons of your city must close and remain closed on Sunday, the same as they do elsewhere in the state, and unless I am advised that you cause this to be done henceforward, I will be compelled to exercise the power conferred on this office in the premises."

TORNADO KILLS LITTLE CHILD.

Details of Sunday's Storm Show Great Extent of Damage.

Minneapolis, Aug. 22. — Tillie Putzlier, the eight years old daughter of Andrew Putzlier, a farmer living near Osseo, was killed in the wreck of her home by the tornado Sunday night. As the survivors of the storm begin to arrive in Minneapolis and the telephone wires are again put in service the devastation and havoc wrought by the storm in the northwestern part of Hennepin county becomes more apparent.

Cottages were lifted bodily from their slight foundations and hurled through the air. Many of the victims who were not injured seriously were practically stripped of their clothing while all were completely drenched.

KICK STANDARD OUT OF STATE

SUIT WILL BE STARTED IN DISTRICT COURT TO OUST OIL OCTOPUS.

St. Paul, Aug. 21. — Within a few days the State of Minnesota will institute proceedings against the Standard Oil company in an attempt to oust the company from the state because of alleged violations of the Hinton anti-discrimination law passed last winter. Attorney General E. T. Young is authority for the statement that the suit will be instituted in a few days in the district court of Ramsey or Hennepin county.

Since the filing of the complaint with Secretary of State Schmahl in May an investigation has been made quietly of the evidence which could be produced in the event of the suit being brought. The investigation included analyses of the grade of oil sold at various points in which it is alleged there was a discrimination in prices, and of the other evidence which could be produced to prove the sale of the oil at each of the places at the various prices alleged in the complaint.

Evidence Is Ample.

At a conference in the attorney general's office yesterday with representatives of the independent oil dealers this evidence was reviewed. That it is believed to be ample to secure conviction on the charge of discrimination is evidenced by the fact that the suits will be brought without delay.

The charge which the Standard Oil company will have to meet is that of discriminating between various localities in the price of oil of the same grade. The prosecution will be under the Hinton law, which makes the penalty for a conviction under the law the cancellation of the company's license to do business in this state. This law provides that the price of oil must be the same in all parts of the state, making due allowances for the difference in freight rates. Violations of the law by any person or corporation or any agent or officer or member of a corporation is made a gross misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not to exceed $5,000 or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed one year, or both.

REGISTERED LETTERS RIFLED.

Mail Bag Taken From St. Paul Train Found in River at Red Wing.

Red Wing, Minn., Aug. 21.—A leather United States mail bag was found floating in the Mississippi river by a fishing party Sunday afternoon. In it were 300 registered letters which had been opened and replaced. The sack had been weighted and an attempt made to sink it.

Railroad and government detectives who are working on the case say that it was stolen from the east-bound St. Paul train No. 2, which usually reaches this city at midnight. It was late Sunday morning. The letters were addressed to Winona, St. Charles and Tracy, and the bag is supposed to have been lying near the door of the car when the train stood at the Red Wing station. The supposition is that it was then stolen and the contents rifled.

The bag was opened by removing the lock, which is taken to show that the work was not that of amateurs, who would have cut the sack open. Several personal checks found in the letters had been replaced, althought it is believed that a large amount of valuables was secured. There are no clues.

CROP INSURANCE PAYS.

Farmer Who Is Hail Sufferer Will Get at Least $2,127.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 21.—By investing $112 in insuring his crops, James Ellis, a farmer residing near Doland, whose crops were totally destroyed by the disastrous hail storm which recently swept over that part of the state, destroying crops on several hundred quarter sections of land, will receive the sum of $2,239 insurance on his destroyed crops. Thus, above the cost of the insurance, he will have at least the sum of $2,127 for his summer's work.

FORBIDDEN PLAY FATAL.

Little Girl Falls Into Irrigation Ditch and Is Drowned.

Belle Fourche, S. D., Aug. 21. — Floating in Crooked Oak creek, on the Ericson branch, near Sonoma, the body of Lempi Latvolan, an eight-year-old girl, was found by ranch hands. The investigation by Coroner Champney showed that the child had been playing in the irrigation ditch, after being forbidden to do so by her guardian and accidentally had fallen in and had been drowned.

ISLANDS ARE AFLOAT.

Small Tracts Adrift Menace Pier in Lake Jefferson.

Le Sueur Center, Minn., Aug. 21.—Three islands, ranging from one-half an acre to four or five yards across, are floating about in Lake Jefferson, the summer resort ten miles south of here. The largest one ran against the pier and except for the putting out of rowboats and launches it would have smashed it. It is feared that it may drift back at night and do some damage.

Negro Wields Revolver.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Aug. 21.—William Clark, a negro, was arrested at Foxhome, fifteen miles west of here, charged with attempting to shoot Otto Zuehlsdorf. The trouble started in a saloon, where it is said Clark refused to pay for drinks which he had ordered.

Rash Covered Face and Feet—Would Cry Until Tired Out—Speedy Cure by Cuticura.

"My baby was about nine months old when she had rash on her face and feet. Her feet seemed to irritate her most, especially nights. They would cause her to be broken in her rest, and sometimes she would cry until she was tired out. I had heard of so many cures by the Cuticura Remedies that I thought I would give them a trial. The improvement was noticeable in a few hours, and before I had used one box of the Cuticura Ointment her feet were well and have never troubled her since. I also used it to remove what is known as 'cradle cap' from her head, and it worked like a charm, as it cleansed and healed the scalp at the same time. WOMAN SNATCHED FROM JAWS OF LION

VISITOR TO SUMMER RESORT TORN AND BRUISED BY BLOOD-CRAZED BEAST.

FALLS UNDER RAIN OF LEAD

LION RIDDLED WITH BULLETS WHILE TEARING AT WOMAN'S BODY.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 29.—Torn, bruised and suffering from shock, Mrs. Anna A. Hucke, fifty-five years old, this city, lies at her home in a precarious condition as the result of an attack by a lion at Luna Park, a summer resort in this city, late yesterday. Mrs. Hucke was rescued almost from the jaws of death while she lay on the ground where the animal had thrown her, and while scores of rescuers were firing a fusillade of bullets into the blood-crazed beast who, meanwhile, was biting and clawing at the woman's body.

Springs on Woman.

Without warning the lion appeared from behind one of the buildings, and with a roar sprang for Mrs. Hucke, who was nearest to him. The woman screamed and attracted the attention of the crowd.

W. A. Downing, chief of the park police, who came to the rescue, found the lion tearing away at the woman's clothing, and having drawn his revolver, immediately emptied all the chambers into the beast. Repeatedly Downing reloaded his gun and fired with but little effect. Other rescuers secured Flobert rifles from the shooting galleries and Remington's from the concessionaries and soon a score were pumping lead at the lion.

Riddled With Bullets.

Still standing over the prostrate woman, flashing his teeth and lashing his tail, the lion stood with the ground about him literally plowed up by the hundreds of shots that were fired at him.

Soon with the noise of the firearms and shouts of the woman's rescuers, the lion turned and walked a few feet away and, sinking down upon the ground, he turned over on his back, and with a few kicks and gasps he died. His skin was completely riddled with the small caliber bullets that had been fired at him and took effect.

POSTAL CARD DEALER IN JAIL.

Postoffice Authorities After Purveyors of Obscene Cards.

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—Charged by United States postal inspectors with the wholesale selling of obscene postal cards, Gustave P. Lang of this city, who traded under the name of The P. C. Novelty company, was arrested to-day and held in bail for trial.

The arrest of Lang is regarded as the most important capture yet made in the crusade against the objectionable cards. The case was brought to the attention of the authorities by a resident of Rome, N. Y., who received a sample series of postals. It is said the nature of the cards led him to complain, and the arrest of Lang followed.

After he had been taken into custody Lang's place of business was searched. The officials claim that in addition to hundreds of the obscene cards, abundant evidence in the way of orders shipped to individuals and firms throughout the country was discovered. The postal authorities say Lang is a wholesaler and has agents in many cities. It is expected several other arrests will be made within a few days.

STATE MUST STAND ASIDE

FEDERAL JUDGE UPHOLDS NORTH CAROLINA RAILWAY INJUNCTION.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 29.—Judge Pritchard in the United States circuit court, in a long-expected opinion, announced yesterday in the rate case of the Southern railway against the corporation commission and the attorney general of North Carolina, upholding the jurisdiction of his court in the issuance of the recent injunctions against officials during the railroad rate controversy, and declares that the suit is not one against the state within the meaning of the eleventh amendment to the federal constitution.

That amendment holds the judicial power of the United States shall not extend to any suit against a state by citizens of another state.

Can't Take Away Rights.

The decision says that a state legislature cannot so frame an act as to deprive a citizen of a right vouchsafed him by the federal constitution. It does not possess the power "to deprive this court of its jurisdiction, and the sooner those questions are definitely determined the better it will be for all parties concerned."

The decision holds that the corporation commission is still charged with making rates, the only limitation up on their power being "that they shall not make a maximum rate in North Carolina in excess of 2 1-4 cents per mile. The corporation commission and the attorney general are specially charged with the duty of securing the enforcement of section 4 of the passenger rate act, which provides heavy penalties and fines for a failure of railroads and their officials to comply with that act."

Law Silent on Passenger Fare.

The opinion shows that the laws of North Carolina especially provide upon what terms an injunction shall be granted to suspend rates, pending litigation, or involving the confiscatory nature of such rates; that the statutes of North Carolina expressly authorize the course pursued by the courts when freight rates are involed, but do not even require a bond for such injunction when passenger fares are in litigation.

MAILS BOMB TO CORTELYOU.

Package Addressed to Secretary Explodes in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 29.—The explosion of what appeared to have been a large percusion cap in a package addressed to Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou created excitement in the Nicetown substation of the Philadelphia postoffice yesterday. The package, which was collected from a box in the northern section of the city, was received by Clerk Roberts, who says it was about four inches long by two inches wide and three-quarters of an inch thick. When Roberts brought his street cancellation die down upon the stamp the package exploded and was torn to pieces. Roberts was unhurt. The pieces of paper were put together and the package was found to have been addressed to Secretary Cortelyou, Washington, D. C., the address having been cut from a newspaper and pasted on the package.

Chief Postal Inspector James B. Cortelyou, a brother of the secretary, is trying to solve the mystery surrounding the explosion, though most of the authorities think the package was mailed as a joke. There was not sufficient explosive matter in it to injure any one. What was in the package aside from the explosive cap the officials will not say.

SOLDIERS GUARD TELEGRAPH.

Strikers Accused of Interfering With Uncle Sam's Business.

Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 29.—Striking telegraphers are charged with having interfered with business of the government, and as a result soldiers are patrolling the telegraph lines between Camp Perry and La Carne, a distance of three miles. Any one caught interfering with the line or with the wires at La Carne will be brought to Camp Perry and later turned over to the civil authorities. This action was made necessary because strikers and their sympathizers destroyed communication between Camp Perry and the outside world about 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening, when an operator broke in on the Camp Perry operators and called them "scabs." From that hour there was constant breaking and interruptions until the camp operators were forced to close up at midnight with thousands of words unsent, much of which was government matter from army and national guard officers to their superiors. Yesterday afternoon a detachment of signal corps, men sent over the line between Camp Perry and La Carne found that a loop of heavy wire had been tied about the four wires midway on the line with one end grounded, completely destroying the service.

PRINCE IS GUEST OF PRESIDENT

WILHELM OF SWEDEN ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON AT SAGAMORE HILL.

HEARTILY GREETED BY SWEDES

PRINCE GIVEN WARM WELCOME IN NEW YORK BY HUNDREDS OF SWEDES.

New York, Aug. 29. — A luncheon with President Roosevelt, an informal dinner at the Hotel Astor and a view of Broadway under its white lights were the events of the first day's visit to New York of Prince Wilhelm of Sweden. Incidental to almost all of those events was a hearty greeting from hundreds of Swedes, who gathered everywhere to welcome to their adopted country the great grandson of Marshal Barnadotte, one of Napoleon's famous generals.

Arrives in New York.

Fresh from a round of entertainments at Newport and several Massachusetts cities, Prince Wilhelm reached New York by rail early yesterday, accompanied by the Swedish minister to the United States, Herman Lagerkrantz, and Capt. Klercher, the prince's aid.

At the Hotel Astor the prince was taken in charge by Huntington Wilson, third assistant secretary of state, who had been detailed by the president to escort the royal visitor to Oyster Bay.

Greeted at Oyster Bay.

A large portion of the population of Oyster Bay was at the station when the prince arrived, and the little Long Island village was gay with flags, prominent among them being the colors of Sweden. The party was driven immediately to Sagamore Hill, where the president was awaiting them. The luncheon served was an elaborate one, but was entirely informal.

Chat on Current Topics.

The president and prince chatted on current topics until they settled down to a discussion of the training of naval officers, a subject in which both are particularly interested.

The party left Sagamore Hill in time to catch a train for New York shortly before 4 o'clock. The prince expressed great delight at having had an opportunity to see the president and spoke in enthusiastic terms of him and of the visit.

TELLER TELLS OF DOWNFALL

MAN WHO STOLE NEARLY $100,000 SAYS WOMAN LED HIM ASTRAY.

New York, Aug. 29. — Chester B. Runyan, the former paying teller, who stole nearly $100,000 in cash from the Windsor Trust company last June, told in the court of general sessions yesterday the story of his downfall. He charged that Laura A. Carter, now on trial charged with receiving some of the money which she knew to be stolen, was the tempter who led him astray.

Runyan testified that he met Mrs. Carter on the street by chance and visited her at her home several times. During these visits he told her he had stolen several thousand dollars from the bank where he was employed.

One evening when they were talking about the case Mrs. Carter said: "You're in bad now. Why don't you take some more and have enough for yourself?"

A few days later he crammed nearly $100,000 into a suitcase and fled. He was delivered over to the police a week later by Mrs. Carter. He had spent all the time between his disappearance from the bank and his arrest at her home. Mrs. Carter is charged with having criminally received several thousand dollars of the money Runyan stole from the trust company. About $25,000 of the money Runyan stole has never been found. The rest has been restored to the company.

PEACE PLAN MADE FOR FIVE NATIONS

UNITED STATES AND MEXICO OFFER GOOD OFFICES TO ARRANGE PEACE.

MAY CONFER AT WASHINGTON

CENTRAL AMERICAN REPUBLICS HAVE CHANCE TO PATCH UP DIFFERENCES.

Washington, Aug. 29. — President Roosevelt and President Diaz simultaneously have telegraphed notes to the presidents of the five republics of Central America offering the good offices of the United States and Mexico in bringing about a conference of the republics for a discussion of peace. This announcement was made yesterday by Acting Secretary Adee of the state department. It was stated also that the notes would not be made public until they had been received by the Central American states and probably not until replies had been received. The exact time of sending the notes was not made known; but it is possible that replies from some of the countries already have reached Washington, and it is believed that all will be here within twenty-four hours.

May Confer at Washington.

Mr. Adee late yesterday received Minister Godet, charge of the Mexican embassy, and they conferred at length concerning Central American disputes and the ending of the almost incessant warfare between the republics. Neither would admit that the Central American republics had been invited to confer at Washington, but Senor Corsa, the Nicaraguan minister, is authority for the statement that such an invitation will soon be extended. In fact he telegraphed President Zelaya to that effect.

In diplomatic circles it is said that none of the Central American republics can afford to decline the proffers and that this means that permanent peace practically is assured.

FOR SELFISH ENDS.

The Efforts Being Made by the American Medical Association.

The Political activity of the American Medical Association has become so pronounced as to cause comment in political circles especially as the the avowed purpose of the Doctors of the "Regular" or Allopathic school, of which the Association is chiefly composed, is to secure the passage of such laws as will not only prevent the sale of so-called "Patent" medicines, but will restrict the practice of medicine and healing to the "schools" now recognized. This in many states would prevent the growing practice of Osteopathy, and in nearly every state would prevent the healers of the Christian Science and mental science belief from practicing those sciences in which the faith of so many intelligent people is so firmly rooted.

The American Medical Association has a "Committee on Legislation," and the committee has correspondents in practically every township—some 16,000 correspondents in all. This committee at the last session of the American Medical Association held in June of this year expressed a hope that a larger number of physicians than heretofore will offer themselves as candidates for Congress at the first opportunity. In its annual report this Committee said: "To meet the growing demands of the movement, however, particularly if the work of active participation in State legislation is undertaken, a larger clerical force must be employed."

This is almost the first time in the history of the United States that any organized class has frankly avowed the purpose of capturing legislatures and dominating legislation in their own selfish interests.

The American Medical Association has about 65,000 members of whom 27,000 are "fully constituted members" and the rest are members because of their affiliation with state or local societies. The Association owns real estate in Chicago valued at $111,781.91 and its total assets are $291,567.89. Its liabilities, at the time of the annual report which was made at the June meeting, amounted to only $21,906. The excess of assets over liabilities is increasing at the rate of about $30,000 a year, and the purpose of the organization is to dominate the field of medicine, and by crushing all competitions by securing the passage of prohibitive legislation, compel all of the people of the United States to pay a doctor's fee every time the most simple remedy is needed.

SOUTH AMERICAN RAILWAYS.

They Run East and West Instead of North and South.

Although to the North American exponents of that project there has seemed a discouraging lack of interest in the Pan-American railway scheme on the part of South American railroad men, there has really been no cessation of the activity in their more immediate spheres, says the American Review of Reviews.

"Let us build the lines the country needs," they say, "and don't ask us to go out of our way to further a scheme which, however practicable from an engineering point of view, would not pay us dividends in this century, and possibly not in the next.

"We concede that we might benefit indirectly through the increased stability of government that would follow the building of an intercontinental line, but that benefit is too remote to interest us at a time when we have ample opportunity for expending all our available funds in the construction of lines that will yield returns from the day they are opened."

So it happens that while there has never been so much activity in railway construction in South America as at the present time, almost without exception the new lines are following the parallels rather than the meridians, running east and west rather than north and south.

BAD DREAMS

Frequently Due to Coffee Drinking.

One of the common symptoms of coffee poisoning is the bad dreams that spoil what should be restful sleep. A man who found the reason says:

"Formerly I was a slave to coffee. I was like a morphine fiend, could not sleep at night, would roll and toss in my bed and when I did get to sleep was disturbed by dreams and hobgoblins, would wake up with headaches and feel bad all day, so nervous I could not attend to business. My writing looked like bird tracks, I had sour belchings from the stomach, indigestion, heartburn and palpitation of the heart, constipation, irregularity of the kidneys, etc.

"Indeed, I began to feel I had all the troubles that human flesh could suffer, but when a friend advised me to leave off coffee I felt as if he had insulted me. I could not bear the idea, it had such a hold on me and I refused to believe it the cause.

"But it turned out that no advice was ever given at a more needed time for I finally consented to try Postum and with the going of coffee and the coming of Postum all my troubles have gone and health has returned. I eat and sleep well now, nerves steadied down and I write a fair hand (as you can see), can attend to business again and rejoice that I am free from the monster coffee."

Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee will bring sound, restful, refreshing sleep. "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Some physicians call it "a little health classic."

The announcement was made in the course of the first cabinet meeting held since the Moroccan crisis.

In the time of peace. prepare for war. How about your coal supply?

The Elks will institute a new lodge at Theif River Falls on September 25th.

Capt. C. H. Jenks, a veteran Great Northern railroad man and superintendent of the northern division for years, has passed to the great beyond.

While the railway companies may be looked upon by certain classes as octopus, still they want seemingly to do the right thing by the people of the great northwest. All summer long they have been cautioning us to prepare for winter by laying in our supply of coal, and yet not a ton of fuel have we stored to prevent another famine like that of last year. Soon the wheat crop will be ready to move, then follows a scarcity of cars with the coal supply at the other end of the line. It is now up to us to get busy and lay in our winter's supply of coal, for the railway companies have done their part by continually warning us of the rush during the movement of wheat. Is your coal bin full?

"You never see a broken-winded horse in Norway," said a horse doctor. "That's because the horses there are allowed to drink while they eat, the same as mankind. Our horses, let them be so thirsty as get out, must still eat their dry fodder, their dry hay, oats and corn with nothing to wash them down. But in Norway every horse has a bucket of water beside his manger, and as he eats, he drinks, also. It is interesting to see how the Norwegian horses relish their water with their meals. Now they will sip a little from the bucket, now they eat a mouthful, just like rational human beings. You never see a broken-winded horse in Norway, and the natives say it is because they serve water to the animals with their feed."—Our Dumb Animals.

Crookston Times: Here is an example of what can be done in the creamery business in the Red River valley. A sample of the butter made for the Minnesota state fair at the St. Hilaire creamery was brought in to Prof. Geo. P. Grout, of the agricultural college for scoring. He scored it at 95½, which is as high a score as butter made from hand separator cream ever gets. This institution, located in the Red River valley, about forty miles north of Crookston, is run by Geo. L. Austin and, under his management has grown until one week in July it produced 153 tubs or about 10,000 pounds of butter. For the month of June it paid its 150 patrons about $7,382.13, and for July over $8,000. It paid for July twenty-six cents per pound of butter-fat. This is the kind of institution which will bring the Red River valley a lasting prosperity, and the results shown here demonstrates the fact that dairying can be successfully carried on in this territory.

Soon the merry chimes of the school bells throughout the nation will announce the opening of the doors to all educational institutions. To the young lad or lass it should imbibe a feeling of great enthusiasm, for how many of us older heads were compelled to leave our studies at a time when our lessons seemed most important and of great interest, to go out into the world and battle with life's turmiol, while the more fortunate were permitted to continue their educational pursuits to a time when they could graduate with honor. Today those classmates are scattered over the continent, some at the head of institutions of knowledge, others great financiers, politicians, bankers, doctors, lawyers, teachers, while we are still a "printer's devil." The calling is not a bad one, however, but to the younger generation we advise the importance of all educational opportunities, for knowledge injures no one and ignorance oft times is bliss, but there is far too much bliss within our sphere.

Congressman Steenerson has been at work lately in behalf of the settlers on the reservation who have had their proofs held up by the interior department, and he has received word that the department will recind the recent order and look into the matter in a more thorough manner. This is a decided victory for Mr. Steenerson.

Handsome Catalog.

Professor Sathre, of the Crookston Business College, may well feel proud of the excellent catalog which he has put out this year and which he is sending to prospective students all over the northwest. It is probably the finest specimen of catalog work ever turned out in the northwest.

The book is not only an advertisement for the school but is also a splendid advertisement for Crookston, as it tells of the advantages of this city in a clean, concise manner. Every word uttered by Mr. Sathre through his catalog is fact, and this is one reason for the remarkable success of the Crookston Business College since its establishment here in the nineties.

Since last year Mr. Sathre has added considerable additional room for the accommodation of his constantly growing school and this year will without a doubt prove the best year which the school has ever experienced.—Crookston Times.

Flying Kites For Luck.

On the ninth day of the ninth month, according to the Chinese calendar, all the Celestials, old and young alike, betake themselves to the hills behind their towns and amuse themselves by flying kites. But amusement is not the sole reason for this ceremony. It comes from an old Chinese legend, and if a Chinaman did not fly his kite on the given day he would rest uneasily for the remainder of his life in fear that misfortune would overtake his family. The legend runs that many years ago a certain Chinaman was warned in a dream that a misfortune would come to his home on a certain day. Accordingly on that day he repaired to an adjacent hill and amused himself and his family by flying a kite while he was waiting for the disaster. In the evening, upon returning to the valley in which his house was situated, he found that it had fallen in and buried his pigs beneath it. He and his neighbors joined in thanksgiving for his narrow escape, and in memory of the event every year sees the flight of millions of kites in China.—New York Tribune.

The Unsociable Young Napoleon.

At dinner during the voyage to Corsica, to which my father invited the passengers who included some officers of his regiment and the two Corsicans, he requested an officer, M. de Belloc, to call a young man who was wearing the uniform of the military school and reading at the end of the boat. The young man refused. M. de Belloc came back irritated and said to my father: "I should like to throw the unsociable little fellow into the sea. He has an unpleasant face. Will you grant me permission, colonel?"

"No," said my father, laughing, "and I am not of your opinion. His face shows character, and I am sure that he will be heard of some day."

The unsociable fellow was the future Emperor Napoleon. Belloc has related this scene to me at least ten times, adding, with a sigh, "Ah, if the colonel had only allowed me to throw him into the sea he would not be turning the world upside down today."—From Memoirs of Comtesse de Boigne.

No Gain and Some Loss.

"Yes," the leader of the amateur brass band was saying, "it's curious to see what an effect learning to play a horn has on some persons. I used to be a pretty good bass singer, but I can't sing worth a cent now."

"Does learning to play a horn spoil the voice?" asked his next door neighbor.

"It did mine."

"How do you account for it?"

"I don't know how to account for it. Strains the vocal cords perhaps. All I know is that I blew my voice out through the mouthpiece of my cornet."

"Did you have a good voice?"

"Everybody said so."

"Then it's a great pity you ever learned to play a horn," replied his neighbor, shaking his head sadly. "I—er—think I should have enjoyed hearing you sing."—Youth's Companion.

An Expert Marksman.

The terms "sharpshooter," "expert marksman," etc., which have distinguished the classes of military riflemen are often puzzling to those not familiar with rifle practice. To become a marksman one must make 98 out of a possible 150 at 200, 300 and 500 yards. The sharpshooter must get 160 out of 200 at 200, 300, 500 and 600 yards, besides doing well enough in skirmish to bring his total to 225, or two-thirds of the possible score. An expert must do all this and also score 40 out of 50 at 300 yards and 35 out of 50 at 1,000 yards. The latter distance is more than half a mile and the bullseye looks mighty small.—Scranton Republican.

Time to Quit.

A newly enlisted fireman of only average pluck was serving at his first fire, and the chief rushed up to him and shouted: "Shin up that ladder to the eighth story, crawl along the cornice to the fourth window, drop down three stories and catch that wooden sign you see smoking there, swing yourself along to the second window that the red glare is coming from, break the glass and go in and rescue those three old ladies. Well, what the deuce are you waiting for?" "For pen and ink, sir," said the new man. "I want to hand in my resignation."—Argonaut.

Absentminded.

She was an exceedingly dainty little woman, who was taking a very great interest in the welfare of the convicts when she was being shown through the penitentiary the other day. Guard O'Brien was along when she happened to speak to one of the prisoners. "I am so sorry for you," she remarked in a tender tone of voice. "Of course you will be very thankful when the time comes for you to leave this dreadful place."

"No," retorted the man. "I'd a sight rather stop here where I am." The little woman almost collapsed.

"Isn't it strange?" she asked, turning to the guard. "I had no idea the prisoners were so contented. What was the poor fellow's offense?"

The guard concealed a covert grin. "He was just a little absentminded, that was all," followed the grin.

"Absentminded!" exclaimed his astonished interrogator.

"Yes, madam," politely replied O'Brien. "He persisted in forgetting he was married, and now when his time is up he has five wives awaiting him on the outside."

The woman could not deny that the convict had sufficient reasons to be contented with his present lot.—Columbus Dispatch.

How Will the World End?

It has always been an intensely interesting conjecture to scientists and, at the same time, the greater part of the other intelligent members of society as to the way in which our world will at length come to an end. Many think that it will be through the gradual cooling of the sun, which will eventually fail to give out sufficient heat to sustain life on our planet. But another—and a particularly unpleasant—fate that might befall us is explained in a work by Mr. Ellard Gore. "Real danger," says he, "is always to be feared from the presence of immense dark bodies, moving unseen in space, vast dead suns, whose collision with our own would increase its heat enormously and thus instantly destroy the earth." We should not, however, be without a warning of our terrible end, for on entering a radius of 15,000,000,000 miles from the sun the advancing body would begin to shine with reflected light, and fifteen years would elapse between the time of the destroyer's being sighted and its collision with the sun.

Those who are rash and precipitate seldom enjoy the favor of the gods.—Herodotus.

It was ever thus. For the latest news one has to go away from home, as will be seen by the following from the Red Lake Falls Gazette: "At the meeting of the board of county commissioners last week C. H. Martz, a St. Hilaire resident was made overseer of highways at a salary of $75 per month. This new office is created under the law passed by a recent session of the legislature, and is made with a view to establishing better highways throughout the country. Mr. Martz is a first-class fellow and has had lots of experience in road work, and will undoubtedly make a competent officer."

Here you will find on display the exhibit of Red Wing, one of the most progressive cities in Minnesota.

We received a letter the first of the week from Supt. C. E. Bergh; who writes: "Monday, September 2d, being a legal holiday—labor day—school will commence on Tuesday, the 3rd. Am living close to nature these days, helping on the farm. The winter wheat is just threshed, and the harvesting of other grains is in full blast. Prospective yield, excellent. S. L. Lewis was up from Red Lake Falls yesterday looking after business.

T. J. Sumpter, of Monroe, Iowa, was in the city the fore part of the week looking after his landed interests. He favored this office with a call, ordered the paper sent to his address for the ensuing six months, and informed us the prospects for a good crop yield in northern Minnesota this fall looked good. He says the country around St. Hilaire in general looked better and he was well pleased with his holdings here.

It will probably be an item of news to most of our readers that a postmaster is not compelled to make change for you when you make purchases at Uncle Sam's office. This is a queer rule that not one in a thousand know. Buyers of stamps or any purchase at a postoffice must furnish their own change. The postmaster could insist on the buyer furnishing their own change if he saw fit to do it, but usually he is glad enough to get rid of his "chicken feed," and is always ready to accommodate the public by making all the change it asks for.—Ex.

After sending down his ball team and a crowd of fans last Sunday to wallop the earth with what was left of our aggregation of diamond sweepers, Bro. Eastman has the following to say in his Thief River Falls News: "A base ball fan is an animal which is almost human in some respects. It runs wild between May and September and flocks together between three and six o'clock in the afternoon. The rest of the year it lies dormant. This animal has lungs as powerful as a rhinoceros and has a wonderful unfailing eyesight, which enables it to see better than an umpire. It is an omniverous animal, but lives principally on peanuts, pop, chewing gum and tobacco."

We understand Marshal Wm. Eickhoff and Mike McAndress sat up on top the city hall until five o'clock in the morning watching for the comet which had passed three days prior to the evening's outing. Wonder if anybody round des part saw the comet?

Last Saturday evening Chas. Fellman entertained some forty guests at cards at the Hotel Markham sample room. It was sort of an "opening," so to speak, but the guests were all invited. Cards held the tables until a late hour, when a dainty lunch was served, while cigars and table seasonings were on tap at all times during the evening. Mr. Fellman is a successful liquor caterer, a loyal citizen and a jolly good fellow. Those present report an excellent time.

We have at hand a copy of the Mount Vernon (Wash.) Argus, by which we learn that J. K. Hannay, until recently a resident of this place, had started doing things in his new western home. He purchased the fair ground site for $15,000 and is having the same platted as an addition to the city. The Argus reports Mr. Hannay as saying: "I am investing here because I feel that this country is sure of a brilliant and certain future. This is a county of vast resources. Here you will find every faculty for rapid and steady growth. The natural advantages are unsurpassed. It seems to me that the most salient factor in the situation is the equable climate which assures the most favorable conditions for all varieties of industry. My primary object in this deal has been to secure something to occupy my time and attention. I shall not be in a hurry to dispose of my holdings and should the association decide to hold their fair this year, they are welcome to the use of such portion of the grounds as may be unoccupied at the time."

Self Control.

There are times in every ones life when one feels that one's self control is slipping away in the most humiliating manner. Some say a cure for nervousness is to hold a long deep breath while counting ten. As a preventive a glass of golden grain belt beer at bed time will induce refreshing sleep and rest the tired nerves. If you are a sufferer, try it. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

MAN-A-LIN Is An Excellent Remedy for Constipation

There are many ailments directly dependent upon constipation, such as biliousness, discolored and pimpled skin, inactive liver, dyspepsia, overworked kidneys and headache.

Remove constipation and all of these ailments disappear.

MAN-A-LIN can be relied upon to produce a gentle action of the bowels, making pills and drastic cathartics entirely unnecessary.

A dose or two of Man-a-lin is advisable in slight febrile attacks, la grippe, colds and influenza.

Bobbin Boys' Wages.

John B. Lennon, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, delivered recently in Bloomington an address on strikes, says the Washington Star.

Turning to the amusing features of the strike question, Mr. Lennon said:

"I remember a strike of boobbin boys, a just strike, and one that succeeded. These boys conducted their fight well, even brilliantly. Thus the day they turned out they posted in the spinning room of their employers' mill a great placard inscribed with these words:

"'The wages of sin is death, but the wages of the bobbin boys is worse.'"

THE MULES WON.

Judge Decided That They Couldn't Possibly Make a Sudden Start.

"Men in the East," said a well-known Westerner while talking to some friends in the lobby of a downtown hotel, "appear to me to be mostly short and stocky built, except the Down East Yankee, who is usually long and lank.

"Now, out in God's country you seldom see a man under six feet, and broad in proportion. But I'll admit it sometimes pays to be small.

"I remember that in the early 70s," the speaker went on, after taking a copious drink of whisky straight, "a man lived in my town who was over six feet four, and he was about as broad as he was long, and weighed 400 pounds or so.

"In those good old days the festive mule pulled the street cars.

"Well, my friend brought suit against the street railway company for damages sustained by their suddenly starting a car in which he was standing.

"During the trial the company brought two of their mules into the court room as witnesses for the defense.

"The jury viewed the complainant, took a casual glance at the mules, and at once brought in a verdict for the company on the ground that the sudden start was plainly impossible.

How many times have we missed perfection while hunting for praise.

Let Labor day mark the coming together for a better future and a wider opportunity for all those whose brain and brawn make for the state and national prosperity."

WANT TO SPLIT UP THE DEBTS.

Appraisal of Property of Itasca and Koochiching Counties.

A hearing has been ordered for Sept. 5 by Gov. Johnson on the application of the county commissioners of Koochiching county for the appointment of three commissioners to appraise the property of Itasca and Koochiching counties for the purpose of arriving at the division of the debts between the two counties.

The petition for the appointment of the commissioners was presented to the governor by C. W. Stanton, county attorney of Koochiching county, and R. S. McDonald, one of the commissioners of that county. It recites the creation of Koochiching county out of a part of Itasca county on Dec. 12, 1906. At that time, the petition states, the total indebtedness of the original county of Itasca was $183,938.80, and the total amount of funds in the treasury of Itasca county at that time was $60,188.20. It states that certain buildings and real estate owned by the original county still remain in the ownership of Itasca county, including a court house, jail and sheriff's residence and certain buildings on a tract of land used as the county poor farm.

The commissioners of the two counties, the petition states, met at Grand Rapids on Aug. 21 and endeavored to agree upon the value of the buildings and realty, but were unable to agree on the valuation. They represent that the assessed valuation of the original county for the year 1906 was $14,245,473, of which $11,046,973 was in the territory which still comprises Itasca county, and $3,198.500 was in the territory which now comprises Koochiching county.

The statute under which the appraisement will be made is section 393 of the code, which provides that in the separation of a part of one county and the formation of a new county all territory so transferred shall continue liable for its proportion of the excess, if any, of the indebtedness of the original county above the value of its county buildings and of the balance of funds in its treasury. Such share shall be based upon the last assessment, and the value of the buildings, unless agreed upon by the respective county boards, shall be fixed by the sworn appraisal of three disinterested citizens, none of whom shall be a resident or taxpayer in either county, and who shall be appointed by the governor upon the written application of the board of either county. The appraisal shall be in writing, subscribed and verified by at least two of the appraisers, and filed with the secretary of state, who shall within five days transmit to the auditors of the two counties a verified copy of the appraisal.

At the hearing on Sept. 5, unless the officials of the two counties can agree upon the basis of division, the governor will appoint the appraisers.

Stays Till Oct. 1.

FIXES LIMIT ON TEACHERS' PAY

State High School Board Adopts Minimum.

In some respects the most important action taken by the state high school board, at its meeting at the capitol in St. Paul, was the adoption of a rule fixing the minimum salaries for principals of graded schools receiving state aid $75 and for teachers in such schools $40 a month. The board adopted a new set of rules for state graded schools receiving state aid among which this was one.

A rule was also adopted providing that the school buildings must be equipped with a system of ventilation which will meet the approval of the state board of health, while others related to the equipment of the schools. Under the new rules no teacher who has not been graduated from a course affording special training in primary work shall be qualified to teach in a primary room in any graded school; teachers in grades from the second to the sixth, inclusive, shall hold at least second grade state certificates, and teachers of the seventh and eighth grades shall hold at least first grade state certificates. The principal of a graded school is required to hold a professional state certificate or a diploma from the advanced course of a Minnesota state normal school or of a reputable college or university or a diploma of an equal rank from a state normal school outside of Minnesota which diploma must be first endorsed by the superintendent of public instruction before it is valid. A limited certificate is not valid in any graded school.

Schools failing to comply with the requirements of the new rules or neglecting to maintain a satisfactory standard of efficiency may be dropped from the list of schools receiving state aid.

MANY SMALLPOX CASES.

There Are 360 Reported During Nine Weeks.

The reports of new cases of smallpox received at the office of the state board of health during the nine weeks ending Aug. 19 shows a total of 360 cases. The largest number was in the week ending June 24, when 149 cases were reported, of which 36 were in Hennepin county, 17 in Scott, 15 in Grant, 12 in St. Louis and 8 in Ramsey. In the following week the total number dropped to 64, of which 25 were in Renville, 13 in Stearns, 8 in Chippewa and 7 in Ramsey.

During the week ending July 8 there were 49 cases, of which 12 were in Stearns; Hennepin and Grant counties reported 11 and Ramsey 3. The following week out of a total of 12 cases 5 were in Stearns, 4 in Ramsey, while Hennepin, Carver and Renville each reported 1 case, but no report was received from Minneapolis. During the week ending July 22 Hennepin county reported 12, Big Stone and Stearns 6 each, and Ramsey 3 out of a total of 35. During the following week Ramsey headed the list in the number of cases with 13, Stearns reported 5 and no report was received from Minneapolis.

For the next three weeks the totals were, respectively, 12, 9 and 9, of which Ramsey had but 3 in the week ending Aug. 5.

"All In" Judicially Defined.

In the recent case of State vs. Hennessy, 90 Pac. Rep. 221, the Nevada supreme court gives a definition of the slang phrase "all in." The question came up in connection with the admission in evidence of a dying declaration, the declarant's statement that he was "all in" being relied on to show that he was under a sense of impending death.

The court said: "The expression 'I am all in' is one frequently made use of in this Western country, and, when used under the circumstances in question may, we think, be taken to have meant that the speaker considered his life was practically at an end.—Law Notes.

Goshawk's Changing Plumage.

I know no bird which passes through so many changes of plumage and color of eyes as the goshawk.

A young one which I have mounted is about the size of a small hen and is covered with white down. His eyes are pale blue. I colored the eyes exactly from life. When fully grown the first plumage is dark brown above and the eyes are pale yellow. No one would be likely to suspect this being a goshawk who had only seen adult birds.

Later it changes to the dark shady blue of the adult, and the eye, after passing through all the intermediate changes in color from straw yellow, orange yellow and pink, finally assumes the deep rich red of the adult.

MANSFIELD DEAD; GREAT WORK ENDS

PREMIER AMERICAN ACTOR EXPIRES AT SUMMER HOME IN CONNECTICUT.

LONG STRUGGLE FOR FAME

DEATH DUE TO DISEASE OF THE LIVER, AGGRAVATED BY COMPLICATIONS.

New London, Conn., Sept. 1.—Richard Mansfield, the best known actor on the American stage, passed away yesterday morning at his summer residence, Seven Oaks, Ocean avenue. Death was directly due to disease of the liver, aggravated by complications. Dr. A. H. Allen, a local physician, who has been in charge since Mr. Mansfield's arrival here from Saranac Lake, N. Y., states that death was not entirely unexpected, although this fact had ont been made public. Mr. Mansfield's condition had been reported as being excellent.

There were quite a number of conditions that prevented his getting well. During the great actor's last moments he was lying in a condition of coma and did not recognize the loved ones at his bedside. There were present at the time of his death his wife, his brother Felix, his young son Gibbs and the physicians and nurses.

Studied in England.

Richard Mansfield was born on the little island of Heligoland on May 24, 1857. His mother was Mme. Mansfield Rudersdorf, a famous prima donna, and it was from her that Mansfield inherited his love for the arts. The actor studied at several schools on the continent and then went to England to study art. The young artist made a precarious living painting pictures, and many times his only meal in those early days in London was a hot potato bought from a street peddler.

"I used to hold the potato to warm my hands," said Mansfield in relating his experience, "and then eat it."

Played Many Parts.

Mr. Mansfield's first work on the stage was in the Gilbert and Sullivan comic operas. His dramatic genius did not manifest itself until chance gave him the opportunity to play the part of Baron Chevrial in the "Parisian Romance." He lifted what at first seemed to be a small eccentric part to one of all absorbing interest. The public and the critics forgot the play to talk of Mansfield's great work, and from that day he become a leading actor on the American stage. Among the more important of the parts in which Mansfield distinguished himself were: "Prince Karl," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Richard III." "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Ivan the Terrible," "Henry V.," "Shylock" and "Beau Brummel." The last effort of his genius was displayed in a remarkable production of Ibsen's "Peer Gynt."

WILL SAVE $200,000 A YEAR.

Department of Interior to Undergo Some Drastic Changes.

Washington, Sept. 1.—A reform in the personnel and business methods of a sweeping and drastic nature will be put into effect in the department of the interior within the next six weeks or two months. It will result in a saving to the government of more than $200,000 a year. It involves numerous transfers of clerks, the consolidation of two big bureaus, the moving of one of the largest bureaus in the department to the pension office building, a uniformity in the pension office and land office blanks used and the storage of the patent office models in the pension office building.

Although there will be, according to the present plans no dismissals of clerks or other employes of the department, the total number of clerks employed will be diminished gradually by allowing unnecessary offices that become vacant to remain vacant.

The changes will come as a result of the detailed reports of the government experts and the outside business experts named by Secretary of the Interior Garfield to investigate every branch of the department and recommend changes tending to more economy, greater efficiency and greater dispatch in the performance of business.

The machinery, while damaged to some extent by water, can soon be put in shape. It is thought that the fire originated from defective insulation on electric wires.

ASSASSIN HELPS REBELS.

Tazzi Brothers, Who Dominate Sultan, Are Murdered at Fez.

Casablanca, Sept. 5. — Letters received here from Fez declare that the Tazzi brothers—Abdelkrum Ben Sliman, the Moroccan foreign minister, and Ganam, the sultan's second representative at Tanger—have been assassinated by partisans of the caid of Mechuar, the official who introduces ambassadors to the court of the sultan.

The Tazzi brothers exercised almost complete domination over the sultan, and to them is attributed the ruin of the empire.

It is alleged that they sought only their personal aggrandizement. Their fortune is counted by millions, and is said to be sufficient to pay the entire debt of Morocco.

Violence Before Sultan.

Some time ago the caid of Mechuar was on the point of killing the Tazzi brothers in the presence of the sultan. The name of the caid is Driss Ben Aich and he is the descendant of the Bujaris, one of the four tribes which founded the Moroccan monarchy.

ALTON CASE IS POSTPONED.

Judge Landis Grants Stay at Request of Government.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Judge Landis, in the United States district court, yesterday ordered the postponement of the grand jury investigation of rebating charges against the Chicago & Alton road growing out of the recent trial and conviction of the Standard Oil company, until Sept. 24.

It was generally believed when court opened Tuesday that a letter would be presented from Attorney General Bonaparte defining the action intended by the government against the Alton road. The railroad company has made a claim of immunity, asserting that it was promised by Former District Attorney Morrison that if it aided the government in good faith in the prosecution of the Standard Oil company it would be exempt. No such letter, however, was presented in court, either by Judge Landis or by District Attorney Sims, the successor of District Attorney Morrison.

When the court opened yesterday, District Attorney Sims said in part:

"A situation has arisen which, in my judgment, makes it highly desirable that I have time to submit to the department certain facts and circumstances in addition to those already submitted.

"For these reasons I request that further action in the matter be postponed for three or four weeks."

Judge Landis then postponed the case until Sept. 24.

GEN. PORTER WINS HIS POINT.

Proposals for Collection of Contractual Debts Approved.

The Hague, Sept. 5. — Gen. Horace Porter of the American delegation to the peace conference led his proposal for the collection of contractual debts to practically unanimous approval yesterday by the committee of examination, and at the conclusion of the meeting he was the recipient of many congratulations upon the success of his efforts. The importance of this American suggestion, it is pointed out, lies in the principle which it establishes rather than in its practical application, which may be very seldom.

Gen. Porter met all the objections raised with ready argument and finally brought all the countries represented, debtor as well as creditor countries, into line, with the single exception of Switzerland, which is neither a debtor nor a creditor country. There is reason to believe, however, that even the Swiss government will sign the convention, with reserve regarding the matter of jurisdiction.

Steamer Sunk in Collision.

MINNESOTA FAIR IS GREATEST EVER

THIS YEAR'S SHOW SURPASSES ANYTHING OF KIND EVER HELD IN COUNTRY.

100,000 ATTEND OPENING DAY

BREAKS ALL RECORDS IN ATTENDANCE AND NUMBER AND QUALITY OF EXHIBITS.

St. Paul, Sept. 4. — The mammoth and incomparable Minnesota state fair on the opening day established a new record for attendance. Remarkable as was the attendance at the opening day last year, yesterday's record went it still stronger, meeting fully the expectations of the managers of the Agricultural society. The officials placed yesterday's attendance at 100,000.

"We believe we have the best and biggest fair in the United States," said President B. F. Nelson, "and the manner in which the people turned out to-day shows that they feel that way about it also."

The present fair is worthy the patronage it drew yesterday. While the people of Minnesota turned out in force to manifest their enthusiasm for a venture which is recognized as the best in the land, they were not alone prompted by patriotism for the North Star state. They went because they had been told that they would see the best state fair on earth. Such had been told them before, and they went, saw and believed.

Signs of Progress.

When the visitors entered the grounds yesterday they witnessed marked indications of the spirit of progress. They not only saw a more varied assortment of exhibits, but a splendid growth in all the displays which have formed a part of previous fairs. This year's fair has improved and expanded in every way and has attained a stage of development which has to be seen to be realized.

The fact that Dan Patch was to pace contributed considerable to the big attendance yesterday. While Dan went a mile in 1:58 1-4, as compared to 1:55 which he established last year on the grounds as the world's record, the intense admiration which he draws was not a bit diminished. The wind was too sharp and the air too cool for him to do his best. He demonstrated his regal pacing prowess, and the spectators went home satisfied. The other races on the track were among the best scheduled for the week.

Ideal Day for People.

It was a perfect day for the people: With bright skies and a cool and refreshing breeze, conditions were ideal. The day was not marred by a single accident.

The day of pleasure began with President Northrop's address at the live stock amphitheater in the morning and ended with the night's attractions on the race track. The program led off with music, vaudeville program and races, closing up with a pyrotechnic display, "The Siege of Jericho." These features will be presented every evening.

Minneapolis Day at Fair.

St. Paul, Sept. 5.—Minneapolis day at the state fair drew a remarkable attendance in view of the unfavorable weather conditions. The weather was threatening all day and was too cool for general comfort. The attendance at 3 o'clock was 35,000 and this was increased by a few thousand who came out for the evening performance.

The trotting race for a purse of $5,000, one of the biggest purses offered during the week, was the feature of the program and was won by Sterling McKinney, who made it in 2:09 1-4, which is the best showing of the fair so far.

Spirited rivalry exists among the caretakers of the county exhibits in the horticultural building. Not only are there more counties represented this year than ever before, but each booth has been arranged to make as extensive and attractive display as possible. The northern counties are more strongly represented than any other portion of the state. To-day is Live Stock and Dairy day. The survivors of the Minnesota regiments that served in the Civil war will be the guests of the fair officers to-day, and an interesting program has been arranged.

Old Third Wisconsin to Rally.

Waupun, Wis., Sept. 5.—The seventeenth annual reunion of the Third Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry association will be held in Waupun on Sept. 17 and 18.

Blackmailer Is Slain.

Blairsville, Pa., Sept. 4.—Guiseppe Giussifo, an alleged blackmailer, was shot dead, one companion was arrested and a third escaped, following their attempt to blackmail Frank Cieppinno, who was probably fatally stabbed by one of the Italians.

Revolution Imminent.

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 4.—News of serious unrest in the province of Corrites has reached here. Armed bands have appeared on the frontier and a revolution is said to be imminent.

LIVE STOCK DAY A SUCCESS

BIG CROWD TURNS OUT — CIVIL WAR VETERANS GUESTS OF HONOR.

St. Paul, Sept. 5. — Live stock and dairy day recorded another great success at the 1907 Minnesota state fair. It is the day to which visitors from the country look forward, and they turned out in large numbers. While reports from various sources are that there has not been quite as much travel from outside points as in former years, the attendance at the fair does not show it. The weather yesterday was not favorable to the success of the fair.

The grounds took on a military aspect toward noon. Survivors of Minnesota regiments which participated in the great strife went out and held a grand reunion. President B. F. Nelson of the agricultural society delivered the address of welcome. D. W. Lawler, representing Gov. J. A. Johnson, made the welcome speech in behalf of the state.

The live stock amphitheater was the scene of great activity. An auction sale of Hereford cattle was held.

It proved to be an interesting day at the race track. The best pacing of the week so far was done. Don Roma made 2:07 1-2 in the 2:08 pace, while in the 2:40 pace for two-year-olds Shakespeare made the phenomenal time of 2:12 1-4.

Her husband, who was with her, tried to extinguish the flames, but was not able to do so for several minutes. Large pieces of flesh were burned from her body.

ARREST WIDOW ON SUSPICION

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENT IN PHILLIPS TRAGEDY AT CLEVELAND.

BROKER'S DEATH IS PUZZLING

PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCES TOLD AT INQUEST—POLICE ARE RETICENT.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 5.— Developments in the investigation of the death of John J. Phillips, coal operator, broker, banker and club man, yesterday took a sensational turn when Mrs. Phillips, widow of the deceased, was arrested by Chief of Police Stamberger of the aristocratic suburb East Cleveland. Mrs. Phillips has been in a highly nervous state since the tragedy, early Monday morning, after which announcement was made that her husband had been mortally wounded by a burglar.

Widow Collapses.

Yesterday afternoon she collapsed and was not able to attend the funeral, which took place from the house with only immediate relatives present. It was shortly following this that Chief Stamberger announced that after a conference with Deputy Coroner Houck and others he had taken the widow into custody and that four deputies would guard her in her home until she recovers sufficiently to be taken before a justice of the peace.

Police Are Reticent.

The police are reticent about the case and whether they really believe Mrs. Phillips culpable in the murder or whether they merely believe that she can give facts which would solve the mystery does not appear. The inquest was resumed yesterday morning.

Dr. C. L. Richardson, the first witness, testified he had not been summoned until 4 a. m., more than three hours after Phillips was shot. He had been called by telephone. Mrs. Phillips admitted him to the house. She exclaimed:

"Oh, doctor, something dreadful has happened! Mr. Phillips has been shot by a burglar."

Wanted It Hushed Up.

He found the wounded man in bed. He called Dr. Rhodes. Phillips asked them to leave the bedroom a minute, as he wished to talk with his wife. Husband and wife were together alone for perhaps two minutes. When the doctors reached Phillips they realized immediately, Dr. Richardson said, that he could live but a short time. He had told them both he wanted as little notoriety as possible given the affair.

The prisoner pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and the costs.

CAUGHT IN ACT OF SMUGGLING

CUSTOMS OFFICERS SEIZE THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS' WORTH OF LACE.

New York, Sept. 5.—A well organized scheme for smuggling lace and women's dress materials came to grief yesterday when customs officials ordered the arrest of W. L. Hardy and Burton Baldwin, cabin passengers on the steamer Kronprinz Wilhelm an hour after the arrival of the vessel.

The search of Hardy's baggage resulted in the discovery of several thousands of dollars' worth of lace, which was pinned inside shirts, pajama suits, sleeves of coats and legs of trousers in the trunks and in the pockets of a huge traveling coat which Hardy carried on his arm.

The customs officials think they have uncovered a syndicate of smugglers, who have within the last three years brought into this port more than $1,000,000 worth of dutiable goods.

The two men, it is stated, are in business as dressmakers in this city. They were each held in $2,000 bail.

Girl Had Running Sores from Eczema —Boy Tortured by Poison Oak— Both Cured by Cuticura.

"Last year, after having my little girl treated by a very prominent physician for an obstinate case of eczema, I resorted to the Cuticura Remedies, and was so well pleased with the almost instantaneous relief afforded that we discarded the physician's prescription and relied entirely on the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills. When we commenced with the Cuticura Remedies her feet and limbs were covered with running sores. In about six weeks we had her completely well, and there has been no recurrence of the trouble.

"In July of this year a little boy in our family poisoned his hands and arms with poison oak, and in twenty-four hours his hands and arms were a mass of torturing sores. We used only the Cuticura Remedies, and in about three weeks his hands and arms healed up. Mrs. Lizzie Vincent Thomas, Fairmont, Walden's Ridge Tenn., Oct. 13, 1905."

Right Foot on the Rail.

In every police station in the city a magistrate sits at 7 o'clock each morning to hear the petty cases of the day before. Nine out of ten of the arrests are drunks. Observant persons who attend these hearings notice a peculiar gesture made by almost every prisoner as he is brought before the bar of justice.

As each one places his hands on the rail before him and faces the Magistrate his right foot involuntarily is lifted a trifle off the ground as if to place it on a foot rail that graces almost every barroom in the city. It has also been noticed that the policemen who are brought up to testify against the prisoners do the same thing.—Philadelphia Record.

Sang at Her Work.

A well known clergyman relates that while on a recent visit to Shropshire he was in a small town where owing to the scarcity of good servants most of the ladies preferred to do their own work.

He was awakened quite early by the tones of a clear soprano voice singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee." As the clergyman lay in bed he meditated upon the piety his hostess must possess which enabled her to go about her tasks early in the morning singing such a noble hymn.

At breakfast he spoke to her about it and told her how pleased he was.

"Oh law!" she replied; "that's the hymn I boil eggs by; three verses for soft and five for hard."

FEET OUT.

She Had Curious Habits.

When a person has to keep the feet out from under cover during the coldest nights in winter because of the heat and prickly sensation, it is time that coffee, which causes the trouble, be left off.

There is no end to the nervous conditions that coffee will produce. It shows in one way in one person and in another way in another. In this case the lady lived in S. Dak. She says:

"I have had to lie awake half the night with my feet and limbs out of the bed on the coldest nights, and felt afraid to sleep for fear of catching cold. I had been troubled for years with twitching and jerking of the lower limbs, and for most of the time I have been unable to go to church or to lectures because of that awful feeling that I must keep on the move.

"When it was brought to my attention that coffee caused so many nervous diseases, I concluded to drop coffee and take Postum Food Coffee to see if my trouble was caused by coffee drinking.

"I only drank one cup of coffee for breakfast but that was enough to do the business for me. When I quit it my troubles disappeared in an almost miraculous way. Now I have no more of the jerking and twitching and can sleep with any amount of bedding over me and sleep all night, in sound, peaceful rest.

"Postum Food Coffee is absolutely worth its weight in gold to me." "There's a Reason." Read the little health classic, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

New wheat has been marketed at this place already this fall.

The editorial association is enjoying their outing on the lakes this week.

The crop prospects this year are not so bad as some of the city papers would have their readers believe a couple of months ago, and the yield is far above the average. Everything has yielded abundantly.

Mrs. Geo. B. Clifford, of Grand Forks, was the victim of an auto accident Tuesday near Ashby, in which she lost her life. She was with a touring party enroute to St. Paul, and the auto bucked on a hill and the chauffeur, losing control of the machine, it backed into a ditch.

The dairymen's contest, which was started last spring to cover a period of six months, will close the 15th inst., at which time some "bossy" will win for her owner a $25 prize. All dairymen are beginning to understand the conditions and object of the contest and will take more interest in the second contest, to commence at the close of this one.

Willmar Journal: How quickly will a man change his tune in regard to the newspaper man? When the sun is shining bright, and there are no clouds in sight, he sometimes heaps indignities where none are deserved, with impunity. But when the sky becomes suddenly overcast, and something happens that he desires suppressed, then how he will try and explain, beg. And generally the newspaper man will swallow his feelings and show how magnanimous he really is. The feelings of an enemy have been spared and the public denied a choice morsel. And the newspaper man knows that the man he has spared will stab him again at the first opportunity. Such is life.

On a pleasant evening nothing could be more beneficial for the toiler who labors hard during the day than to take a stroll down by the bridge over the dam and there drink in the roaring sounds of the water as in its rush it leaps over the dam, crowds through the holes and openings therein, and drops into the whirlpool at the end of the race. Here one is left alone to their thots, to study nature in all its glory as your eye scans the picturesque scenery up and down the river, and meditate, for the world has no use for a dreamer of dreams. The "county dads" held a special meeting the other day to consider the county seat removal petition and after wrangling over the same for some time, decided to locate the seat of government at St. Hilaire, where not only was to be found the best site for the buildings and grounds, but it would be locating the county seat much nearer the middle of the shire than at any other town therein. With the new county buildings located on the site now used as a ball park, the large flouring mill, candy factory, wholesale grocery house and electric light and power house located down near the dam, with the new agricultural college building now under the course of construction on the island, where it commands a most picturesque view of the village, our little hamlet is experiencing a great boom.

A Radical Departure.

The most popular illustrated weeklies and monthlies are produced at enormous cost. Competition for the work of the leading authors and illustrators has established a scale of expense that is almost prohibitive. Yet in addition to its many attractive features the Chicago Sunday Record-Herald furnishes its readers with a Sunday Magazine which compares favorably with the independent periodicals in every way and has some merits peculiar to itself. The most famous writers and illustrators contribute to it. Fine paper and press work and handy size make it a pleasure to read this entertaining publication which marks a radical departure in Sunday journalism.

Handsome Catalog.

Professor Sathre, of the Crookston Business College, may well feel proud of the excellent catalog which he has put out this year and which he is sending to prospective students all over the northwest. It is probably the finest specimen of catalog work ever turned out in the northwest.

The book is not only an advertisement for the school but is also a splendid advertisement for Crookston, as it tells of the advantages of this city in a clean, concise manner. Every word uttered by Mr. Sathre through his catalog is fact, and this is one reason for the remarkable success of the Crookston Business College since its establishment here in the nineties.

Since last year Mr. Sathre has added considerable additional room for the accommodation of his constantly growing school and this year will without a doubt prove the best year which the school has ever experienced.—Crookston Times.

Our Lost Sense.

One of the greatest discoveries of physiology is that we once had six senses. What the lost sense was no one knows, and probably no one will ever know, but that our forefathers possessed it there is no doubt, for the remains of that part of the brain in which it resided are still to be seen in any one of us. These remains are simply a small and now perfectly useless little mass of brain substance called the pituitary body. It consists of two tiny little oval lobes joined together and lying in a little cavity of the skull, strangely named the sella turcica and situated over and behind the nose. It is quite possible that it may have enabled our forefathers to see in the dark before lamps and candles were invented, or it may have placed them in communion with ghosts and fairies, or it may have been an organ that enabled them to go home in a bee line when they lost their way in the primeval forests. On the other hand, it is possible that it was a bad substitute for vision or smell or hearing and died out when the improved sense organ developed.

Mirrors as Detectives.

"It is not solely to please the lady patrons," said an interior decorator, "that mirrors so abound in shops. They serve another and more important purpose. They help detect shoplifters. If you should study the various watchers in the employ of big retail stores you would find that they don't watch the patrons directly. They look at their reflections in the mirrors. Of course their watching done that way is unperceived. The shoplifter glances at the watcher, sees that his back is to her and secretes a pair of silk stockings in her shirt waist. The next moment she feels an unfriendly and terrifying tap on her shoulder, and the watcher, who has caught her by the mirror's aid, bids her sternly to accompany him to the office."—New York Press.

Where the Flowers Came From.

"There was a teacher, teaching in a very poor neighborhood," said a New York settlement worker, "who received daily gifts of flowers from one of her pupils, a ragged little boy. The flowers were of all sorts, sometimes costly hothouse blooms, sometimes simple, old fashioned garden flowers. As a rule they were somewhat faded. One day the boy brought the teacher a great bouquet of mauve orchids. To be sure, they were much wilted, but none the less it could be seen that they had once cost a great deal of money. The puzzled teacher as she took them said:

"'Jimmy, where do you get all these flowers that you give me? You don't steal them, I hope.'

"'Oh, no, ma'am,' the youngster answered; 'father's an ash man.'"

Patti and the Wasp.

One of Charles Santley's most amusing experiences occurred at Brecon when he assisted Mme. Patti in giving a concert in aid of the local hospital. The prima donna appeared with Mr. Santley in a duet. The vocalists had just recommenced singing when the baritone burst out laughing and left the platform. His companion almost immediately followed, although she attempted to continue. In response to loud cheers Mme. Patti returned and said, "The cause of all this merriment is that a wasp has been trying to get into my mouth, and we could not go on."—London Tit-Bits.

Caught In the Act.

Lady Visitor—I am sorry to see you here, my young friend. You appear to have had a good education.

Convict—Well, madam, I have been through college.

Lady Visitor—Is it possible?

Convict—Yes; that's the reason I'm here. They caught me as I was going through.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Charcoal an Antidote.

Japanese physicians declare it is impossible for internal poisoning to occur if powdered charcoal be swallowed as soon as the gastro intestinal disturbance is felt. French physicians have tested the power of charcoal and proved that it is the most active of all known antidotes. The charcoal must be taken as soon as the poison taken begins to show its effect, and the dose must be large. Charcoal is in no way injurious, and as much as a soupspoonful may be taken in divided doses mixed in water.

A Great Night.

Jones—Fine time we had at the club last night, eh? Brown—You bet! Did you get home all right? Jones—No, I was arrested before I got there, and spent the night in the police station. Brown—Lucky dog! I reached home.—London Tatler.

Not a Quiet Dresser.

Mrs. A.—Your husband always dresses so quietly. Mrs. B.—He does not. You ought to hear him when he loses a collar button.—Cleveland Leader.

Station Agent J. N. Beilemeyer being so occupied with his duties at the depot the stork thought it necessary that his good wife should have company, and on Monday evening delivered into their charge a bright-eyed little daughter. The mother and babe are doing nicely, while the happy papa whistles continually, "She is my only daughter." The citizens of St. Hilaire joins with the Spectator in extending congratulations to these new residents who have just recently located in our midst.

Monday being a legal holiday, Cashier K. O. Gigstad and Assistant B. E. Burkee, of the Merchants State bank, improved the opportunity and drove out into the country in the afternoon for a social hunt, Mr. Gigstad previously telling some friends he was going to show his side partner how to land the game. Taking "Teddy" along to do the pointing it was expected the buggy would hardly hold the game upon their return home, but the unavoidable happened and they returned with only four birds and those the prize of Mr. Burkee. It would seem that while enroute to the field of action Burkee took the nimrod's gun and exchanged one of the shells therein for one of his own, and then at the sight of a "chick" they both shot, and Gigstad claimed the honors of the fall. Upon examination it was found that shot the size used by Burkee had felled the game, and then our friend began to look into matters to ascertain the cause for his failing to hit the innocent little bird. The gun was examined but there was nothing wrong with it, and then several shells were carefully examined, and at last one was found which had not been crimped perfectly and to the imperfectness of this one shell was laid the blame for the missing of the first shot, Gigstad claiming the shell being crimped tighter on one side than the other the shot would be thrown to one side. This hoodooed the nimrod and he was unable to fell any game during the afternoon's hunt, when all our citizens will vouch for his being the best marksman in the country. Not a word about the exchange of shells has leaked out other than to your reporter and Mr. Gigstad has been kept busy relating the circumstances of the day's hunt and offering his explaination of the condition of the factory shells, vowing that in the future he will load his own shells and thus not be beaten out by a person who has never had any experience hunting and couldn't hit the broad side of a barn were he locked up inside thereof. Ever since that day's outing a little enemity has existed between these two bank officials, but we trust our friend will forgive his partner when the truth has been learned and that they may again have an opportunity to go out when his true marksmanship may be shown forth.

WELL QUALIFIED

C. H. Martz Well Qualified by Experience for New Position as Superintendent of Roads.

The appointment of Mr. C. H. Martz, of this village, to the newly created position of superintendent of roads and bridges by the board of county commissioners, means that for the first time a practical experienced man will be in charge of highway construction in Red Lake county. The county could not afford to pay a large salary and it was particularly fortunate in having a resident of the county who has the ability and practical experience of Mr. Martz. He started in 1883 to work for the Northern Pacific railway company in the engineering department. Later he was with the Wisconsin, Minnesota & Pacific and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroads. In 1886 he was assistant engineer in charge of construction on the St. Paul & Duluth. In 1888 he was in charge of a division of construction on the Iron Range railway and in 1890 he had charge of the engineering and construction of the Duluth Terrace Drive, one of the finest boulevards in the west. In 1891 he had charge of the preliminary survey of the Duluth & Missabe railway, and later became chief engineer of the railroad, staying there until 1898. From 1901 to 1904 Mr. Martz was a member of the board of public works of Duluth, being its president for a couple of years.

Mr. Martz came to St. Hilaire in 1904, having purchased a farm in the village limits. His experience in construction work and engineering has been wide, and under his charge we should see a marked change for the better in road building. The growth of dairying in the county makes good country roads a necessity, and Mr. Martz' skill and experience should prove of value to the county in general.

MOTHERHOOD

MRS. JAMES CHESTER

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.

Note what Mrs. James Chester, of 437 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free.

Always Kicking.

"Ostend," remarked the visitor, "as your father is quite a prominent man I suppose he makes a great many after-dinner speeches?"

"Oh, no," replied Ostend; "pa makes all his speeches before dinner."

"Before dinner?"

"Yes, that is when he begins to find fault with the cooking."

From His Point of View.

"You say that the number of the automobile that ran over you was 6666?"

"Yes."

"Well, my client's number is 9999."

"That's all right. The auto turned upside down when it fell on me."

Fall Millinery.

The charming Mushroom shape has become the recognized hat for Fall wear and there is no end of its popularity in sight. It comes in a great variety of crowns and brims, of which the high sloping back starts in as a favorite. Covered with silk and edged with velvet it becomes proper background for mounting the wonderfully striking trimmings of Fancy Feathers or Ostrich Plumes. The late fashion books all contain articles about this. Dealers in even small towns will be able to supply their trade with this up-to-date millinery if they buy their stock from an aggressive Jobbing and Manufacturing concern. Throughout the Northwest the firm of Blumenfeld, Locher & Brown Co. known as "The Progressive Millinery House of Milwaukee" is recognized as foremost and the hats produced by them are of latest pattern, real milliner made and of that stylish appearance so much sought after. But the prices that the hats can be sold for are always within reach of the general public. Ask your saleslady to show you a Trimmed Hat with a B. L. B. Monogram Label.

NEW LABOR LAW IN CANADA.

Object of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act.

There are three stages in the history of labor legislation in Canada, writes the Canadian minister of labor in General Arbitration. There is, first, the conciliation act of 1902, which has always devised a common ground on which both parties could meet and settle their differences.

We have next the railway labor disputes act, and I think every one will admit that act, with its feature of compulsory investigation, has prevented any strike taking place in Canada.

Now, if the disputes are settled through the conciliation act after a strike or lockout has taken place, why should we not hope that the legislation we are now enacting will settle disputes before a strike takes place and before the bitterness engendered by it has arisen?

The industrial disputes investigation act, which has just become a law in Canada, is designed to bring about the settlement of industrial disputes before war is declared between the parties. An investigation will be held while the parties are looking on every side for assistance, and the board, appointed as the act provides, after having investigated the dispute will prepare a report which will contain a recommendation or award. That award will not be enforcible by a sheriff or a posse comitatus, but it will be enforcible through the moral support of a sound and enlightened public opinion.

PRESCRIPTIONS IN LATIN.

The Public Should Have Them Translated by the Druggists.

What virtue is there in the secrecy with which the doctor hedges about his profession?

"Professional etiquette" occupies a prominent place in the curriculum of every medical school, and when strictly analyzed "professional etiquette" seems to mean "doing what is best for the doctor, individually and collectively."

Among the things that "is best for the doctor" is the writing of his prescriptions in Latin, and thus keeping the public in ignorance not only of what it is taking for its ills, but forcing a call upon the doctor each time a prescription is needed.

In plain and unmistakable English the writing of prescriptions in Latin makes business for the doctors.

Let us say that you have the ague. You had it last year and the year before. Each time you have visited the doctor and he has prescribed for you—in Latin. You have never known what he has given you for the disease, and so each time you are forced to go to him again and give him an opportunity to repeat his prescription—in Latin, and his fee—in dollars.

If you ask the doctor why he uses Latin in writing his prescriptions, why he writes "aqua" when he means water, he will give you a technical dissertation on the purity of the Latin language, and the fact that all words are derived from it, etc. It will be a dissertation that you may not be able to answer, but it will hardly convince you.

It would be a good thing for the public to devise a little code of ethics of its own; ethics that will be "a good thing for the public individually and collectively."

Let us apply one of the rules of this code of ethics to you, the individual.

You call in the physician when you have the ague, the grippe, or any of the other ills to which human flesh is heir, and which you may have again some day. The doctor prescribes—in Latin, and you take this, to you, meaningless scribble to the druggist to have it compounded. Right here is where you come in, if you are wise. Say to the druggist that you want a translation of that prescription. It is your privilege to know what you are taking. While the doctor's code of ethics may not recognize this right it is yours just the same.

With the translated prescription in your possession you have two distinct advantages. You know what you are taking, and should you wish to call some other doctor at some time you will be able to tell him what drugs you have been putting into your system, and also if you should have the same disease again you can save yourself a visit to the doctor, and his fee, by taking this translated prescription to the druggist once more and having it refilled.

HER FATAL POISONING

By EBEN E. REXFORD.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Dear me," groaned Mrs. Perkins, as she dropped into a rocking-chair. "I do b'leeve I'm goin' to have one of my spells! Ezry, I wish you'd get me a dose o' medicin' from the bottle that stan's on the shelf in the closet—the first bottle you come to. Oh, dear! I do hope I ain't goin' to be down sick ag'in! But I'm dretful afraid I be. Hurry, Ezry! If the medicin' does any good it's got to be took in time. Oh, my, oh, my!" and Mrs. Perkins rocked back and forth with her hands across her stomach, and a most miserable expression on her face.

"How much is a dose?" asked her husband, as he awkwardly uncorked the bottle indicated, and stood, with spoon in hand, awaiting further instructions.

"A teaspoonful," answered Mrs. Perkins. "Oh, Ezry, don't be so slow! I wouldn't wonder if I got past all help afore you get around with it."

Mrs. Perkins shut her eyes and opened her mouth, and her husband inserted the spoon he held, and did not offer to remove it.

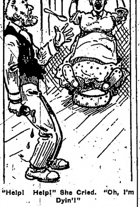
"My goodness!" coughed and sputtered Mrs. Perkins, "are you goin' to make me swaller the spoon, too? I do b'leeve you're the awkwardest man I ever did see! For gracious sake, Ezry Perkins"—as she caught sight of the spoon for the first time—"you don't mean to say you give me a tablespoonful, do you? I told you a teaspoonful, an' that spoon holds as many as three teaspoonfuls! Jest as like's not it'll kill me."

"Oh, phaw, ma, don't you fret," responded her husband. "If a teaspoonful's good, a tablespoonful 'll be better. It'll take holt quicker, an' be more thurrer. I thought you said a tablespoonful."

"I'd like to know if you got the right bottle," said Mrs. Perkins. "It don't seem to taste as I thought it did. There ain't much taste to it some way. Show me the bottle you got it from, Ezry."

"For a sick woman seems to me you're mighty partic'lar," said Mr. Perkins. "Here's the bottle I got it out of. All right, ain't it?"

Mrs. Perkins looked at the bottle he held up, and a ghastly expression came over her face. She looked again, and then she began to scream.



"Help! Help!" She Cried. "Oh, I'm Dyin'!"

"Help! help!" she cried. "Oh, I'm dyin'! Run for the doctor, Ezry! Oh, my goodness! 'Tain't no use—I'll be dead afore he gets here! Send for the children—quick, quick. Mebbe they'll get here in time to see me draw my last breath. Oh, Ezry, Ezry, you've killed me!"

"I'd like to know what you're takin' on so for," said the bewildered Mr. Perkins. "I did just as you told me to do."

"Don't you see the label?" cried Mrs. Perkins hysterically. "You got the wrong bottle. Oh, dear me, I feel 's if I was all cramped up inside! It's beginnin' to take holt! I sha'n't stan' it long now."

Mr. Perkins looked at the bottle, and then he turned pale. The label said "Poison."

"I got the bottle you told me to," he gasped. "'Twan't my fault if 'twas the wrong one."

"You could have looked at it, couldn't you?" groaned his wife. "Mebbe you did, for all I know, an' 'twas just what you wanted. Why don't you send for the doctor?"

"You said 'twouldn't be any use, for you couldn't stan' it till he got here," said the poor man; "but I'll send for him, if you say so, an' we'll take the chances o' his gittin' here in time."

"Hurry, hurry!" panted Mrs. Perkins. "Oh, dear me! It seems as if I was all afire inside. Oh, oh!"

Mr. Perkins ran to the door and shouted to his neighbor across the road:

"Go right after the doctor. Tell him to come quick's he can, for my wife's took p'ison. Stop to the school house an' have the children come home."

Then he ran back to his wife, who seemed about going into spasms. Mrs. Downey, his neighbor's wife, hearing what he said to Mr. Downey, came running across the road in a great state of excitement.

"If she's took p'ison she ought to have an emetic," she declared the moment she set foot in the room. "If we can get her to throw up mebbe she'll come out all right. Where's the mustard, Mr. Perkins? Get me some quick as you can, while I'm gettin' some warm water ready."

"Mustard—in tin can—back of pantry door," panted Mrs. Perkins. "He never'd find it. Oh, my, oh, my! how I do suffer!"

The mustard was found and a large bowlful of mustard tea was prepared in short order, and Mrs. Perkins swallowed it in great gulps.

"Now, lay right down an' keep still's you can till it has a chance to get at the p'ison," said Mrs. Downey. "Land sakes, if there ain't Mis' Smith an' Mis' Ward a-comin! I guess Mr. Downey must ha' met 'em somewheres an' told 'em what had happened. How d' ye do, Mis' Smith? How d' ye do, Mis' Ward?" meeting the newcomers at the door with a very lugubrious expression on her face. "Ain't it just awful?"

"How is she?" asked Mrs. Smith in most funereal tones.

"She's quiet jest now," answered Mrs. Downey. "I give her a bowl of mustard tea an' we're waitin' for it to stir her stommick up."

"You'd ought to have give her the white of half a dozen eggs," said Mrs. Ward. "My uncle was a doctor an' that's what he always give. We'd better try it now. If the mustard don't do no good, that may."

"I'd give strong coffee," said Mrs. Smith. "That's what they give Elder Brown's boy when he e't Paris green an' it fetched him out all right. I'll fix some an' we'll try it on her."

Mrs. Ward had found some eggs and was breaking them into a bowl and separating the whites from the yelks. Mrs. Smith ground almost a cupful of coffee and dumped it into the coffee pot, which was still simmering on the stove from dinner time.

Mrs. Perkins groaned by spells, and now and then showed symptoms of spasms. Mr. Perkins stood around in everybody's way and seemed perfectly helpless.

"Here, swallow this," said Mrs. Ward, and Mrs. Perkins gulped down the whites of six eggs. Then she lay back on the lounge and groaned awfully.

"Oh, Ezry, be good to the children," she said faintly. "Try to bring 'em up as I would if I'd lived."

"Here, take this," said Mrs. Smith, producing her black coffee. "I don't take any stock in mustard tea 'n' eggs. Coffee's my remedy. Swaller it all right down, Mis' Perkins."

It was all Mrs. Perkins could do to swallow down the great bowlful of bitter coffee, but she finally succeeded in doing so.

"I feel's if I was all floating up inside," she said presently. "I can't hardly breathe. I guess I won't last long now. Dear me! It's such an awful feelin'!"

There was another arrival at this juncture; Mr. Stevens appeared on the scene.

"I saw Downey ridin' to town fast as he could make his horse go, an' he said Mis' Perkins had took p'ison," said the newcomer, "so I run right over. What you want to do is to give her lard—melted lard."

Mr. Perkins did as he was told. Poor Mrs. Perkins opened her mouth obediently, and the lard followed the mustard, eggs and coffee.

"Poor thing," said Mrs. Ward sympathetically; "how she must suffer. I shouldn't wonder if she'd drop off 'most any time now."

"I don't find any pulse," said Mrs. Smith, getting hold of Mrs. Perkins' wrist and placing her fingers where no pulse has ever been known to exist.

"The doctor's comin'!" cried Mr. Stevens. "Downey must ha' come acrost him some'rs on the road. He hain't had time to get to the village. An' here comes the young uns."

Dr. Spooner came bustling in.

"I met Downey coming to town," he said as he proceeded to the bedside, "and he said Mrs. Perkins had taken poison. How did it happen, Perkins? Where's the stuff she took?"

Mr. Perkins produced the bottle. Dr. Spooner took the bottle and looked at it critically. He uncorked it and smelled of it.

"I can't make out what it is," he said. "This label isn't anything that ever came from a druggist's."

"I give her a whole bowlful o' mustard tea," said Mrs. Downey, "but it hain't seemed to do no good."

"An' I give her the whites of eggs," said Mrs. Ward; "but they didn't seem to help any."

"I give strong coffee," said Mrs. Smith. "That's what Elder Brown give his boy when he took Paris green; but somehow it hain't worked in Mis' Perkins' case."

"An' I give her melted lard," said Mr. Stevens. "I've seen that lard work tip-top with houn's, but I reckon 'tain't to be depended on for folks."

"It's a wonder she isn't dead if she's taken all that stuff," said the doctor. "That's enough to kill her without the poison. I must say this stuff puzzles me," and he looked at the bottle again. "I don't know of any poison that looks like it that hasn't a peculiar smell. This has no smell of any kind."

Johnny, the ten-year-old hopeful of the Perkins family, had come into the room by this time and heard what the doctor said.

"That ain't real poison," he said. "That's just a bottle of water we had playin' drug store, an' I cut the picture out of a book an' stuck it on there. I guess ma put the bottle in the closet herself an' forgot about it. She always picks up things after we go to school."

Building with Cinders.

The cinders from the waste burned in English municipal destroying plants are made into building material by crushing, mixing with cement and molding into great wall slabs. These have door and window openings and even an interior iron framework for holding them in place, and some weigh as much as 11 tons. The frames are bolted together, the joints being closed with cement.

Of that amount 420,000 must go to my creditors, 30,000 to the fellow who arranged the marriage and 50,000 marks are left for us. Oh, well, they will last until we can get a divorce."—Translated for Transatlantic Tales from Fliegende Blatter.

Capri's Wonderful Grotto.

The blue grotto, on the Island of Capri, in the Bay of Naples, is said to be unrivaled for the vivid splendor of its colors. Owing to the peculiar nature of the reflection of the sunlight on its waters, walls, roofs and sea are tinged a beautiful ultramarine, which shades into a deep violet in the further recesses of the cavern.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT IN AUTO RACE

TIRE COMES OFF AND CAR UPSETS, PINNING OCCUPANTS IN WRECKAGE.

CHRISTY IS SERIOUSLY HURT

HURLED LIKE A CATAPULT FROM RACING CAR—INJURIES MAY BE FATAL.

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—One man is dead and two others more or less seriously injured as a result of two accidents at a series of automobile races that were held at the Brunas Island track, near this city, yesterday. The dead man is Rex Reinerston of this city, who died of a fractured skull while being taken to the hospital. Walter Christy of New York city, fractured his right arm, sustained scalp wounds and bruises of the body. It is also feared he has been internally injured.

Caught Beneath Car.

Clarence Pastion, who was a mechanic for Reinerston and was riding with him at the time, received injuries to the spine that are serious. Reinerston was driving in a race when at a turn one of the front tires came off and the machine turned over. Reinerston and Pastion were caught beneath the car.

The wrecked car was left at the edge ofthe track, and after order had been restored Walter Christy attempted to make a new track record for a mile in a new 140-horsepower car. Christy was cautioned to beware of the wrecked car. Christy crossed the tape at a speed that could hardly be estimated.

Thown Fifty Feet in Air.

He ran into the back stretch and approached the wrecked car at a speed that carried him too far out. Christy's car hit the obstruction on the track fairly head-on. The big racer bounded fully fifty feet in the air, and Christy was hurled like a catapult a long distance ahead of it. As he was thrown from the machine the steering wheel caught him across the stomach, and it is from this it is feared he has sustained fatal injuries. As Christy struck the ground the machine which was in flight had hurdled the wreck and came on him and he law under a mass of wreckage, from which he was taken and sent to the hospital.

MOROCCO TO PAY WAR DAMAGE.

France Wants International Commission to Fix Indemnity.

Paris, Sept. 11.—A special meeting of the cabinet was held yesterday for the purpose of considering the Moroccan situation. The following conclusions were reached:

The Moroccan government should be held responsible for the massacre of July 30 at Casablanca, as well as for the damage suffered as a result of the pillage or the repression of disorders.

The indemnities should be fixed by an international commission.

Incidentally this is France's answer to the demands of the German exporters at Casablanca that France compensate them for the losses they sustained during the bombardment.

The conclusions arrived at are based on the precedent established after the bombardment of Alexandria by the British fleet in 1882. The cabinet requests Foreign Minister Pichon to examine the general question of Morocco and to prepare a note on the subject to be issued as soon as possible.

After the meeting Premier Clemenceau announced he had not received any messages from Gen. Drude, the French commander at Casablanca, or from Vice Admiral Philbert, commander of the naval forces of the coast of Morocco, regarding the result of the armistice.

LIGHTNING FIRES BARN.

Three Farm Structures Are Burned Near St. James During Storm.

St. James, Minn., Sept. 11. — This county was swept by a furious thunder storm Sunday night. The barn on G. Lindquist's farm on the north shore of Long lake was struck by lightning and burned to the ground, and some farm machinery was destroyed. On the Tilney farm, in South Branch, occupied by Will Mulse, a barn was burned, together with some hay. Mr. Mulse was away from home at the time, but returned in time to save the rest of the buildings. On August Conrad's farm, in Nelson township, a barn was burned and a number of head of stock killed.

MRS. PHILLIPS IS ARRAIGNED.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 11.—Mrs. Charlotte Phillips, in an invalid carriage, with a nurse and a physician at her side, was arraigned before Justice Brown yesterday on the charge of killing her husband, J. J. Phillips, a week ago Monday. She furnished bond and the hearing was set for Sept. 20. Mrs. Phillips pleaded not guilty and waived examination.

GANS WINS IN FIFTH ROUND

COLORED MAN RETAINS LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP OF WORLD.

San Francisco, Sept. 11. — A left swing to the body cleverly blocked by Joe Gans, cost Jimmy Britt any chance he might have had to win the lightweight championship of the wodld yesterday and brought to a close five rounds of fast fighting, witnessed by a crowd of about 14,000 people at Recreation Park. The blow caught by Gans on his elbow was struck in the fourth round. It broke Britt's wrist, and though he went on again in the fifth round he was helpless in both offense and defense. It was not until this round that he informed his seconds of the mishap.

Britt Is Helpless.

"What's the use of my going on? I can't fight. I am helpless," he said to Tie Kreling.

Captain of Police Gleason was notified at the ringside and stopped the fight. Referee Welch gave the decision to Gans. Three doctors, after an examination, stated that the injury was a fracture and dislocation of the lower end of the ulna, the innermost bone of the wrist. Whether it was a genuine fracture or not Britt showed such intense suffering while the doctors were manipulating his wrist that the tears rolled unchecked down his cheek.

Was Slugging Match.

"I was utterly helpless," he said. "I couldn't even hold up my left hand after I broke it. I had to guard for Gans' left and had no punch except with my right."

The fight while it lasted was a slugging match, but it was perfectly evident to every trained observer that Britt had no chance to win from the negro. For the first time in his life he was outmatched. The decision of the doctors effectively disposes of any claim of "fake."

FEAR BLOODSHED AT VANCOUVER

Orientals Arm for Defense Against Anti-Asiatic Rioters.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 11.—There is renewed apprehension of further anti-Asiatic rioting here, and all morning Japanese and Chinese crowded the local gun shops to buy firearms and ammunition. They declare they will defend their lives and property. In case the Oriental quarter is again attacked it is feared that there will be bloodshed, for the Japanese and Chinese are thoroughly aroused and are convinced that the police are powerless to protect them. Shortly before noon the police notified the gun stores to cease selling firearms.

Form Defensive Guard.

All Chinese and Japanese in service, of whom hundreds are employed in Vancouver, have stopped work and have been forced by the threats of their countrymen to act as part of the defensive guard. Two hundred special policemen were sworn in Monday and there is talk of calling out the militia. Feeling all over the city runs high and another attack is likely to occur at any time. So far there have been no fatalities, although several of those injured in Saturday night's riots are in a serious condition.

Costly Goods Damaged.

The Oriental quarter shows the effect of the riots of Saturday night. Not a window in the fifty or more stores and other places of business conducted by Japanese and Chinese remains, and costly stocks of goods are badly damaged. The Japanese consul here and Baron Ishii, director of commerce and trade of the Japanese foreign office, who is in the city, have communicated the facts to the Japanese government in Tokio.

Baron Ishii also is reported to have cabled a report of the riot to Ambassador Kaneko in London, with a request that he take the matter up with the British government.

Telegrams have also been sent to Japanese Consul General Mosse at Montreal, who will lay the matter before Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier.

Pay Damages and Apologize.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 11.—The general opinion in official circles is that Canada will have to pay damages and apologize to Japan for damages caused by the Vancouver riots to property of the Japanese in that city. Regret is expressed that the outbreak should have taken place at the time when the Japanese immigration question was all but solved between the governments of Canada and Japan.

CALL MUST BE UNANIMOUS.

Conditions Under Which President Might Stand for Another Term.

New York, Sept. 11. — A dispatch from Honolulu to the American quotes Congressman Longworth, who has just sailed from that port for San Francisco, as saying: "President Roosevelt will not become a candidate for renomination unless the entire country demands it. He has firmly made up his mind to stick to this course, and only a more widespread demand for him to accept the nomination will alter his determination."

Venezuela Won't Quit Hague.

The Hague, Sept. 11. — The withdrawal of Dr. Jose Gilfortoul, the Venezuelan representative, from the Hague peace conference Sept. 4 was due to a misunderstanding. He will not only remain here as a delegate, but President Castro has cabled him how to vote on many questions.

FIVE WOUNDED IN FRISCO RIOT

NON-UNION AND UNION CARMEN MIXED UP IN ANOTHER FIGHT.

BLAMES THE STRIKEBREAKERS

POLICE SAY NON-UNION MEN OPENED FIRE ON MEN IN PICKET TENT.

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—As the result of an attack made on non-union carmen by a crowd of strike sympathizers early yesterday five men were injured and are now in St. Luke's hospital.

The trouble occurred when a wrecking car of the United Railroads, on which were about fifteen men, was approaching the car barns at the corner of Utah and Twenty-fourth streets.

Stones Are Thrown.

As the car was passing a tent occupied by union pickets stones were thrown at it and shots were fired by some of the carmen, but no one was hit.

The car continued on its way to the barns, where the crowd had assembled. Some of the men alighted and the trouble began. Policemen R. T. Wade, J. W. Miller and A. Bigelow appeared on the scene and ordered the men not to shoot. It is said that this command was disregarded, whereupon the police used their revolvers, five of the carmen being wounded.

Say They Feared Attack.

The union pickets who occupied the tent where the disturbance began say they were informed that a wrecking crew was going to make an attack on them at about the time the car approached. H. Green, a non-union man, was placed under arrest on suspicion of having fired one of the shots.

The police report to Captain of Detectives Colby casts all the blame on the non-union carmen.

Officer Wade, when questioned by newspaper men, admitted that the union pickets in the tent at Twenty-fourth and Potero "may have been stoning cars during the evening."

MUST GIVE APPEAL BOND.

Standard Must Put Up $7,500,000 to Get Supersedeas Writ.

Chicago, Sept. 12. — Appeal bonds aggregating between $5,000,000 and $7,500,000 must be furnished by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana before the supersedeas writ asked for will be issued by the United States court of appeals. Without the writ of supersedeas the government will be at liberty to levy on the property of the company for execution under the judgment of $29,240,000 which was returned against the company in Judge K. M. Landis' court. The amount of bonds to be required was plainly indicated by Judge Grosscup at a conference held yesterday in his chambers between attorneys for the Standard Oil company and the government. The order will not be issued until next Tuesday.

ORDER DRUDE TO PUSH WAR.

French Premier Tells Commander to Get Busy.

Paris, Sept. 12. — Premier Clemenceau announced last night that he had received no further news from Morocco. He has instructed Gen. Drude, the commander of the French expeditionary force, to deliver a sharp and decisive attack upon the Arab tribesmen when in his judgment the occasion is opportune. He also requested the general to inform him by telegraph when he thought he would take the offensive. No answer has been received.

VETERANS IN GRAND PARADE

BRAVE DRIVING STORM TO AGAIN MARCH BENEATH BATTLE FLAGS.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 12. — The Grand Army of the Republic held its forty-first parade yesterday in memory of the victims of war. Ten thousand veterans braved a driving storm to march again beneath their battle flags. Thousands of spectators, with heads uncovered, watched the faltering lines. For an hour and more the veterans walked between lines of cheering people, keeping step to the bands, which played "How Dry I Am" and "Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie."

Gov. Charles E. Hughes, his military staff, the national officers of the Grand Army and distinguished visitors occupied the reviewing stand After the parade the sky cleared and the sun broke forth. The dripping but undaunted old soldiers found their way to lodging places, satisfied that a trifling rain storm had no more stopped them than it had in the days of war.

"I have never seen anything so inspiring or so pathetic," said Gov Hughes when the last of the lagging dripping veterans had passed the stand. "When the serious consequences of the march through the rain to many of the veterans are considered, it is a revelation of the courage and determination of the American people. It should serve as an inspiration and encouragement to us all. It was splendid—magnificent."

She was heating paraffin when in some unaccountable manner the paraffin caught fire, and in attempting to throw it out she set fire to her dressing jacket. She rushed over to a neighbor, who wrapped her in a blanket and extinguished the flame. Mrs. Johnson was seriously burned about the chest and face, but no permanent results are anticipated.

FEW GO TO LAW IN COUNTY.

Winona Has Few Cases for District Court Term.

Winona, Minn., Sept. 12.—There are only sixteen cases on the district court calendar for the September term, which opens next Monday. There are two damage actions for personal injuries, but with those exceptions there are few cases of importance. This is one of the shortest calendars on record and indicates that litigation in this county is on the decline.

RAILWAY PROFITS ARE EXCESSIVE

STATE'S ATTORNEY OUTLINES DEFENSE IN RAILWAY RATE CASE.

NEW RATE NOT CONFISCATORY

STATE TO PROVE THAT 2-CENT RATE AND COMMODITY RATE ARE REMUNERATIVE.

St. Paul, Sept. 12. — Thomas D. O'Brien, special counsel for the state in the injunction proceedings brought by railroad stockholders to restrain the operation of Minnesota's rate laws, spent all day yesterday in arguing before Judge Lochren against the issuance of the injunction. After six days' argument by the plaintiffs, Mr. O'Brien opened for the state. He took up the evidence to analyze it and demonstrated that the reductions are not confiscatory.

Mr. O'Brien reviewed first the state's demurrers, which deny the jurisdiction of the court, the right to enjoin state officers or the sufficiency of the bills.

What State Will Prove.

In a general way he announced that the state would prove that the merchandise rates and the 2-cent passenger rate are remunerative; that the present commodity rates are unequal and unjust, and that the proposed rates are higher per ton per mile than the interstate rates now in force. The state will show that higher net profits are now earned on local than on interstate business, on the companies' own figures and therefore that local rates are exorbitant.

"We claim," said Mr. O'Brien, "that there being no diverse citizenship, this court has no jurisdiction.

"We claim, second, that the railway commission, not being concerned with the commodity rate law or the 2-cent fare act, the court will not inquire into their validity in this action.

"Third, that the complainants have not brought themselves within the ninety-fourth equity rule.

Is Action Against State.

"Fourth, that this is an action against the state and is in opposition to the federal constitution.

"Fifth, that the bills are multifarious.

"We insist," continued Mr. O'Brien, "that an interlocutory temporary injunction will not issue because of its effect to change existing condition, and, further, that the court will give no attention regarding the claims in the matter of the passenger fare and merchandise rates, two things which the roads have accepted of their own free will and which they have voluntarily put into effect."

FIFTH GOPHER BANK ROBBED

LUSITANIA IS QUEEN OF SEA

NEW CUNARD LINER SMASHES ALL FORMER TRANSATLANTIC RECORDS.

New York, Sept. 12. — Plowing through the seas at a speed never before attained by a passenger steamship, the giant turbiner Lusitania of the Cunard line, is sweeping along at a twenty-five knot clip on her maiden voyage to New York, and a wireless message received from Cape Race, N. F., early yesterday shows that she has broken all Transatlantic records. If she maintains her speed through the last thousand miles of her trip, the hope of a four-day trip across the Atlantic will have been realized.

The Lusitania is expected to flash by the red-hulled lightship off Sandy Hook about 1 o'clock Friday morning, which would make the time of the voyage about four days and eighteen hours, more than thirteen hours better than the record trip between Queenstown and New York of five days seven hours and twenty-five minutes, made by the Lucania of the Cunard line in 1894.

CZAR'S YACHT ON THE ROCKS.

Apparently No Danger, as Nicholas and Family Remain on Board.

The yacht is apparently in no danger, as the emperor and his family remain on board. The Standart ran upon the rocks, which were submerged at high tide, at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and remained fast. A steam life boat from Reval, on the Gulf of Finland, has arrived upon the scene and seven torpedo boats which have been escorting the imperial yacht on the tour in Finnish waters are standing by to render assistance if needed.

STATE IS RICHER BY FIVE MILLIONS

INCREASE OF MORE THAN $5,550,000 OVER LAST YEAR IN PERSONAL PROPERTY.

RETURNS FROM THE COUNTIES

TOTAL PERSONAL PROPERTY ASSESSMENT FOR THIS YEAR IS $186,692,217.

St. Paul, Sept. 12.—An increase of more than $5,500,000 in the personal property assessment of the state, as returned by the county boards of equalization over the figures returned last year, is shown by a tabulation of the returns from each county by the state tax commission. This gain is over the returns made to the state by the counties, but when the state board of equalization completed its work last year the total had been raised about $8,000,000. The returns from the counties are now in the hands of the state board of equalization, which has commenced its work on them.

The total assessment this year is $186,692,217, as compared with $181,441,279 last year. For the purpose of taxation the property is divided into thirty classes, and the board of equalization will take up each class separately and consider it with reference to each county.

Saturday, September 14, 1907

Postoffice and bank robberies are becoming quite common nowdays.

The Donaldson bank was looted last week and some $1,400 in cash taken.

Bro. Dare modestly asserts that "some men act sea sick every time they see a pretty girl in a sailor hat."

The season's wheat crop is now being marketed and the price continues good. The yield has been quite satisfactory generally.

The Standard Oil Company are now asking the sympathy of the business world in their behalf—the pills prescribed by Judge Landis evidently being to large to take.

The editors didn't take their trip on the lake last week as planed, but instead the excursion will include a visit to the prosperous new town of International Falls. The trip will doubtless be made the latter part of this month.

Paul Morton says to so live that you can look any man square in the face and tell him to go to hell. While Paul was giving out advise he should have told us to so train that we could outrun any man after we had told him where he could go.

Down at Shevlin the other day a stranger asked of one of her citizens who the leading merchant in that town was. The citizen replied sadly, "Ay don't know him name. Ha ben one of them there mail order houses in Chicago." 'Tis only another case where the home merchant does not advertise and the mail order house does.

Mr. Carnegie and other rich men could find better uses for their money than establishing libraries or endowing the universities. Training schools to equip young men for mechanical and agricultural occupation will bring better returns than any other educational investment. Boys need to learn the art as well as the science of farming and industrial schools will reach a larger class of wage-earners than the higher institutions of learning.

When one lies down to sleep at night with little care for the ardious tasks of the morrow, it is seldom that he dreams of other than the most pleasant of dreams, while he whose mind is worried during the day is horrified at night to find that he has amased great wealth and has a hard time taking care of the same. He will take in all the excursions on the railroads—Sunday ones included, visit the great metropolis, take in the fairs, and in various ways spend his money as recklessly as possible. His wife is dressed like a doll and her every want is satisfied if money can so satisfy, but the climax comes when aroused and informed that it is time to get up and start the fire.

Our creamery is an instution of which we are all proud, and no matter in what direction you go it will be found the St. Hilaire creamery is the talk of the country. This is true not only in Minnesota, but Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa as well. A premium of two cents per pound on butter has started the world a gossip, and with the patrons paid over $8,386 for butter-fat for the month of July, keeps tongues a waggin.' The insures to us a handsome income the year round, an increased population throughout the rural districts, and a continual forging ahead, for the dairy and creamery communities of the older states never suffer a set-back from "crop failure." They have no crop failures. Every year such communities take a step forward, regardless of weather conditions. The value of the land is enhanced year by year, the fine herds of stock improved, both in quality and quantity, and the farmer has no big obligations to meet in the fall, paying cash for everything he buys throughout the entire twelve months of the year. The creamery will be the salvation of every section where continued wheat cropping has proven unprofitable. The prosperity of the country is due to the creameries, and of ours we are justly proud.

The state fair last week drew forth an unusually large crowd and those attending report the exhibits, attractions and amusements as being par excellent. It would seem our fair association is endeavoring to improve their fair with each succeeding year, and the success they have achieved may be evinced from the fact that for attractiveness the Minnesota state fairs rank well up to the World's Fair at Chicago, the Cotton States Exposition at Atlanta, Nashville Centennial, Buffalo Exposition, World's Fair at St. Louis, and other like attractions.

The American Farmer truthfully says "Dairying is one of the best lines of farming because it maintains the fertility of the soil, gives constant and steady employment and produces the best type of manhood. On the dairy farm we find better homes, better social and political conditions, and better and higher development of mankind. The opportunities to the present day dairyman are many. The business affords great opportunity for improvements in increasing soil fertility, in securing better farm equipment and in the breeding and selection of the working herd. The salvation of the country depends on agriculture and the foundation of all agriculture is the soil. Dairying is the greatest wealth-producing industry in the country and is needed everywhere, as everywhere there is a constant demand for dairy products.

John Was Huffed.

In the olden time a woman in the north of Scotland went to visit her husband, who was condemned to be hanged upon the following day. The man began to give his last instructions to his wife preparatory to bidding her farewell, when all at once she broke in on the conversation and exclaimed, "By the bye, John, whaur will I plant the tatties this year?" The unfortunate man, as may be imagined, grew exceedingly indignant at the indifference of his wife and exclaimed angrily: "What need I care whaur ye plant them? I'm no likely to need ony o' them." "Hech," replied the woman, turning to the warder, with a wag of the head, "poor John's huffed because he's gaun to be hanged in the morn!" and marched out of the cell.

Didn't Irritate Him.

Here is a glimpse of the seamy side of life in Cornwall from the Cornish Magazine:

"I'm afraid, Jenny, you irritate your husband with your long tongue."

"Aw, no, my dear Miss Vivian, I'd never say nawthen to en. T'other day I was 'ome waitin' for'n to come 'ome to supper. Eight o'clock come, an' no Jan; 9 o'clock come, an' no Jan; 10 o'clock come, an' no Jan. I put up me bonnet an' shoal an' went to every kiddly wink in town thout Dyke Winsor's. When I come there, there wor Jan. Says I, 'You ugly murderen veilan, theest killed thee fust wife an' now theest want to kill me, too,' an' he up an knacked me down."

Glass Cutting.

The layman who is introduced to the mysteries of cutting glass for the first time is amazed at the amount of work that the workman does entirely by his eye. The first stage of the bowl which is to be cut finds it in a perfectly plain condition, not a scratch upon it and only a half dozen or more marks in red chalk, which mean absolutely nothing to the unpracticed eye. But to the workman they mean the whole pattern. Perhaps the dish is a salad bowl. The marks in chalk will run from the edge, five intervals apart, down to the center of the bowl at the bottom. In one of the divisions of the bowl thus marked there may be a little further marking in the shape perhaps of a diamond. This indicates the pattern into which the bowl is to be cut, and it will be repeated in each of the five divisions. All the intricacies of the design the workman has in his head, and they develop on the glass in a way which seems to the looker on absolutely marvelous.—New York Times.

Faithful to the End.

The flames crackled ominously, the water bubbled in the great pot, and seated in the shade of a palm the naked savages began to sharpen their cruel knives.

"Is there no hope?" murmured the doomed commercial traveler.

"None," hissed the ebon chief.

"Then," said the young man, pointing to his sample case, "if you are determined to eat me, at least let me ask you, as a last favor, to try our brand of mustard with the feast. I am convinced that one trial will secure us your permanent patronage, and I"—

But strong arms seized him here, there was a splash, and all was over.—Los Angeles Times.

Sensible Preference.

In one of Miss Mulock's stories she says that "a cheerful heart seeth cheerful things" and gives this incident in proof of it:

A lady and gentleman were in a lumber yard situated by a dirty, foul smelling river. The lady said, "How good the pine boards smell!"

"Pine boards!" exclaimed the gentleman. "Just smell that foul river!"

"No, thank you," was the reply; "I prefer to smell the pine boards."

A Man of Many Parts.

Here is an amusing old handbill printed and circulated in Cumberland, England, early in the nineteenth century:

"I, James Williams, parish clerk, saxtone, town cryer and bellman, make and sells all sorts of haberdasharies, groceries, etc., likewise hair and whig drest, and cut, on the shortest notice. Also—

"N. B.—I keep an evening school, where I teach at reasonable rates, reading, writing, singing and sums.

"N. B.—I plays the hooboy occasionally, if wanted.

"N. B.—My shop is next doore, where I bleed, draw teeth and shoo horses, all with greatest sell.

"N. B.—Children taut to dance, if agreeable, at six pence per week, by me, J. Williams, who buy and sell old iron and coals—shoes cleaned and mended.

"N. B.—A hat and pair of stockings to be cudgelled for, the best in 5, on Shrof Tushday. For particulars incuire within, or at the horse shoo and bell, near the church, on tother side of the way.

"N. B.—Look over the door for the sighn of the 3 pigeons.

"N. B.—I sell good ayle, and sometimes cyder—lodgings for single men."

Snobs in high places assume great airs and are pretentious in all they do, and the higher the elevation the more conspicuous is the incongruity of their position.—Samuel Smiles.

Your dreamer of dreams, accompanied by Mrs. Cross and her mother, sister and daughter, Mrs. P. E. Pirath, Mrs. H. E. Ives and Miss Margaret Helen, drove up to Thief River Falls last Sunday afternoon for a pleasure outing and to favor that thriving young metropolis with a visit, it being a long desired trip. Enroute the crops along side the road looked fine and we must say some of the farms would do for a garden spot in Eden, while at the end of our drive we were greatly surprised to find such a thriving city. Things seem to be coming their way, several new business blocks are under the course of construction, and "hustle" is the pass-word at the gates to the city. The citizens have every reason to feel proud of their city for everything points toward enterprise, and no visitor to the city will leave her portals without a feeling of regret that they cannot forever remain a guest of such a hospitable class of people.

Manager Hooper, of our telephone exchange arrived in the city Wednesday and will commence setting the poles and stringing the wires as soon as he can pick up men to do the work. It will then be only a very short time until we can route our neighbors out at a late hour of night to ask the hour. A telephones is a great convenience, indeed.

Who Was Who.

Bro. Jno. Eastman says the following story has just leaked out and it concerns a prominent St. Hilaire man and K. M. Hansen, who is the local game warden. Just a few days before the opening of the chicken season the St. Hilaire man was in Thief River Falls and Mr. Hansen asked him if there was going to be good shooting around St. Hilaire this year. "You bet there is," said the St. Hilaire man proudly. "I killed a half dozen of the finest birds you ever laid your eyes on today." "Well, that is fine," said the warden, "and do you know who you are talking to?" Being assured that he did not the officer said: "Why, I am the game warden for this district." The St. Hilaire man was taken back only for a minute, when he asked: "And do you know who you are talking to?" The warden said he did not. "Well, sir," said the hunter, apparently relieved, "you are talking to the biggest liar in the state of Minnesota."

Ship Butter West.

Thief River Falls News: Next Monday a car load of butter will be shipped from Thief River Falls to Spokane, Wash., and every week thereafter a similiar amount will be shipped. The butter is manufactured by the local creameries of this vicinity and arrangements for the purchase of the butter has been made by W. H. Blunt, a former resident of this city who is now working for a Spokane firm. The price paid is one cent per pound less than New York City prices on the track here, and means that the local creameries will make about two and one-fourth cents per pound more than they are getting, as the cost of freight and commission in sending a pound of butter to New York City is about three and one-fourth cents. In addition to this, the Spokane firm agrees to accept the weights of the butter as weighed by the local creameries, so that there will be no loss in shrinkage. This will mean considerable to the farmers of this vicinity in the course of a year.

A Crestfallen Inspector.

When former Minister Wu Ting Fang left this country he was accompanied by an extensive retinue and attended to the steamer by a delegation of local Chinese merchants. The customs officials, who then were also immigration inspectors, carefully took the names and count of the local Chinese as they went on board. This precaution was to prevent some deported or otherwise not welcome Celestial from effecting a landing by joining the merchants as they came ashore after taking a ceremonious farewell of their distinguished countryman. Half an hour or so after Wu and his friends had gone on board one of Wu's secretaries arrived on the dock and was hurrying up the gangplank when a customs inspector seized him by the arm and pulled him back on the wharf.

"Washamalla you, John? I no takee name, you no can come back. Who you belong?" said the inspector, smiling at some girls with whom he had been talking.

The Chinese shook loose the inspector's hold on the loose sleeve of his silk robe and with quiet dignity remarked:

"This violence is unnecessary, sir, and my name is a matter of no interest to you. I am a member of his excellency's suit. I go on board this steamer to leave this country never again, I hope, to return."

That customs inspector is still on the force but never since has he tried to be funny with a Chinese gentleman.—San Francisco Call.

Where Hat Straw Comes From.

In Italy to raise straw employed in making hats the wheat is sown as thickly as possible in order that the growth of the plant may be impoverished as well as to produce a thin stalk having toward the end from the last knot the lightest and longest straw. The wheat blooms at the beginning of June and is pulled up by the roots by hand when the grain is half developed. If allowed to remain in the ground a longer time the straw would become brittle. About five dozen uprooted branches the size of the compass of two hands are firmly tied together into little sheaves and stowed away in barns. Then the straw is again spread out to catch the heavy summer dews and to bleach in the sun. After additional bleaching the straw is put into small bundles and classified. Finally it is cut close above the first joint from the top and again tied up in small bundles containing about sixty stalks each and delivered to women in almost every private dwelling of the poorer classes.

A person who makes this town quite often in his travels remarked the other day, while walking toward the school building, that it looked 550 per cent better than it did before it was retouched with the brush. We all think it looks a "heap" nicer, and a good big "heap" at that.

Gay Fashions of the Past.

Compared with the brilliant apparel worn by the dandies of past ages, the youths of our time in the gayest of gay raiment make but a poor showing. A fashion that does not changes but is rather growing with the times is that of drinking pure malt beer at meal time. Golden grain belt beer is the favorite owing to its delicate flavor and its wholesome, purity and food value. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Eight Hours a Day.

"Exceptions aside, the average woman can do about as she wishes with the average man," says the editor in the September Woman's Home Companion in a strong editorial on President Roosevelt's recent speech to an assembly of farmers in Indiana.

"If the wives strike for eight hours they will win; a union composed of such powerful individual members, and with a walking delegate so distinguished, would overcome all obstacles. And what are the obstacles? Why is it that the woman of the house, especially the woman on the farm, rises when the sun is ashamed to rise, and works long after the sun has sunk to rest? Is it the men? Are they such beasts that they require more of the women they promise to love and cherish than they do of themselves? In some cases yes; but in most cases the question never rises in the man's mind. He never saw his mother do anything but work, until she died or went crazy, poor thing; and his wife—why, of course there are always little things to do around the house. Of course he has more help in his own business when it gets too big for him to handle, but he wouldn't think of giving his wife more help. Wouldn't he? Try and see. Perhaps, after all, women themselves are the chief obstacles in their own way to a square deal.

"And there are few wives who, if they went to their husbands and told them that their long hours were depriving them of their health and their right to enjoy life in its best sense—there are very few who would be refused the help that the circumstances required."

Boom! Boom!! Boom!!!

That's the way Grant's guns thundered at Vicksburg and Lee's guns thundered at Fredericksburg. Each of them thundered a little louder than the other fellow at each place and won the battle.

The war is over long ago, but booming still wins.

Make this town and the country around it your battleground, and then boom!

If you boom loud enough, people will come from afar off to find out what's up. Then a little more booming will take them prisoners and add them to the population. Then they will begin booming, and other willing captives will come in.

This is the inside history of every town on earth that amounts to anything more than a hill of beans.

Booming may be done in many ways. A board of trade can do it. A commercial club or business men's club can do it. You can do it individually.

If you don't believe in this town, why do you live here? If you do believe in it, why don't you boom it? Every new family means money in your pocket if you are in business here or own property here. If you make your living by working here, every increase of population tends to increase your wages, every new industry brought to town tends to enlarge your opportunities for making a good living.

Batteries in a battle boom together. If only one gun booms now and then it helps some, but when they all boom together something big is going to happen right off. It's just the same with town booming. When we all boom together, the things we desire to have happen will begin happening.

Now, suppose you who read this suggest through the columns of this paper some method of massing our boom batteries and making a noise that will bring people running into this town to go into business, start a factory, develop some of our natural resources.

N. B.—BOOM! BOOM!! BOOM!!!

A Case of STOMACH CATARRH.

MARY O'BRIEN

Miss Mary O'Brien, 306 Myrtle Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna cured me in five weeks of catarrh of the stomach, after suffering for four years and doctoring without effect. In common with other grateful ones who have been benefited by your discovery, I say. All hail to Peruna."

Mr. H. J. Henneman, Oakland, Neb., writes: "I waited before writing to you about my sickness, catarrh of the stomach, which I had over a year ago.

"There were people who told me it would not stay cured, but I am sure that I am cured, for I do not feel any more ill effects, have a good appetite and am getting fat. So I am, and will say to all, I am cured for good.

"I thank you for your kindness.

"Peruna will be our house medicine hereafter."

Catarrh of the stomach is also known in common parlance as dyspepsia, gastritis and indigestion. No medicine will be of any permanent benefit except it removes the catarrhal condition.

Gained Strength and Flesh.

Miss Julia Butler, R. R. 4, Appleton, Wis., writes she had catarrh of the stomach, causing loss of sleep and appetite, with frequent severe pains after eating. She took Pernua, her appetite returned, she gained strength, flesh and perfect health.

JUST BLAME TYPEWRITER

DON'T BLAME US, SAY CAUTIOUS BUT HURRIED BUSINESS MEN.

Devices Resorted To In Order to Avoid Responsibility for Errors in Letters—The latest Plan Invented by Traveling Salesmen—Errors of Stenographers.

The phrase "dictated but not reread" is now occasionally seen stamped of typewritten in the lower left-hand corner of a typewritten letter. This is the latest loophole of escape adopted by cautious, though very busy men to avoid reading over the letters they dictate, and, at the same time, to explain any error made by a careless or ignorant stenographer.

By this simple expedient a business man is able to affix his signature to each of a pile of typewritten letters, trusting to luck that no glaring mistakes have been made. Again, with this printed explanation the business man may leave before the day's mail is finished, this explanation making a personal signature unnecessary.

This scheme of relieving one's self from the results of mistakes caused either by the misunderstanding of a word at the time of dictating or the stenographer's ignorance of business terms was first adopted by traveling salesmen obliged to have most of their correspondence done at hotels along the route and never sure of the accuracy of the stenographer available.

As in many cases a salesman is obliged to leave for another city before his letters are finished, the necessity for some such explanation is obvious. While a carbon copy of each letter is usually sent him at his next stopping place, the original goes on to the headquarters of his company and sometimes contains amusing mistakes, the result of ignorance of the terms used in his particular line of business.

For instance, not long ago a fire insurance adjuster obliged to dictate an important letter just before taking a train was surprised on his next visit to the home office to find that only about half of his letter had ever been received. About midway in the letter the stenographer had inserted this note:

"Here the gentleman went so fast I didn't know what he said, but it was something about a cross-eyed agreement."

After a little thought on the part of the one who dictated the letter he remembered that he had referred to a quasi agreement, an expression with which the hotel stenographer was evidently unfamiliar.

Another instance was the case of a young attorney who dictated a letter to his stenographer asking a brother lawyer if he could argue a demurrer on a certain day. The letter was sent out hurriedly and not reread.

The next day the letter was returned to the writer asking for an interpretation of what seemed a surprising request. Investigation showed that the stenographer had misread her notes and inquired if the young lawyer could "agree to be demure" on a certain day.

"Dictated by ——, but not reread by him" is sometimes added at the bottom of a letter by means of a rubber stamp, the initials of the particular person dictating the letter being filled in with a pen. This method is adopted when the letter has been dictated by one member of a firm and signed by another perhaps not entirely familiar with the subject matter.

NOT EXACTLY COALS.

But the Hot Water Didn't Seem to Work.

"The Southern negro is a perpetual mine of stories for the jokemakers," said C. C. Herman of Richmond, Va., at the Plankinton to a Milwaukee Sentinel reporter, "but the little incidents that one who lives much among them sees almost every day are funnier than the average of the jokesmiths' product. A friend of mine, a missionary clergyman who works among the negroes of Richmond, was calling on an old negro woman, well known by many people who employed her as a laundress as Aunt Lizzie, a hard-working, faithful old soul, who was afflicted with a worthless, gin-absorbing husband. The good for nothing spouse was the trial of her life, and she besought my clergyman friend to know if he could not suggest something which she could do to straighten him out. One thing after another he suggested, only to be met with a shake of Aunt Lizzie's head and the statement that she had tried it and that it had not worked. Finally, after a few moments' thought, my friend said: 'Aunt Lizzie, have you ever tried heaping coals of fire on his head?' With a look indicating the death of a last hope, the old mammy said:

"'Well, I ain't nevah heaped no coals on his head, but I done tried hot watah, and it didn't do no good nohow.'"

Wigwagged the Prince.

While Prince Arthur of Connaught and his suite were recently traveling by steamer along a Canadian river a man standing on the bank began waving a pocket handkerchief on a stick, and the prince, taking his own handkerchief from his pocket, waved back again. Then, turning round to the bystanders, Prince Arthur said, "The man signaled the words, 'Welcome to Canada,' and I have replied, 'Thank you.'"

Of Course.

"From the grammatical standpoint," said the fair maid with the lofty forehead, "which do you consider correct. 'I had rather go home' or 'I would rather go home?'"

"Neither," promptly responded the young man. "I'd much rather stay here."

Why He Declined.

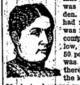
WORN TO A SKELETON.

A Wonderful Restoration Caused a Sensation in a Pennsylvania Town.



Mrs. Charles N. Preston, of Elkland, Pa., says: "Three years ago I found that my housework was becoming a burden. I tired easily, had no ambition and was failing fast. My complexion got yellow, and I lost over 50 pounds. My thirst was terrible, and there was sugar in the kidney secretions. My doctor kept me on a strict diet, but as his medicine was not helping me, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once, and soon all traces of sugar disappeared. I have regained my former weight and am perfectly well."

Cane Whittled by Lincoln.

Ira H. Haworth, who was a friend of Abraham Lincoln, celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary yesterday.

Mr. Haworth has a cane and a gavel given to him by President Lincoln in 1860. They are made from the wood of a black walnut tree which was whittled by Lincoln and around the top of it is a band of German silver, which is engraved: "To Ira Haworth from Abraham Lincoln, 1860."

"Yes, Abe gave them to me," said Mr. Haworth yesterday, when I was chairman of the township committee in his home county, I used them in the campaign of 1860. When he gave them to me he said:

"'This gavel is to keep order. The cane is to use when you get old. I know you will live to be old because the good die young.'"

CASE OF ECZEMA IN SOUTH.

Suffered Three Years—Hands and Eye Most Affected—Now Well and Is Grateful to Cuticura.

"My wife was taken badly with eczema for three years, and she employed a doctor with no effect at all until she employed Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One of her hands and her left eye were badly affected, and when she would stop using Cuticura Soap and Ointment the eczema came back, but very slightly, but it did her a sight of good. Then we used the entire set of Cuticura Remedies and my wife is entirely recovered. She thanks Cuticura very much and will recommend it highly in our locality and in every nook and corner of our parish. I. M. Robert, Hydropolis, La., Jan. 5 and Sept. 1, 1906."

"See, Toto," said papa, "how well that little dog counts. Aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

"Yes, papa, but now ask him some questions in geography."

Snake Crop Is Large.

The biggest snake killed in this section this year was dispatched by harvest hands with pitchforks in the hay field of Thomas Beaver, son of Gen. James A. Beaver. It was a blacksnake. It measured eleven feet and was as thick as a man's forearm. It is thought to have been the same big snake which has been seen in that section every year.

Snakes are more plentiful than they have been in years. They cause campers much annoyance. Jacob Shirk, while in the Alleghany mountains yesterday hunting his cattle, came upon snakes and one copperhead. More than twice as many got away. One of the rattlesnakes had fourteen rat- a den of snakes. He killed six rattleties and was nearly five feet long.

Keeping Chameleons Alive.

Chameleons can be kept alive for years by making a frame to fit over a plant in a flowerpot and covering it with mosquito netting, which must be long enough to tie with a string about the pot. Keep the pot in the sunniest window and water the plant every day through the netting. You will be surprised to see how eagerly the little creatures will drink the running water after they get over their fear. Set a wire flytrap for flies, which you can liberate under the netting. The chameleons will not be backward about helping themselves.

FAMILY FOOD.

Crisp, Toothsome and Requires No Cooking.

A little boy down in N. C. asked his mother to write an account of how Grape-Nuts food had helped their family.

She says Grape-Nuts was first brought to her attention on a visit to Charlotte, where she visited the Mayor of that city who was using the food by the advice of his physician. She says:

"They derive so much good from it that they never pass a day without using it. While I was there I used the Food regularly. I gained about 15 pounds and felt so well that when I returned home I began using Grape-Nuts in our family regularly.

"My little 18 months old baby shortly after being weaned was very ill with dyspepsia and teething. She was sick nine weeks and we tried everything. She became so emaciated that it was painful to handle her and we thought we were going to lose her. One day a happy thought urged me to try Grape-Nuts soaked in a little warm milk.

"Well, it worked like a charm and she began taking it regularly, and improvement set in at once. She is now getting well and round and fat as fast as possible on Grape-Nuts.

"Sometime ago several of the family were stricken with LaGrippe at the same time, and during the worst stages we could not relish anything in the shape of food but Grape-Nuts and oranges, everything else nauseated us.

"We all appreciate what your famous food has done for our family." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

BRUTALITY OF MEDICAL ETHICS.

A Great Surgeon Barred from Membership in Medical Association.

(From the National Druggist for June, 1907.)

Dr. Augustus Charles Bernays, who died a few days ago in St. Louis, was, probably, the foremost surgeon in the United States. His fame was coextensive with the civilized world. He was not only an operator of the highest order, but a tireless and exhaustive worker in the field of original surgery. He performed the first successful Caesarian section in 1889 in St. Louis, and also the first successful coeliotomy for gunshot wound of the abdomen and the first gallstone operation in Missouri. A record held by Dr. Bernays has never been equaled: Out of eighty-one successive cases of appendicitis which necessitated operations, seventy-one in succession were with perfectly satisfactory results, the seventy-second patient failing of recovery, but the subsequent nine cases were successfully treated.

And yet, with such a record, matchless as was his skill, varied and extensive as was his learning, wonderful as were his accomplishments, he was not considered, by the American Medical Association, as worthy of membership in that organization.

No charges were ever brought against him which, in the remotest degree, reflected on his qualifications as a surgeon; his moral character was never the subject of attack; he was never accused of having done anything unbecoming a man or a gentleman. "The head and front of his offending had this extent—no more!" He dared to think! He refused to mold his opinions and to govern his actions by the arbitrary rules which those whom he knew to be his inferiors had set up for his guidance! In other words, he could not regard the Code of Ethics of the American Medical Association as being inspired, or having any binding authority on him where his judgment told him it was wrong. And so, twenty years ago or more, on account of some trivial infraction of this sacred "Code," a movement was started to expel him from the local association, which was only defeated by his hastily sending in his resignation. As membership in the A. M. A. is dependent upon membership in the local and State societies, his name was dropped by the national organization.

And so, though he had saved thousands of lives; though other physicians had profited by his art; this brilliant surgeon; this great and able man, has, during all these years, been an outcast—a medical "scab;" not recognized as "ethical" or worthy of fellowship by that body of physicians banded together in the American Medical Association!

And this is the association which, under pretense of working for the public good, is, in reality, only seeking to control Congress and the State Legislatures in the interest of their own selfish schemes; which is trying to create a Cabinet position and to place one of its members in that position; which is endeavoring by law to exclude from the use of the mails, all manufacturers of medicines who do not comply with the absurd requirements that they choose to set up; which, in short, is trying to put upon the statute books of State and nation laws that will, in effect, establish a kind of medical priesthood, to which only their own members will be eligible with power and control over the health and lives of the people!

God help the druggists, the drug manufacturers, physicians not members of their guild, and the people generally, if this association ever succeeds in its undertaking. If it does, it will, after the fashion of the labor unions, dictate a "closed shop," and say to doctors who prefer to be independent, "You must join our union or, failing to do so, compel them to get out of the business. It will say what medicines shall be taken, and how they shall be made. It will hedge the people about with a lot of petty regulations under pretense of protecting the public health. In fine, a medical bureaucracy will be established to tyrannize over the people.

Let no man call this a false alarm. If there are those who are inclined to do so, let them read the journal of the A. M. A. Let them scan the proceedings of the association, held always behind closed doors, and carefully edited, as they are, before they are published in its official organ. If they will do this they will see that we are not trying to create a bugaboo to frighten their timid souls.

Railroad Ties Preserved 75 Years.

While borough laborers were excavating this week they dug up the old railroad between Pottsville and some of the coal mines, which was in use seventy-five years ago. This railroad was in operation before there was a through railroad line between Pottsville and Philadelphia. The coal was hauled to Pottsville on cars pulled by mules and horses and at this point loaded on the canal.

To the great surprise of those who dug up the old railroad the wooden ties, although underground for three-quarters of a century, were in a perfect state of preservation. The conditions under which they were so remarkably preserved will be studied by railroad authorities with the hope of getting some points that will be of practical use.

How Some Ships Are Lost.

The loss of many English fishing boats is now said to be due to the fact that the helmsman often carries a specially-forged fisherman's knife. These knives possess strong magnetic properties, and will deflect a compass needle two or three points. This means that the helmsman may be apparently steaming a true course, but is in reality much out of the way.

GREAT LAKE UNDER EARTH

REMARKABLE SHEET OF WATER IN OREGON COUNTY, MISSOURI.

Two Streams Unite and Tunnel Course Under Big Mountains—Hidden Lake Is Reservoir for Largest Spring in the World.

Month after month papers and magazines publish glowing accounts of the beauty and grandeur of the lakes of Switzerland, the rivers of Germany or the glaciers of Greenland. Tourists and globe trotters have stood on the Alps, "gondolated" in Venice or climbed the Matterhorn, but how many American tourists know anything of the wonders of their native land outside the old schoolbook wonders of Niagara, Yellowstone and Yosemite?

In Oregon county, Missouri, and Fulton county, Arkansas, are grouped Grand gulf, Mammoth spring and Spring river, natural curiosities so wonderful, so beautiful and furnishing so many openings for investors that where they hid in the forests of Africa or within the shadow of the mountain peaks of Southern Europe artists would haunt them with their sketch books and poets would rave of the soul-inspiring beauty.

The Grand gulf is the crowning wonder of the group. Two shallow streams, about one-fourth of a mile distant from each other flowing in the same direction over an elevated plateau suddenly drop into canyons 500 feet deep.

Streams Tunnel Mountains.

These two canyons form a junction half a mile below, where they strike a mountain lying directly across their path. This mountain has been tunneled by the action of the water and the natural bridge thus formed is no less a curiosity and almost equal in size to the famous natural bridge of Virginia. After passing through this mountain the united stream strikes another mountain and tunnels it for several hundred feet and then spreads out into an immense underground lake, the area of which has never been ascertained. Many parties have entered the tunnel and picnics have been held by torchlight on the margin of the lake, but still it remains a mystery. No light can exist long over the bosom of the lake, and nothing can be heard save the far-away rumble of the waters as they rush on.

This underground lake is the reservoir which supplies Mammoth spring, the largest spring in the world, with its 60,000 cubic feet of water a minute. The most surprising feature in connection with this extraordinary natural curiosity is the fact that when these great canyons are filled with water even to the arch of the natural bridge hundreds of feet deep the volume of water in Mammoth spring is not increased.

Mammoth Spring Beautiful.

Mammoth spring covers eighteen acres of ground, 200 feet deep, with crystal water. Spanned by an immense steel bridge, navigated by naphtha launches and flowing its 60,000 cubic feet of water a minute over a dam of solid masonry 170 feet long and 28 feet high, it presents an admirable picture.

It is too beautiful for an attempt at description, and the spring alone supplies water power equal to thousands of horse power. It seems to hold its own moreserene than the pyramids and as unchangeable as the decrees of fate. Nothing affects it. Its purity remains undimmed when showers of spring transform mountain streams into veritable sewers; cloudbursts that drown wide valleys and drouths that drive cattle to the distant lowlands neither add to nor take from its constant, nevervarying flow, and the keenest blast of old winter that ever scaled the Ozarks and rushed as a conqueror down these sunny slopes has never yet been able to capture and imprison in its icy fetters a single wavelet on the placid bosom of this mighty spring.

Tailor's Two Goddesses.

Art and Fashion are two Goddesses who are specially selected to look after the welfare of merchant tailoring, and it is necessary for its true interests that these two ever juvenile ladies should be in harmonious accord. There have been times, just as it occurs occasionally between sisters among ourselves, when these two fair deities have not been speaking to each other as they floated past on their aerial chariots, or whatever vehicle it may be that answers to the purpose of the mundane buckboard. At such time things have gone badly with the brethren of the craft, and they have been led this way and that in their desire to obey both goddesses when their behests were irreconcilable as darkness and light, or a pair of knock-kneed trousers on a bowlegged man.

Promise Improvement.

"Edith!" exclaimed her mother, "I'm sorry I brought you to the shore at all. Here five days and you're engaged to two young men. It's disgraceful!"

MORE TRICKS OF TRUST SHOWN UP

PIPE LINE TARIFFS FIXED AT UNIONVILLE, A TOWN NOT ON THE MAP.

IS BORN ALL OF A SUDDEN

SPRINGS INTO EXISTENCE AFTER THE HEPBURN BILL BECOMES A LAW.

New York, Sept. 26.—Some interesting evidence that lay almost hidden in a voluminous schedule of oil tariffs submitted to the interstate commerce commission by the Standard Oil company was unfolded yesterday at the hearing of the federal suit against the so-called oil trust, when Calvin M. Payne, vice president of the National Transit company, told about the various pipe lines of the oil combine. The schedule shows that tariffs for crude oil through the Standard's pipe lines are fixed at Unionville, on the state line between New York and New Jersey, and Center Bridge, located on the New Jersey-Pennsylvania state line.

Sprung Up in 1906.

Frank B. Kellogg, conducting the federal action, showed by Mr. Payne's testimony that Unionville sprung into existence in 1906, when the Hepburn bill, which provides that common carriers must publish tariff schedules, became a law. The government's counsel further developed that at Unionville the pipes of the National Transit company, carrying oils of the Eureka Pipe Line company, the Buckeye Pipe Line company and the National Transit company, from Lima, Ohio, to the seaboard, connect with the pipe line of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Independents Shut Out.

Mr. Payne said that as the lines of these companies ended at Unionville and Centre Bridge, the tariff schedules are fixed for these points. Mr. Kellogg sought to show that no independent could send oil to the seaboard over these lines; because rates could not be obtained from those points to the seaboard. Mr. Kellogg said the Standard would not publish rates on its line through New Jersey, and as a consequence independents were shut off from tidewater.

Trust Owns Corsicana.

The control of the Corsicana Refining Company of Texas, which the government in its bill of complaint alleges is really vested in the Standard, was inquired into yesterday, and the government's counsel believes that he obtained from Henry C. Folger, Jr., and Calvin M. Payne, two of the witnesses, testimony in support of the government's contention.

MINER IS CREMATED.

Pipe Smoked in Bed Is Believed to Have Started Fire.

Lead, S. D., Sept. 26.—The charred trunk and limbs of Steve Dominic, a miner, was all that could be found when Dominic's partner returned to the cabin above Portland late last night. Dominic had gone home feeling ill. It is supposed he lay down on the fell and after smoking a while fell asleep with the pipe in his mouth. The cabin was a blazing mass when the partner returned and Dominic's body lay near the door, where he evidently had crawled when overcome.

UNIFORM PRICE ON PRODUCTS

MINNESOTA BRANCH OF AMERICAN SOCIETY OF EQUITY FIXES PRICES.

St. Paul, Sept. 26.—The Minnesota branch of the American Society of Equity concluded its sitting at the old state capitol yesterday. The day was a busy one, and a number of questions affecting farming communities were considered and disposed of. The most important subjects discussed were railroad transportation, including reciprocal demurrage and the law in reference to the furnishing of cars, the problem of adopting a system of exchange for the distribution of farm products, the importation of Canadian wheat under the drawback law and the need of a uniform system of inspecting, grading and weighing.

The potato committee recommended the price of potatoes, on board cars, at the nearest shipping road at 62 cents a bushel. The grain committee recommended the prices of the following cereals: Barley, 97 cents; flax, $1.30; rye, $1. The committee said they had great difficulty in coming to a decision as to the price of hay, but they fixed $20 as an equitable price. Timothy seed was fixed at $5.50 a hundred.

The following officers were elected: T. S. Morrell, president; Ole Lagerson, vice president; R. H. Aldrich, Minneapolis, secretary; Ed Conlin, Osseo, treasurer; directors, W. C. Webber, Rochester; H. B. Pratt, Sherburn county; John Dawson, Bethel; E. H. Emerson, West Concord; J. McSwartz, Sleepy Eye; auditors, Andrew Engeset, Twin Valley; I. Martin, Princeton, S. A. Morris, Rochester.

The conference favored the principle of adopting some kind of marketing machine as an agency which will control the products of the organization, find a market for them and establish prices to consumers on an equitable basis

SHIPPERS WIN ONE POINT.

Old Rate Stands Where No Transfer Is Made.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—Relief has been given to shippers of Wisconsin in the matter of the recent raise of the minimum rate on package freight from 25 to 40 cents. At a hearing on this matter before the Wisconsin rate commission yesterday the represented shippers and railroads agreed upon an adjustment which practically abandons the new rate. It was agreed that all shipments within the state that go on only one line of railroad will be carried at the old minimum rate, but such shipments as have to be transferred from one road to another in transit will continue for the present at the rate of 40 cents.

At Racine it was found impossible to get brokers to take city bonds for $410,000 for a municipality owned plant. At Sheboygan the same trouble is experienced, the price of that plant being $400,000. At Appleton the supreme court rendered a decision which fixes a rate for service so low that the people will drop the agitation for a city owned plant.

LIPTON'S CHALLENGE DECLINED

NEW YORK YACHT CLUB REFUSES TO LIMIT SIZE OF BOATS.

New York, Sept. 26.—Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge for a contest for the America's cup in 1908 was declined last night by the New York Yacht club. Sir Thomas Lipton asked for a race of sloops under the sixty-eight-foot rating and the members of the club based their refusal to race on the general proposition that the America's cup represents a trophy for the speediest type of yacht that can be produced on a water-line length of ninety feet or under, and that therefore, any proposition to limit the size of the boats must be refused.

The members of the New York Yacht club, at the meeting called to consider Sir Thomas' fourth challenge for a cup race, voted unanimously to reject the challenge, after Lewis Cass Ledyard, former commodore of the club, made a speech in which he described the deed of gift governing cup contests as drawn up by George L. Schuyler in 1887. Mr. Ledyard then presented a resolution declaring that the club could not take the position of limiting the water line length of the boats under the deed of gift.

Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt chairman of the meeting, appointed a cup committee to convene immediately after the meeting and prepare a reply to the challenge.

YOUNG MAY COURT CONTEMPT CHARGE

ATTORNEY GENERAL MAY DISREGARD LOCHREN'S ORDER IN RATE CASES.

TO DETERMINE JURISDICTION

JUDGE LOCHREN FILES ORDER WHICH IS MADE TO INCLUDE EVERYBODY.

St. Paul, Sept. 25.—Some move by Attorney General E. T. Young in the railroad rate cases is expected in a day or two which will bring him in contempt of the federal court. His purpose is to get himself arrested and fined for contempt, so that the case may be taken to the supreme court of the United States on habeas corpus proceedings to determine the jurisdiction of the circuit court imposing the fine.

It is probable that the attorney general will bring an action in the state courts to compel one of the roads to put into effect the commodity rates enacted by the legislature last winter. This is the law the enforcement of which was enjoined by Judge Lochren in the order filed yesterday in the federal court.

Test Question of Jurisdiction.

The purpose of the attorney general in taking such a step would be to secure a decision by the supreme court on the question of the jurisdiction of the federal court in the cases. The state maintains that by making the attorney general a party to this suit it becomes in effect a suit against the state in violation of the constitutional provision which makes the states exempt from suits.

If the attorney general is arrested for contempt of the federal court it will be for a violation of the order of Judge Lochren in these cases, in which the jurisdiction of the court was challenged, and if the supreme court holds that the circuit court had no jurisdiction the injunction becomes void and the contempt proceedings will fail.

Mr. Young yesterday declined to say what course of action he would pursue.

Takes in Everybody.

Judge Lochren's preliminary injunction restraining the enforcement of the commodity rate prescribed by the legislature is comprehensive. Not only are the defendants in the action, the attorney general, the officers of the railroads and the the shippers, restrained from taking any steps to put the rate into effect, but the order is directed also against "all other persons and each of them." This is interpreted to be a check on proceedings of any kind to secure the enforcement of the rate.

LIQUOR LAW INVOKED.

Anti-wine Room Crusade Brings Arrests.

Billings, Mont., Sept. 25. — During the last two days several arrests have been made of persons who are charged with violations of the state anti-wineroom law. Tony H. Minder of the Topic theater and saloon and Ross & Brewer of the Globe, together with seven of the women employed in the places, have been taken into the toils of the law. The charges are that the women are employed in places where intoxicating liquors are sold.

LABOR IS SHIPPED WEST.

More Than 1,000 Men Go to Railroad Construction Camps.

Billings, Mont., Sept. 25. — Special trains, two in number, passed through this city yesterday morning filled with laborers, who are en route to the western part of this state and to Washington and Idaho, where they will be employed in railroad construction work. Altogether there were more than 1,000 men on the two trains, which were made up at St. Paul.

Grand Rapids, Wis., Sept. 25.—Because of the large number of vagrants and hobos that is now annoying the people of this city and Nekoosa, the county authorities have been asked to establish a county workhouse.

To Erect Y. M. C. A. Building.

Breckenridge, Minn., Sept. 25. — A big mass meeting of the citizens and railroad men of this city was held here Sunday night as the first step toward erecting a $15,000 Y. M. C. A. building.

FORCES ISSUE IN RATE CASE

WILL ASK SUPREME COURT TO SETTLE THE QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.

St. Paul, Sept. 26. — Can federal judges tie the hands of state officials to prevent them from enforcing a state law which is repugnant to the federal constitution? Upon the theory that they may do so Judge Lochren enjoined Attorney General Young from taking any action to enforce the railroad rates prescribed by chapter 232, Laws of 1907, known as the commodity rate law, pending the decision of the rates cases on their merits.

Attorney General Young, however, being anxious to test Judge Lochren's theory, has placed himself deliberately in contempt by bringing mandamus proceedings to compel the Northern Pacific railroad to adopt the prescribed commodity freight rates.

Petition Is Allowed.

Judge Bunn of the district court of Ramsey county yesterday allowed the attorney general's petition for an alternative writ of mandamus which directs the Northern Pacific railroad officials to show cause at the special term of the district court Saturday, Oct. 5, why they should not be compelled to adopt the rates in question and in all other respects comply with the provisions of chapter 232.

Mr. Young's object is to get himself arrested for contempt and then sue out a writ of habeas corpus. Mr. Young probably will be cited to appear before Judge Lochren to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt for violating the injunction by beginning mandamus proceedings.

Appeal to Highest Court.

The court will probably adjudge him in contempt and sentence him to imprisonment or to pay a fine. If a fine is imposed by the court instead of imprisonment the attorney general will accomplish his purpose of breaking into jail or at least getting into the custody of the marshal, which technically is the same thing, by refusing to pay the fine. He will then apply for a writ of habeas corpus and when this is denied he will appeal to the United States supreme court.

Attorney General Young contends that the suits brought by stockholders to restrain the attorney general from enforcing a state law are suits against the state, preventing it from carrying on its governmental functions, and as such are in violation of the eleventh amendment of the federal constitution.

STATE BAPTISTS TO MEET.

Preparations Are Made for Gathering at Albert Lea.

Albert Lea, Minn., Sept. 26. — The Baptist convention for the entire state will be held here Oct. 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18, and preparations on a large scale are being made for the meeting. This will be the forty-eighth convention held by this denomination in Minnesota, and already there is some talk about the jubilee meeting in 1909. On the evening of Oct. 17 the men's banquet will be held in the dining room of the church, and the alumni of the Chicago university will have a banquet during the convention. There are three Baptist churches in the city, and all will work together in arranging for this meeting.

SNOW AT HEAD OF LAKES.

Unusually Early Fall Is Noted From Inland Points.

Duluth, Sept. 26.—Snow fell in varying quantities over the Lake Superior region and vicinity at some time yesterday. Early yesterday morning a little snow fell in Duluth. Yesterday forenoon there was quite a snow storm on the Vermillion range, reports to that effect coming from both Tower and Ely. Eveleth also reports some snow. South shore towns clear to Ishpeming and Marquette report snow, as do the Keweenaw point towns.

This is unusually early for snow in this part of the country.

FIREMEN TO COMPETE.

Southern Minnesota Tournament Association Is Formed.

New Richland, Minn., Sept. 26. — Delegations of firemen from a number of the smaller towns of Southern Minnesota have organized a Southern Minnesota District Tournament association. The first meeting will occur at Wells next summer, at which time companies from different towns belonging to the association will compete for prizes for efficiency in handling fire fighting apparatus.

St. Cloud, Minn., Sept. 26.—The population of the state reformatory is the smallest in years. There are just 243 prisoners at the state institution. In September, 1906, there were 300 inmates.

The State Day by Day

PUTS HIGH SCHOOL ON POPULAR BASIS

PROF. R. F. ROSS,

Superintendent of the Walker (Minn.) schools, has commenced his third year in his present office, and under his direction the schools are making splendid progress in all the various grades. The Walker schools in District No. 5 include the schools at Walker, Kabekona and Lake Alice which comprise an independent district. The work is under the direct management of Prof. Ross, who has had several years' experience in both rural and high school work and the management of the Walker schools for the last two years.

The work of the high school is especially gratifying to those who are directly interested, as the scholars on completing the course of instruction of the school there are fully equipped to enter any of the various colleges of the Northwest, including the University of Minnesota.

The school board is making arrangements to enlarge the present school building. This has become necessary owing to the fact that the population of the village of Walker is rapidly increasing and to the fact that many pupils from the surrounding villages are taking advantage of the excellent opportunity offered them by the Walker high school to prepare them for university work.

An athletic association has been organized and the basket ball teams, both girls and boys, stand ready to demonstrate their supremacy over any of the schools in the surrounding villages and towns.

MINNESOTA RANKS HIGH.

Capt. Shelton Gives Favorable Report of University Regiment.

Capt. George H. Shelton of the general staff of the regular army, who gave a two days' inspection to the cadets of the university last spring, has sent in his report to the war department, in which he gives Minnesota high rank for the efficiency of its military department. He comments especially upon the spirit shown by the cadets in their work.

For two days the university students went through all manner of maneuvers on the campus and in the drill hall of the armory. Not only the ability of the men to march and countermarch, but the manner in which they held themselves, the degree of efficiency they showed in handling their weapons and the care with which they cleaned their guns were all carefully looked into by the inspecting officer, who made a tour of all the colleges and universities receiving aid from the government because they maintain military drill.

In his report Capt. Shelton said: "There is a fine spirit among the student body at the University of Minnesota, and there is an excellent degree of pride in the military department." He also commends the officers and says that the material in the graduating class for second lieutenants in the regular army is good.

The Apt Pupil.

The philanthropical Fifth avenue lady was visiting a lower East side Sunday school. To test the aptness of a particularly indigent cluster of pupils, she took the class in hand to question them.

"Children, what is the greatest of all virtues?"

Not one answered.

"Think a little. What is it I am doing when I give up time and pleasure to come down among you for your moral good?"

A grimy fist went up.

"Well, what am I doing, little boy?"

"Buttin' in."

China to Be Greatest.

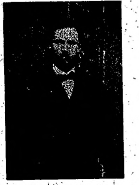
HONORED BY ST. CROIX VALLEY OLD SETTLERS



CHARLES A. RUTHERFORD,

Elected president of the St. Croix Valley Old Settlers' association at its thirty-third annual meeting and banquet in Stillwater last week, was born on May 13, 1824, in Steuben county, N. Y. His grandfather, Thomas Rutherford, a Scotchman, located there in 1818. The family came West in 1850 and arrived in Stillwater on June 16, that year, coming on the steamer Yankee, which landed at a point where the old Minnesota house stood at the corner of Chestnut and Main streets. They were three weeks in making the trip from New York. Mr. Rutherford's family consists of a wife and three children: Frank Rutherford, residing in St. Paul; Lysle Rutherford and Miss Gladys Rutherford. He is a retired farmer living on Olive street in Stillwater.

MAKE PRISONERS WORK.

Idlers Who Rather Serve Time Than Toil Will Lose "Snap at Mankato."

The Blue Earth county board took action to co-operate with the city of Mankato in carrying out a plan to have prisoners in the county jail, who are sentenced to hard labor, perform that labor. A guard is to be hired, and the expense divided between the city and county. It is likely that the prisoners will be put to work on the roads. It is expected to reach the class of idlers who would rather be in jail than work for their support outside. The results of the plan are awaited with interest.

The board decided to take no action on the petition from the village of Lake Crystal school district that the territory for two miles out from the village limits on all sides be added to the village district, so as to have the farmers who have been sending their children to the village school stand their share of the expense of maintaing the schools.

Sixty farmers appeared before the board in opposition to the petition. Six or eight school districts are affected, and most of these, as well as many farmers, were represented at the hearinng by attorneys. The Lake Crystal district also was represented.

The board decided to take no action because the county superintendent had not indorsed the petition with his approval or disapproval stating his reasons therefor, as provided by law.

Building Means Also Site.

The word "buildings" in law includes the ground upon which the buildings are located, is the opinion of the attorney general's office given by George T. Simpson, assistant attorney general, in construing the statute relating to the division of the indebtedness of a county when a new county is formed out of a part of an old one.

The question arose upon the appointment of appraisers to determine the value of the county buildings in Itasca county, in order to arrive at the basis of division of the indebtedness of that county and Koochiching county, which was recently formed out of the northern part of Itasca county. The officials of the two counties were unable to agree upon the value of the county buildings, and a commission was appointed by Gov. Johnson to appraise the value of the buildings, the law providing that the new county shall assume its proportionate share of the indebtedness of the original county, less the balance in the county treasury at the time of the separation and less the value of "its county buildings."

The Itasca county officials contended that under this staute the value of the buildings alone should be considered, while the Koochching officials argued that this included the ground upon which the building were erected as well as the furniture in the buildings.

A new record hes been set for wheat on the local market—it's dollar wheat now, thank you.

It is now stated that the annual profits of the Standard Oil Company are over 1,000 per cent. That being the case it will have no trouble in paying that $29,000,000 fine.

Our creamery report for August was nothing at which to be sneezed—$8,000 distributed aroung among our rural citizens each month brings about "the smile that never will come off."

The attorney general of Iowa is after the trusts for not filing papers with the state auditor, and the fines promise to run high. The result of his findings will be watched with much interest by other states.

The notorious John Dietz has at last won his fight against "capital" and will get $15,000 for allowing the lumber company to float their logs through his dam. Those desiring to use our "dams" will be quoted a much better rate.

'Tis said that John D. has disposed of 10,000 shares of stock in the Standard Oil Company, and the price of oil continues the same. It looks like a case of an ox, a man, and the gore. Shares paying 1,000 per cent dividens will be allowed to "do business" for their owners so long as the courts don't interfere.

Bro. Hunt, of the Sunbeam, has a modest way of reminding his readers that it is time to settle up their subscription accounts. He says: "When you begin to settle up your bills this fall do not forget your newspaper, for we shall not forget you. We expect to publish two lists this fall—one of honorable subscribers who pay, and one of those that owe us from two to five years subscription and had their postmaster refuse the paper for them. We will publish the latter list to let the devil know the latest address of some of the fellows whom he will have the fun of touching up with his red hot pitch fork some day."

ItascaCountyIndependent: Boys, what good does it do you to swear? One of the most distasteful things to hear is a string of oaths when spoken by a man, but when they come from the lips of a mere boy it is terrible to listen to, and makes a person wonder where the swearer will fetch up in the drama of life and worse still, when the end of the life in this world comes. Without considering those things, we appeal to the common sense of the boys who make a practice of swearing, and ask, what good does it do them to swear? And again, do you think that swearing is manly or elevating, and that it will help to make you a better and more useful man? Cut it out boys, and you will be conferring a favor on everybody who listens to you as well as on yourself.

There are things transpiring in this world every day we know little or nothing about, but is there anything in dreams? In a large city, a panorama of which hangs over our desk, is a "wicked father," and his schemes to gain a living by fleecing his neighbors became the talk of the people for miles around, until one day a guard of the king came hence into the city and sat down upon the wicked father and made him return unto his children all the ill-gotten things obtained. Then the wicked father felt sore oppressed and made complaint onto the king, pleading for his rights as he believed his thieving and treachery to be, but the king was a stern old cuss and in a gruff voice said: "Arise, thy son of a fool, and go hence into the darkness, and kick thyself three times. Never take a printer's word for anything, but use his rule; never ride on a railroad pass; never lie, cheat or steal; but be good and some day you may become a king."

One of Them.

A foreign tourist who had received permission to visit one of our large asylums for the insane was surprised at the neatness, quietude and good order that prevailed within the institution. He asked if it was always like that, and the polite attendant who was showing him through the buildings said it was.

"We have what we call our violent wards, of course, but I presume you would not care to see these."

"I think not."

"It is just as well, perhaps. They are rather noisy, although, of course, we exercise the same care in providing for the welfare of the inmates that you see in this part of the institution. We also have a section where we keep the 'incurables.'"

"These inmates, then, are considered curable."

"Their cases are at least hopeful."

"I am greatly interested," said the visitor, "but I will not take up any more of your time. You have other duties to attend to, have you not?"

"Yes, sir. This is merely one of my recreations. In one of the rooms in the main building I am engaged during most of the time in pursuing what may be called my life work."

"Your life work? May I ask what that is?"

"Haven't you heard?" said the attendant, in a tone of astonishment. "I am compiling an index to Webster's dictionary."—Youth's Companion.

For Shakespeare's Sake.

There is something remarkably attractive for an actress in the rolling cadences of the Bard of Avon, and I do not wonder that so many players dream of playing his work. I think it was in Los Angeles some years ago that a young actor who was then becoming popular decided that the time was ripe for him to do Hamlet. What his mental process was in arriving at this decision I have of course no means of knowing, but an apocryphal anecdote was told of him the morning after his first appearance as the melancholy Dane. It seems a friend approached him and said:

"How do you feel this morning?"

"I have failed to get my whole meaning into the character. I shall never play Hamlet again," was the reply.

"Oh, but you must play the part once again," remonstrated the friend.

"And why?" asked the young actor despondently.

"Shakespeare turned over in his coffin last night. You will have to do it once again, for you can't leave the poor chap in that position," said the friend.—Eleanor Robson in Bohemian.

J. C. Dahl received word the first of the week from his son Fred who writes that he has returned to his studies at the State University. Fred has been spending the summer in Utah, where he has been working in a mine, meeting with success on every hand, and now returns to add to his laurels by winning honor at school and graduating therefrom next spring. At the mines Fred started in as a common laborer, then was made assistant on a compressed air drill, then placed in charge of the drill, next an electric hoist, then during the absence of the chief engineer for a couple of weeks had full charge of the mine, which employs over 2,000 men. Such is the success of an energetic young man whose ambition is to be at the top of the ladder of fame, working his way round by round, and always giving the worth of his hire.

Won Third Prize.

The St. Hilaire creamery butter won third prize at the last educational contest conducted by the State Dairy and Food Department. The score was 94. This butter was made specially for this exhibit and every can of cream in that churning was absolutely sweet and clean and not any over two days old. All patrons of the creamery can readily see by this that it is very necessary to have all cream delivered sweet and clean in order to make high scoring butter. The cream from which this butter was made was furnished by the following patrons:

J. S. Roy,
J. P. Fellman,
Ole Larson,
Aug. Swenson,
Henry Randorf,
Wm. Moeller,
O. L. Larson.

The milk for making the starter was furnished by
Aug. Swenson.

The butter was awarded a certificate signed by Governor Johnson and the Dairy and Food Commissioner.

The Bird-Eating Spider.

There lives in South America a bird-eating spider which earns its name by occasionally including in its menu some of the brilliantly hued humming birds which frequent the banana and chocolate plantations. Different animals eat strange things, but the human race agrees that for a beverage there is nothing that equals golden grain belt beer in delicacy of flavor and value as a food-tonic. Racing at Ascot.

Racing at Ascot dates back a great number of years, and it is recorded that Queen Anne was the first royal personage to patronize the fixture, in 1711. The first and second Georges were not great patrons of the turf, but they bred race horses on a large scale in order to encourage their subjects, and George III. gave a plate of 100 guineas to be competed for. Ever since those times the great annual festival on the famous Berkshire heath has met with royal favor.

Study of Man.

The only school for the study of human nature is the world. The only text books are the works of men like Shakespeare, Hugo, Cervantes, Sterne and other students who learned in that school. But the effectual study of human nature demands from the student a vast fund of love and sympathy. You will never get admitted into the heart of a fellow creature unless you go as a friend.—Robert Blatchford in Clarion.

"Not likely! I can get a nickel anywhere for not reciting it," Willie replied.

Mrs. Collins made the primary room a pleasant call Wednesday afternoon. The little tots feel highly favored over it. They were also visited by Mrs. Kruger, of Deer Creek, who stopped off a day as a guest of Miss Plowman.

The pupils in the intermediate rooms went out on an excursion Thursday after last recess, under the guidance of their teachers, Misses Olson and Gigstad. It was an ideal fall day and nature in her autumn garb is indeed beautiful to behold.

The daily weather report issued by the U. S. weather bureau at Minneapolis, is received at the school for use in the physical geography class in studying weather and climate. The report reaches here a little late to be of much use as a weather forecast.

One week of work in the high school subjects, and a good start has been made toward making up for the time lost waiting for the text-books. The pupils have the right attitude—they work. And did you ever stop to think that in almost every case the difference between the exceptional pupils and the merely average ones is the trick they have of working hard while they're at it.

THE LITTLE TURTLE'S STORY.

Dora Eickhoff, 3rd Grade—I live in the mud. When I want to breath I stick my head out of the water and it looks like a stick sticking out of the water. After a long time I go down in the water again. My shell is checked; my stomach is yellow and green and orange. On sunny days I like to sit in the sun. My head is like a snake's head only it is a little smaller. The people call me a mud turtle. I carry my house on my back. A mud turtle swims like a fish. My shell is hard. My eggs are soft. I eat little crabs. When any person teases me I get angry. I walk very slowly. I sleep in a shell. My shell protects me from danger. I have sharp claws.

Emma Lindahl, 3rd Grade—I live in the water like a fish. I stay at home all the time. My head is like a snake. I like to sit in the sun. I sleep in a shell. I can swim in the water. I walk very slowly. I like to be in the sunshine as well as in the water. When in danger I put my head and feet in my shell. I carry my house with me wherever I go. I have four feet. When anybody teases me I get very angry. My eggs are soft. I like to eat bread I have yellow spots on my body. I sit on a stick to rest. People call me a mud turtle. I have sharp claws. I eat crabs too.

Help! Help! Help!

Nothing very serious the matter—don't get excited—but your HELP is needed.

Every man, every woman and every child can HELP.

This town needs your HELP:

It is a good town, but every good citizen wants to see it become a better town. But unless the good citizens stand by the town, lend a hand, put a shoulder to the wheel or get in front and pull, without balking, there won't be any noticeable progress.

Towns are not Topsies. No town "just grows." It's the people in a town and around it who make it grow by feeding it the right sort of diet.

A pig in a poke won't get fat. Nor will a town with its light hidden under a bushel attract attention from outside.

Unless you throw corn into a lean shoat the animal never will become a fat porker. It is just as necessary to feed a town and community with fresh material from the outside world.

It is up to you and each of us to get out and forage for the town. Speak a good word for it. Write a good letter for it. To you the place where you live is the most important place in the world. It is the best place in the world. It is the center of the world. The universe revolves around it.

This being so—and you can't deny it—why not HELP advertise the center of the universe? Why not tell your friends and acquaintances elsewhere what they are missing by living away from the real center?

Talk has built up many a town—every town, in fact. Talk can build up this town. You can't talk too much if you talk HELP.

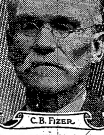
KIDNEY TROUBLE

Suffered Two Years—Relieved In Three Months.



C.B. FIZER.

MR. C. B. FIZER, Mt. Sterling, Ky., writes:

"I have suffered with kidney and other trouble for ten years past.

"Last March, I commenced using Peruna and continued for three months. I have not used it since, nor have I felt a pain.

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna."

Pe-ru-na For Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Ontario, Can., writes:

"I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble, and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time.

"This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna and Manalin.

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin, and now I feel better than I have for some time.

"I feel that Peruna and Manalin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna."

It is the business of the kidneys to remove from the blood all poisonous materials. They must be active all the time, else the system suffers. They are times when they need a little assistance.

Peruna is exactly the sort of a remedy. It has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

In Society.

"I made my money honestly."

"But, pa, we could easily live that down if you would only stop telling everybody."

FIFTEEN YEARS OF ECZEMA.

Terrible Itching Prevented Sleep—Hands, Arms and Legs Affected—Cuticura Cured in 6 Days.

"I had eczema nearly fifteen years. The affected parts were my hands, arms and legs. They were the worst in the winter time; and were always itchy, and I could not keep from scratching them. I had to keep both hands bandaged all the time, and at night I would have to scratch through the bandages as the itching was so severe, and at times I would have to tear everything off my hands to scratch the skin. I could not rest or sleep. I had several physicians treat me but they could not give me a permanent cure nor even could they stop the itching. After using the Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent for about six days the itching had ceased, and now the sores have disappeared, and I never felt better in my life than I do now. Edward Worell, Band 30th U. S. Infantry, Fort Crook, Nebraska."

"Well," responded the bride, "that ridiculous minister made me promise to obey you, and it struck me as too funny."

A VACATION ROMANCE

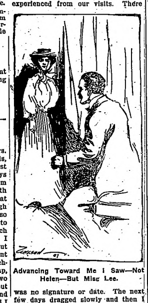
By CORNELIA REDMOND

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

It was four years ago that I spent that memorable month at Hartville in the Green mountains, a place recommended to me by a friend, where I could obtain absolute rest and quiet.

I am a lawyer by profession and it was after working hard on an important suit that I decided to take a much needed rest.

It was while reading in a shady spot under a wide spreading oak that I first met Miss Lee, as she called herself. She was dressed in a pink cotton gown, such as is often worn by farmers' daughters, but the rest of her attire seemed to contradict one's first impression. Her face was completely concealed by a thick gray veil, which was so arranged that not even a stray lock of hair was visible. She had come to the same place to spend a few quiet hours over a novel. Here we spent many a pleasant afternoon, but try as I would I could learn little of my mysterious acquaintance. She always appeared in a pink cotton gown and closely veiled as when I had first seen her. Before long I discovered that it was more than a feeling of friendship that I harbored for her, and notwithstanding the fact that I had never seen her face, and her seemingly distant ways, I had about fully made up my mind to declare my passion to Miss Lee and ask her to marry me. Then one day as the end of my vacation was drawing near she suddenly disappeared. As I approached the familiar oak tree I saw something white fluttering on its trunk, and drawing near I discovered it was a note pinned to the bark. It simply said she was going away and wanted to thank me for all the kindness I had shown her and the pleasure she had experienced from our visits. There was no signature or date. The next few days dragged slowly and then I found myself again in the midst of the noise and bustle of the city.



Advancing Toward Me I Saw—Not Helen—But Miss Lee.

Town life and its businesslike surroundings had brought me to a somewhat more practical frame of mind, but still through the long summer days that followed I often longed again for the shady spot by the brook, the sound of that gentle voice and the sight of that familiar pink gown.

Early in January my married sister informed me that she was going to give a ball, and that I would be expected to render myself useful as well as ornamental on the occasion.

On the evening of the festivity I put in an appearance at an early hour, and for half of the evening at least the most exacting hostess could have found no reason to complain of me. I talked to the bores, danced with the wallflowers and fed the dowagers.

Upon a little sofa near the door leading into the greenhouse sat a slender, fair-haired girl all in white.

"Miss Warren, I want to present my brother, Mr. Field," said my sister, and then she turned to speak to some one, and I sat down beside the girl in white.

For a moment I closed my eyes and seemed to be back again at Hartville, but my dream came to an end as she stopped speaking.

"Where did you spend last summer?" I asked almost involuntarily, and with a degree of eagerness which I hardly appreciated at the time.

"At my aunt's place on the Hudson," was the reply. "And you?"

"I spent a month among the mountains of Vermont," I said with a sigh of disappointment.

I asked her to dance, presently, and would have liked to monopolize her company for the rest of the evening, but I soon found that her numerous partners had no intention of allowing me to do anything of the sort. I had another little talk with her, however, just as she was going, and succeeded in getting her aunt, who was chaperoning her, to invite me to call.

After the last guest had departed, although it was nearly three a. m., I stopped to ask my sister to tell me something about Miss Warren.

"She is the only child of Livingston Warren," she said in reply to my question. "Her mother died when she was quite a child, and all her life long she has been her father's companion until last spring, when he suddenly took it into his head to marry again. His second wife was a widow, and it seems to be the general opinion that she married him for his money. Of course it was a bitter blow to Helen, who had always felt that her father belonged to her alone. Mr. Warren and his wife went abroad shortly after their marriage, and have not yet returned. Helen is living with her aunt, Mrs. Gordon, and I believe has been with her all the summer. She is a sweet girl—but do not let us talk any more to-night, or rather this morning. Good-by, Jack, and thanks for your valuable assistance."

I said "good-by," and went home to my bachelor quarters to dream of Hartville and a slender figure dressed in pink cotton.

I called at Mrs. Gordon's in a few days, when I had the pleasure of seeing both the lady and her niece, and a week later I was asked to dine with them. I accepted the invitation and called afterward not once, but many time, and so the months went by, and one bright spring day I found myself wondering whether it were possible for a man to be in love with two women at once. I began to appreciate that I was possessed by a feeling of restlessness when away from Helen Warren, and yet I found it impossible to banish from my heart the tenderness which I felt for Miss Lee.

One evening, early in June, I called at Mrs. Gordon's and found Helen sitting alone in the twilight.

"Uncle and aunt are dining out," she explained when we had exchanged the usual greetings.

I did not say that I was sorry; I was particularly glad, and before half an hour had gone by I had mustered up courage and asked the woman I loved to marry me.

She gave me a hesitating little "yes," and then I kissed her to prevent her taking it back again.

"Jack," said Helen, suddenly, when we had talked over the future that we were to spend together, "were you ever in love with anyone else?"

I had made up my mind that there should be no secrets between us, so holding her hand in mine and looking into her laughing eyes I confessed the little episode of the previous summer.

"Are you quite sure that there was never anybody else?" she asked, when my story had come to an end.

"Quite," I answered honestly.

"I think we might have lights now," she said, rising and going toward the door, through which she disappeared.

A servant came in presently and lighted the gas, and then I fell to dreaming and wondering why Helen did not come back.

The sound of a step on the carpet caused me to look up, and there advancing toward me I saw—not Helen but Miss Lee in her sailor hat, her gray veil and pink cotton gown.

I felt for a moment that I must be dreaming, but a merry laugh which sounded very real fell upon my ear, and the next moment the veil was lifted and Helen's blue eyes were looking into mine and she was saying:

"I am so glad that there is no one but Miss Lee for me to be jealous of.

"You see I have a horribly jealous disposition," she began in answer to my request for an explanation, "and after papa married again I was wretchedly unhappy, and hated my stepmother with a hatred that was only equaled by her detestation of me. When she and my father returned home after their marriage I tried very hard to be agreeable to her, but she asserted her authority over me in such a disagreeable way that one day I lost control of my temper and we had a dreadful scene. Papa heard all about it when he came home that evening, and the end of it was that I was told the following day to have my things packed, as I was going away for the summer. I had expected to go abroad with my father, as we had done so many summers before, and was therefore a little surprised when he told me that I was going to pass the summer at a farmhouse in Vermont.

"My stepmother's maid traveled with me to Hartville, and saw me settled with the Bennets, a miserly old farmer and his wife. The latter, I soon discovered, was a sort of connection of my stepmother's.

"The day upon which I first saw you I had put on this thick veil as a protection against the mosquitoes, which always swarmed about a certain marshy place where I sometimes went for wild flowers. Almost as soon as you got up and came toward me I recognized your face. Although we had never met I had often seen you in town during the previous winter, and thinking it quite probable that we might meet some day, and not caring to appear to you in the light of a naughty child ~~who was~~ being punished for its misdeeds, I kept my face concealed at our subsequent interviews.

"When I told you that my name was Lee I did not tell an untruth, for it is my middle name. I suppose it was very wrong of me to have made a practice of meeting you in that secluded part of the country as I did, but the temptation was too strong, and (I don't wish to flatter you), but there was a certain attraction in your society.

"My aunt had been abroad for some months, but I knew that she was expected home in July. I wrote her telling of my whereabouts, and was not surprised when she appeared at Hartville one evening and told me to be prepared to go home with her the next day.

"I was only half glad to go away with auntie when she came; but let me go, Jack. I hear the carriage, and they must not see me in this costume."

Manila Rope.

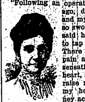
A Manila rope, properly laid and lubricated, is as strong, weight for weight, as steel; that is, a steel rod weighs about eight times as much as a manila rope of the same diameter, and has about eight times the strength, the strengths being proportioned to the weights. When used for transmission purposes it has been found that a manila rope one inch in diameter is equal to a double leather belt two five-eights inches in width, so that three such ropes are very nearly equal to an eight-inch double belt. A two-inch rope, says Cassier's Magazine, will transmit as much power as a ten-inch leather belt, while the loss from stiffness and creep are estimated as only about one-half with the rope what they are with the belt.

Newspaper Sarcasm.

The Daily Chronicle remarks that "the chaos in London traffic seems to continue indefinitely, unless people of different opinions will put their heads together and agree on some working compromise." We cannot see that wood paving is the solution of the problem.—London Tribune.

A MISSOURI WOMAN

Tells a Story of Awful Suffering and Wonderful Relief.



Mrs. J. D. Johnson, of 603 West Hickman St., Columbia, Mo., says: "Following an operation two years ago, dropsy set in, and my left side was so swollen the doctor said he would have to tap out the water. There was constant pain and a gurgling sensation around my heart, and I could not raise my arm above my head. The kidney action was disordered and passages of the secretions too frequent. On the advice of my husband I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Since using two boxes my trouble has not reappeared. This is wonderful, after suffering two years."

CARE OF THE LAWN.

Mow It Often Water It Well, Use a Good Commercial Fertilizer.

The oftener grass is mowed the better it will withstand dry weather. If it becomes necessary to apply water during July or August, do it thoroughly. A little wetting with the good for nothing lawn sprinkler is worse than none.

Enough water should be applied, says the Village, so that the ground below the sod becomes thoroughly soaked, thus attracting the roots downward. Do not use the lawn mower when the grass is wet.

Try using a commercial fertilizer on the lawn at intervals during the summer. The result will surprise you. All fertilizer manufacturers make a lawn fertilizer that is much more efficacious than stable manure, more cleanly and sanitary.

If old, well rotted manure could be applied very thick and allowed to remain, some good might be accomplished, but the usual custom is to spread a thin coat, leave it a few weeks and then rake it off. It might about as well not be used at all.

The commercial fertilizer is much better in every way. By its use an old, worn out lawn may be rejuvenated. Any fertilizer dealer who knows his business is able to give full information about its cost and use.

If you have a thin, weedy spot in your lawn scratch it and sow grass seed very thick. If at first you don't succeed in getting turf try again. Thick grass will drive out the weeds in time.

PUTS THE "GINGER" IN.

The Kind of Food Used by Athletes.

A former college athlete, one of the long distance runners, began to lose his power of endurance. His experience with a change in food is interesting.

"While I was in training on the track athletic team, my daily 'jogs' became a task, until after I was put on Grape-Nuts food for two meals a day. After using the Food for two weeks I felt like a new man. My digestion was perfect, nerves steady and I was full of energy.

"I trained for the mile and the half mile runs (those events which require so much endurance) and then the long daily 'jogs,' which before had been such a task, were clipped off with ease. I won both events.

"The Grape-Nuts food put me in perfect condition and gave me my 'ginger.' Not only was my physical condition made perfect, and my weight increased, but my mind was made clear and vigorous so that I could get out my studies in about half the time formerly required. Now most all of the University men use Grape-Nuts for they have learned its value, but I think my testimony will not be amiss and may perhaps help some one to learn how the best results can be obtained."

There's a reason for the effect of Grape-Nuts food on the human body and brain. The certain elements in wheat and barley are selected with special reference to their power for rebuilding the brain and nerve centres. The product is then carefully and scientifically prepared so as to make it easy of digestion. The physical and mental results are so apparent after two or three week's use as to produce a profound impression. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

THE ROAD TO FORTUNE.

One Boy Who Struck It by Making a Good Job Sweeping a Sidewalk.

"The best boy I ever hired," said the store manager, "was one I chanced to see once sweeping off a sidewalk.

"You know how many boys, and many men, for that matter, sweep a sidewalk. They leave a streak of dirt here and there, make a poor job of it generally and pay no attention to the passersby. They are slack and indifferent and they do whatever other work they have to do, you can make up your mind, in just the same way. But this boy that I'm speaking of was making another sort of a job of it.

"He dug into the corners up by the building and made it nice and trim there, and then, working quickly, too, without losing a minute's time, he swept the sidewalk absolutely clean; and at the same time, as he worked, he kept his eyes open, had some thought for other people besides himself and some sense of responsibility. He was a worker and a good worker. You knew he'd do whatever else he had to do in just the same way.

"About three months after that we had occasion to hire another boy, and curiously enough, as it seemed to me, that boy applied for the job. He didn't need any other recommendation to me than the work I'd seen him doing, sweeping that sidewalk, and we hired him on the spot and he's been with us ever since, advancing steadily.

"What? No, he isn't a partner yet, but he's getting on; and you can set it down as a simple fact that any boy you see making a good square job of sweeping off a sidewalk will do well anything he undertakes."

LONDON'S WAT... SUPPLY.

Enough in One Year to Float the Navies of the World

It has been calculated that if a cistern covering 850 acres and 345 feet high could be constructed and the water supply of London for one year turned into it the warships of all the world's navies could ride at anchor there. The flures are given by Tit-Bits, which adds:

"If we now dig a canal 100 feet wide across Europe, from the extreme north to the south, and empty our citsern into it, we shall find that the water in our canal, which is 2,400 miles long, will rise to a uniform height of ten feet. Every drop of it is consumed by the inhabitants of Greater London within a year; while each man, woman and child living to-day throughout the world could draw fifty gallons from it without exhausting its contents.

"The mains through which these hundreds of millions of tons of water flow for the use of London are almost long enough to stretch a quarter of the way around the earth and the equator, while it would take a locomotive, traveling at the rate of sixty miles an hour, more than four days and nights to race from one end of them to the other."

A Chinese Dinner.

"E. T. Snuggs of Shiu Hing, missionary of Southern convention, and I dined with P. P. Wong, a wealthy business man of Shanghai," said the Rev. Dr. N. R. Pittman, one of the two Missouri representatives to the great centenary missionary conference in China, and the only representative from Kansas City, says the Journal.

"He invited to dine with us four Chinese gentlemen of learning and wealth. They spoke English with accuracy. The dinner was a feast. The course consumed two hours. When we had been dining almost an hour I asked Sinsing Wong how many more courses. He said 'sixteen.' Every fifteen minutes a servant brought to each one of us a hot cloth with which he wiped our hands and faces. We surely had a hundred different dishes. We had birds' nest soup. We had things from air and earth and sea and brook. That dinner must haye cost Sinsing Wong $100 in gold."

Electric Cars for a Funeral.

A wealthy Burmese lady having died on April 3 in Rangoon, her relatives decided to have her body conveyed to the cemetery by electric tram. Six cars were hired, and with a band playing "The British Grenadiers" the party merrily bowled along at twelve miles an hour, flowers were scattered by the funeral party as they proceeded rapidly on their way, to the great delight of the children en route. A Burman never makes a melancholy party at a funeral, but this is the first time in the history of Rangoon that electric cars have been hired for a funeral procession.

The Future of Japanese Tea.

On the basis of statistics showing the production and export of Japanese tea during the last ten years the Osaka Asahi (Rising Sun) entertains pessimistic views about the future of Japan's tea trade, which now ranks next to raw silk. In Europe and America, says the paper, there are indications that coffee, cocoa and chocolate are gradually superseding tea; and this tendency is also noticed even in Asia, especially in Japan.

Too Much Noise for the Locusts.

According to Hop Hollow residents the locusts, which infested that valley for several weeks and made such a noise that conversation was impossible, except with considerable vocal effort, have disappeared. The Alton Butchers' association held a picnic there last Sunday and the Alton Maennerchor sang and the White Hussars' band played several open air concerts. From that time the Hop Hollow residents say, the song of the locusts in the valley has been silenced.

TUMORS CONQUERED

Overwhelming Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy Tumor,

The growth of a tumor is so insidious that frequently its presence is wholly unsuspected until it is well advanced.

So called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive monthly periods accompanied by unusual pain, from the abdomen through the groin and thigh.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacements, secure a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, right away and begin its use.

The following letters should convince every suffering woman of its virtue, and that it actually does conquer tumors.

Mrs. May Fry, of 836 W. Colfax Ave., South Bend, Ind., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I also took the Blood Purifier in alternate doses with the Compound. Your medicine removed a cyst tumor of four years' growth, which three of the best physicians declared I had. They had said that only an operation could help me. I am very thankful that I followed a friend's advice and took your medicine. It has made me a strong and well woman and I shall recommend it as long as I live."

Mrs. E. F. Hayes, of 26 Ruggles St., Boston, Mass., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have been under different doctors' treatment for a long time without relief. They told me I had a fibroid tumor, my abdomen was swollen and I suffered with great pain. I wrote to you for advice, you replied and I followed your directions carefully and today I am a well women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system."

Mrs. Perry Byers, of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I was told by my physician that I had a fibroid tumor and that I would have to be operated upon. I wrote to you for advice, which I followed carefully and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am not only cured of the tumor but other female troubles and can do all my own work after eigh years of suffering."

Mrs. S. J. Barber, of Scott, N. Y. writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Sometime ago I wrote you for advice about a tumor which the doctors thought would have to be removed. Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to-day am a well woman."

Mrs. M. M. Funk, Vandergrift, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I had a tumor and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removed it for me after two doctors had given me up. I was sick four years before I began to take the Compound. I now recommend Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound far and near."

Such testimony as above is convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for Tumor Growths as well as other distressing ills of women, and such symptoms as Bearing-down Sensations, Displacements, Irregularities and Backache, etc. Women should remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women. Don't forget to insist upon it when some druggist asks you to accept something else which he calls "just as good."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. She is the Mrs. Pinkham who has been advising sick women free of charge for more than twenty years, and before that she assisted her mother-in-law, Lydia E. Pinkham in advising. Thus she is especially well qualified to guide sick women back to health.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GOES OUT OF LIQUOR BUSINESS

SOUTH CAROLINA, AFTER FOURTEEN YEARS ABOLISHES SYSTEM OF STATE CONTROL.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP IS IMPRACTICABLE

NOTHING GAINED BY RADICALISM —TEMPERANCE MUST BE TAUGHT BY APPEAL TO MANHOOD.

An Associated Press dispatch from Columbia, S. C., says: "The State of South Carolina is finally out of the liquor business. On the first of last February there was in the warehouse of this city about $700,000 worth of liquors belonging to the state. When at that time the legislature determined to abolish the system a commission was appointed to close up the business and the last has just been sold. So, after fourteen years, one month and fifteen days, the 'Palmetto' brand is no more.

"This was the first experiment of government ownership in South Carolina, and the fruits have been such that it is likely to be the last for many a year. Neither municipality nor state is likely to embark upon that sea while memory of the state dispensary lives as a 'terrible warning.'

"Advocates of the system promised that the dispensary profits would eliminate state taxes. That was an unrealized dream. The thing got into politics and stayed there; and the corruption was so appalling that the strenuous personal efforts of Senator Tillman could not stem the tide of revolt."

Thus has another illogical effort to solve the liquor problem come to a logical ending.

The St. Paul Trade Journal has consistently fought on the side of temperance and moderation, not alone on the liquor question, but on the other issues of national importance with which the people are contending. Nothing was ever gained by radicalism, and this is more true of the temperance question than of any other, because so many of our people contend that absolute prohibition is an unwarrantable interference with their constitutional given personal rights. While this same issue is not nearly so finely drawn in the attacks on capital that have marked the past two years in history, still thinking men are beginning to realize that, as a people, we are drifting dangerously close to the rocks of anarchistic socialism, and the more conservative and farseeing of our reformers are beginning, wisely, to apply the brake to the rabid onslaughts of the unthinking and radically inclined of their followers.

But to return to the temperance question, which has been brought to our minds by the action of the South Carolina legislature in wholly doing away with the state dispensary plan. In spite of the advice of advanced thinkers in the ranks of prohibition workers, who asserted at the time that "state control of the liquor question would not control," there was great and widespread rejoicing when the radical prohibition wing in South Carolina secured the enactment, fourteen years ago, of the state dispensary plan. Advocates of the idea were enthusiastic and predicted that in a short time all the states of the Union would follow in the wake of South Carolina. What were the results? In an incredibly short space of time state control of liquor got into the hands of the politicians of the state and was made a means to the end of the election of cliques, and, finally, the system became so bad that even its most enthusiastic supporters were earnestly praying for its abolition and a return to the more orderly, privately conducted saloon.

Now, then, while on this subject of prohibition, it may be well to go into the matter still further. As we previously stated, the St. Paul Trade Journal has consistently advocated temperance, but we want to warn our friends with whom we are working on this great question to beware the danger of radicalism and its reactionary effects. We cannot achieve our object with a sledgehammer, neither can we legislate away a man's determination to get a drink. More flies are caught with sugar than with vinegar. In other words if we want to see a lessening of drunkenness amongst our people we must appeal more to the man himself and less to the laws.

In this connection Henry Watterson, the famous editor of the Courier-Journal of Louisville, Ky., in an address last month at Lexington, Ky., where the state fair was being held, said, in part: "I do not care to live in a world that is too good to be genial; too ascetic to be honest; too proscriptive to be happy. I do not believe that men can be legislated into angels. The blue laws of New England—dead letters for the most part—did more to harm the people while they lasted than all other agencies combined. I would leave them in the cold storage, to which the execration of some and the neglect of all consigned them long ago, not embalm and import them to Kentucky, to poison the meat and drink and character of the people."

Mr. Watterson, in this same speech, declared for a reform of the liquor traffic, but warned his hearers against the rabid prohibition tactics of Beckham of Kentucky, who would bring that commonwealth under state prohibition law.

The history of our nation stands as a constant protest against the prohibition of men's rights. Out of the original twenty-three states that have from time to time adopted state prohibition it is in force now in only four states, namely, Maine, Kansas, North Dakota and Georgia. In Georgia prohibition was adopted at the last session of the legislature of that state. And it was not adopted because there was a popular demand for prohibition, but because a quick and effective method was needed to prevent the negroes of that state from securing liquor, the constitution providing that the negro should have the same rights as the white man. Our national government wisely provided for its ward, the Indian, by making it a misdemeanor to sell intoxicating liquor to him, but the negro, fully as irresponsible, was not thus safeguarded, and some of the atrocious crimes that have so greatly inflamed the South against the negro were directly traced to his unfortunate fondness for whisky. So a majority of the people of Georgia willingly threw their own rights and inclinations into the balance to save the negro from himself.

As to Maine, Kansas and North Dakota, the other states still holding fast to state prohibition, a simple glance at government statistics as set forth by the United States census bulletins of 1903, shows that the ratio of arrests per thousand of inhabitants of those states for drunkenness is greater than in states where the licensed saloon is wisely controlled by municipal government. If further proof of these facts is needed look back only to last spring and ponder upon North Dakota's unsuccessful fight against the blind piggers of that state.

Facts like these are what cause us to stop and think. We know that state prohibition does not prohibit. That back rooms, veritable dog-holes become the haunts of young men and boys; and that the influence of these dives is a hundred times worse than that of the clean, open, licensed saloon. County local option is only a shade removed from state prohibition, because it enables one part of the county to legislate away the rights of another part.

The Trade Journal, as an advocate of temperance and the friend of those who are earnestly working in its behalf, believes that the solution of this problem is best worked out through the man himself and that the best aid to the man and to his friends in the temperance cause, is the licensed saloon, controlled by local option of the people in each community in the United States, and conducted under the just and equitable restrictions of our laws.

It is a fact that men are more and more breaking away from the habit of drinking strong, intoxicating liquors, and are drinking more of lighter, less intoxicating beverages, such as beer and wines. It is a fact that the employers of labor, of skilled and professional talent, and that the people themselves, will not tolerate drunkenness. So, in this attitude of the people and in the spread of the reign of sobriety, beginning with the man himself, we believe lies the solution that confronts the friends and advocates of temperance.—From the St. Paul Trade Journal.

Tale of a Name.

Not long ago, says a member of the bar in Mobile, Ala., a man named Richard L. Delmandinger, a native of Germany, applied to a court in the state named for permission to change his name to Richard L. Delmand.

It so happened that not long thereafter a gentleman of the name of Smith—plain John J.—made like petition to the court. After reciting a catalogue of the ills to which he was subject, owing to his unfortunately common name, Mr. Smith said in conclusion:

"And, whereas, I have noted that the honorable court has curtailed the name of Richard L. Delmandinger, and has not disposed of the 'inger,' which seems to be lying around loose, I respectfully request that the same may be added to my name."

Mr. Smith got the "inger."

Shrewd.

Two duelists were taking the early train for Fontainebleau, their place of meeting.

"A return ticket, said the first duelist to the ticket agent.

"Single for me," said the other man quietly.

"Aha," blustered the other, "you are afraid you won't come back, are you? As for me I always take a return."

"I never do," said the second mna, "I always take my return half from the dead man's pocket."

In Modern Days.

"Say, Hugo, don't you get punished at home, when you're naughty?"

"Nope. Papa and mamma are both lawyers, and they can't agree on the punishment!"

The Explanation.

"That fellow," said Tete de Veau, "is always getting off the old joke about the difficulty of finding a woman's pocket."

"But, you know," L'Oignon explained, smiling, "he married a rich wife."

NATION PAUSES TO HONOR M'KINLEY

THRONGS AT CANTON SEE UNVEILING OF MONUMENT, GIFT OF THE PEOPLE.

PRESIDENT PAYS TRIBUTE

ONLY SISTER OF MARTYRED EXECUTIVE UNVEILS THE MONUMENT.

Canton, Ohio, Oct. 2. — The nation paid homage yesterday to the memory of William McKinley when the splendid monument which marks his last resting place was unveiled in the presence of an assembled throng, with the president of the United States as the principal speaker. It was the tribute of a grateful nation both in word and deed to "a good citizen, a brave soldier, and a wise executive," and more than 50,000 persons, representing all walks of life and every part of the country, participated in the ceremonies dedicating the monument, the loving gift of a million Americans whose contributions aggregated $600,000.

Magnificent Structure.

The monument is a magnificent structure, simple but imposing. In the sarcophagus are the bronze caskets containing the bodies of both President McKinley and his wife. In niches in the wall of the tomb are two little caskets containing the ashes of their only children, Ida and Mary, both of whom died in infancy.

The president arrived in Canton at 10:15 yesterday morning. The train was met by a reception committee. The president was escorted to the general high school building, where he and his escort passed in review before 1,700 school children grouped and dressed to represent the national flag.

Imposing Parade.

The president immediately drove to the reviewing stand, where he witnessed the magnificent military and civic parade which took nearly an hour and a half in passing. At the close of the parade the president took luncheon at the Auditorium and at 1 o'clock was taken to Monument Hill.

The city of Canton was elaborately decorated for the occasion. The streets were roped off and no one was allowed on the pavement. Thousands of soldiers manned the ropes. He was accompanied by Justice Day and Vice President Fairbanks. He was the last to enter the stand.

Gov. Harris Presides.

At 2:24 Justice Day called the assemblage to order and in a few words introduced Gov. Harris, president of the day. Rev. Dr. Bristol offered prayer. Gov. Harris then delivered the opening address of the ceremonies.

Justice Day told the story of the history of the building of the magnificent mausoleum. At the close of Justice Day's address President Harris asked the audience to rise while Miss Helen McKinley, the only sister of the late president drew aside the flag, disclosing the bronze figure of McKinley in the attitude of delivering his last speech on the day of his assassination at Buffalo, Sept. 5, 1901.

President Applauded.

This was followed by the reading of the poem entitled "William McKinley," by James Whitcomb Riley.

Gov. Harris then introduced President Roosevelt. The president stepped to the front of the platform and was greeted with applause. His address was an eloquent tribute to the life, work and character of the late president.

ORDERED TO KILL OR CAPTURE.

Gov. Magoon Determined to Wipe Out Rebels.

Havana, Oct. 2.—The small band of rebels which have been traversing the country in the vicinity of Mayari, in the northern section of Santiago province has again exchanged shots with the pursuing rurales. The latter are close on the heels of the bandits.

Gov. Magoon has determined to deal with outlaws and insurrectionists with a strong hand. The orders of the rurales, it is stated, are to capture, kill or drive them into the ocean.

BARLEY STILL SEEKS THE SKY.

Now Costs More Than Wheat on Pound Valuation.

Minneapolis, Oct. 2. — Barley sold higher than wheat in Minneapolis yesterday, the sale of three cars of No. 4 barley at $1.05 per bushel marking the record for the present high prices. At that figure barley is worth three-eighths of a cen more than wheat on a pound valuation. Such a circumstance is beyond precedent in the Minneapolis grain market.

Murder and Suicide.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 2. — John Miller, aged twenty-four years and single, shot and killed Mrs. Rose Pier, aged twenty-four years, said to have been his sweetheart, late yesterday and then committed suicide. It is said the couple quarreled.

Child Accidentally Killed.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 2.—Hugo Coltini, aged seven, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a single-barreled shotgun, which he was carrying from one room to another.

WANT PROOF OF CONSPIRACY

FEDERAL GRAND JURY HEARS ABOUT THE "LITTLE BLACK BOOK."

Minneapolis, Oct. 3.—All day yesterday the members of the federal grand jury listened to witnesses who were supposed to know something about the so-called "little black book" which catalogue houses dealing in lumber and manufactured articles claim has been used by the lumber "trust" in an effort to ruin the mail order business. As far as can be learned little progress towards finding out who is responsible for the book has been made. Fully fifty witnesses will be heard before the jury closes its investigation.

R. Waterman of the Waterman-Hunter company, which was forced out of business in Minneapolis last summer, declares that his firm was ruined by the effect of the "little black book." The sudden increase of requests for expensive catalogues which finally swamped the company is believed to be due to the book.

But what the jury is trying to find out is who wrote the book and what charge can be made against the authors. The book is so worded that it gives no hint of any conspiracy to injure the small catalogue houses. On the other hand it starts out with a direct appeal to the retailers, who incidentally buy directly from the big lumber firms, to meet the competition of the mail order houses for their own sakes. They are exhorted to watch the catalogue prices and advertise their own prices as low or lower than the mail order houses offer.

ON TRAIL OF ASSASSINS.

Bloodhounds After Men Who Caused Death of Former Sheriff.

Baker City, Ore., Oct. 3.—The identity of the man who planned and executed the horrible death of Harvey S. Brown, former sheriff and detective, is somewhat nearer solution. The bloodhounds owned by Henry Draper of Spokane have scented the trial of the assassins. The assassins were traced by the dogs to the railway tracks, along the tracks for one hundred feet, thence around a warehouse and mill building and back across the tracks up to Auburn avenue to Sixth street, where the trail was lost. The county court of Baker county yesterday offered a reward of $5,000 for the capture of the murderers.

SAME RULES IN ALL STATES.

Railroad Commissioners Propose to Work Together.

St. Paul, Oct. 3.—Greater uniformity in the state regulation of railroads is likely to result from the conference in St. Paul of the railroad commissioners of Northwestern states. The conference, which has lasted two days, closed with an informal session last evening at the Ryan.

The opinion seemed to prevail last night that ultimately the commissioners will organize into a permanent body. The effort to establish greater uniformity in the rules, procedure and rate regulation has undoubtedly met with considerable success.

FARMERS ARE CHEERFUL.

Crop Isn't Banner Kind, but the Prices Make Up for It.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 3.—There is a marked spirit of optimism in this section of the country over the harvest returns. The crop was better this year than for five years, and although the yield per acre will not be so great as in the most favored years, the price that grain is commanding is just about double what it has been at any other time.

NATION'S DUTY TO IMPROVE RIVER

MISSISSIPPI SHOULD AGAIN BECOME GREAT ARTERY OF COMMERCE.

PRESIDENT TAKES FIRM STAND

THE PROPOSED CHANNEL FROM LAKES TO GULF IS TERMED NATIONAL TASK.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt, in a speech here yesterday, declared it the nation's duty to restore the Mississippi river to its proper place as a great artery of commerce, and termed the proposed fourteen-foot channel from the lakes to the gulf a "national task." He warned against plans which might "entail reckless extravagance or be tainted with robbery," but urged a liberal waterway policy.

Given Great Ovation.

A tremendous ovation was accorded the national executive when his steamer, the Mississippi, entered at St. Louis harbor. Amid a clamor of shrieking whistles, clanging bells and cheers from the masses assembled, the president landed and was greeted by fifteen governors of states bordering upon the Mississippi river, members of congress, and officials representing the city of St. Louis.

Through a sudden heavy downpour of rain the president, standing in an open carriage and bowing to the multitude, was driven to the Jai Alia building, five miles from the river, where he delivered his speech.

Favors Central Control.

The president took occasion to especially emphasize his views on the necessity for central control of interstate corporations. He contended that the constitution must be interpreted to fit modern day conditions and not conditions that existed when it was adopted.

At the conclusion of the president's address he and and party of escorts hurried to waiting carriages and were taken at a gallop to the Jefferson hotel, where they were the guests of the St. Louis Business Men's league at luncheon.

Off Down River.

The Mississippi cast off her moorings shortly after 4 o'clock, an hour behind schedule time. She was followed by the United States steamer Col. Mackensie, carrying the members of the inland waterways commission; the Alton, bearing the governors of fifteen states; the Tennessee, chartered for the thirty-six visiting congressmen; sixteen other large steamboats and a host of smaller craft.

D., last night Pat Donahue of Chadron, a brakeman, attempted to pass between the two cars, when they came together again, pinning him fast between the bumpers at the waist line, fatally crushing him.

Arlington, Minn., Oct. 3.—The Arlington Canning company has quit canning on account of the heavy frosts, which killed the corn. The pack this year is about 4,500 cases, while last year this reached 7,500 cases. The shortage is due to the late corn and early frost.

VESSELS WRECKED IN GALE

FRENCH SHIP GOES ON ROCKS OFF COAST OF IRELAND — CREW MAY BE LOST.

London, Oct. 3.—A heavy gale blew over the Irish and Welsh coasts yesterday and there were several exciting rescues of the crews of wrecked vessels. The most serious disaster was near Seafield, County Clare, when the French ship Leo XIII., from Queenstown, Sept. 26, at which port she arrived recently from Portland, Ore., went on the rocks. No news has yet been received that the crew had been rescued.

A report which came at an early hour yesterday describes her sails as blown into ribbons and says mountainous seas are breaking over the ship. The men have spent a terrible day. Most of the time they have clung to the rigging, beaten and numbed by the pitiless seas. There is a big crowd on the beach, but they are powerless to render assistance.

TAFT REMOVES ALL APPREHENSION

JAPS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER EXCELLENT RESULT OF SECRETARY'S VISIT.

EMPEROR IS MOST CORDIAL

TAFT'S ASSURANCES OF CORDIAL RELATIONS JUST WHAT WAS NEEDED.

Tokio, Oct. 3. — William H. Taft, American secretary of war, officially bade farewell to Japan at 6:15 last evening and left the brilliantly decorated Shinbashi railroad station for Kobe amid the firing of an artillery salute and a great display of fireworks. Officials of the government, including the heads of the army and navy departments, the staff of the American embassy and the municipal officers of Tokio assembled on the platform to extend their best wishes for the health and success of the distinguished traveler during his tour around the world.

Calls on Emperor.

At noon yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Taft, accompanied only by Brig. Gen. Edwards, chief of the bureau of insular affairs, and Frederick W. Carpenter, Mr. Taft's private secretary, drove in an imperial carriage, escorted by a troop of cavalry, to the emperor's palace with all the ceremony surrounding a royal reception.

Mr. Taft was greeted pleasantly by his majesty, who invited the secretary to an adjoining room where they conferred in private, with the aid of an interpreter, for ten minutes.

While the private audience was in progress Mrs. Taft was received by the empress. Both their majesties showed great cordiality in their reception of the American visitors.

Mutual Admiration.

While no official statement of what transpired at the private audience was given out, it is understood that the emperor expressed his friendliness for America and his admiration of President Roosvelt, and that Mr. Taft assured him that those sentiments were reciprocated by the people of the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft were ushered into the banquet room, where a most elaborate luncheon was served.

County Hayashi, the foreign minister, called on Secretary Taft at 4 o'clock and had a long conference with him.

Visit Most Opportune.

The leading papers publish enthusiastic appreciations of the excellent results from the presence here of Secretary Taft. The visit is characterized as most opportune and as relieving all doubts and apprehension in the matter of the relations between Japan and the United States, and it is the general feeling in Tokio that the assurances of cordial relations, so forcibly given by Secretary Taft in his outspoken utterances, were just the thing needed at this moment.

Marshfield, Wis., Oct. 3.—Sawmills in Northern Wisconsin now are running full blast and the season's record of stops and starts, owing to low water and consequent lack of logs, is a thing of the past. Some of the rivers now are ten feet above the stage of a week ago, and the losses of the earlier part of the season will be partially made up. Local dealers, however, say that for the present there will be no relief from the high prices of lumber.

This crop will bring twice as much to the acre as the land would sell for.

Wheat hasn't done so bad in this section this fall, yielding from fifteen to thirty bushels to the acre.

Grand Forks Herald: Now is the time for the man with a scheme for burning ashes instead of coal to come to the front again. He is a hopeful and confident fellow, and he bobs up year after year with unfailing persistency. Of course we keep right on burning coal at ten dollar a ton, but it is pleasant to listen to the other fellow explaining how he can save money by burning ashes.

'Tis reported that John D. Rockefeller is coming to Minnesota to have a surgical operation at Rochester. More skilled surgeons than the Mayo brother are no where to be found on either continent, but an interesting line of speculation is suggested by the prospect of the operation. The Mayos are reputed to fix their fees in a measure by the ability of the patient to pay—with due regard, of course, for the nature of the operation. What will Mr. Rockefeller pay?

Farmer Puts It Up to the Merchant.

A prominent farmer gave the Akeley Tribune man a few pointers on the mail order business. He said:

"I read the article on the mail order houses published in your paper three weeks ago, and believe it is the right view. You can't accomplish anything by abusing the catalogue houses. It is like a girl going with a fellow her parents don't like—the more they abuse him the better she loves him. The farmers are becoming educated as to all kinds of goods. We receive all sorts of advertising by nearly every mail. Nearly every farmer takes the home papers and reads the advertisements. If the merchants want our business let them quote prices. If they are anywhere near right we'll trade with them. For some reason or other the Akeley merchants seem awfully scared to give prices in their advertisements. Now there is some reason for this and we wish they would explain."

We have been trying for the last five years to impress the facts so lucidly set forth in the above letter upon our merchants, but only a few of them are able to see the necessity of correct advertising. There is no doubt that our farmers and many others who have been accustomed to send away for their supplies could do better at home and help build up northern Minnesota instead of some of the great cities. Advertising in your home paper is not expensive; people in the country read home papers and if your ad is in it, giving descriptions in brief of what you have to sell and the price of it, many orders by mail which now go to swell the receipts of the great city houses would be filled at the home store and the purchaser be better satisfied. It is said that every paper issued from a country office has at least five readers, nearly all of whom would see your ad and many of them buy of you if your prices are right. The merchant and the home newspaper can break up the mail order habit if both pull together. Let us try it for the next quarter and then observe the result.

Took It Literally.

It is told of the late Chauncey Shafer, who bears the same relation to New York's "anecdotage" that Sydney Smith does to London's, that he employed in his law office a stunted youth of very tractable temperament.

One day Mr. Shafer returned from lunch in a lively mood and, by token of the madeira he had consumed, summoned Billy into his private office.

"Boy," he said carelessly, "go over to the special term and see what in —— they're doing up there."

The late Judge Brady was presiding over the trial of an action involving many interesting questions of substantive law; hence the courtroom was empty save for the litigants, their counsel and the necessary witnesses. Judge Brady's kindliness toward women and children was proverbial, and when Billy stood against the railing of the inclosure, his face barely reaching the balustrade, the judge noticed him immediately. He interrupted the arguments of counsel and turned to Billy.

"Well, my lad," he said in suave, judicial accents, "what can I do for you?"

"I'm from Mr. Shafer's office," Billy replied, "and he wants to know what in —— you're up to over here."—Success Magazine.

From Out the Grave.

In the little village of Tewin, Hertfordshire, England, there are five large trees growing out of a single grave, and thereby hangs a curious story. On the slab that marks the grave was carved the inscription:

"Here lyeth inter'd the body of the Right Honorable Lady Anne Grimestone, wife of Sir Samuel Grimestone, Bart., of Gohambury, in Hertfordshire, daughter of the late Right Honorable the Earl of Thanet, who departed this life Nov. 22, 1713, in the sixtieth year of her age."

The village story says that Lady Grimestone, persisting in a lifelong denial of the existence of a God, on her deathbed declared in answer to the exhortations of her friends that if in the other world she found that there was indeed a God five trees would grow out of her grave. The woman died and was buried. Shortly after the interment the five little shoots began to appear, growing constantly until they split the masonry and wrecked the railing about the tomb.—New York Tribune.

Animal Peculiarities.

A herd of wild Asian buffaloes will charge any foe, even a tiger, to save the life of one of their number that has been wounded. Elephants, baboons and other animals will do the same thing in a wild state.

On the other hand, monkeys have been known to fall upon one of their number that is ill and drown him, possibly as an act of mercy. Similarly wolves destroy one of the pack that becomes helpless.

If an otter is trapped, his brother otters will run around him all night, showing the utmost concern.

A writer in the London Spectator states that he has seen sparrows in groups discussing and lamenting when one of their number had fallen into a trap. Next day, when a robin was caught, the sparrows paid no attention. He adds that he had seen a big pig try to help a smaller one through a hole in the fence paling by pulling at its head.

Chinese Music.

The Chinese have eight instruments for making their ritual music—the bell, the flute, the drum, the sonorous stone, the fife, the plume, the shield and the ax. The last three make no music, but are used as decoration or emblem in the musical ceremonies and are enumerated as musical instruments. In every ceremony there are always two instruments of each kind, sometimes as many as four or six, never an odd number, in order to emphasize the duality of the Chinese people. For instance, one drum announces the beginning of the music, and its mate strikes the last note; one bell calls, and its counterpart answers.

Why He Felt Happy.

"Vernon told me this morning," related the lady with the cold blue eye, "that he passed the tree where two years ago he carved your initials and his own and encircled them with a heart. He says he felt so glad he almost danced for joy!"

"Ah," said the tall brunette anxiously, "then he must still love me, after all! Did he tell you why he felt so happy?"

"Yes, dear. He said some men were cutting the tree down!"

A la China.

Mamma—Come now, son, and take your medicine like a good little boy. You know in China all the children take medicine when well to keep them from being sick.

Little Boy—And do they whip the children in China when they are good to keep them from being naughty?—St. Louis Republic.

His Strong Point.

Managing Director—Well, and what are your qualifications for the post of night watchman? Applicant—Well, sir, for one thing, the least noise wakes me up.—Illustrated Bits.

She Wanted a Book.

A fashionably dressed young woman came hurrying into a bookstore recently and approached a salesman with the statement: "I want to get a book—it's a red book—not very thick! No, I don't know the name of it or what it is about, because I haven't read it. It has a picture in the middle of the cover—at least I think it is a picture—it is something round, done in gilt. It may be the name.

"I wish you would hurry and hunt up the book, because I am taking a train to New York and I want it to read on the trip. I saw some one reading it on the train the other day and laughing over it, and that's why I want it.

"Of course I am not expected to know what it is, but I should think any one who knew books and was handling them all the time ought to know!

"No, I don't think it was either of those books—it was thicker than that one and more on the cerise shade than that one.

"Well, I can't wait any longer for you to hunt it up."

As the young woman passed out of the shop she turned to her companion and remarked audibly: "Strange how stupid some of these clerks are! Well, I wasn't going to really get it anyway. I just wanted to find out what it was!"—Youth's Companion.

Cakes and Sausages in Germany.

"Germany is the land of variety in sausages and cakes," said William George Bruce. "When I made my visit to that country recently I took occasion to eat at restaurants in practically every city I came to. I am not stretching it a bit when I say that in one restaurant in Dresden there were 200 varieties of sausages on the bill of fare.

"The same holds good of cakes. You enter a restaurant or a bakery in which coffee is served. The obliging waiter will set before you a specially designed cake holder on which the several varieties are placed in convenient tiers, so that you pick out any kind you want without disarranging the whole.

"There is another feature of restaurant customs in Germany that struck me as out of the ordinary. While perhaps a dozen cakes are set before you to choose from, you only pay for the exact number you eat. When you are done with your luncheon the waiter will count up what is remaining and charge you for the difference."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Incidental Music.

One afternoon a couple from an adjoining town presented themselves to a Boston divine and asked to be married just as he was about to enter the pulpit to conduct an afternoon service. The minister replied that he regretted that he could not at that moment comply with their wish, but that immediately upon the conclusion of the service he would take pleasure in performing the ceremony. The lovers, after demurring, seated themselves in the rear of the church. When the minister had finished the service he made the following announcement: "The parties who are to be joined in matrimony will present themselves at the chancel immediately after the singing of hymn 415, 'Mistaken Souls That Dream of Heaven!'"

A Rhyming Will.

Perhaps the most peculiar will ever written was probated in England at doctors' commons, July 17, 1789. It ran as follows:

> I give and bequeath,
> When I am laid underneath,
> To my two loving sisters, most dear,
> The whole of my store,
> Were it twice as much more,
> Which God's goodness has granted me here.
>
> And that none may prevent
> This my will and intent,
> Or occasion the least of law racket,
> With a solemn appeal
> I confirm, sign and seal
> This the true act and deed of Will Jacket.

—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Wonderful Creature.

The polyp is the most remarkable creature on earth. If cut transversely or longitudinally into several parts, each will become a perfect animal. Trembly turned them inside out and they ate and enjoyed themselves as much as ever. He slit two longitudinally, placed the halves together and united them into two animals. He divided two transversely and created one with two heads. He pushed one down the throat of another, a third down the throat of the second, and thus formed a creature with three heads.

Paternal Duties.

Modern life with its haste and hustle leaves too little time for the joys of fatherhood. One father comes home late from business, tired and peevish, and cannot devote much time to his children, even if he would. Another has had enough of the cares and worries of the day and seeks dissipation outside the home. Yet fathers can give their children something better than money; they can give themselves.—Deutsche Monatschrift.

A Little Mixed.

Sportsman—I wonder what's become of Mike? I told him to meet me here. Driver—Ach, 'tis no use tellin' him anything! Shure, sorr, 'ut just goes in at wan ear and out at the other, like wather off a duck's back!—London Tit-Bits.

Cruel.

"Thought you said you were a mind reader?"

"So I am," replied the professor.

"Well, why do you hesitate? Why don't you read my mind?"

"I'm searching for it!"

Which Did He Mean?

Slysoke (introducing friend to his private closet) — Now, mind, not a breath of this before my wife!—Puck.

Poor Holland.

Little Ella—I'm never going to Holland when I grow up.

Governess—Why not?

School Notes.

Alla Olsen entered the eighth grade Monday and Edwin and Andy Dahl began their work in the high school Tuesday.

++ o ++

Probably the most valuable book in the school room is the dictionary, especially one handy in size. The pupil who has not acquired the habit of turning to the dictionary for the spelling and pronunciation of words and for their meanings, is handicapped at every turn, and the longer into school and life he goes the more he will wish he had acquired that habit. He should be given the chance to use the dictionary as early as possible and for this reason handy dictionaries have been provided for the second intermediate room as well as for the grammar and high school room.

++ o ++

The school is indebted to Congressman Steenerson for an atlas of the Philippine Islands, well bound, with detail maps of Manila harbor and of the provinces; a dictionary of altitudes showing the hight above sea level of every railroad station in the United States; and the geography and geology of Alaska, containing pictures of cold snow-covered mountains, of beautiful fjords, and of rageing mountain torrents.

++ o ++

From the Dictionary of Altitudes the following interesting figures are gleaned: St. Hilaire is 1,087 feet above the sea; Red Lake Falls, 1,012 feet; Crookston, 864 feet; Grand Forks, 837 feet; the highest railroad station in the state is Woodstock, on the C., St. P., M. & O. railway with an altitude of 1,828 feet; the highest point in the state given is 2,400 feet; Mt. McKinley in Alaska, the highest mountain in North America, is 20,464 feet.

The pupils and teachers of the two upper and primary rooms bade farewell to books and lessons for a few hours last Friday afternoon and went to the woods together. They left the town by way of the south bridge—the boys forming an advance guard and increasing the distance between the guard and regular troops in direct proportion to the number of minutes they tramped. The rest of the band kept well together till, after crossing the river, they came to a steep gravelly bank. The children clustered at the base and a good view was taken and named "September Sunshine." Then order was thrown to the wind with the travelling seeds of milkweed, thistle and dandelion. Lazy burs were discovered "stealing rides" on stockings, dresses and even on the bright hair of one little maid. At the riverside on the homeward journey a picture of the troops and the guard was taken and catalogued "True Children of Nature."

Mr. Bergh's pupils had a private lesson on formation of rocks in the mill yard, then all trudged homeward with their treasures of leaves, seed and shells. Good returns in all the rooms prove that the outing was worth while. The little people are dramatizing the "Anxious Leaf," and their interest and sympathy in the story seems unlimited.

A HAPPY LITTLE FAMILY.

Julia Fellman, 4th Grade—Once there were some little birds that lived in the top of a high tree. There was a father bird, a mother bird and four young ones. They had a large nest, which the four little birds lived in. They were too young to fly. Every day the father bird and mother bird used to go and hunt food for their babies. One nice day, when the sun was shining brightly, the father bird said to the mother bird, "Let us teach our babies to fly." So they all go out of their nest and tried to fly. Sometimes they would forget to flap their wings and they would fall to the ground. At last they were tired of flying so they all went into their nest again. Next day when the father and mother bird went to hunt some food, one of the little birds said, "I want to fly away. I don't like to stay in this nest any more." The other little birds told him to stay with them, but he flew away. He flew and flew till at last he came to a house. A little boy saw him. He took the little bird and clipped his wings off so he couldn't fly any more. They put him in the garden and there he stayed all summer. When winter came they put him in a box and there he slept all winter. When spring came they let him out. His wings had grown as long as they were before. He jumped out of the house and began to fly. He flew until he came to his dear old nest again, where he found his brothers and sisters who were very glad to see him. He told them all about his adventures.

Men's Clothes.

It is a most popular assumption that women care more about clothes than men do. Fashion has given women a much greater latitude in the matter of dress, but men are often as particular as women in this matter. Men and women of particular tastes agree that golden grain belt beer is a beneficial tonic and unsurpassed as a food tonic. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

State Seed Grain Contest.

All who have entered or desire to enter the seed grain contest should send samples of grain (twelve heads or more selected anywhere on the farm where contestant lives) to the County Superintendent of Schools at Red Lake Falls, before November 1, 1907. These samples will be forwarded to the School of Agriculture to compete in state contest, and if enough samples are received a county contest will be held.

Life Ebbed Away.

Louis Elvin Roy was born in Ranson county, North Dakota, on May 21, 1884, and died in Red Lake county on the 29th of September; aged 23 years, 4 months and 5 days.

He was the oldest of seven children of James and Julia Roy. The brothers, Theadore, Edwin, Ralph and Paul, and the sisters Elnor and Ruth, and the parents still survive him.

He taught three terms of school and was beginning his fourth when taken ill with typhoid fever. About two years ago he joined the Epworth League of the Methodist church as an active member, and later was elected its president, which office he held at the time of his death.

Louis was a very promising young man and had many friends who will greatly miss him. His sunny disposition and kind ways won the friendship and good will of all who knew him. He will be missed not only in the home, but in the Epworth League, the Sunday school, and the entire community.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. W. Gilman at the Methodist church on Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock. The subject of the discourse was "A true conception of life and death," and the text from Phil. 1:21 "For me to live is Christ, to die is gain." After the services the remains were laid to rest in the east cemetery. The bereaved family has the heartfelt sympathy of all who know them.

"Oh, how sweet it will be
In that beautiful land
So free from all sorrow and pain,
With songs on our lips
And with harps in our hand,
To meet one another again."

—C. W. G.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. James Roy and family wish to thank the many kind friends who assisted during the sickness and at the burial of their beloved dead.

Mr. Sather, who comes highly recommended by leading educators and church authorities, will be assisted by an able solo singer.

To the Legal Voters of the County of Red Lake, and State of Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given, that a petition is on file in my office, signed by legal voters of said county to the number of two thousand three hundred forty-two, praying that the county seat of said county of Red Lake be changed to the City of Thief River Falls, in said county, and that a special meeting of the county board will be held at the court house in the City of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county, Minnesota, on the 19th day of October, A. D. 1907, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to consider said petition, at which time and place any legal voter of said county may appear, in person, or by counsel, and be heard.

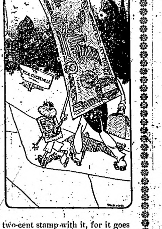
Mr. William Dollar, Good Citizen.

In a certain western town lives a gentleman whose name is William Dollar. They call him Dollar Bill when they get funny. But Mr. Dollar is a dignified, enterprising, good citizen.

Not every Dollar Bill is a good citizen. Many of them are prone to ignore the claims of their own community and run away to a big city to be spent. Many millions of Dollar Bills have left the smaller towns for the overgrown cities this present year of our Lord.

How many Dollar Bills have gone out of THIS TOWN—left home and gone to some big city, never to return? Every time a Dollar Bill leaves town it takes a two-cent stamp with it, for it goes to a Mail Order Store. That helps the postmaster a little, but it doesn't help the local merchant. It means just so much less trade for him.



Which means just so much less cash circulating in this community.

Which means just so much more social and business stagnation.

Which means the stunting of the town's growth just to that extent.

If you could figure up the Dollar Bills that leave town in this secret manner, like taking French leave—which you can't—you would know just how much the town is stunted by indulgence in this mail order stunt.

If these Dollar Bills were really good and enterprising citizens they would stay at home and circulate around, helping things along.

How many of YOUR Dollar Bills take the midnight express out of town on the Envelope Route?

The kidneys have a great work to do in keeping the blood pure. When they get out of order it causes backache, headaches, dizziness, languor and distressing urinary troubles. Keep the kidneys well and all these sufferings will be saved you. Mrs. S. A. Moore, proprietor of a restaurant at Waterville, Mo., says: "Before using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered everything from kidney troubles for a year and a half. I had pain in the back and head, and almost continuous in the loins and felt weary all the time. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills brought great relief, and I kept on taking them until in a short time I was cured. I think Doan's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

His Use for a Fork.

A Denver man had a friend from a Kansas ranch in the city Saturday on a business deal, and at noon they went to a downtown restaurant and had lunch together. The Kansas ranchman ate his entire meal with his knife. When he was nearing the end he discovered something. He discovered that he had no fork.

"Say," he said to the Denver man, "that waiter didn't give me a fork."

"Well, you don't need one," replied the Denver man seriously.

"The deuce I don't," came from the Kansan. "What am I going to stir my coffee with?"

Itching, Bleeding Sores Covered Body—Nothing Helped Her—Cuticura Cures Her in Five Days.

"After my granddaughter of about seven years had been cured of the measles, she was attacked about a fortnight later by a furious itching and painful eruption all over her body, especially the upper part of it, forming watery and bleeding sores, especially under the arms, of considerable size. She suffered a great deal and for three weeks we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. We tried the Cuticura Remedies and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable improvement, and after using only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been entirely cured, and has been well for a long time. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. CUT OUT THE WORD LUCK.

Give Expert Sportsman Credit for Rich Hauls.

Speaking of fishing, "fishermen's luck," "lucky fishermen," etc., says the Miami (Fla.) Record, what does it all mean, anyhow?

To say a man is a lucky fisherman is merely to admit his superiority as a fisherman over other fishermen. The fish are in the water; we all have the same chance to get them, yet some "lucky fishermen" always come home with their fish boxes full and the other fellow gets nothing. In the parlance of the fisherman, the word "luck" really means "knowledge."

The "lucky fisherman" you will find, knows the rock holes where the grouper lurks; he knows the channels in and about the patches and passes where the amberjacks and barracuda live; he knows how to bait his hooks for different fish as occasion may require; he knows the style of hook to use for every kind of fish; he is a judge of what style of fishing to do under certain conditions of wind and weather, and, above all, he is untiring in his efforts to use all of his knowledge when he is out for fish.

Last year when Gen. Shattue broke the world's record for catching a large number of tarpon in a few hours, other fishermen said he is "so lucky."

It is surely a peculiar coincidence how "luck" still sticks to the general: He just can not shake it off; it sticks to him like paper on the wall. All this season the Buckeye, the general's natty little yacht, has always returned from her day's pleasure fishing trips with her fish box full; on days, too, when others were wondering why the fish would not strike. The general is fond of outdoor exercise, and of late has been taking a couple of hours' run up the bay and back and, incidentally, catching a tarpon or two on each trip. Just because he is "lucky" and needs the exercise, and about the easiest way for some people to get regular exercise is to catch a tarpon every day. To do this one must be "lucky."

HE DEMONSTRATED.

Baggageman Showed What Would Happen to Gripsack.

The baggage handlers on the railroads are justly called "baggage smashers." In Washington one day a distinguished French visitor to this country pointed out to one of these men a rather frail gripsack.

"Is that strong enough," he asked, "to go in the baggage car?"

"I'll see," said the man. He lifted the grip high above his head and threw it on the platform with all his might.

"That," he said, "is what she'll get in Philadelphia."

He took it up again and banged it against the side of a car four or five times.

"That is what she'll get in Chicago," he went on.

He tossed it high in the air, and on its descent jumped on it. This broke the lock open, so that the contents were scattered over the platform.

"And that's what she'll get in Sioux City," he concluded.

"You'd better take her in the Pullman with you, boss," he added, graciously, "if you're going further than Sioux City."

Costly Walls of Panama.

When the Spaniards built the city of Panama to be the great port of their Pacific commerce they put around it walls which they expected to save them from raiders of all sorts. Although these walls were built by natives forced to work almost for nothing, they cost, says Mr. Forbes-Lindsay, not less than $11,000,000.

The king of Spain, the story goes, looked wearily and long one day out of the westerly windows of his palace. One of his ministers inquired the reason for his apparent anxiety.

"I am looking," said the king, "for those costly walls of Panama. They ought to be visible even at this distance."

The Motto's Inspirations.

The proprietor of a large business house bought a number of signs reading "Do It Now" and had them hung around the office, hoping to inspire his people with promptness and energy in their work. In his private office one day soon afterward a friend asked him how the scheme affected the staff.

"Well, not just the way I thought it would," answered the proprietor. "The cashier skipped with $15,000, the head bookkeeper eloped with the private secretary, three clerks asked for an increase in salary and the office boy ran away to become a highwayman."

The Toughest Wood.

What is believed to be the toughest wood in the world has been found recently in Southwestern Australia. Until these late tests were made the yate tree was considered of no great value, but since it has been discovered that the wood is about as strong as cast iron, some of it even equaling wrought iron in strength, the price promises to soar.

Raid on Door Knockers.

An extraordinary raid has been made upon 130 houses at Sands End, Fulham.

Not a knocker is left upon the door of any of these premises. The tenants wondered why the milkman and the postman did not knock, as usual, and then discovered that in the early hours the knockers hd been ripped off.

HOME-MADE REMEDY

INEXPENSIVE AND EASILY PREPARED BY ANYONE.

Is Said to Promptly Relieve Backache and Overcome Kidney Trouble and Bladder Weakness Though Harmless and Pleasant to Take.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known authority, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

Just as He Was.

A Richmond minister not long ago was asked to perform a marriage ceremony by a young negro couple. As he had employed the groom for a year or two, he consented, knowing what prestige would come to the couple by reason of having been married by a white minister. At the appointed time, says Harper's Weekly, the happy pair arrived, and the ceremony proceeded.

"Do you take this man for better or for worse?" the minister asked.

For all her shyness, the bride spoke up bravely.

"No, sah; ah don't," she said. "Ah'll take him jest like he is. If he wus ter get any better, I's afraid he'd die; an' if he was ter get any wuss, ah'd kill him myself!"

Pure Food.

The pure food law does not prohibit the sale of Cream of Tartar Baking Powders because Cream of Tartar is as pure as Alum—but it is a well known fact that a baking powder in which Alum is used instead of Cream of Tartar is less injurious. Dr. Herman Reinbold, the expert German chemist, in a recent official report concerning Baking Powders, declares that a pure Alum baking powder is better and less injurious than the so-called Cream of Tartar powders. He says that if the quantity of alum contained in a sufficient quantity of baking powder for a batch of bread or cakes for an ordinary family, be concentrated to one mouthful of food, and taken into the stomach of any one person, no matter how delicate, it could do no harm.

REVIVAL OF PIG STICKING.

"Pine Toppers" in Training for Sport at a North Carolina Fair.

A new industry has been brought into this section, one that promises to produce a very lively degree of interest and which may succeed in revolutionizing a time honored sport that is yet dear to those who frequent the fair grounds when the open season is on. In fact, the ancient sport of pig sticking may be revived if J. F. Jordan has his way about it and is successful in breeding a type of boars that are indigenous to the soil near Manchester, where he has a game preserve well stocked with different varieties of winged and four-footed things at which to shoot or spear.

These quadrupeds of the genus porcinus are locally known as "pine toppers," but even Mr. Jordan's acquaintance with verbiage because he was formerly sheriff of this county does not enable him to tell how these frisky, long tusked boars have acquired their name. The suggestion was ma yesterday, however, by Garland Daniel, secretary of the Central Carolina Fair association, that the name is based on the fact that these animals can outop and outrun any other specimens of their kind on the footstool, and are so difficult of capture that not even the fleetest footed negro can catch one, though given a big start by the boar.

Mr. Jordan has two of these racers in training. Each one is to be let loose on the fair grounds on a certain day, and the negro that captures his particular pig will be allowed to take it home for family consideration and indigestion. One of these racers has a record of jumping twenty-seven feet on the level, and it is said to be Mr. Jordan's hope if not his full intention so to train this speedy and active runner and broad jumper that its record shall be brought to thirty-five feet. Anyway, the spectacle of a hundred or more black chasers after a pig that has been greased by the hand of nature promises to be one of those sights at the fair that are alone worth the price of admission.

THREE-STORY BEDS.

Designed for Use in Camps, Apartments and Steamers.

Two-story beds, that is to say bedsteads containing two beds placed one above the other, have been in use for some few years, but something entirely new in this line is the three-story bed, containing three beds, one above the other, which was first placed on the market the present season.

These bedsteads, which are made entirely of iron, are so constructed that they can be knocked down to occupy comparatively small space for convenience in handling in shipment and transportation, the three-story bed separating into five parts, the head and foot sections and the three beds, each bed section having a wire mattress permanently attached to the side and end pieces.

At the ends of each mattress frame are pins that fit into slots placed at suitable heights up the head and foot pieces. To set up a two or three-story bed you simply stand up the head and foot pieces and drop the pins on the mattress frames into the slots and there is the bedstead with its wire springs in each tier ready to receive the mattress.

Bedsteads of this sort are intended for camps, apartments, steamers or wherever the floor space is limited. A two-tier bedstead with wire springs complete, but without mattresses, cost $24, and a three-tier bedstead $35.

"Yes, but since he has been to New York he insists upon being called 'the learned attorney.'"

European Dictation in India.

Education in India is advancing. For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1907, the expenditure for schools in Burma was $666,700, against $400,000 in 1902. A European high school has been established at Maymyo, supported by the government. In Bengal there were in 1906 43,996 schools, attended by 1,232,278 pupils, the government expenditure being $3,675,116. There was an increase of 782 schools over the previous year.

PROLIFIC GARDEN

ENGLISHMAN'S FIRST AND SUCCESSFUL ATTEMPTS IN MANITOBA—SOIL PRODUCES STRIKING RESULTS.

The Winnipeg (Canada) Free Press of a few days since contains account of the success that followed the efforts of William Knowles, an Englishman who located near Winnipeg, Manitoba. This is but one of many letters giving experiences of settlers, and should be encouraging to those who are looking about for a new home in which they may better their conditions. The following is a copy of the article referred to:

William Knowles, who cultivates some twelve acres of land just below Middlechurch ferry on east side of the Red River has probably as fine a display of horticultural products as any in Manitoba. The whole of his holding is in a high state of cultivation and literally crowded with splendid vegetable specimens, which have fortunately escaped damage by hail, although heavy storms have more than once occurred within a few miles. The potatoes are a wonderful crop, and he expects to raise 1,500 bushels from his patch of 4½ acres. A half dozen of tubers selected yesterday average more than a pound each. Adjoining the potatoes may be seen a marvelous collection of tomatoes. There are 600 plants, all growing under an enormous weight of fruit. One single stock picked yesterday contained eighteen tomatoes and weighed four pounds. This extraordinary example of marvelous growth, together with some of the potatoes were sent to the Free Press office.

The proprietor was the first in town with several specimens, including green corn. The season has been favorable for onions, and one square patch of nearly an acre is looking remarkably healthy. In addition there are good crops of cabbages, cauliflower, turnips, parsnips, carrots, pumpkins, marrows, cucumbers, celery, peas, lettuce, rhubarb, etc. The floral department has not been neglected and a charming display of all the well known blooms were shown, including a specially choice lot of asters.

Mr. Knowles, who gained most of his gardening experience in England, is loud in his praise of Manitoba soil for vegetable raising, and is gratified with the result of his first attempt at extensive horticulture.

It's high finance if you win, but it's highway robbery if the other fellow wins.

Women Avoid Operations

MISS ROSE MOORE

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N.Y. She writes:-

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:-"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble, and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

DEADLY BOMBS IN THEIR MAIL

GOVERNOR OF COLORADO AND PROMINENT DENVERITES INTENDED VICTIMS.

SAVED BY TIMELY WARNING

POLICE ARREST MAN ON SUSPICION AND WREST CONFESSION FROM HIM.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 10. — Gov. Henry A. Buchtel, David H. Moffat, president of the First National Bank of Denver, and Charles B. Kountze, president of the Colorado National bank, received through the mails yesterday infernal machines containing sufficient dynamite to have caused great destruction of lives and property, had they been exploded. Fortunately, warning had been given to the recipients of the machines before they were received by Chief of Police Michael Delaney, who has wrested a confession from Kemp Bigelow, by whom they were mailed.

Others on th eList.

Bigelow confessed also that he had sent infernal machines to Lawrence C. Phipps and Edward Chase, but these were not delivered yesterday. The machines received by Moffat and Kountze were turned over to the police department. The one sent to Gov. Buchtel was received by the governor's private secretary, Alfred G. Montgomery, who removed the wrapper, disclosing a box with a sliding cover. His suspicions were aroused and he reported the matter to Gov. Buchtel, who then informed him that he had been warned by the chief of police to be on the lookout for an infernal machine.

Open Governor's Box.

Adjt. Gen. Kelley and officers of the police department were called in and the box was carefully opened by them in such a manner as to avoid exploding its contents. It was found to contain two sticks of dynamite. Bigelow gave no satisfactory explanation of his motive for sending the machines, and seemed to have no other purpose than to cause a sensation.

On Sunday night Bigelow notified the police department that he had overheard two men talking about a plot to kill Edward Chase, Gov. Buchtel and other prominent citizens, and that Chase's residence was to be blown up that night.

Confession Saves Lives.

A search in the vicinity of the Chase residence resulted in the discovery of a package containing thirty-one sticks of dynamite. Bigelow's story was regarded with suspicion and he was placed under arrest Monday night. Yesterday he confessed that he had put the dynamite near Mr. Chase's house where it was found, and that he had sent several infernal machines by mail. Had this confession not been obtained in time to give warning to those to whom the machines had been sent, those who opened the boxes containing the dynamite would undoubtedly have been killed.

CATCH COPE OF ORTH THIEF.

Remarkable Confession the Cause of Great Sensation in Paris.

Paris, Oct. 10. — A great sensation has been caused by the remarkable confession of Antoine Thomas of Clermont-Ferrand, who was arrested, with his mother and his brother, charged with comlicity in the heft of the famous cope of Orth, which belonged to the state and was valued at $120,000, from the Church of Ambazac, near Limoges.

Thomas, who gave himself up to clear his mother and brother, declares that after the passage of the church and state separation law and the taking of the church inventories began, antiquaries of Paris, some of them millionaires, hired him and others to go through the country and bribe the parish priests to surrender the relics and substitute counterfeits which could later be turned over to the state. He says this plan of operations continued for months, but as many of the most valuable church treasures could not be counterfeited, he finally went boldly into the business of wholesale burglary. Thomas estimated the amount of his robberies at $400,000.

Thomas says he sold the cope of Orth to an antiquary of London for $10,000. He further declares that the antiquaries of Paris got rid of their "plunder" in England and America, and announces his intention to make a clean breast of it and expose his accomplices, who have abandoned him.

Another phase of the case is the discovery of letters at the Thomas residence indicating that they had been engaged in the performance of illegal operations upon society women.

TRUST NOT REALLY DISSOLVED

PROFITS AND DIVIDENDS OF TRUST MADE PUBLIC FOR FIRST TIME.

New York, Oct. 10. — From statements culled from ledgers and books found in the offices of the Standard Oil company Frank B. Kellogg, counsel for the United States government, succeeded in placing on yesterday's record of the federal proceedings against the oil combine the processes and stages through which the combine passed in its changes from the old Standard Oil trust to the present Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Proves Government Case.

Out of the maze of figures developed in a voluminous mass from the company's books and from testimony given by Clarence G. Fay, assistant auditor of the Standard, called as a witness yesterday, the government's counsel says he believes he has proved the federal allegation that the Standard is an illegal corporation and that by devious advices has maintained its entity and that it is under the same ownership as when it was formed.

Profits of Trust.

For the first time the profits and dividends of the Standard Oil trust, from its inception in 1882 to 1891, were made public yesterday. The profits of the Standard Oil trust, as stated by Mr. Fay, were as follows: 1882, $12,388,507; 1883, $11,231,790; 1884, $7,778,505; 1885, $8,382,935; 1886, $15,350,787; 1887, $14,026,590; 1888, $12,757,727; 1889 $14,845,201; 1890, $19,131,470; 1891, $16,331,886.

Dividends Paid.

The dividends declared by the Standard Oil trust from 1882 to 1891 were spread on the records as follows: 1882, $3,695,253; 1883, $4,258,086; 1884, $4,288,842; 1885, $7,479,223; 1886, $7,226,452; 1887, $8,463,327; 1888, $10,236,277; 1889, $10,620,830; 1890, $11,200,000; 1891, $11,643,826.

Never Really Disclosed.

Mr. Kellogg says he is of the opinion that, notwithstanding that the government was unable to discover the transfer books and stock ledgers of the liquidating trustees, the evidence adduced yesterday shows that the so-called oil trust only affected to dissolve under the order of the Ohio courts in 1892 and that its direction is still held by those who had to do with the formation of the Standard Oil trust.

FAST TEAMS FIGHT TO A TIE.

First Game for the Baseball Championship Called in the Twelfth Inning.

Chicago, Oct. 10. — Detroit and Chicago, leaders of the American and National leagues, respectively, played twelve strenuous innings to a tie here yesterday in the first game of the series for the baseball championship of the world. The contest was replete with sensational situations, and when Umpire O'Day of the National league called the play off on account of darkness most of the 24,377 spectators sighed with relief and went home well satisfied with the outcome.

Overall and Donovan were the opposing pitchers, but the former was taken out when Chicago had tied the score in the ninth inning. Ruelbach finished the game and for three innings retired Detroit's heavy hitters without the semblance of a hit. The work of all the pitchers was first class, but Donavon had a shade on his rivals in that he struck out twelve of the opposing batsmen. His second base on balls was costly, but with good support he would have won his game.

The contest was watched by an immense crowd. Close to 24,500 persons crowded into the park.

The game was evenly contested. Both teams broke under fire, Chicago mixing two of its errors with two hits in the eighth inning, when Detroit scored all three of its runs, while the visitors returned the compliment in the next inning allowing Chicago to tie the score:

Score by innings:		R.	H.	E.

OFFICIALS FIGHT FOR BUTTER.

Minnesota and Other States Charge Roads Favor Chicago Creameries.

Chicago, Oct. 10. — Dairy commissioners from a number of states in the Mississippi valley are to ask the railroads to make a new rate on butter shipping to Chicago, as the present tariff is said to be driving creameries in those states out of business and giving the trade to the big centralizers in his city.

At the present time the railroads charge about four times as much for butter shipped to this city as they do for cream and the creameries in the country cannot compete with Chicago.

The dairy commissioners who are here are A. W. Moore, Wisconsin; W. A. Wright, Iowa; E. K. Slater, Minnesota, and L. A. Wheaton, South Dakota. They say the creameries in their respective states are being forced out of business by railroad discrimination.

SHOWS UP OIL TRUST TRICKS

METHOD BY WHICH TRUST EVADED ORDER OF OHIO COURTS IS SHOWN.

New York, Oct. 10. — The method through which the trustees of the Standard Oil trust liquidated the company in order to comply with the order of the Ohio courts was further unfolded yesterday when Wesley H. Tilford, treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was recalled to the witness stand in the federal suit against the so-called trust. Statements compiled from stock books of the various subsidiary companies during the trust liquidation were placed on the records and from these and from Mr. Tilford, the government's counsel, Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, says that the government's charge, that only a pseudo liquidation was effected and that the trust continued as an entity and under the same control as at the time of its inception in 1882 has been proved.

Brought Out by Kellogg.

Mr. Kellogg was able to develop that the liquidating trustees and their associates liquidated only enough trust certificates to give them a majority of the stocks of the twenty subsidiary companies, and that they voted these stocks as individuals and maintained a constant control over the integral companies. The dividends declared on the stocks of these companies were paid directly to those holders who had liquidated the trust certificates and to the trustees who held the stocks against the unliquidated certificates of the trust. Mr. Kellogg showed that the trustees and one or two associates were the only certificate holders who liquidated their shares in the old Standard Oil trust.

Cleared Up by Tilford.

Mr. Tilford testified that the cross-town pipe line under Central Park, whose ownership has caused considerable perplexity to the federal counsel when it did not appear on the books of the Standard Oil Company of New York after 1906, was still owned by the New York company.

Mr. Kellogg again tried to find out the reasons for the large loans, amounting to several millions, given to P. S. Trainor by the Southern Pipe Line company. Efforts to ascertain the nature of these loans at a previous hearing failed.

To Call W. G. Rockefeller.

That the Standard Company of New York was a lender of millions of its surplus was testified to yesterday by Mr. Tilford. It was developed that over $32,000,000 was loaned last year to "interests other than the Standard." What these interests were and the nature of the loans Mr. Tilford was unable to say. Mr. Kellogg said he would call William G. Rockefeller, treasurer of the company to throw light on these loans.

SHORTAGE OF CARS IS FEARED

NORTHWESTERN GRAIN MEN ARE MUCH WORRIED OVER SITUATION.

Minneapolis, Oct. 10. — Shortage of cars is worrying the Northwestern grain men, particularly the Minneapolis firms that handle large shipments of grain daily. Shipments have fallen off decidedly, and yesterday only 146 carloads of wheat were received in Minneapolis, as against 415 carloads on the same date last year.

While it is true 2,000,000 bushels more grain have been received since Sept. 1 than for the same period last year, the dealers are again worrying because of the sudden falling off of wheat which was shown by the reports for yesterday. Other grains are beating wheat into the city, and the movement of more important grain is thus checked.

Another shortage of cars similar to that of last fall is feared despite the fact that the railroads are in much better condition to handle the traffic.

One thing that will probably help the movement of grain this year is the fear which was instilled into the coal users of the Northwest by their experience of last season. They are now getting in their winter supplies, and the result is that many cars loaded with coal are already in the Northwest or on their way there. As soon as these cars are unloaded they can be utilized for shipping grain back to Minneapolis or farther east and thus relieve the situation somewhat.

NEW SANATORIUM READY.

State Hospital for Consumptives Soon to Be Turned Over to State.

The sewer systems and waterworks are completed and the entire plant will be turned over to the state board of control next week for acceptance.

MILLERS BOOST PRICE OF FLOUR

HIGH PRICE OF WHEAT CAUSES ADVANCE OF THIRTY-FIVE CENTS.

INCREASE WAS INEVITABLE

WHEAT IS SHORT ALL OVER THE WORLD—FARMERS HOLDING BACK GRAIN.

Minneapolis, Oct. 10.—Flour went up 35 cents a barrel yesterday, and the cost of living is expected to be raised in proportion, as the retailers are almost certain to add a corresponding increase to their scale of prices. Flour was offered yesterday for $5.75 to $5.85 a barrel, the highest price recorded in several years, and an increase from the price Tuesday, which was $5.40 to $5.50.

The steady increase in wheat has caused the increase in the cost of flour, millers maintaining that the product is worth what they ask, and that buyers must pay its actual value. They have been holding off from a decided increase ever since the wheat started upward in the hopes that the skyward movement would be checked, but have at last decided that it is time they got their money's worth.

Record Price for Wheat.

Cash wheat was up again yesterday and one carload of No. 1 hard sold for $1.18 a bushels. Others paid all the way from $1.15 to $1.17 for good milling wheat. With such prices prevailing the millers decided that they "could not make flour and break even," so they joined the boosting game. The housewife is expected to fel the result when she purchases flour in a day or two.

Wheat is short all over the world this year, and the Northwest will raise only an ordinary crop. With conditions as they are the present high prices are not considered inflated, and the grain men look upon the present market as a legitimate one. The farmers are said to be holding back their grain, and speculators are also said to be getting into the game and helping the prices up.

MAN CUT INTO BITS.

Run Over by Switch Engine in Railroad Yards.

St. Paul, Oct. 10. — An aged man, supposed to be James Norton, was run down by a St. Paul road engine at 10 o'clock last night and cut to pieces. The body was dragged under the trucks of the engine for some distance, and John Lindon, the driver of the morgue wagon had to put the dismembered body into the morgue box piece by piece.

Al Marsh, the engineer of the engine, says that he was backing west through the yards and that he did not see the man until his engine struck him.

CANADA AFTER U. S. GRAIN.

Steamers Not Able to Secure Shipments at Canadian Ports.

Superior, Wis., Oct. 10.—Canadian steamers are coming to the head of the lakes elevators for grain cargoes as the result of peculiar conditions at Port Arthur and Fort William. The Canadian crop is so backward that elevators at those terminals are shipping high grade grain back in the country to supply the demand of the mills.

Accused of Theft.

Spring Valley, Wis., Oct. 10.—Barney O'Meara, a farmer living near Olivet, lost one of his cattle from the pasture. Stock and sheep have been missing in that locality every year for the past three or four years. IRON MINE TAX UNCHANGED

EQUALIZATION BOARD AFTER HOT DEBATE AGREES WITH TAX COMMISSION.

St. Paul, Oct. 10.—The state board of equalization yesterday, after a heated discussion, decided to accept the valuation of the iron ore properties as fixed by the state tax commission. Motions were made to increase and to reduce the amount, but both were lost, and the valuation of about $191,000,000 will stand. This is an increase of about $120,000,000 over the valuation of the property last year.

The test came on a motion made by W. R. Hodges of Sleepy Eye to raise the assessment 10 per cent above the tax commission's figures, which was lost by a vote of 6 to 16. The affirmative votes were cast by Andrew French of Plainview, C. E. Vasally of Little Falls, W. R. Hodges of Sleepy Eye, T. J. Meighen of Preston, Jason Weatherhead of Ada and C. O'Brien of Brainerd. The other members, including Gov. Johnson, Attorney General E. T. Young and State Auditor S. G. Iverson, voted against the raise.

Henry Nolte of Duluth urged the reduction of the assessment to $150,000,000. The only other vote in favor of this motion was that of Theodore Welland of Shakopee, Mr. Meighen declining to vote on the motion.

When the motion to affirm the figures of the tax commission was put Mr. Nolte cast the only dissenting vote, the other twenty-one members voting for it.

He made a wild race with the flames that rapidly were swept on by the wind, and reached a reservoir in time to save the lives of all. No deaths have been reported.

SAID TO BE SIMPLE

EASILY MIXED RECIPE FOR KIDNEYS AND BLADDER.

Tells Readers How to Prepare This Home-Made Mixture to Cure the Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority, who writes in a New York daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

"For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief.

"I used one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, and two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. Walter W. Paglusch, 207 N. Robey St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8 and 16, 1906."

All Right in their Way.

A story comes from England about a certain colonel in the royal horse artillery who had the reputation of lacking imagination, with a care for nothing but his beloved guns. He happened to be visiting Egypt with some friends, and naturally went to see the pyramids.

"So these are the pyramids, eh?" he said, as he gazed stolidly at them.

"Yes," said an enthusiastic friend; "are they not wonderful—stupendous?"

"Oh, yes," grunted the colonel: "I suppose they're all right in their way."

"I should say they are," returned his friend. "Think of their standing for all these thousands of years!"

"Humph!" said the unimpressed soldier; "give me a couple of batteries and I'll guarantee to knock them to pieces inside a week."

Curious Results When Coffee Drinking Is Abandoned.

It is almost as hard for an old coffee toper to quit the use of coffee as it is for a whisky or tobacco fiend to break off, except that the coffee user can quit coffee and take up Postum without any feeling of a loss of the morning beverage, for when Postum is well boiled and served with cream, it is really better in point of flavor than most of the coffee served nowadays, and to the taste of the connoisseur it is like the flavor of fine, mild Java.

A great transformation takes place in the body within ten days or two weeks after coffee is left off and Postum used, for the reason that the poison to the nerves—caffeine—has been discontinued, and in its place is taken a liquid food that contains the most powerful elements of nourishment.

It is easy to make this test and prove these statements by changing from coffee to Postum. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Saturday, October 12, 1907

During the past six months over one hundred papers in Minnesota and North Dakota have been forced to discontinue publication through lack of support.

It was an auspicious and much to be remembered occasion, the celebration which took place at International Falls at the driving of the last spike on the M. & I. railroad.

An appeal—place an advertisement in the Spectator and thus encourage the publisher in his endeavor to build up the community by setting forth our advantages and encouraging others to locate in the garden spot of northern Minnesota.

The editor of the Bear River Journal is having a "bee" to clear land on his homestead, and is offering a year's subscription to his paper for a day's work. If he does not have every settler in his neighborhood on his list, it will be because there are some lazy cusses up that way.

The county board will meet next Saturday, the 19th, to take action on the county seat removal petition. Today the dreams of some may be pleasant, while tomorrow the awakening prove disastrous. Just which way the wind blows nobody knows, but it has always been found that "chickens come home to roost." No better place could be found for the "hub" of Red Lake county than at St. Hilaire, but our dreams of late have been somewhat disturbed and we will leave our readers to their own imaginations for a week.

Sage Greeley, the versatile editor of the Compass at Big Falls, wrote with his own blood the copy for the following item which appeared in the last issue of the Compess:

> "Be sure to read the attractive ads of our local merchants in this issue. We are real proud of the real bargains the real merchants are offering in our columns. No wonder the mail order houses get no patronage from Big Falls."

In looking over the paper we found but one display advertisement, and that of a city firm, stereotyped, with the local merchant's name at the bottom as agent. Then we remembered having read or heard that the Big Falls vicinity was infested by a class of mail order house patrons. Farther down in the column we saw an item to the effect that the Bigfork Compass was for sale. No writer has worked harder or more energeticly for the upbuilding and advancement of the north country, and especially of Big Falls and vicinity, than Bro. Greeley, and now this able writer and tireless worker is compelled to abandon his paper and the home of his first love through lack of support by his home people. After the land office notices are a thing of the past an editor would have to live on "mail order crackers" and water to exist in Big Falls, and a few towns much nearer home might be included in the "abandon" list and the same diet for the editor prescribed. The business men of Big Forks should go way back and be ashamed of themselves—to drive a man of Greeley's ability and unquestioned influence and standing from the editorial chair in their town by sheer lack of appreciation and support. Again, should any of our business men awaken from their slumbers and feel the same state of affairs to exist here as at Big Falls, then "dream not again" until you have placed an advertisement in the Spectator and thus encrage the maintainance of a local paper in St. Hilaire.

Thief River Press: Did you ever stop to think what the aggregate paid to creamery patrons in this vicinity, i. e., at St. Hilaire, Plummer, Lillo, Germantown, Viking, Sandridge and Thief River Falls, amounts to annually? Two conservative men, Daniel Shaw and Charles Gustafson, have set the figures at, in round numbers, $250,000, and at that two of the creameries were started only this spring and the others have not reached their full capacity by any means. The two gentlemen estimate that this sum of $250,000 is equivalent to the profit on one million bushels of wheat at the average price year in and year out, besides enriching instead of taking away from the soil on the farms. Shows up pretty well for the creamery, doesn't it?

Bascom and His Students.

John Bascom, once president of the University of Wisconsin, always had a keen insight into men, and for much of his life college students constituted mankind for him. Once when he was a class officer the names of two men were read by him as absent from morning prayers. One of them, a pietist, stopped at his desk and said:

"Professor, when the chapel bell was ringing I was engaged in prayer and did not hear it."

"You're not excused," responded John, with contempt in his eye and in his voice.

Then, calling back the other man, who was about at the door on his way out of the room, he said to him:

"What's your excuse?"

"I haven't any, sir."

"You're excused.'

He used to have debates in his classroom. At one of them a student, whom Bascom subsequently described as a "floriating fellow," in the heat of his eloquence said, "I wish that I had the ability and the time to exhaust this subject."

"You have the time," said Bascom.—Harper's Weekly.

Smart Boy Wins.

The visitor was examining the class of small boys. He held the chalk in midair.

"What number shall I draw on the board?" he asked of one boy.

The boy replied, "Thirty-two."

The visitor drew the number backward, which made twenty-three.

"Is that right?" asked the visitor.

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," answered the boy in a timid way.

"What number shall I take now?" he asked of another.

The boy answered, "Sixty-two," whereupon the visitor drew the number backward, as before—twenty-six.

"Is that right?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the boy.

A long way back a bright eyed boy held up a wavering hand.

"What number shall I draw for you?" asked the visitor.

The boy called out, "Forty-four!" Then, when the visitor had drawn it, he yelled out, "Now, if you are so blamed smart, twist that around!"—New York Globe.

A Financial Embarrassment.

A lady who had a kindly remembrance for all her domestic servants met an erstwhile washerwoman and stopped to ask her how she fared.

"Oh, mem, it's turrible finanshul disthress me an the childer's in!"

"Why, what is it? Are you out of employment?"

"No, mem. Work's in a fair state o' stiddiness and not a cint do I owe, but it's lashins o' trouble I've got!"

"Are you not paid promptly?"

"As promptly as the day cooms round."

"What is your financial distress, then?"

"Well, mem" (in a burst of horror), "what's killin' me is, I earn $6 the week an' pay $8 for me boord, an' God only knows how I do it!"—Short Stories.

So Many?

They went in to dinner together. He was very bashful, and she tried in vain to draw him out. Finally she began to talk books, and he became responsive. "And Hugo," she asked, "do you like his style?"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I find him intensely interesting. I've read a number of his books."

Then she asked, "Have you read 'Ninety-Three?'"

"No, I've—er—only read three. I didn't know he had written so many."—Lippincott's Magazine.

As Japanese See It.

It is said the Japanese think our grown women most alarmingly overgrown, very shocking in their costume and quite dreadful as regards their teeth and their feet—in a word, outrageous. They consider the kimono preferable to western habiliments because it so completely obliterates the lines of the figure. They teach girls to talk with their lips almost closed, concealing the teeth, and to walk with the feet parallel in tiny steps or even toeing in.—Kansas City Journal.

Toads' Hatching Places.

Every tiny toad lays a stupendous number of eggs. A scientist received 11,545 eggs from one toad, a necessary fertility, since the chances of an egg developing into a toad are less than one in a thousand. Within two weeks after the eggs are laid the young tadpoles begin to appear and feed first on their gelatinous envelope. Next the slimy deposits common to ponds and swamps are attacked. Steadily grow the young wrigglers until their bodies enlarge to the size of thumb nails by the end of June. The long tail now is absorbed and the legs develop. They begin to hop on the bank and disperse, never to return, save in the breeding season. It is at the spring of the year that the toads awake from their winter sleep below the rocks and scrub. They often have been literally frozen stiff, but they return to life as healthy as ever and on the first balmy night migrate toward the nearest breeding pond. Usually this is the old homestead where they were born, for the toad is a domestic animal and will travel a mile or more for the sake of returning to the place of its hatching.—Chicago Tribune.

"Trying on" Furniture.

When you go to buy a suit of furniture nowadays in one of our department stores you don't have to speculate as to how it will look in your room nor whether it will fit in or not. As soon as the salesman sees that a particular suit has met your fancy he calls for a porter or two and turns them loose in one of several rooms fitted up around the main showroom, setting them at work removing all the furniture in it. Then the suit that you seem to be hankering after is placed in appropriate positions in this room, and you can see at a glance just how the bedroom or parlor or dining room will look if you buy that particular suit.

There are a dozen of these smaller rooms around the main showroom, and as each one is decorated in a different manner it is easy to pick one out that approximates the scheme of your room at home. Like many modern ways of selling goods it is expensive in the beginning, but it pays in the end, for this plan of showing goods seldom fails of its intended effect.—New York Press.

A Widow Who Was Calm.

A lawyer was entertaining dinner guests recently with stories from his personal experiences.

"A woman came into my office one afternoon and said she wanted to see a lawyer on a rather important matter," he said. "She was very prim and self possessed.

"'What can I do for you?' I asked.

"'Well,' she said in an easy tone, 'my husband was hurt in the wreck the other day.'

"I noticed she was dressed in mourning, but from her indifferent tone I gathered that it had no connection with her husband's accident.

"'Was your husband badly injured?' I asked.

"'Yes,' she answered in the same quiet voice. 'He got his head cut off.'"—Kansas City Times.

The Talmud.

The Jewish Talmud has come down to us only through the heroic efforts of the Jews themselves and the intrepid service of John Reuchlin. Its reading was condemned by various edicts of emperors and kings; its circulation was prohibited by popes and theologians. Twelve thousand copies of this monumental work were burned at Cremona in 1569, and a similar fate befell 5,000 copies of the Koran by order of Cardinal Ximenes on the taking of Grenada by Ferdinand and Isabella.—Boston Post.

Conquered St. Peter.

A Boston clergyman tells how a witty Irishman stood before the gate of the other world, asking for admission, says Lippincott's Magazine. St. Peter refused him, however, telling him he was too great a sinner to enter there, and bade him go away. The man went a little distance from the gate and then crowed three times like a rooster. St. Peter at once threw open the gate and cried out: "Come in, Pat! We'll let bygones be bygones!"

Just why a publisher would speak favorably of such a "frost" is more than we can imagine and it would be conferring a favor upon the professor if some friend would confidentially inform him that a lemon was handed him when he purchased the "picture show," and the lectures and his singing the rankest possible.

Farmer's Bulletin No. 79, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after pointing out the great future of the sugar-beet industry in the United States, says: "In general it may be said that any soil which will produce a good crop of Indian corn, wheat, or potatoes will, under proper cultivation, produce a good crop of sugar beets." What possibilities has that rapidly growing money-producer for this county? Is onyone prepared to say, basing his say so on fair trial in the county? Had there been an experiment station on a small scale in the neighborhood—a county agricultural school, for instance—where careful experiments could be carried on we could have direct information of the highest class on that point as well as on a host of others.

Within the last few years it is said a disease has been spreading over America. The ailment is the commercial ill known as "Substitution," or the "Just as good" disease. When you ask for a case of golden grain belt beer to be brought to your home, insist upon having the genuine, as there is no other just as good. School Notes.

Neil Dahl enrolled in the high school Monday.

The stove in the first intermediate room took on a streak of spunkiness the first couple days of the week and the president of the board of education had to come over and talk soothingly to it. Since that it has been "just too good for anything." It hasn't smoked or anything, just everlastingly warmed the little tots right lovingly.

++ o ++

Two St. Hilaire papers were published in the Journal Junior this week. They were written by Edith Johnson, seventh grade, and Myrtle Eickhoff, eighth grade. This was our first attempt.

++ o ++

The school received this week thru Congressman Steenerson a large map of the United States. It is 7x5½ feet, and shows the townships and all surveys up to 1905. At the bottom it has enlarged maps of all our outlying possessions, including the Panama canal region. It also shows the Indian reservations and forest reserves, and all in all is one of the very finest maps put out. It shows even Hazel.

++ o ++

What will be the next exhibit brought in to be studied in the lower rooms? Leaves, flowers, caterpillars, mud turtle, frog, a wee little mouse, cats, dogs, toddling youngsters, a doll—I say, what next? Undoubtedly something will be forthcoming, and when it does appear it will be just as novel, interesting and profitable as the others. But can you name it?

++ o ++

The members of the Physical Geography class propose to take the readings on the thermometer five or six times daily, thereby getting a fairly accurate average temperature for the day. The daily record will be kept thruout the school year and it is expected some interesting results will appear. For instance, what do you think is the average daily temperature during our coldest month, January?

++ o ++

One's real test lies in how he uses the little things and opportunities about him. In the lower rooms the upper ten or twelve inches of the blackboards are never used in ordinary school work. The teachers and pupils have, however, turned that unused space to very good use. They have made it give enjoyment and pleasure by placing on there borders of pleasing designs neatly worked out in colors.

THE LITTLE MOUSE'S STORY

Lawrence Wilson, 3d Grade—We have a little mouse in the school house. It has sharp claws. The mouse likes cheese. The mouse stands on its hind legs and takes the cheese in his front claws and eats it. It is a baby mouse. It is in a glass. If you touch the glass it will get afraid of you. Most girls are afraid of mice. They jump when they see a mouse. Mice gnaw holes in wood. It has sharp teeth. The mice are sure to keep themselves clean.

Fred Gunstad, 3rd Grade:—"I have a nice gray coat," said the little mouse. "I like my gray coat. I do not like cats. Cats like me to eat. I would not like to be eaten by a cat. I have a very long, nice tail. I like to eat cheese. All mice like cheese. Would you not like to be a mouse and have lots of good cheese? I wish I could live in a house made only of cheese. When I live in a hole in the floor of a store I can have lots of cheese. When I go after cheese I must be very careful for the cat might see me. The store keeper does not like me either."

The Boomerang and Its Inventors.

The boomerang is rather a puzzle. One might think that the highest laws of mathematics had been laid under contribution in the perfecting of it. The convexity on one side, the flatness on the other and the sharp, knifelike edge on the inside of the convexity have the air of having been carefully thought out. Yet the people who invented this singular weapon cannot count higher than five and are destitute of all the arts and amenities of life. Theirs is perhaps the lowest plane of human life. Some people have assumed that the boomerang was the creation of an older and higher civilization, but for this there is no evidence. It must be the product of an age long empirical use of throwing weapons.—London Spectator.

Sandy's Criticism.

A young Scotchman went to a London school of music, where he learned to play the violoncello fairly well. On his return to his native village he gathered his friends together to hear his new instrument. When he had played one or two tunes, he looked up expectantly. After a slight pause his old grandfather spoke.

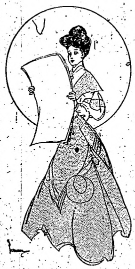
Do You Want to Make The Women Happy?



Shopping by Mail is vastly unsatisfactory to the Female.

There isn't a woman in Christendom—or in Islam—who doesn't prefer ten times over the trip through a store to the trip to the postoffice.

Why, Lord bless their hearts, the ladies love to shop! It's just as unsatisfying and artificial to shop by mail as to make love by mail—and that's the limit.

But, while the women love to walk through aisles of bargains, they love also to read about the bargains. When a newspaper comes to the house, which page does the woman peruse first? The page with the biggest shopping ads. Sure thing! Won't fail one time in ten. Test it and see.

In communities where the merchants don't advertise big enough to tempt the women, what happens? The Mail Order Catalogue comes along, full of attractive ads., with prices put down in black and white. The women read the catalogue; they are tempted by the bargains offered; they send their money by mail.

Thus they miss nine-tenths of the glory and joy of shopping. But what else can the poor ladies do?

Now, Mr. Merchant of Our Town, be good to the ladies. Give them some interesting reading matter. Print some of your bargains in your home paper. Put the prices there in black and white.

Isn't it really a pity to deprive the ladies of one of their supreme delights—shopping, seeing things, inspecting before taking?

BE GOOD TO THE LADIES AND YOU'LL BE PROSPEROUS.

TRIX'S SACRIFICE

By M. R. TOWLE

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

My name is Edna Brierly and I am a constant writer to many of the magazines of the day. I am an orphan, and my only relatives are the Brierlys. Brierly farm is truly my haven of refuge in summer, and kinder relatives never existed than dear Uncle Jack and Aunt Dora.

Uncle owns a magnificent farm in New England, where I had gone to rest up after a winter of hard work.

Trix, my cousin, had not changed. The same darling, impulsive lass, with a heart as warm as ever beat in female breast. Her cherry-red lips pressed a kiss on my cheek, one kiss, but it spoke more than thousands of such caresses from other women.

My head barely reached Trix's shoulder, and to look into her face I had to stand on tip-toe. Trix was so tall, and I always admired tall people—because I am such a pigmy myself, I suppose; I always felt so insignificant beside her commanding figure, and I verily believe I adored Trix Brierly—and she was worthy of my adoration; a soul as pure as a spotless maiden's could be, and she believed everyone to be as virtuous as herself.

A week went by and Trix and myself roamed the woods and fields to our heart's content. Already my wan face began to show the excellent treatment I received at Brierly farm, and my cheeks were rosy with plenty of exercise and fresh air.

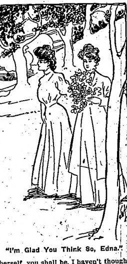
We were tramping the woods one day, the first of rosy June, and I said suddenly:

"Trix, you are the most beautiful girl I ever saw."

The pink in her cheeks deepened as she said:

"I'm glad you think so, Edna."

"You are, Trix," I continued meditatively. "And I am going to make you the heroine of my masterpiece; a modern Hebe, with a character like herself, you shall be. I haven't thought out the plot yet, but you shall be the central attraction."



"I'm Glad You Think So, Edna."

"Thank you, Edna," said Trix. "Who is the hero? or do you mold him out of your brain?"

"Um-m," I answered, absent in the rosy land of dreams.

"Trix, who was that man who sat in front of us in the church yesterday—the one with the dark, curling hair?"

I was looking directly at her, and the glow that suffused her face was unaccountable to me, then.

"Oh," said she, nervously, pulling a daisy to pieces. "That is Roland Danvers. Why?"

"Nothing, only he would make an admirable hero—just the style. Who is he?"

"A botanist, naturalist and everything learned. He is staying in Norwood because it's such a remarkable place to study botany in, he says, and he's found several fossils."

"Then you know him, Trix?"

"Slightly acquainted," carelessly. "He heard me sing at the Charity concert, and as he has a passion for music he drops in very often and we play and sing."

He had a charming voice—low, soft and sweet, with just a tinge of alluring sadness in its cadence.

One thing about the man, he was so enthusiastic about everything he undertook; he did nothing by halves and concentrated his whole heart and soul in the smallest things. He admired Trix's beauty in his ardent fashion, and it was his frank nature never to keep a thing a secret, and so Trix was taught to believe that he loved her. He admired her piquant ways, too, and finding her quick to catch an idea and very bright, he sought her company on his tramps after bugs and flowers.

Trix knew every place where the rarest flowers and ferns were to be found, and she was ever ready to accompany him on any expedition.

I pursued my rambles alone that summer, through the fields and woods, while my Trix kept the handsome young student company on his tramps, and though I said nothing, I saw how the girl changed from a merry, care-not tom-boy to an easy-mannered young lady, from her refined association with the student.

The time passed away until October came.

Mr. Danvers still lingered, and I was going soon, for my health was fully restored now, under Aunt Dora's matronly care, and the lost roses had found themselves again in my plump cheeks.

It was a beautiful autumn twilight, but very chilly; so chilly that a wood-fire had been lighted in the pleasant sitting room.

Mr. Danvers came in just at dusk, and he and Trix sat in the gloaming talking of his future. They had quite forgotten me, and Mr. Danvers was confiding all his hopes and ambitions to his sympathizing companion with his usual ardor.

By-and-by he casually mentioned the fact of his departing soon.

Trix caught her breath spasmodically and listened to what he was saying without comment.

"Yes, Beatrice," he said, quietly, all unconscious of her white face with its pained expression, "I shall return to the city to-morrow, carrying with me many happy memories of this pleasant summer spent with you in Norwood. You must write to me often, and perhaps I'll return next season. Won't that be fine?"

He paused, seeming to expect a reply, but none came. He bent over her bowed figure.

"What, Beatrice, crying? Crying because I go away to-morrow? Do not be so silly as that, dear, on the last evening we spend together. Come, dry your eyes and sing 'Auld Lang Syne' for me as you have never sung before. The last time, remember, so do not refuse. I must go soon, and I want to keep the memory of our last evening the greenest spot in my life scenes. Sing for me, Beatrice."

"I can't, I can't!" sobbed Trix, giving way to a flood of tears.

Somehow I felt a premonition of coming evil; I shivered and drew farther out of sight, and hid my face in my hands while Mr. Danvers bade her good-by. Then he left the house, and poor Trix laid her head on the organ, and though no sound came from her I knew she was crying.

I slipped out from behind the screen and gently laid my hand on her brown head. By-and-by the brown head was lifted and in the flickering light I saw the tears trembling on her lashes still.

She laid her wet cheek against mine for an instant, and then arose and caught up her hat and shawl, saying:

"Come out with me, Edna. The night air may cool my brain; put on your wraps and let's take a walk."

Mechanically I did as she bade me, and in a few moments we were out in the open air. I put my hand through Trix's arm and she hurried along the path, finally stopping near the edge of the pond, where she stood perfectly still, staring straight before her but seeing nothing.

The moon was rising from behind the distant hills, transfiguring the landscape in a flood of silver light, and by its rays I perceived a small boat on the surface of the pond and heard the dip, dip of the oars as they threw the drops of water in sparkling sprays from their edges.

She laid her cheek against my hand, but said nothing.

"Hark! What was that?"

"Help!" rang out, a cry of danger. Trix sprang to her feet, trembling in every limb. Again the cry rent the air, this time ending abruptly in an inarticulate murmur. Trix tore off her shoes and was off like the wind, crying:

"My God, Edna! It's Roland. Go for help. He's upset on the pond and he can't swim a stroke. Oh, Roland, my Roland!"

I heard a splash as the daring girl plunged into the water to save the man she loved from drowning.

I ran for the farm at the top of my speed, shouting all the way. In less than ten minutes the whole household was roused and rushing madly toward the pond—too late.

The brave girl had saved her lover by a superhuman effort, it seemed, and the men arrived just in time to rescue him, but poor Trix, exhausted by the tremendous exertion, sank to rise no more, when close to land.

There is little more to tell. The next day her body was recovered and loving hands closed her eyes from the gaze of this world to the gaze of a better; folded her brown hands across her bosom and robed her still form for burial.

I never shall forget, to my dying day, how beautiful she was as she lay in her last long sleep, her face more beautiful even than in life, wearing a smile of angelic sweetness.

Mr. Danvers came to the funeral, looking very sad indeed, and pathetically white, making him the attention of many charitable maidens, who commented upon "poor Mr. Danvers feeling so bad to think poor darling Trix gave her life for him and—oh, wasn't it touching!" You may call me unfeeling, for doubtless Mr. Danvers did feel very bad for the time being, but I saw not the pale young man with tears in his fair blue eyes; I saw only a heartless man who had deceived, fondled, caressed and thrown aside, as a child throws a toy he has tired of, a soul that he was unworthy to ever think of being his.

I could barely treat him civilly as he made a few touching remarks to me of the beautiful life thrown away for his worthless one.

He had a costly monument erected over the green mound in Norwood cemetery, that told in a few brief lines of how the poor clay beneath had met its death. That was all; Mr. Danvers went his way back to the noisy world where he belonged, and in the course of ten years became a wealthy man. He afterward married and now is the father of two beautiful children.

Pillow of Milkweed Pods.

An inexpensive pillow can be made of milkweed pods, gathering them when almost ripe. Keep in a dry place until they are ready to burst open. Then carefully remove the seeds and the center and put the down into a slip made of muslin instead of ticking. It will make a nice, light, soft pillow as good as any down pillow.

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

How a Veteran Was Saved the Amputation of a Limb.

B. Frank Doremus, veteran, of Roosevelt avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy. I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 34 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it, and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the urine became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills."

The Cattle Kings are Leaving the Texas Pan Handle

They couldn't afford to stay—the land was too good for grazing. They got their ranches when land was the cheapest thing going. Some of them had a quarter of a million acres, mighty few less than 50,000 acres. They made lots of money—but it couldn't last. Too many people wanted the land for farms. They offered the Cattle Kings good profit and the Cattle Kings took it. That ended the big cattle business. Now lots of these big ranches are for sale in small tracts, dirt cheap. Lots of them have already been sold.

It's amazing what crops the farmers get on this land—forty or fifty bushels of corn to the acre, right along; wheat 20 to 30 bushels; alfalfa 2 to 2½ tons to the acre, three cuttings a year; oats, kaffir corn, milo maize.

The Farmer Is Crowding Him Out.

Size that up with what you and your neighbors have been getting on $75 and $100 land, and you'll see where you get off. The Pan Handle farmer of Northern Texas, Western Oklahoma and Eastern New Mexico has got you skinned a mile. There's only one way to get even with him—pull up stakes and go to the Pan Handle yourself. Buy a good big farm for $10 or $15 an acre and see how easy it is to get along.

You never saw better land for twice the money in your life. I know good land when I see it, and I know the Pan Handle land is tip top—good chocolate loam, 4 to 8 feet deep with clay subsoil; plenty of water anywhere, 25 to 50 feet down. Rainfall is abundant.

Why don't you go down to the Pan Handle and get a farm? It would pay you to take a trip down there just to look around. It doesn't cost much: only $20 from St. Louis or Kansas City and $25 from Chicago, round trip. The Rock Island-Frisco lines have four routes to the Pan Handle—each one goes through a different part of the country.

I have got a book about Texas that's mighty interesting reading! Another about Oklahoma! Still another about New Mexico! They will tell you a lot you want to know about the Pan Handle Country before you go down there. Do you want one?

The Rock Island-Frisco Lines have no land for sale, and are only interested in getting good, energetic settlers for the desirable, but unoccupied, lands along their lines.

I have chosen several specific sections where conditions are especially favorable for new settlers, and I am advertising these sections. If you would prefer some other section than the Pan Handle country look for my advertisements in other issues of this paper, or write me for specific literature about the section you are most interested in.

COLORED PEOPLE IN CAPITAL.

Nearly 100,000 of the Race Are Living in the City.

More colored people live in Washington than in any other city, 95,000 of the total population of 330,000 being African. Many Washington colored people are among the most advanced of their race, and Washington is the only city where there is a distinct Afro-American society which applies the standards of American morals and manners to its own conduct. While the colored people are represented on the school board, have places of honor and profit under the district government and enjoy equality before the law, the presence of such large numbers of the race is partly responsible for Washington's peculiar government, for not all Washington colored people are of the better class. Many of them are ignorant and shiftless, and the criminal records of the district show this lower class in an unfavorable light. The last annual report showed that of the total number of births among the colored population of the city, more than 25 per cent. were illegitimate. It would be practically impossible to persuade congress, as at present constituted, to give the District of Columbia suffrage on the South Carolina plan and thus eliminate the colored vote. If universal manhood suffrage was granted, the national capital would be ruled by the colored people, and there is no party or faction in congress, however small, which is willing that such a condition of affairs should be brought about. This condition deters agitation for the suffrage.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Didn't Want New Money.

Merchants of the far west are suspicious of brand-new paper money, according to a compositor employed at the government printing office at Washington. When he received his money for leave and back pay it was delivered to him just as it was received from the treasury by the paymaster.

"When I planned to spend my vacation 'with the folks' in my home state west of old Big Muddy I thought to surprise them by having only brand-new money," he said in telling the story, "and consequently was careful not to fold it. After I had been about the little town for a few hours I felt of my chin and concluded to get a shave. The barber did not know me, and when I took a bright new dollar out of my bill book he took it gingerly and turned it over and over. 'This all you got?' he asked. I was amused at his greenness, and said there were more where that came from, and took the whole flat 'bundle' out of my pocket and told him to take his choice. 'Where did you come from, man?' he asked, and to save time I had to tell him I was from Washington and worked for Uncle Sam.

"For three days it was the same story wherever I went. Merchants were so used to ragged and dirty bills that resembled dish rags that they looked with suspicion on brand-new money that had never been folded. In the end I went to a bank and explained the situation and asked to have the new bills exchanged for the kind the natives were used to. And even the cashier did not like the proposition one bit. It was some time before I could convince him, with the aid of several letters I happened to have in my pocket, that I was not a green goods artist with nerve enough to try the game on a country bank. Never again will I try to act as if the government turned out money for my especial benefit."

"Hot and Then Some."

An employe of the agricultural department has received a letter from his home in Alabama, and which contains the information that the heat there is something tremendous and that hens are laying hard-boiled eggs. The writer states that no stoves have been used for cooking for several days, the people using the hot stones which are scattered throughout the town.

"Back in 1896," relates a former editor of a weekly paper in Georgia, but now employed in the pension office, "we had an awful hot spell in my state. Fact is, a great many of our people thought the last day was close to hand, and so strong was this belief that hundreds of my subscribers who never had paid a cent came to town and forked over every red they owed. If it had not been for that hot spell I do not suppose I ever would have collected for the best weekly in Georgia.

"When the scare was over and the weather moderated I quietly sold my paper and pulled out. I thought it a deuced good time to stay even. Hot weather that can make a delinquent subscriber square up with the printer is hot some and a little more."

Preserves Now Packed Elsewhere.

"Down in North Carolina," said a Washingtonian the other day, "a well known family has had the habit for generations of having the caskets for the various members of the family prepared years in advance of the anticipated demise of any member. A special room has been provided for the coffins and for a number of years the women folk have packed jars of preserves in the caskets as the sweets kept well when so packed. About two years ago one of the members of the family died and after she had been placed in one of the caskets it was sealed and placed in the room together with the other coffins. Later the funeral cortege wended its way to the neighboring cemetery and deposited the casket in a vault preparatory to a later interment. The next day one of the members of the family went to the 'coffin room' to get a jar of preserves, opened the top of one of the coffins and revealed the features of her relative. Now it is said the stores of preserves and jellies are packed in another part of the house."

Brushes Much Used.

It is a good idea to have on hand a half-dozen or more of the small brushes that cost only a few cents. They may be used to clean the rind of orange or lemon; they are valuable for cleaning graters, as there is no lint; they may be used to clean the reservoir, and one especially for the fingers may be kept in the kitchen sink.

Perfect Womanhood

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from some derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their health, barely in time to save their lives.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headache, bearing-down sensations, nervousness, irregularities or the "blues," she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as the great woman's remedy for woman's ills, made only of roots and herbs.

It cures Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and all Organic Diseases, and is invaluable in the Change of Life. It dissolves and Expels Tumors at an early stage. Subdues Faintness, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, and invigorates the whole female sysem. It is an excellent remedy for derangements of the Kidneys in either sex.

Many a man is kept busy trying to avoid doing foolish things he would really like to do.

TOWN WIPED OUT BY EXPLOSION OF POWDER PLANT

FROM 25 TO 50 KILLED AND OVER 600 MORE OR LESS SERIOUSLY INJURED.

SHOCK IS FELT 200 MILES

EVERY BUILDING IN TOWN IN RUINS—DEAD HORRIBLY MANGLED AND BURNED.

Fontanet, Ind., Oct. 17. — Fontanet was practically destroyed yesterday by the explosion of the plant of the Dupont Powder company. The dead number from twenty-five to fifty. Over 600 persons were injured and every building in the town was wholly or partly leveled to the ground.

Where stood a thriving and busy town of 1,000 people yesterday morning, now there is ruin and scattered wreckage. The dead and more seriously injured have been taken away Five hundred inhabitants, all more or less wounded, remain to gather their household goods and sleep under tents and on cots, guarded by soldiers of the state.

Shock Felt 200 Miles.

Without warning the powder mills, seven in number, blew up at 9:15 yesterday morning. They employed 200 men and of these seventy-five were at work when the first explosion occurred in the press mill. In quick succession the glazing mill, the two coining mills and the powder magazine blew up, followed by the cap mill. In the magazine, situated several hundred yards from the mill, were stored 40,000 kegs of powder. The concussion when it blew up was felt nearly 200 miles. Every house in this town was destroyed. Farm houses two miles away and school houses equally distant were torn to pieces and their occupants injured.

Wreckage Takes Fire.

Immediately following the explosion the wreckage took fire and the inhabitants of the town, who rushed to the rescue of the mill employes, found themselves powerless to aid those burning in the ruins.

They worked frantically in constant danger from possible succeeding explosions, unmindful of their ruined homes. Dead and dying were picked up and collected. Eighteen bodies horribly burned and mangled were carted to a protected spot to await identification, while the badly injured, numbering upwards of fifty, were put on a special train and taken to Terre Haute for hospital accommodations.

Rescuers Are Killed.

The mills were located one mile south of the town. With the first explosion the employes ran for safety, but most of them were killed or wounded by the quick following explosions in the other mills. When the heat from the burning mills exploded the giant powder magazine, ninety minutes later, destroying the town by the concussion, many of those engaged in rescue work were badly injured and several killed.

Among the buildings totally destroyed in the town were the Methodist and Christian churches, two school buildings, the depot, all business blocks, including a large block just completed, a large warehouse and 500 homes.

Militia on Guard.

Gov. Hanly at Indianapolis ordered the Terre Haut ecompany of the Indiana national guard to patrol the ruined district and protect life and property. The governor arrived about the time the soldiers reached here. He brought with him 700 tents and cots for the use of the homeless.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Mrs. Evelyne Romadka of Milwaukee was yesterday arraigned in the municipal court on charges of burglary, larceny and receiving stolen property. The negro Jones, who is implicated in the charges, was also in court. The cases were continued for one week.

At the conclusion of the hearing A. J. Ward, the bondsman for Mrs. Romadka, declared that he would not longer offer security for her appearance and desired to surrender her to the court. When this was done Mrs. Romadka fainted. After being revived she was placed in a cell in the police station and was taken to the county jail late yesterday.

HOT BOX CAUSES DISASTER

POWDER IGNITED BY SPARKS CAUSED BY FRICTION ON SHAFTING.

Fontanet, Ind., Oct. 17. — Thirty-eight killed, 600 injured, of whom fifty were seriously hurt, and a property loss of approximately $750,000, is the latest estimate of the destruction wrought by the explosion at the Dupont powder mills Tuesday. From William Sharrow, a workman in the glazing mill, it was learned yesterday that a "hot box," which was caused by too much friction on the shafting, causing sparks to be transmitted to loose powder, was in all probability the cause of the terrible catastrophe.

Caused by Hot Box.

Sharrow, who is dangerously hurt, said:

"The explosion was caused by loose boxing on the shaft. The day before we had to throw water on it when it became too hot. This time it got too hot and sent off the sparks that caused the explosion."

Another company of state militia arrived from Indianapolis last evening. The town is under martial law, the two companies of state troops being in full control.

Coroner Leavitt of Vigo county spent the entire day investigating the accident. He thinks that not more than thirty men were at work at the time the explosion occurred. The injured at this place and Terre Haute are getting along nicely, and it is thought that no more deaths will occur.

Distress and Havoc.

Indianapolis, Oct. 17. — Gov. J. Frank Hanly, greatly fatigued, returned last night from Fontanet. He praised the work being done by neighboring cities and individuals for the alleviation of afflicted Fontanet.

"The distress and havoc wrought by the explosion," said the governor, "are of the kind that men are seldom called upon to witness. Many of the scenes we looked upon there could not be described."

Arlington, Minn., Oct. 17.—The flour mill of this town, which has been in operation but one or two days in a week, is now buying all the wheat possible and paying a better price than before. SHOWS MORE OIL TRUST TRICKERY

SELLS OVERPRODUCT THROUGH COMPANIES PUBLIC BELIEVE TO BE INDEPENDENT.

CLOSE TAB ON COMPETITORS

KELLOGG GETS LONG-SOUGHT-FOR FACTS—W. G. ROCKEFELLER NEXT.

New York, Oct. 16.—Hampton G. Wescott, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, testified yesterday in the hearing of the federal suit against the oil combine that in several of the Southern states the Standard had found it expedient to sell much of its products through companies which the public believed to be independent. The practice of selling through so-called independent companies which were owned by the combine was discontinued two years ago, according to Mr. Wescott.

Sell Through Independents.

Mr. Kellogg, counsel for the government, drew from the witness that the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, which acts as selling agent of oil in Kentucky, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee and Alabama, had purchased numerous small independent selling companies, and through many of them sold oil to the consumer. Some of the plants of these independents were dismantled and the business taken over by the Standard.

Mr. Wescott threw a sidelight on a business department of the Standard concerning which the federal counsel has been seeking information since the beginning of the inquiry. Mr. Wescott testified that each month the main office of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky at Covington sent to him not only the reports of the business operations of the Standard, but statements concerning freight shipments and sale of oil by all competitors.

Keep Tab on Competitors.

These statements according to Mr. Wescott, gave the name of the consignor, the consignee, the amount of oil shipped and any information that might be available. Mr. Wescott said that after examining these statements he filed them with the statistical department in the Standard's office in the city. The statistical department, Mr. Wescott said, was in charge of W. E. Bemis, who kept compilations and records of the business of both the Standard and its competitors.

MOVES TO BLOCK HARRIMAN.

Gets Writ to Prevent Voting of Big Block of Illinois Central.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Stuyvesant Fish, through his attorneys, yesterday secured a temporary injunction which will, if made permanent, restrain the voting at the Illinois Central meeting on Wednesday of 286,731 shares of stock of the Illinois Central railroad company, which would otherwise be voted in the interests of E. H. Harriman.

The writ is directed against the Union Pacific Railroad company, the Railroad Securities Company of New Jersey and the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, which combined held the above shares of stock.

Asks Final Decree.

In addition to the temporary injunction sought, a final decree was asked declaring that the Union Pacific Railroad company and the Railroad Securities company have no power under the laws of Illinois to own stock in the Illinois Central. It was also asked that these companies be directed to sell their stock in the Illinois Central within a reasonable time.

The petition charges an unlawful scheme of the Union Pacific Railroad company to control the commerce of the United States by buying large blocks of stock in the principal transportation companies. It also sets forth the facts stated in a recent report of the interstate commerce commission in regard to the transactions of the Union Pacific Railroad company and E. H. Harriman.

Harriman's Next Move.

It is believed that the attorneys for Mr. Harriman will to-day seek the dissolution of the injunction, and it is not possible to state at the present time whether the arguments will be completed in time to allow Judge Ball to make a decision before the day of the annual meeting.

Mr. Fish said yesterday, after the granting of the temporary injunction:

"I am making this fight solely to maintain the integrity of the Illinois Central Railroad company as an independent corporation and to prevent its domination by the Union Pacific."

Circumstances Indicate Suicide.

Grand Rapids, Wis., Oct. 16.—William Murphy, an unknown stranger identified by an employment agency check from Chicago, was killed on the Wisconsin Central under circumstances indicating suicide.

Killed by Train.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Oct. 16. — Ernst Neidert, nineteen, son of Chris Neidert, a wealthy retired farmer of State center, was instantly killed by being struck by a North-Western fast passenger train.

19 KILLED IN RAILROAD WRECK

ENGLISH PASSENGER TRAIN DERAILED WHILE GOING AT HIGH SPEED.

Shrewsburg, England, Oct. 17. — A passenger train bound from Scotland and the north of England to Bristol left the rails as it was entering the station here early yesterday morning. Nineteen persons were killed and thirty-nine others were injured. The track curves sharply as it nears Shrewsbury, and there is a standing order that the engineers must not exceed a speed of ten miles an hour at that point. Disregard of the order is believed to have been the cause of the accident.

Somebody Blundered.

It is suggested, as this is the third accident of a similar kind within a year to a train entering a station on a curve, the cause may be failure of the vacuum brakes to respond. It seems certain that somebody blundered, for the train was going at a tremendous rate of speed when the accident happened.

The engine and all the cars, with the exception of the last one, left the rails, and when the officials from the railroad station reached the spot the cars were a tangled mass of wreckage, beneath which were the bodies of the dead and injured.

HARRIMAN IS CHOKED OFF.

Can't Vote I. C. Stock Held by U. P. —Both Sides Claim Victory.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—E. H. Harriman was yesterday, by an order of court, deprived of the voting power of 286,731 shares of Illinois Central stock in the annual meeting of that railroad company, which opens at noon to-day. The order of the court was practically identical with a modification asked by the attorneys of Mr. Harriman. Both sides claim a victory, Mr. Fish because the enjoined shares will not be effective in the election, and Mr. Harriman because his modification was secured.

These shares of stock ruled out are those held by the Union Pacific Railway company, the Railroad Securities Company of New Jersey and the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, against which a temporary injunction was Monday issued by Judge Ball in the superior court.

Mr. Fish Monday asked that the voting of these shares be enjoined. The court yesterday, after extensive argument by the attorneys of both sides, modified the injunction by permitting the shares to be voted under the condition that if any one of these shares should have a decisive effect on any vote taken, the entire vote is then to be null and void. In other words, Mr. Fish is given by the court a handicap of 286,731 votes, and in order to defeat him on any motion or resolution which comes before the annual meeting Mr. Harriman and his friends must cast 286,732 votes more than are cast by Mr. Fish and his followers.

As the matter now stands both sides believe that victory is in their grasp.

President's Capacity for Roughing It Astounds Camp.

Stamboul, La., Oct. 17.—At 6 o'clock last night no news of the president's day hunt had been received here.

Arrivals from the Bear lake encampment tell marvelous stories of the president's hardihood and capacity for roughing it. When he carried his blankets with him from the upper camp last Friday and that night and next morning ate only cold bread and meat he had taken in his saddle pockets, they marveled that the president could be so easily satisfied, but when he jumped into Bear lake for a swim upon arising at daybreak yesterday morning, their astonishment was almost without bounds. The thermometer registered at the time less than forty degrees and most of the others present were sdulously hugging the camp fire.

SECRETARY TAFT OPENS ASSEMBLY

FILIPINOS ARE STARTED ON THE ROAD TO SELF-GOVERNMENT.

ARE PUT ON GOOD BEHAVIOR

TO BE GIVEN CHANCE TO DEMONSTRATE ABILITY TO RULE THEMSELVES.

Manila, Oct. 17.—William H. Taft, secretary of war and former governor general of the Philippine islands, yesterday started the Filipinos on the road to self-government. The Philippine assembly, designed to afford an opportunity for the demonstration of Filipino capabilities in the direction of a modified form of home rule, was opened by the secretary at 11:15 o'clock yesterday morning in the National theater, in the presence of a large crowd of people.

In his opening address Mr. Taft reiterated his former statements regarding the Philippine islands, declaring that his views announced two years ago regarding the independence of the Philippines people were unchanged.

Will Not Sell Islands.

He did not believe that they would be fitted to govern themselves for at least a generation, but he added that the matter was entirely in the hands of congress.

The secretary denied emphatically that the United States had any intention of disposing of the islands. He said he had absolute confidence in the Filipinos and denied that he was disappointed at their ability to legislate conservatively. He asserted his belief that the Filipinos felt their responsibility and acknowledged the necessity of supporting the American government.

Put on Good Behavior.

Mr. Taft refrained from making any any suggestion regarding specific legislation on the part of the Philippine assembly, but he recommended that attention be paid to the civil service.

Secretary Taft failed to satisfy some of the American residents of Manila regarding the policy of the American government. The general impression is that his speech was placative.

He intimated that misbehavior would result in the abolishment of the assembly, but it is declared that this contingency is not expected. Filipinos express no opinion of Mr. Taft's speech, one way or the other.

OIL TRUST PREPARES DEFENSE

GOVERNMENT ATTORNEYS CONCLUDE THE TAKING OF TESTIMONY.

New York, Oct. 17.—Counsel for the Standard Oil company have prepared an elaborate defense in the government's suit for dissolution of the oil combine which they say will be developed in its entirety. The government attorneys have concluded taking testimony. The Standard's lawyers said yesterday that they had not sought to adduce testimony on cross-examination of officials and employes of the so-called oil trust which would refute the allegations in the federal complaint, but had deferred bringing out much evidence until later when it can be produced continuously and in bulk. No intimation was given of the nature of this testimony.

A telegram was sent to William Rockefeller, assistant treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, last night by counsel of the Standard saying that the government desired him as a witness before adjournment is taken Friday.

BEAR DODGES PRESIDENT.

Big Specimen Escapes Roosevelt's Gun by Going the Other Way.

Stamboul, La., Oct. 17.—If President Roosevelt had been stationed a few hundred feet further south than he was Tuesday he would possibly have procured the bear he came to the Mississippi canebrakes to slay. That a fine specimen of the bear family was discovered by Bolt Hollier's dogs within a short distance of the president and within less than a mile of Bear Lake, was the news brought into Stamboul yesterday by Brutus Jackson, one of the members of the hunting party, and he says that the animal was enabled to make good his escape by going in a direction opposite to the president's post.

The hunters were much chagrined over their failure, but were reassured by the president, who told them ahat a successful outcome is yet possible.

PEACE DELEGATES SUPERSTITIOUS

OBJECT TO HOLDING FINAL SESSION FRIDAY, SO THEY SKIP THAT DAY.

SIGN THIRTEEN CONVENTIONS

AGREE UPON VARIOUS REGULATIONS TO BE OBSERVED DURING WARFARE.

The Hague, Oct. 17.—Because many of the delegates are superstitious, the second international peace conference will hold its final session Saturday instead of Friday. It became known yesterday that some of the superstitious delegates are of the opinion that it would be an ill omen to hold its last session on Friday, particularly as the conference will have signed thirteen conventions.

Work of Conference.

These conventions are as follows: The peaceful regulation of international conflicts; providing for an international prize court; regulating the rights and duties of neutrals on land; regulating the rights and duties of neutrals at sea; regulating the laying of submarine mines; regulating the bombardment of towns from the sea; regarding the collection of contractual debts; the transformation of merchantmen into warships; regarding the treatment of captured crews; covering the inviolability of fishing boats; the inviolability of postal service; the application of the Geneva convention and the Red Cross to sea warfare; the laws and customs regulating land warfare.

Other Features Adopted.

In addition the conference has concluded the following declarations and resolutions: That balloons shall not be used in the throwing of explosives; a recommendation in favor of obligatory abitration; a resolution regarding the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration; a resolution concerning the limitation of armaments; the convocation of the third conference; the prohibition of unnecessarily cruel bullets in warfare; the co-operation of all countries in the building of the Palace of Peace.

TUMULT ON STOCK EXCHANGE.

United Copper Slump Causes Great Excitement in Street.

New York, Oct. 17.—Trading in the New York stock exchange and on the curb was tumultuous yesterday and cause of the excited movements and violent declines in United Copper stock in the latter market. The suspension of Gross & Kleeberg, members of the New York stock exchange, contributed materially to, if it was not the chief cause of the decline in both markets.

This firm has been trading actively in United Copper stocks, and it was reported that they were members of a pool formed to support the stock.

Apparently there was a break in the pool yesterday as the result of which the common stock broke from $59 to $36 per share and the transfer agent of the company declined to record the transfer of 16,930 shares, which he said had been sold in violation of the in it.

United Copper common, which closed at $36 Tuesday, opened at $25 yesterday and during the excitement went as low as $10, from which it recovered to $15.

DEFER AERIAL TRIPS.

"Sky Pilots" at St. Louis Don't Get Right Kind of Weather.

St. Louis, Oct. 17.—Weather conditions interfered with the plans of two of the balloon teams entered in the international cup races, and trial ascents planned for yesterday were postponed. If to-day is fair the two flights planned for yesterday will take place.

The weather did not, however, bother the other teams, the members of which spent the afternoon looking over their balloons for possible rents acquired in transit and welcoming Rene Gasnier and Charles Levee, who compose the second French team.

Child Was Starved.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 17.—An autopsy held on the remains of the child who died at the W. C. T. U. maternity home convinced the examining physcians that it died of starvation. No one has as yet been prosecuted.

Drowned While in a Fit.

Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 17. — Everett Brown was drowned in Lake Keesus, following an attack of epilepsy which came as Brown was standing in a rowboat.

Boy Drowns in Water Tank.

Waterloo, Iowa, Oct. 17. — Francis Hays, three years old, fell into a water tank on the farm of his grandmother near here and was drowned.

Car Goes Over Bank.

Cincinnati, Oct. 17.—One man was killed, six persons were dangerously and probably twenty-five others slightly hurt yesterday when an Elberon avenue car jumped the track and went over a twenty-five-foot embankment at Mount Hope in the western end of the city.

PRIMA DONNA IS A "TRILBY" IN REAL LIFE

Bessie Abbott of Metropolitan Opera Can Only Sing Under Sister's Influence.

When Du Maurier's "Trilby" first made its phenomenal success, it started a furore of controversy over the credibility of the situation that made the heroine a great singer merely because she was under the influence of the hypnotist, Svengali.

Musicians, experts on hypnosis and specialists in half a dozen lines, took part in the controversy, which had not been settled up to the time of the author's death, in fact it is still in progress.

But now comes a development that proves Du Maurier to have strained no laws of probability in his fascinating tale.

There are Trilbys in real life.

One of them has just been found.

It is no ordinary singer who concedes that only through the supporting power of another's mind is she able to get the full beauty out of her voice.

This vocalist is one of the world's celebrated song birds, Bessie Abbott, one of the most famous prima donnas that Herr Cohried has for his Metropolitan opera house.

The psychic bond between Bessie Abbott and her sister, Jessie Abbott, accounts for the former's success in grand opera.

"But for the mental support and help of my sister Jessie I would certainly fail dismally," she herself told a reporter recently. "I depend on her absolutely. Were she not in the house I could not find my voice for a note. If she ever marries or quits me I shall have to give up my career."

This statement of the case shows a control hardly less complete than Svengali exercised over his barefooted model.

Jessie and Bessie have been inseparables always; and it was mainly the influence of Jessie that pushed Bessie forward to demanding what was the rightful reward of her unusual voice.

When the American girl went to Europe to experience the hardships, privations, jealousies and disappointments of the student's life Jessie was with her helping to smooth the way, and ease the strain of the battle.

When the victory was won, and the young singer had demonstrated her right to a trial at the smaller opera houses on the continent, the invisible support of the older sister still helped the young prima donna. When the occasion approached for the much-feared debut in the Grand Opera house, Jessie had a seat in the front row, and followed every note, exerting, as Bessie says, an influence that helped her in the hard passages, and made her surpass herself.

This same sympathy helped her through the ordeal of a first appearance in London, and, worse still, her debut in the huge Metropolitan opera house.

It was part of the contract that Bessie Abbott made with Herr Conried that for every performance in which she took part her sister was to have a seat close to the stage where the singer could have her in view all the time.

And when honors came, and there was applause for the young prima donna, she ever insisted that her success was half her sister's.

Few prima donnas have been able to achieve the success that has been Miss Abbott's. She is only twenty-two years old, and her voice has by no means attained to its full power. Not for five years yet will she have the full chest required to house the great voices of the queens of song who would fill the vast auditoriums of New York, London and Paris.

Miss Abbott has been permitted to sing Juliet, Marguerite, Mimi and Michaela with the foremost tenors of the world, but she is not content, the determination to go further, much further, is goading her to increased efforts.

MISS ABBOTT IN "LA TRAVIATA"

Perhaps the only present singer of repute who was a foremost prima donna at twenty-two is Madame Nordica, who as Lillian Norton sang at that age at the Grand opera house, Paris. She was a slip of a girl like Miss Abbott, had no greater volume of voice, and is no more determined student.

Therefore it is not out of question that the Abbott girl may go to the extraordinary triumphs of a Nordica.

But meantime she must not lose her Svengali, or some night at the Metropolitan opera house may be duplicated the famous incident of Trilby.

It will be recalled that in his novel Du Maurier made Trilby entirely dependent on Svengali.

The violinist with the beaked nose and long hair played upon her as on a musical instrument.

In the realistic deliniation of the role that was the masterpiece of Wilton Lackaye, he gained his control over the model by a few passes of the hands and a concentrated gaze into her eyes.

"Look me in the eyes, Trilby," he would say, as he passed his hands before her face, and forced into his own eyes the last ounce of power that emanated from his strong, eccentric mind. And Trilby looked, she became but as clay. The music that was in his soul he poured out through her mouth, and Trilby became a world-famous singer.

But one night, just as the noted cantatrice was about to face one of her biggest audiences, heart disease suddenly gripped the hypnotist. Svengali fell over a table and died.

Trilby knew nothing of this. She faced her audience, and was welcomed by a riotous cheer. But instead of the melody expected, there came from her mouth the oddest jumble of discordant sounds that a singer ever gave forth. Without the influence of Svengali Trilby had no more music than a crow, and an indignant audience hissed her off the stage.

This is what happened to the fiction Trilby. Those who have admired the art of the dainty Miss Abbott, will hope in all sincerity that such an experience never comes to the real live Trilby.

SVENGALI TEACHING TRILBY TO SING BY HYPNOTIC INFLUENCE
Du Maurier's conception.

THOUGHT IT WAS FOR HIM.

He Appreciated the Exhibition Given by Fire Department.

A countryman who was walking along a certain street in a large city stopped in front of a fire station and looked in.

"Have many fires in this town?" he inquired of one of the firemen standing in the door.

"We have 'em pretty often," replied the other.

"Do you have to go to all of them?"

"No, not unless they're in our district, or unless there's a general alarm."

"Ever try to see how quick you can hitch up?"

"O, yes."

At that instant there came an alarm. At the first stroke of the gong the men ran to their posts, the doors of the stalls opened, the horses ran out and were quickly hitched to the hose cart, and within a few seconds men, horses and cart were out of the door and speeding down the street.

The interested young man watched the performance with undisguised admiration.

"By gum!" he exclaimed. "That's something like! There ain't a town in the whole of the country where they'd go to all that trouble to show a stranger what they can do."

Willing to Try It.

"Well," demanded the stern visaged woman at the back door, "what do you want?"

"Why," replied the tramp, "I seen you advertised 'table board' in dis mornin's papers——"

"Well?"

"Well, I t'ought mebbe yer wuz givin' out some samples."

TURKEYS IN TOBACCO FIELD

How They Helped Growers of the Weed in Kentucky.

"I saw a sight out in the country the other day," said an old Kentuckian now visiting in St. Louis, says the Globe-Democrat, "that recalled a good many memories of the tobacco fields of my native state.

"You know wherever tobacco is grown tobacco worms appear as though by magic. If let alone they speedily destroy the entire crop, so a large share of the attention required by a tobacco field consisted in getting rid of the worms. During slavery days every tobacco plantation had a swarm of little darkies whose duty it was to parade along the rows of plants every day and pick off the worms. Sometimes the pickers were provided with little tin buckets, old oyster cans or things like that into which they would dput their worms, and the one whose can was fullest at the end of the day's work was rewarded with a small gratuity.

"After the war, however, colored boys and girls preferred going to school to picking tobacco worms, so it was hard to find pickers.

"Then some one discovered that turkeys would do the work, and every tobacco grower raised each season a flock of turkeys and turned them loose in his fields to catch the worms. They soon learned what they were there for and that the best part of their daily provender was to be found on the leaves rather than on the ground. They would examine every leaf and not a worm escaped them.

"The St. Louis county farmer had a patch of tobacco, for his own use, I suppose, and he also knew the trick of keeping the plants clean, for there was a squad of half-grown turkeys, with an old gobbler and three or four hens leading the procession; marching up and down the rows, turning their heads first to one side then to the other, and jumping up with a kick and a flutter after a worm that was too high to be reached from the ground.

"I don't know how they manage the worms in Kentucky now, for it has been many years since I have been there. Perhaps they spray the plants with insecticides, but I shall never forget the diligence displayed by the young turkeys when they were first introduced into a tobacco field and discovered that worms were good eating."

A Word Hunt.

Citiman—You say you didn't like Mr. and Mrs. Kulchered to call on you? They're certainly very intellectual. What's the trouble; do they stay too late?

Subbubs—It isn't that they stay so late, but they keep us all up so late.

Citiman—Eh? I don't understand.

Subbubs—Well, you see, after they leave, it keeps us busy for an hour looking through the dictionary.

DEFIES THREE KINGS TO WED WOMAN OF CHOICE

Prince George of Greece Will Marry Marie Bonaparte, Richest Princess of Europe.

The storied romances of days of old when knighthood flowered, and love overcame all obstacles to win its desires, are paralleled in the happy termination of the loves of Princess Letitia Marie Bonaparte, descendant of the mighty Corsican, and Prince George of Greece.

The pair are to be wedded in the near future, and fifteen millions that are the dower of the young woman, will put them far beyond the danger of any financial retaliation on the part of those who have been so obstinately opposing the match.

Seldom indeed has any couple been compelled to overcome opposition as determined as confronted this pair when first their romance led them into the dream of becoming husband and wife.

Three kings of Europe put themselves on record as bitterly opposing the match.

King Edward of England, because of family ties, entered his protest; King Victor Immanuel of Italy impressed on his ministers to go to the very limit of their powers to thwart the couple, and finally King George of Greece, father of the Romeo in this twentieth century romance, expostulated vigorously with his son.

None of these kingly foes of Cupid could urge anything which in the United States would be thought a sufficient reason for excluding the young lady from marriage with royalty.

True, her mother, the Princess Eleanor, who died at the child's birth, twenty-five years ago, was of pleblan origin, but to make up for that, on her father's side she comes direct from the stock of the man who a century ago was master of the continent, and made and unmade kings at will. Moreover, her father, Prince Roland, has more than blood to recommend him, for he is a noted savant, whose discoveries in the field of scientific research have won him many honors.

PRINCE GEORGE OF GREECE,
Who defied three kings in choosing a wife.

PRINCESS MARIE BONAPARTE,
Fiancee of Prince George of Greece.

Then, much ado was made about the fortune of the princess, who in her own right, has more wealth than any princess of Europe. This money, unfortunately for her piece of mind, comes to her from her grandfather, M. Blanc, who founded the gambling place of Monte Carlo, and there made such huge sums that he died immensely wealthy.

It was mainly because of the taint on the fortune that King Edward tried to dissuade King George of Greece from permitting the match, and perhaps there also lingered in the king of the Britons some vestige of the traditional hatred for the stock of the ruler, who finally at Waterloo ended his mighty career a British prisoner.

The Princess Marie and Prince George are said to have met in Rome. She is an ardent lover of the arts, and was studying paintings in the famous city of the seven hills when she met the son of the ruler of Greece.

Until she fell in love with Prince George the affections of Princess Marie had been centered on her father, whom she worships.

He is the son of Prince Pierre, and grandson of Lucien Bonaparte, Prince of Canino, and elder brother of Napoleon I.

When Prince Roland visited the United States in 1893, he was welcomed by the foremost men of science in the new world. He went to the territories for anthropological investigation.

Prior to her romance with Prince George there has only been one occasion when with any show of authenticity the princess was reported engaged.

Then it was said that she would wed the Count de Treden.

The Tredens were and are one of the oldest families of the Breton aristocracy, and the Faubourg St. Germain marvelled at the good luck of the princess in getting a husband of such blood.

The gossips were not content at attacking the Princess Marie because of her descent on the maternal side from the gambler, who, expelled from Germany, founded Monte Carlo. They also reviewed an old scandal that the wife of Prince Pierre, the father of Prince Roland, Marie's father, was Justine Ruflin, wife of a journeyman plumber, whose marriage to Prince Pierre had always been disputed during her life.

They pointed out that the name of the alleged wife of Prince Pierre was excluded from the Almanac de Gotha, while she lived, and that during the same period Prince Pierre was entered as a bachelor. Thus they tried to prove that Prince Roland and his daughter were only by courtesy entitled to the great name they bore.

Neither the prince nor his daughter made any reply, and one day the Faubourg was astonished to hear that Marie had thrown over her distinguished suitor, Prince Tredern. Then it developed that she had learned that in advance of the marriage he was spending her fortune, and had already pledged much of it.

This demonstration that she was being married alone for her wealth so angered the princess that she cast aside the darling of the Faubourg, and gave an exhibition of true woman's pride and spirit that silenced her critics.

All that could be adduced of this kind of gossip was used to dissuade Prince George from marrying Marie, but he had the courage of his convictions.

The world is indeed progressing when even kings and statesmen cannot make princes marry as they wish.

Listen to any woman five minutes and you will hear her say that she is "too particular" to do this or that.

Lace From Fibers.

The women of Fayal, in the Azores, make a lace out of the fibers of the leaves of the century plant, and it is not less beautiful than costly. These women are the only makers of the lace left in the world to-day, and travelers stopping at Fayal on their South Atlantic voyage do not miss the opportunity of seeing these women at work. The peasants of Abissoia once possessed the same art. They made of the century leaves a beautiful black lace, but it would not wash.

Preaches 6,000 Sermons.

A Methodist minister in Cleveland, Ohio, Rev. O. Badgley, preached his 6,000th sermon on Sunday. It must require several barrels to cart about his stock in trade. However, the subject is rather depressing for hot weather, view it as you will. The kindly old lady said that his satanic majesty was at least amazingly industrious, and so is Rev. Mr. Badgley.

Man has faith in anything he has never tried to reason out.

Christianity in Korea.

The remarkable progress of Christianity in Korea during the past year has given rise to the opinion among missionaries that it will be the first country in Asia to become Christianized, says the Advance. The increase among believers during the year is said to be 40 per cent, and the work shows no sign of halting.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who crossed his legs and let his little son ride his foot?

IMPROVING THE GRADE OF STOCK OF THE FARMER

It Pays to Raise the Best—By J. S. Cotton, Assistant in Range Investigations, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Improvement of the class of stock using the grazing lands is becoming constantly more important. In the old days, when there was plenty of free range, almost any kind of animal could be sold at a profit. Under the present crowded conditions the cost of maintenance is much higher, and the poor-grade animal, or "scrub," will no longer yield satisfactory returns.

The man who is running his stock in inclosed areas or contemplates so doing in the future will find it necessary, if he is to be successful, to carry that class of stock that will net him the greatest returns. This statement holds equally true for the outside range. In fact, there are only two methods whereby the man who expects to continue running his stock on the public domain can meet the existing conditions successfully. One is the raising of sufficient feed to carry his stock through the winter safely; the other, to run a grade of stock that shall make the largest possible returns in the shortest time.

Registered Perchero.. Stallion.

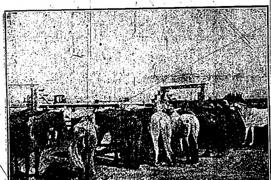
A cattleman can no longer afford to run steers until they are four, five or six years old, but he will need to raise quick-maturing animals that will be ready for market by the time they are two or three years old—four at the very latest. Not only must these cattle mature early, but they must be of a quality that will dress a good percentage of beef.

This means that the cattleman will need to raise high-grade cows and supply the very best bulls he can secure —if pure bred, so much the better. In many instances the cattlemen are so crowded for range that they find it difficult to produce beef because the grass is insufficient for the steers to make rapid gains. Men in other sections find the grass of too poor a quality to fatten steers. These men will need to grow cattle for the eastern feed yards, to be sold to the feeder in the autumn as calves, yearlings, two-year-olds, or three-year-olds. In producing such cattle many of these men will find it necessary to improve their herds greatly, for quality and not quantity is what the eastern feeder wants. Many of these feeders complain bitterly because they cannot obtain the class of cattle they need. It is noticeable that in the sales of "feeders and stockers" at Omaha, Chicago, and other stock yards those of poor quality are hard sellers, and ordinarily go at very low figures.

As an example of what may be done on the open range under present overcrowded conditions, the methods of a stockman living near Reva, S. D., may be mentioned. A few years ago this man, becoming dissatisfied with the kind of cattle that he was running, bought a registered bull and began to grade his cattle up. By using good registered Shorthorn bulls, which he chances every three years, and by selecting good-grade cows, he has been grading up his herd until now his cattle outweigh and outsell those in his immediate neighborhood. At first his neighbors made considerable sport of him for importing registered stock and prophesied that he would make a failure of it. Instead of a failure his cattle are so much better in quality that they may be distinguished a long distance away merely by their body outline and their increased size. In order to get the most good out of his animals this man was, of course, obliged to do a good deal more work in taking care of them. He found it necessary to "line ride" his range every day in order to keep his stock from straying and to see that his bulls served his own cows and not those of his neighbors. This extra work has paid him well, as he rarely loses cattle through straying and does not need to belong to any of the round-up associations. The prime value of this work is shown in his calf crop, which averages about 95 per cent., while that of his neighbors averages only about 60 per cent.

Now that the range is becoming so crowded that it is difficult to get sufficient grass to fatten steers, he is preparing to increase his breeding stock and cut down the number of his beef steers, so that when he can no longer grow beef he will be in a position to dispose of a high class of feeding cattle, which he will aim to sell as yearlings or two-year-olds to eastern feeders. This he can do without any sacrifice whatever, as he has a type of cattle that is exactly such as the feeders want but find it difficult to obtain.

What has been said of cattle holds equally true of horses. To-day there is almost no place for the small horse or "cayuse," while good animals are in demand. That one can afford to raise good horses on the range has been demonstrated by a stockman living in western North Dakota. During a period of low prices for range horses this man bought a high-priced stallion. With this animal and nine range mares of average size and quality as a nucleus he built up a fine herd. When the stallion died he was replaced with two registered Percherons, which continued to build up the herd until it was one of the finest herds of range horses in the United States. One of these stallions is shown in an smaller illustration, while some of the progeny are shown in the other picture. When this man got his first horse his neighbors believed that he had made a serious mistake in buying so expensive an animal. For several years, while he was building up his herd, at which time horses were of almost no value, he was considerably in debt. As his stock began to improve and the price of horses increased he began to realize well from this herd, and during the last two years he has sold geldings in carload lots at $125 a head, unbroken. In the summer of 1906 he sold his entire herd, 227 head, at $85 a head straight for all branded stock—an unusually high price for range horses. There were two mares of his own raising in this herd for which the buyers refused $550 unbroken. This man estimates that his first stallion made for him many times what he paid for it.



Some of the Progeny of the Registered Stallion.

The Dairy Cow.—When a farmer starts to build up his herd of dairy cows he must know something about the selecting of cows or he will make progress but slowly. One of the things that every skillful selector of dairy cowscows has learned is not to select a cow because she is sleek, glossy and handsome. That kind of a combination goes better with the beef cow than the dairy cow. The true dairy cow will be wedge-shaped and will very likely show her ribs no matter how well she has been fed. She has been putting her food into her udder rather than into fat to make her ribs disappear. It is a well known fact that a good dairy cow has the milk-producing habit so firmly fixed that it is difficult to feed her in a way to make her lay on fat while she is giving milk.

Avoid the Grade Bull.—No man that wants to raise a good dairy calf should use a grade bull on his herd. The temptation is great to use a bull of this description because such bulls are numerous and their service fees are low. The man that does not have a bull of his own may frequently have to go a long distance to get past the grade bull and into the territory of the bull of pure breeding. Under no circumstances should anything but a pure-bred bull be used if dairy cows are what the farmer is trying to produce. The use of the grade bull on grade cattle will give no advance in quality and his use on pure-bred cows means the pulling down of the quality.

Sow Thistle.—That terrible weed pest the sow thistle knows enough to run into good soil. Its appearance is a pretty sure sign that the soil would produce good crops if permitted.

Dangerous Habit.—The formation of the habit of feeding one or two kinds of feed to stock is a dangerous one in a time when prices for feed are fluctuating widely as now.

Don't Crowd.—One of the greatest drawbacks to the poultry business is the tendency to crowd fifty fowls into a space where there is only room for twenty.

Poultry Raising Popular.—The interest in poultry is growing as is shown by the increase in the number of poultry raising associations.

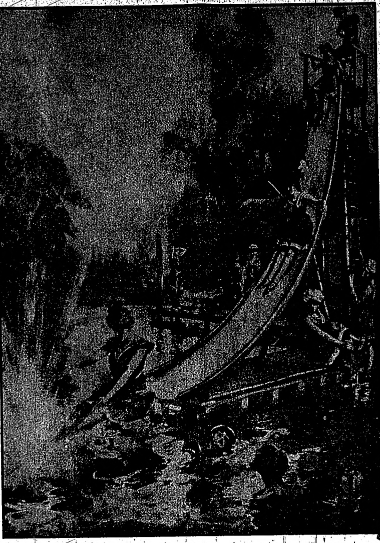
Feeding the Calf.—It is an old maxim among good calf raisers that any milk unfit for the table is unfit for feeding young calves.

Keep Well Brushed.—Plenty of brushing keeps the horse's skin in good condition and prevents rubbing in the stall.

Use Your Knowledge.—Learn about poultry and put the knowledge obtained to actual use.

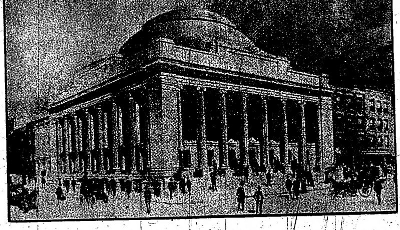
A NEW GAME FOR BATHING GIRLS: THE CHUTE

(Drawn by W. Russell Flint.)



SHOOTING THE CHUTE WITHOUT A BOAT.

A new excitement can be added to bathing by this adaptation of the chute. The method is as simple as it is amusing, and the picture explains itself perfectly. The directors of seaside places and swimming baths would be well advised to take the hint here given.—The London Illustrated News.



CONSOLIDATED STOCK EXCHANGE.

Operations on the floor of the new building of the Consolidated Stock exchange, at Broad and Beaver streets, began this week. With the removal of the "Little Board," as the Consolidated exchange is called, all the dealings in stocks are now carried on in Broad street. On that thoroughfare, from Wall street south, are the "Big Board" (the New York Stock exchange), the curb, or open air market, and the Consolidated.

The site cost the Consolidated exchange $72.50 a square foot, or $870,000 in all. The building itself cost about $300,000. The exterior is of limestone on a base of granite. A dome thirty feet in diameter rises from the roof. Massive Ionic columns form the facades on both Broad and Beaver streets.

It was the special care of the architects and builders to make the structure absolutely fireproof. Floors and particians of unburnable hollow tile blocks like those used in most of the big skyscrapers furnish protection from flames.

Five feet above the Broad street level is the board room. Steps running the entire 100 feet lead up to three large entrances for members. Back of the ionic columns the whole Broad street side is one immense window. The trading space, 95x82 feet, is lighted from a skylight in the dome.

A unique feature is the board room clock. It strikes the opening hour, 10 a. m. Again at 2:15 p. m. it signals for the limit of time on the delivery of stocks. At 3 p. m. a gong sounds, and after that a vibrating bell rings for fifteen seconds.

The Consolidated exchange is the next largest institution of the kind in the country, being surpassed only by the New York Stock exchange.

A Mighty Rare Autograph.

There are an unlimited number and variety of the genus autograph collector. Some have the gruesome fad of collecting all autographic matter relating to the assassins of our presidents. Te be successful, even in this limited range, requires much careful research and great patience.

The more inconspicuous and unknown the subjects chosen, the more difficult the task of collecting. It may be said that it is an easier task to secure an authentic autograph of Napoleon Bonaparte, or of Cromwell, than one of the practically unknown murderer of President McKinley; the very obscurity from which the perpetrator temporarily emerged is hard to penetrate, and therefore makes securing of his autograph a difficult task.

Three Fingers.

"I understand the colonel has sued the railroad for damages?"

"Yes, suh; he lost three fingers in the collision."

"From his right or left hand?"

"From his hip pocket, suh; the collision th'owed him against a seat and broke his bottle."

One Way.

"How can I become an accomplished story teller?"

"Get married and practice staying out late at night with the boys."

No Enemies.

Bishop Joseph F. Berry, during the Methodist conference's recent session in New York, told a story in illustration of the tender mercies of the wicked.

"It is said," he began, "that when the great Spanish marshal, Narvaez, lay dying, his confessor asked him if he had any enemies.

"'No,' whispered the marshal, 'I have none.'

"But the priest, reflecting on the stormy life of the dying man, repeated:

"'Think, sir! Have you no enemies? None whatever?'

"'No,' said the marshal, 'none.'

"And he added, tranquilly:

"'I have shot them all.'"

The Happy Family.

Mrs. Scrappington (in the midst of her reading)—Here is an item which says that full-grown rhinosceroses cost $12,000 apiece.

Mr. Scrappington (meanly)—Eh yah! And isn't it a pity that women can't wear them on their hats.

Accommodating.

Bacon—I see Berlin has an automobile fitted up as a hearse.

Egbert—I suppose you want me to say that people are just dying to ride in it!

Herd of Cattle Sunstruck.

Hicks Myers, living about thirteen miles northeast of Trenton, N. J., lost eleven head of fat steers Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Myers had changed the steers from a shady pasture to another about an eighth of a mile away, in which there were no trees.

His boy discovered one dead about noon and Mr. Myers, on arrival at the pasture, found the whole herd closely bunched, trying to get shelter from the burning sun in the shade thrown by their own bodies. He cut out all the yearlings and drove them to another part of the field, but too late to get the herd to shelter before eleven had fallen dead. The steers were worth about $65 apiece, and as they were not insured were a total loss.

Sage Advice.

"I'm quite positive," said Miss Lovelorn, "that he loves me a great deal—"

"How do you know?" demanded Miss Hardman.

"Oh! I can tell by his sighs whenever——"

"Now, don't fool yourself. You can't gauge the depth of a man's love by its sighs."

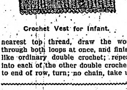
A VEST FOR INFANT

PRETTY BIT OF CROCHET WORK FOR THE BABY.

Directions for Making a Warm Wool Garment That Will Be Both Pretty and Serviceable.

One oz white Shetland wool, and a rather thick bone hook about No. 8 or 10.

Work a chain of 46 stitches, turn and work a double crochet into each stitch, turn, 5 chain, pass the hook through the two nearest threads of the last made double crochet, that is, the curved thread and the front or nearest top thread, draw the wool through both loops at once, and finish like ordinary double crochet; repeat into each of the other double crochets to end of row, turn; no chain, take up the two nearest threads of the last made double crochet and proceed as before to end of row, turn 5 chain, and repeat from *, working to and fro for 12 rows, that is until there are 12 loops at the lower edge, then add 6 chains at the top of the row, turn, and work back as before; work 5 rows of the 50 stitches in the next, leave 18 stitches unworked at the top (for sleeve), work 19 chain, turn, and proceed as usual for 5 rows more, then leave 5 stitches unworked at the top, and work 12 more rows; increase for the second shoulder and work like the first, leaving opening for sleeve between the fifth and sixth long row, against decrease and work another 12 rows for the other front; join the shoulder-pieces with single crochet.



Crochet Vest for Infant.

For the sleeves: Commence at the underpart and work the same stitch as before all round the opening, *, catch the last stitch to the first, turn, and work back again. Repeat from * for your rows, counting forwards and backwards as 1 row. Decrease each of the first 3 rows by passing over 1 stitch at the join; for the edge of the sleeve, work a double crochet into the first stitch, 5 chain into same stitch, pass 1, a double crochet, 5 chain and another double crochet in the next, and repeat all round the sleeve. Work all round the top and along both sides of the opening in the same way as round the sleeves.—Helen Grays.

COATS HAVE QUAINT EFFECTS.

Special Features Show Them Off to Great Advantage.

Nothing could be quainter than some of the coats contrived with cloth for some of the smart tailored frocks. Although the empire vest is a dainty feature of these coats, the general empire effect is gradually giving way to other models, particularly the semicutaway designs, with fronts smartly rounded away and finished with several rows of stitching or a binding of elegant silk braid.

Redfern shows a tailored gown in very dull mauve cloth, the skirt having two broad box pleats on either side of the front, the pleats beginning just above the knees. Across the top of these are stretched two straight bands of the cloth, finished at either edge with large buttons covered with mauve moire circled in dull gold rims. The coat is piped with modern brown moire; a rather queer sounding combination, but an effect beautiful to look at. The pipings outline stitchings of the cloth, which follow the curved lines of the coat, and the empire vest is made entirely of the brown moire, with handsome metal buttons stitched down either side. The shoulders are long in effect, and one might describe the sleeves as a series of cuffs, for they are stitched with bands of cloth, secured only at the lower edge, each standing out beyond the outside seam, cuff-like, with a large button setting off each band. At the wrists there is a wider piping of brown than appears anywhere else on the coat, and the sleeves have sufficient novelty about them to suggest the coming of winter.

FASHIONS FOR YOUNG GIRLS.

Genuine Comfort in the Styles That Are Being Worn.

Separate half-fitting coats, short, half-pony jackets, and long garments, loose, wide-shouldered, with deep collars, or with long shoulders embroidered with soutache, or with velvet motifs or bands, are the wraps designed for the girl's use, and they are exactly the style in which girls take most genuine comfort. The majority of them are furnished with deep ornamental but capacious pockets. They come with and without storm collars, and are to be made in every variety of double-faced tweed, covert and broadcloth.

Serges, tweeds, velvets, velveteens and corduroys are the materials in which the earlier tailored dress models are shown. Practically all the varieties of plaited skirts worn by women will be repeated in the styles provided for girls, though perhaps with less fullness immediately around the foot. The proper length for girls' skirts is to the shoe tops for girls of from 12 to 15, and from that age to 18 years they are to be finished two inches from the ground. However, all rules are elastic where growing girls are concerned, and the length, after all, must be determined according to the development of the girl.—Special Autumn Fashion Number of Harper's Bazar.

Whims of the Hair.

All women know the queer whims of the hair. There are days when it will not look nice. This happens when the woman is out of temper.

The hair feels a quick sympathy and shows it. It will not lie down; it will not stand up; it will not puff and it will not braid. Hair, when one feels ill, always looks thin. It lacks stamina and acts just as the body is apt to feel.

Hair has a temper of its own, and it reflects your moods. There is a woman who declares that her hair knows the state of her mind and sympathizer with her.

Fanning the hair after it is washed gives a silky effect. It makes it lighter, more fluffy, and it separates the hairs so that they stand forth and appear to be more numerous.

Soutache on All Sorts.

Soutache trims all sorts of gowns from cloth to gauze. On a gray silk muslin gown the wide hem of the skirt is elaborate with vermicellis of the fine braid in the self tone. The ornamentation is repeated on the bretelles and kimono sleeves.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

A cloth dipped in strong cider vinegar will clean mica.

Ordinary fine salt should be kept on every kitchen washstand since it is splendid in cleaning stains from the hands.

Cheesecloth "towels" for silver and glassware will be found more desirable than crash, as they are free from lint.

Remember that salt raises the temperature of boiling water, thereby making vegetables cook more quickly when it is used.

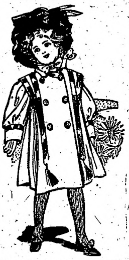
Serviceable yet handsome towels are made of huckaback with one or two insets of heavy torchon lace above the hemstitched two-inch hem.

Shoemakers' "sprigs," a variety of headless tacks, should be used to fasten down linoleum. They hold firmly, yet are invisible and do not damage the linoleum.

A safe rule for the hanging of pictures is to have the middle of the picture on a level with one's eyes—unless one is unusually tall; then it is better to have it rather low.

A pair of sharp scissors is a kitchen convenience desirable in every household. For trimming bacon and ham and trimming salads, scissors are very serviceable implements.

COAT FOR LITTLE GIRL.



A pretty fall and early winter school wrap for a child of six to eight years of age.

Mantilla Is Worn.

The graceful mantilla-shaped wraps are being worn. If one is the lucky possessor of a family heirloom in a black lace shawl this may be easily draped into one of these fashionable wraps. It will not have to be cut, only gathered on the shoulders and at the back of the neck, and this makes it hang in points in the back and front.

Reflector Stone Hat Pin.

The new reflector hat pin is decidedly extreme and unique. It is set with a large colored brilliant cut stone, beneath which is placed a reflector attached to spiral springs or some similar arrangement that causes the reflector to dangle when vibrated and send scintillations through the stone and through the open work of the ornamental output metal. The reflectors are quite large, and are entirely incased within the metal portion in a manner that they can neither be handled nor easily damaged. These hat pins come in several styles, set with various stones, such as topaz, emerald, amethyst, rubies, and other transparent varieties through which the scintillations caused by the reflector can be seen. The hat pins are effective and cost three dollars each.

Enormous plaid designs are shown in the latest silks. The colors are tartan and milder blendings, and the size of some is fully six inches square. Sartorial prophecies indicate they will be manufactured into waists, the giddiness of their proportions subdued by plaitings of plain-colored silk.

Wonder if the county commissioners really will meet today.

The district court convenes at Red Lake Falls a week from next Monday.

The weather this week has been fine from a farmer's standpoint and we need about a month just like it to clean up all the farm work.

Let us repeat it. A good education in the science of agriculture is the best gift you can give your boy. No occupation promises any surer returns than farming—as a profession. And there is as much to be learned about as about law, medicine or any of the other professions.

The county commissioners will either meet at Red Lake Falls today at ten o'clock to consider the county seat petition or show cause why they do not meet at Crookston at four o'clock before Judge Watts. It is probable that the latter course will prevail and the courts will have another try at it for some time to come.

With this issue Mr. James H. Cross who has had the active management of the Spectator for the past four months terminates his position here and takes charge of the Red Lake Falls Gazette. Mr. Cross has proved to be a newspaper man of experience and ability and will undoubtedly prove successful on the Gazette. Mr. Bert LaFreniere of Red Lake Falls will assist on the Spectator.

Resolution.

To the memory of our departed brother Louis E. Roy, who died Sept. 29, 1907, the following resolutions of sympathy and respect were adopted by the Modern Brotherhood of America, St. Hilaire Lodge No. 1704.

Whereas the Lord in his eternal wisdom has been pleased to call from our midst Louis E. Roy, a worthy and beloved brother; Be it therefore resolved that the lodge in session that, by his death, we have lost a useful member, a beloved brother and an examplary citizen.

Be it further resolved that the sympathy of the lodge be extended to the berieved parents, brothers and sisters; that a copy of the resolutions be sent to them, and one copy be published in the local paper. Also that a record of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the order, to his lasting memory, and be it further resolved that our charter be draped for thirty days in memory of our deceased brother.

Thou art called from thy field of labor
Before the noonday sun.
A message of the master
Has said, "Thy work is done."
We grieve that thou hast left us
But God would have it so,
'Tis meet we do him reverence
His mercy willed it so.
Rest peaceful in thy slumber
Beneath the earth's green sod,
Until the great day dawneth
When we shall meet with God.

The Reasons of Exports.

A generally accepted idea that a nation imports a certain class of goods for the reason that foreign countries make a better article; but in many cases the exports and imports are nearly the same. No [illegible] of foreign manufacture can equal the home brews, especially is this true of golden grain belt beer. It is a pure, refreshing beverage, highly favored for table use. Bascom and His Students.

John Bascom, once president of the University of Wisconsin, always had a keen insight into men, and for much of his life college students constituted mankind for him. Once when he was a class officer the names of two men were read by him as absent from morning prayers. One of them, a pietist, stopped at his desk and said:

"Professor, when the chapel bell was ringing I was engaged in prayer and did not hear it."

"You're not excused," responded John, with contempt in his eye and in his voice.

Then, calling back the other man, who was about at the door on his way out of the room, he said to him:

"What's your excuse?"

"I haven't any, sir."

"You're excused."

He used to have debates in his classroom. At one of them a student, whom Bascom subsequently described as a "floriating fellow," in the heat of his eloquence said, "I wish that I had the ability and the time to exhaust this subject."

"You have the time," said Bascom.—Harper's Weekly.

Smart Boy Wins.

The visitor was examining the class of small boys. He held the chalk in midair.

"What number shall I draw on the board?" he asked of one boy.

The boy replied, "Thirty-two."

The visitor drew the number backward, which made twenty-three.

"Is that right?" asked the visitor.

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," answered the boy in a timid way.

"What number shall I take now?" he asked of another.

The boy answered, "Sixty-two," whereupon the visitor drew the number backward, as before—twenty-six.

"Is that right?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the boy.

A long way back a bright-eyed boy held up a wavering hand.

"What number shall I draw for you?" asked the visitor.

The boy called out, "Forty-four!" Then, when the visitor had drawn it, he yelled out, "Now, if you are so blamed smart, twist that around!"—New York Globe.

A Financial Embarrassment.

A lady who had a kindly remembrance for all her domestic servants met an erstwhile washerwoman and stopped to ask her how she fared.

"Oh, mem, it's turrible finanshul disthress me an the childer's in!"

"Why, what is it? Are you out of employment?"

"No, mem. Work's in a fair state o' stiddiness and not a cint do I owe, but it's flashins of trouble I've got!"

"Are you not paid promptly?"

"As promptly as the day cooms round."

"What is your financial distress, then?"

"Well, mem" (in a burst of horror), "what's killin' me is, I earn $6 the week an' pay $8 for me boord, an' God only knows how I do it!"—Short Stories.

So Many?

They went in to dinner together. He was very bashful, and she tried in vain to draw him out. Finally she began to talk books, and he became responsive. "And Hugo," she asked, "do you like his style?"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I find him intensely interesting. I've read a number of his books."

Then she asked, "Have you read 'Ninety-Three'?"

"No, I've—er—only read three. I didn't know he had written so many."—Lippincott's Magazine.

As Japanese See It.

It is said the Japanese think our grown women most alarmingly overgrown, very shocking in their costume and quite dreadful as regards their teeth and their feet—in a word, outrageous. They consider the kimono preferable to western habiliments because it so completely obliterates the lines of the figure. They teach girls to talk with their lips almost closed, concealing the teeth, and to walk with the feet parallel in tiny steps or [illegible].—Kansas City Journal.

Toads' Hatching Places.

Every tiny toad lays a stupendous number of eggs. A scientist received 11,5[illegible] eggs from one toad, a necessary fertility, since the chances of an egg developing into a toad are less than one in a thousand. Within two weeks after the eggs are laid the young tadpoles begin to appear and feed first on their gelatinous envelope. Next the slimy growths common to ponds and swamps are attacked. Steadily grow the young tadpoles until their bodies enlarge to the size of thumb nails by the end of June. The long tail now is absorbed and the legs develop. They begin to leave the bank and disperse, never to return save in the breeding season. It is in the spring of the year that the toads awake from their winter sleep below the rocks and scrub. They often have been literally frozen stiff, but they return to life as healthy as ever and on the first balmy night migrate toward the nearest breeding pond. Usually this is the old homestead where they were born, for the toad is a domestic animal and will travel a mile or more for the sake of returning to the place of its hatching.—Chicago Tribune.

"Trying on" Furniture.

When you go to buy a suit of furniture nowadays in one of our department stores, you don't have to speculate as to how it will look in your room nor whether it will fit in or not. As soon as the salesman sees that a particular suit has hit your fancy he calls for a porter or two and turns them loose in one of several rooms fitted up around the main showroom, setting them at work removing all the furniture in it. Then the suit that you seem to be hankering after is placed in appropriate positions in this room, and you can see at a glance just how the bedroom or parlor or dining room will look if you buy that particular suit.

There are a dozen of these smaller rooms around the main showroom, and as each one is decorated in a different manner it is easy to pick one out that approximates the scheme of your room at home. Like many modern ways of selling goods it is expensive in the beginning, but it pays in the end, for this plan of showing goods seldom fails of its intended effect.—New York Press.

A Widow Who Was Calm.

A lawyer was entertaining dinner guests recently with stories from his personal experiences.

"A woman came into my office one afternoon and said she wanted to see a lawyer on a rather important matter," he said. "She was very prim and self possessed.

"'What can I do for you?' I asked.

"'Well,' she said, in an easy tone, 'my husband was hurt in the wreck the other day.'

"I noticed she was dressed in mourning, but from her indifferent tone I gathered that it had no connection with her husband's accident.

"'Was your husband badly injured?' I asked.

"'Yes,' she answered in the same quiet voice. 'He got his head cut off.'"—Kansas City Times.

Last Friday was a lucky day for H. C. Adams, the genial agent for the Red Lake Falls Milling Company. W. King, Park Rapids Minn., enrolled upon our books for the ensuing year. Mr. Adams has our many thanks for the favor and we only wish there others who could find a few dollars to pass along our way.

With the approach of winter one should see to it that the chimneys at their homes as well as their place of business are in shape for fire protection. If you have never had to get up out of bed in the middle of the winter to attend a fire in your own home, with the mercury at about forty below, we can assure you that it is no joke and the sooner you have attended to the fire obstacles the better off you will be. When the winds sweep down across the country direct from the north pole at the rate of not less than three hundred miles a minute, a night robe and a sore throat is not a pleasant thing with which to brave the storm.

Farmer's Bulletin No. 79, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after pointing out the great future of the sugar-beet industry in the United States, says: "In general it may be said that any soil which will produce a good crop of Indian corn, wheat, or potatoes will, under proper cultivation, produce a good crop of sugar beets." What possibilities has that rapidly growing money producer for this county? Is anyone prepared to say, basing his say so on fair trial in the county? Had there been an experiment station on a small scale in the neighborhood—a county agricultural school for instance—where careful experiments could be carried on we could have direct information of the highest class on that point as well as on a host of others.

Attend school every day. Each day counts. Staying out a day now and then leaves your school work in a worse condition. It may seem all right on the surface but you can be sure it is far from sound. There is as much difference in the value of a perfect attendance and one cut up by absences as there is between the value of a sound log and one cut full of worm holes. Try to be regular.

In teaching about mountains to a geography class of pupils some of whom have never seen a hill ever, letting alone mountains, pictures are very helpful. The railway companies are publishing some really artistic pamphlets and folders containing mountain sceneries, and for the want of anything better some of these have been sent for and are doing good service. The seventh grade is trying to complete geography this year and by keeping up the grade of work done so far, they bid fair to do so.

How fortunate! Just now after having studied a live mud turtle some one strikes upon and brings to school some mud turtle's eggs! The eggs seem to have been white once upon a time but now they look gray because of the sand and mud clinging to them. They are about an inch long, are more elongated than a hen's egg and, unlike hers, are about the same thickness at both ends. Instead of having shells, the outer portion of the egg is a tough pliable film. The eggs are on exhibit in the primary room, having been brought in by one of its wideawake pupils, Dorothy Martz.

WHEN MOLLY CAME HOME.

I had two kittens. One was named Molly and the other Tommy. Molly was my favorite pet. I gave her milk every day. I did not like Tommy so well because he always scratched me when I took him up to play with him. One day I was going to give them some milk. I called for them. Tommy came but Molly didn't. So I began to look for her but couldn't find her. I knew then she was lost. I think she must have gone out in the woods to look for birds and could not find her way out again. I was sorry because I had lost my pet. I gave Tommy some milk and put him in the yard for the rest of the day so he couldn't go away. He seemed very lonesome because he had lost his friend. They always played together all the time. It was nearly three months after when one day I was going to give Tommy some milk. He did not like to come. Looking up I saw another cat with him that looked like Molly. It came when I called to it and sure enough it was she. I was glad because it had come back again and Tommy seemed to be very glad too.

The Boomerang and Its Inventors.

The boomerang is rather a puzzle. One might think that the highest laws of mathematics had been laid under contribution in the perfecting of it. The convexity on one side, the flatness on the other and the sharp, knifelike edge on the inside of the convexity have the air of having been carefully thought out. Yet the people who invented this singular weapon cannot count higher than five and are destitute of all the arts and amenities of life. Theirs is perhaps the lowest plane of human life. Some people have assumed that the boomerang was the creation of an older and higher civilization, but for this there is no evidence. It must be the product of an age long empirical use of throwing weapons.—London Spectator.

Sandy's Criticism.

A young Scotchman went to a London school of music, where he learned to play the violoncello fairly well. On his return to his native village he gathered his friends together to hear his new instrument. When he had played one or two tunes, he looked up expectantly. "Eh, mann," he said, "it's a mairey there's na smell wi' it!"—Liverpool Mercury.

And the Boy Was Right.

Do You Want to Make The Women Happy?

Shopping by Mail is vastly unsatisfactory to the Female.

There isn't a woman in Christendom—or in Islam—who doesn't prefer ten times over the trip through a store to the trip to the postoffice.

Why, Lord bless their hearts, the ladies love to shop! It's just as unsatisfying and artificial to shop by mail as to make love by mail—and that's the limit.

But, while the women love to walk through aisles of bargains, they love also to read about the bargains. When a newspaper comes to the house, which page does the woman peruse first? The page with the biggest shopping ads. Sure thing! Won't fail one time in ten. Test it and see.

In communities where the merchants don't advertise big enough to tempt the women, what happens? The Mail Order Catalogue comes along, full of attractive ads., with prices put down in black and white. The women read the catalogue; they are tempted by the bargains offered; they send their money by mail.

Thus they miss nine-tenths of the glory and joy of shopping. But what else can the poor ladies do?

Now, Mr. Merchant of Our Town, be good to the ladies. Give them some interesting reading matter. Print some of your bargains in your home paper. Put the prices there in black and white.

Isn't it really a pity to deprive the ladies of one of their supreme delights—shopping, seeing things, inspecting before taking?

BE GOOD TO THE LADIES AND YOU'LL BE PROSPEROUS.

JACK'S TRAINING

By ROSE TERRY COOKE

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Mr. Brown was a very good man—"awfully good," little Polly Peabody said. Perhaps he was. He was reasonable as a treatise on logic, and calm as a Quaker; strictly honest, even-tempered and perfectly well. All he needed was better eyesight.

Not that his eyes were weak. Those clear, blue, serene eyes never flinched from any shine of sun or gas. It was moral eyesight that failed him. He never could see beyond his own shadow.

"Why does Jones get so excited over his business matters?" Mr. Brown would inquire, with mild surprise. "I never do. He really should be more tranquil." Or, "Why is Robinson disturbed by his political defeat? I do not allow the inevitable to disturb my sleep and wear on my system.".

No. Good as Mr. Brown was, he lacked charity. He never could see why all the rest of the world could not be as well-balanced as he was, and he blamed the world because it was not.

Why he should fall in love with little Polly Peabody was a problem nobody could solve; but then that kind of problem is always difficult. Polly was a gay, rosy school girl, with brown curly hair flying all about her head, dimples of the wickedest sort in either cheek, laughing brown eyes, and as much mischief as would have furnished two monkeys, a parrot and a kitten. But she had a clear head and plenty of penetration, and she was the pet of all the school.

Polly liked him very much, he sent her such lovely bouquets, so nicely arranged. He disapproved of candy, being a reader of "horrid chemical books," as Polly called them; but he brought her candied fruits, French chocolate and rare foreign sweetmeats, some of which, I regret to say, she ordered into the kitchen at once, because they tasted like spiced rhubarb!

The end of it all was, however, that they were married in early September and went off on the orthodox wedding tour.

Perhaps it was not all perfect bliss—wedding tours are not always. Jack would hump his shoulder uneasily when Polly wanted to rest her head there. He did not think it was proper at all. Then she curled down on his elbow, and he could not be quite brutal enough to withdraw it from the beautiful little head, the soft cheek, the sleepy eyes, that nestled under his wing so confidingly.

But though she would eat all kinds of things at hotels, and would not be sick, as he prophesied, and ran a race round the park before breakfast with two little cousins they met there, Mr. Brown bore it pretty well; better than Polly did when Aunt Schuyler, a fashionable female with a dash of strong-mindedness about her, that failed dreadfully for want of the needful mind, said to her one fine morning:

"I quite like your Mr. Brown, Paulina. He appears to be a man of superior intellect, but he reserves himself too much. His cerebration is too occult."

Here Polly giggled, and madame glared at her.

"It is evidently your mission, my dear, to develop this inner life; to exhibit the soul which now withdraws itself in solitude. Yes, even you have a mission."

"Stuff!" laughed the profane Polly. "I never want to have a mission. I don't believe in missions, Aunt Nancy." Mrs. Schuyler's name was Annetje, and she was Dutch from before the flood. "I shall darn his stockings if the holes aren't too big, and I shall brighten up this poky old house, you may be sure; but as for Jack, he'll do as he is."

Mrs. Schuyler sighed as Polly rushed down the piazza to meet Jack, glowing with affection and indignation, and sweeping the dusty floor with a vast besom of musical ruffles like the tail of a white peacock.

Alas! how little Polly knew that Mr. Brown was at the moment thinking it was his mission to educate her into his own ways and manners. I think she would have boxed his ears then and there could she have read that orderly brain. But they went home as ignorant of each other as people usually are after a six months' acquaintance, and began their mutual life.

Polly was certainly bewitching. It was hard for John to find fault with her, and it was a long while before she saw flaws in her "dear old Jack." But at last he mustered courage. Polly was a sensitive creature and came down one rainy autumn morning all cuddled up in a big, soft shawl, with her nose quite blue.

"O Pussy, do get out of my way!" she snapped at the kitten as she stumbled over it. She did not like the coffee at all, and then the cream jug slipped out of her hand and flooded the sugar bowl, and she set it down with a bang on the waiter.

"What ails you, my dear?" calmly inquired Mr. Brown. "Are you ill today?"

"Oh, it's this nasty weather! An east wind always makes me as cross as two sticks, Jack. I can't help it—ugh!"

"It is not worth while to be a weather-cock, Paulina. Be reasonable, my dear. I never allow the weather to affect me."

It did not occur to him that he was not a tingling bundle of sensitive nerves and delicate organs like the little woman before him. John Brown's fair skin was thick, his muscles firm, his circulation vigorous. How could weather affect him?

But on this string he played to Polly week after week, and yet she would not dance; she was weary of the tune, and her quick brain came to her rescue. One snowy day when John returned to dinner, an odd bundle on the sash of the bay-window attracted his eye. There seemed to be flannel and fur together.

"Paulina, what in the world is this?" he asked of the demure little creature who sat by the fire warming her wee feet on the fender.

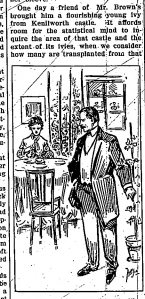
"That's only the thermometer, dear. It will keep going down and down this cold day. I'm trying to improve it. It is so absurd to be affected by the weather. I thought I would put things round it, but it don't seem to mind them much. It's so unreasonable!" And here she heaved a deep sigh, so evidently ordered for the occasion that Mr. Brown bit his lip as he turned away to the table.

If he said nothing, perhaps, like the famous speechless parrot, he kept up a terrible thinking, for Polly heard no more about her "unreasonable sensitiveness," but suddenly became the possessor of certain fur-lined slippers, the softest of white India shawls for home wear, and sealskin furs that swallowed up her fairy figure in their downy darkness, till winter vexed the days in vain as far as Polly was concerned.

But the education went on in other ways. If physical nature could no more be changed than the mercury in the thermometer, certainly that bright mind could shape itself to rules, that wayward, witching nature subdue itself to dignity and calmness. Foolish man! But was he the first of his kind? or will be he be the last?

Polly was not plastic; no more is the rose tree when you try to make an oak of it. Some plants die in the training; others burst the straps and assert themselves. She was by no means one of the dying kind. She fully understood at length what her husband was about, and laughed in her sleeve.

One day a friend of Mr. Brown's brought him a flourishing young ivy from Kenilworth castle. It affords room for the statistical mind to inquire the area of that castle and the extent of its ivies, when we consider how many are transplanted from that one locality. But Mr. Brown had an unusual taste for plants, and was gratified by the remembrance.



"Paulina, What Is That For?"

The ivy grew well in the east bay window, and had already thrown its graceful length half way up the sash, when Mr. Brown found it one fine morning tied with full 20 strings to a straight, wooden rod, its shining leaves strapped to stiff paper spills at right angles with the stem, the whole thing looking ungainly and tortured enough.

Polly sat at the table, carefully pouring out the tea, as innocent in aspect as any lamb.

"Paulina, what is that for?" And Mr. Brown pointed a severe finger at the ivy.

"Oh, I thought I'd train it into a bush, it would be so much easier to take care of!"

"Train it into a bush! You can't do it. Whoever heard of making a vine into a shrub?"

"Why, Jack, I thought you liked to make things the way you want them if it isn't their nature."

A sort of lightning flash went through Jack's brain at this demure little speech. He seemed to see Polly prim, and proper, as he recalled his maiden aunts and his grandmother. He turned cold at the idea, and then he colored to his fair hair.

"Polly!" said he, with an inexpressible accent of conviction and contrition, holding out his arms.

"Jackey," cried Polly, half-laughing and half-sobbing, "can't you like me the way I grew?"

"Like you!" The exclamation was immediately smothered.

When Mrs. Cortland Schuyler passed through Boston two years after, and saw John Brown lying on the palor floor with a curly, crowing baby astride of his manly breast, and Paulina on a cushion beside him trying to show the aforesaid infant how to pull its father's whiskers, that estimable woman shook her head and sighed.

"Paulina," said she severely, "have you fulfilled your mission?"

"No, ma'am," replied Polly, "not that one."

Glass Telegraph Poles.

A stock company has been organized and a factory for the manufacturing of glass poles has been built at Grossalmerode, a town near Cassel, Germany. The glass mass of which the poles are made is strengthened by interlacing and intertwining with strong wire threads.

One of the principal advantages of these poles would be their use in tropical countries, where wooden poles are soon destroyed by the ravages of insects and where climatical influences are ruinous to wood. The selling price of the poles has not been fixed yet, but the company is willing to accept 25 marks ($6) for a pole of the length of seven meters (about 23 feet). The imperial post department which has contral of the telegraph and telephone lines in Germany, has ordered the use of these glass poles on one of their tracts.

A MISSING MINISTER

By ELLA RODMAN CHURCH

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Miss Margie Rubbleton, sister of Rev. Samuel Rubbleton, was quietly sewing this afternoon, when she was suddenly disturbed by a loud rapping at the door. On opening she found young Nelson Chardleigh there in a most excited frame of mind. Nelson was to be married to pretty Florence Eberton the next afternoon. In answer to a question as to the cause of his visit he said:

"I am really troubled—and that is why I am here. You were always a kind friend of mine, and, perhaps you can advise me what to do. His reverence, as you perceive, is not forthcoming. I went to the station before the morning train was due, and waited patiently until all the living freight had disembarked; but no Mr. Rubbleton. You know he said, on going away, that he would probably take the morning train; if not, he would be sure to come at evening—but he would feel safer to come in the morning. Now, when you reflect that there is only one more train in which he could possibly come, in order to perform the ceremony—and that something may occur to cause him to miss the train—you must admit that circumstances look rather discouraging."

The poor fellow was evidently in a state of great nervous excitement, as well he might be; for if Samuel gave him the slip at the last moment (as I thought he was quite likely to do), would he not be set down as "a laggard in love," like the miserable rival of "young Lochinvar?"

"Miss Margie, what is to be done? It will scarcely be safe to hang our last hope upon the evening train; and quest of some one else. Suppose that Mr. Rubbleton should have a fit? Or 50,000 other things that might happen? Just put yourself in my place, Miss Margie, and fancy how you would feel under the circumstances! Of course, you couldn't, though, very well; but I'll tell you how I feel—like going out to engage some one to officiate to-morrow, in case Mr. Rubbleton don't appear."

"But would any of the clergy be willing to make such an arrangement?" said I, smiling at the idea.

"We can drum them up and try," was the eager response.

"There is Dr. Poacher," said I, reflectingly; "he is the nearest—we might go to him first."

"That stiff-looking, old gentleman, who is so absent-minded?" was the irreverent reply. "I am afraid he would read the burial service over us by mistake."

"Well," said I, not able to contradict this statement, "suppose we try Dr. Kem?"

"He'll do nicely, I've no doubt;; but let us start speedily, Miss Margie, for October afternoons have wings, you know."

I heaved a quiet sigh as I glanced at my sewing; but it seemed to be my fate always to have some helpless man on my hands, who required all my time and energies.

In answer to our ring a smiling servant informed us that Mr. Klem was out to tea at the time.

I verily believe that Nelson would have had the reverend gentleman dragged from the tea-table, without the slightest compunction, had I not interposed and informed our smiling friend with as severe a look as I could muster, that we would not trouble him farther. We left him standing on the broad steps, and gazing after us with a wondering smile stereotyped on his face.

"Didn't that gentleman strike you as a little peculiar?" asked the unsuspecting Nelson.

He was evidently a stranger to the conviction that had suddenly flashed through my mind, and amused me mightily.

"Where shall we go?" Nelson asked in dismay.

"I scarcely dare mention Dr. Poacher again," said I.

"Let us try him!" he exclaimed.

A walk of about a mile farther brought us to a nice, old-fashioned place where Dr. Poacher spent much of his time in secluded study. We were almost sure of finding him, and raised the brass knocker quite confidently.

A very honest looking Irishwoman, who was afflicted with a chronic grin, soon made her appearance, and gazed upon us with tender interest. It was some little time before we learned that Mr. Poacher was not just at home now."

"How soon would he be in?" was the eager inquiry.

"Mebbe in an hour; you can come back and see."

We exchanged looks; and the Irishwoman assured us that "she would hold him at home for us when he came."

"What did possess that woman to grin so?" said Nelson, rather angrily, as we left the door. "Have you any idea, Miss Margie? Is there anything queer about either of us, that people act so curiously?"

"Yes," I replied, enjoying his excitement, "I have some idea."

"Well, what is it?"

"Why, I think all these people imagine that you have been silly enough to select me for the bride."

"Too bad!" he exclaimed, "for you, Miss Margie! After your kindness, too! What can we do about it? Shall we go home?"

"No!" I replied, stoutly. "If they choose to be so silly, let them have the benefit of it. I do not mind them in the least; and I am determined to see this business through."

"I admire your spirit," said my companion, laughing; "and I should be only too glad to see this business through likewise. But what evil spirit has entered into the clergy of this benighted place, to send them all gadding on this particular afternoon?"

We wandered for half an hour, and then, suddenly remembering the possible return of Samuel, I grew frightened, and we concluded to make a fresh application to the brass knocker.

The Irishwoman beamed all over, and marshaled us into the front parlor with evident delight.

"Here they are, your riverence!" she exclaimed, triumphantly; and we found ourselves fronting Dr. Poacher, while a mischievous looking girl, his niece, stood on one side, evidently in a state of amused expectation, and our Irish friend ambled off to the other.

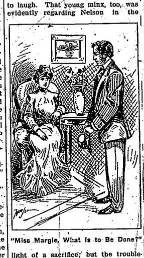
The expression of the doctor's face, as he recognized me, is better imagined than described.

"Miss Margaret Rubbleton!" he exclaimed, in undisguised astonishment.

To explain all this, it is necessary to say that our Hibernian friend had seized the doctor the moment he appeared, and told him that he was wanted "right away," to marry a couple that were almost ready to cry when they found that he was not to be had on the spot; "a swate-lookin' young feller and a rale nice lady—a little old-like, mebbe, for the boy, but as pleasant spoken a lady as ever stepped." They would be back again, she added, "in the wink of an eye." Anticipating much fun from this performance, the mischievous niece had begged the favor of being present as a witness; the tender-hearted serving woman had put in a duplicate petition; and here was the household drawn up in battle array as we entered, quite bent upon doing their best to join us in the bands of holy matrimony!

"Miss Margaret Rubblton!" said the worthy doctor; and here he stopped, overpowered by his emotions.

I felt my face growing painfully red, while the ridiculousness of the position raised a troublesome inclination to laugh. That young minx, too, was evidently regarding Nelson in the light of a sacrifice; but the troublesome fellow himself seemed struck with dumbness.



"Miss Margie, What Is to Be Done?"

"Let me explain to you," said I, but I could get no farther, and I believed I was growing hysterical.

Dr. Poacher bowed stiffly, as though waiting the solution of the riddle; and presently Nelson, with a manliness that delighted me, came to the rescue.

"I think," said he, a little hesitatingly at first, but gathering strength as he proceeded, "that there is a mistake somewhere. I wish to be married, but Miss Rubbleton does not—and she kindly volunteered to introduce me to Dr. Poacher, whose services I am desirous to secure for tomorrow morning, in the event of Mr. Rubbleton's failing us by the morning train."

"Now," said the doctor, laughing more heartily than I had ever seen him laugh before; while the niece and the Irishwoman disappeared, "do you know what I thought?"

"Yes," I replied, quite boldly, "I know exactly what you thought, and am humbly obliged for my share of the compliment. You thought Margaret Rubbleton an old fool, and Mr. Chardleigh a young one; but let me tell you, Dr. Poacher, that my brother Samuel is at the bottom of all this, for we were very much afraid of his giving us the slip this evening."

"I parted from him not half an hour ago," said the doctor, comically, "as he was taking rapid strides from the station to his own house."

Nelson escorted me to the gate, and then laughingly departed. No expostulation could induce him to face Mr. Rubbleton that evening.

I have good reason for supposing that Nelson Chardleigh went post haste to his bride that evening, with a highly-varnished account of our adventure, and an extravagant picture of my merits; for a little, scented note, received early the next morning, insisted so warmly upon my presence at the wedding, that I really could not refuse.

Mistakes of Drug Clerks.

"There is one loss sustained by druggists that very few people know about," said the experienced clerk. "That is in the prescriptions that have to be made over, the same as clerks, stenographers, writers and artists, no matter how painstaking, frequently have to do their work over. The most careful drug clerk in existence is bound to make mistakes sometimes in measuring and mixing.

"He may pour in too much of some kind of liquid or sift in too much of a certain powder. In most cases the overdose would not really affect the value of the medicine, but the conscientious clerk isn't going to take any chances of murdering anybody, so he throws away the whole mixture and makes up another prescription."

An Odd Legend.

Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the Jefferson family of actors, was remembered curiously in the will of Weston, who was himself an esteemed member of Garrick's company. Weston's will contained this item:

"I have played under the management of Mr. Jefferson, at Richmond, and received from him every politeness. I, therefore, leave him all my stock of prudence, it being the only good quality I think he stands in need of."

SPAIN'S CANNY RAILROADS.

Visitors Have to Pay for a Ticket Merely to Go on the Platform.

In Spain the railroads do not lose a chance to make a little profit, even in the case of the non-travelers. When you see somebody off in that country you must pay for the privilege.

The railroads all sell billetes de anten, which are good for the platform only. These cost generally five centimos, equivalent to a cent in American money.

Just why this is done it is hard to see, because persons entering a train cannot very well avoid the conductor, who is always making trips to inspect the carriages. If a person attempted to steal a ride in a carriage he would have a small chance of getting away with it. If caught he would have to pay a penalty of just twice the fare between the point where he was discovered and the point where tickets last were inspected.

Origin of Cards.

The origin of cards lies far back in the hidden antiquity of Asia, no record so far having been found to unravel the source. It was from the distant Orient that cards, along with chess, were first introduced into Southern Europe, Spain and Italy, especially. The earliest of these cards have been lost, unfortunately, and no record of them preserved. But in no way were they even a suggestion of our present-day cards.

Circumstantial Evidence.

The crushed tragedian smiled sadly as he dodged with agility scarcely to be expected from one of his ripe genius, the various tributes of nature's mature production which were making a great hit with him.

"From the way antique eggs are coming this way," he muttered, "I imagine that a most foul conspiracy is being hatched against me!"

The Sultan of Morocco.

It is not generally known that the sultan of Morocco, with whom France—is having so much trouble at the present moment, has Frecnh blood in his veins, for he is descended from a Corsican girl, Davia Franceschini, who was captured by Barbary pirates in 1792. This fact may perhaps account for the very strong leaning which Abdul Aziz has for European ways.

Revision.

Miss Church—Our minister is very strongly in favor of Bible revision.

Miss Wise—So is his daughter.

Miss Church—Who? Mae?

Miss Wise—Yes; her name is "Mary Catherine" in their family Bible, but she wants to scratch it out and make it "Mae Kathryn."

FAKED MUMMIES DON'T PAY.

The Genuine Egyptian Article Too Cheap, German Expert Declares.

The scorn of Dr. R. Forrer, a German Egyptologist, is excited by the accounts which have appeared in various European newspapers of the fabrication of fake mummies which are sold to simple collectors as the genuine article thousands of years old. He writes to the Strasburg Post to say that there isn't a word of truth in the story and that the periodical arrival of stories of mummy factories in Paris and elsewhere must be placed in the same category with the sea serpent yarns.

"A false mummy manufacturer would die of starvation," says Dr. Forrer. "In the first place, there is no great demand for mummies.

"Besides, the supply of mummies is practically inexhaustible and the price of all ordinary ones is so low that a manufacturer in Paris could not box his mummy and send it to Cairo to be sold for the price that the genuine article can be bought at there, with its painted case and the certificate of the Cairo museum as to its genuineness.

"When I was in Egypt some years ago I saw an illustration of the unlimited supply of mummies. Around El Achmin the felehs had dug up hundreds of mummies to plunder the coffins of the trinkets and other valuable objects often buried in them. The bodies and coffins were left tumbled about there in the most disgraceful way. They were commercially valueless, and the natives would not take the trouble to reinter them.

"To talk of a trade in false mummies is simply preposterous."

His Word Not Good.

John and Jim agreed to settle a difference by fighting it out. It was understood that whoever wanted to quit should cry "'nough!" John had Jim down and was hammering him soundly when Jim cried "'nough!" But John paid no attention to his cry and kept on pounding him. Again and again Jim called out "'nough!" But John paid no heed and kept busy with his fists. A boy standing near asked:

"Why don't you let the feller up? He's yelled ''nough!'"

"But he's such a liar you can't believe him."

Metals and Metaphors.

"It is most amazing," said a metallurgist, "how the world relies on metals for its metaphors and similies. Thus an orator is silver tongued or golden-mouthed. An explorer is bronzed by African suns. A resolute chap has an iron will. A sluggard moves with leaden feet. An ostrich has a copper-lined stomach. A millionaire has tin. A swindler is as slippery as quicksilver. A borrower has brass."

New Answers to Questions.

Customer—Will that wear well?

Tailro—No; not particularly. It's a rather poorly made cloth and won't make up any too well, either. The fit is likely to be poor, too, and our prices are exorbitant. Draper & Co., at No. 117, are showing a splendid line of suitings and their prices are quite low.—Puck.

TEN YEARS OF PAIN.

Unable to Do Even Housework Because of Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. Margaret Emmerich, of Clinton St., Napoleon, O., says: "For fifteen years I was a great sufferer from kidney troubles. My back pained me terribly. Every turn or move caused sharp, shooting pains. My eyesight was poor, dark spots appeared before me, and I had dizzy spells. For ten years I could not do housework, and for two years did not get out of the house. The Kidney secretions were irregular, and doctors were not helping me. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me quick relief, and finally cured me. They saved my life."

WATCHING THE AUTOMOBILE.

Owner and Chaffeur Have Anxious Moments While in a Restaurant.

The man who drove up to the restaurant in an automobile brought his chaffeur in with him to eat. They stood around for several minutes, while the waiters posed at tables all about.

"I want a seat from which I can watch my car," said the owner, when the head waiter approached to find out why the hesitation. "You know that there have been so many cases recently of cars being stolen from in front of restaurants and hotels that I do not want to take any chances."

They got their seats all right within easy range of the automobile, one of the American made machines of the $2,500 type. It is safe to say that the worry incidental to that meal caused a not inconsiderable amount of indigestion. Either master or man had an eye on the automobile throughout the entire meal.

The Right Day.

Dick—Yes, the beautiful blonde accepted me.

Jack—Accepted you? Why, six fellows proposed to her and she refused them all.

Dick—Yes, but I proposed on the right day.

Jack—What day was that?

Dick—Friday. She couldn't resist. Friday is bargain day, you know.

Alcohol From Beets.

Kansas is to have a large share in the manufacture of denatured alcohol in wholesale quantities in a few years, the material for its manufacture being the waste products from the beet sugar refineries. The tops of the beets and the portion of the upper part usually cut off and discarded are to be used in the manufacture of alcohol, and capitalists are interested in the erection of refineries at Garden City.

"BOO-HOO"

Shouts a Spanked Baby.

A Doctor of Divinity, now Editor of a well-known Religious paper, has written regarding the controversy between Collier's Weekly and the Religious Press of the Country and others, including ourselves. Also regarding suits for libel brought by Collier's against us for commenting upon its methods.

These are his sentiments, with some very emphatic words left out.

"The religious Press owes you a debt of gratitude for your courage in showing up Collier's Weekly as the "Yell-Oh Man." Would you care to use the inclosed article on the "Boo Hoo Baby" as the "Yell-Oh Man's successor?"

"A contemporary remarks that Collier's has finally run against a solid hickory "Post" and been damaged in its own estimation to the tune of $750,000.00."

"Here is a publication which has, in utmost disregard of the facts, spread broadcast damaging statements about the Religious Press and others and has suffered those false statements to go uncontradicted until, not satisfied after finding the Religious Press too quiet, and peaceful, to resent the insults, it makes the mistake of wandering into fresh field and butts its rattled head against this Post and all the World laughs. Even Christians smile, as the Post suddenly turns and gives it back a dose of its own medicine."

"It is a mistake to say all the World laughs. No cheery laugh comes from Collier's, but it cries and boo hoos like a spanked baby and wants $750,000.00 to soothe its tender, lacerated feelings."

"Thank Heaven it has at last struck a man with "back bone" enough to call a spade a "spade" and who believes in telling the whole truth without fear or favor."

Perhaps Collier's with its "utmost disregard for the facts," may say no such letter exists. Nevertheless it is on file in our office and is only one of a mass of letters and other data, newspaper comments, etc., denouncing the "yellow" methods of Collier's. This volume is so large that a man could not well go thru it under half a day's steady work. The letters come from various parts of America.

Usually a private controversy is not interesting to the public, but this is a public controversy.

Collier's has been using the "yellow" methods to attract attention to itself, but, jumping in the air, cracking heels together and yelling "Look at me" wouldn't suffice, so it started out on a "Holler Than Thou" attack on the Religious Press and on medicine.

We leave it to the public now, as we did when we first resented Collier's attacks, to say whether, in a craving for sensation and circulation, its attacks do not amount to a systematic mercenary hounding. We likewise leave it to the public to say whether Collier's, by its own policy and methods, has not made itself more ridiculous than any comment of ours could make it.

Does Collier's expect to regain any self-inflicted loss of prestige by demonstrating thru suits for damages, that it can be more artful in evading liability for libels than the humble but resentful victims of its defamation, or does it hope for starting a campaign of libel suits to silence the popular indignation, reproach and resentment which it has aroused.

Collier's can not dodge this public controversy by private law suits. It can not postpone the public judgment against it. That great jury, the Public, will hardly blame us for not waiting until we get a petit jury in a court room, before denouncing this prodigal detractor of institutions founded and fostered either by individuals or by the public, itself.

No announcements during our entire business career were ever made claiming "medicinal effects" for either Postum or Grape-Nuts. Medicinal effects are results obtained from the use of medicines.

Thousands of visitors go thru our entire works each month and see for themselves that Grape-Nuts contains absolutely nothing but wheat, barley and a little salt; Postum absolutely nothing but wheat and about ten per cent of New Orleans Molasses. The art of preparing these simple elements in a scientific manner to obtain the best food value and flavor, required some work and experience to acquire.

Now, when any publication goes far enough out of its way to attack us because our advertising is "medical," it simply offers a remarkable exhibition of ignorance or worse.

We do claim physiological or bodily results of favorable character following the adoption of our suggestions regarding the discontinuance of coffee and foods which may not be keeping the individual in good health. We have no advice to offer the perfectly healthful person. His or her health is evidence in itself that the beverages and foods used exactly fit that person. Therefore, why change?

But to the man or woman who is ailing, we have something to say us a result of an unusually wide experience in food and the result of proper feeding.

In the palpably ignorant attack on us in Collier's, appeared this statement,—"One widely circulated paragraph labors to induce the impression that Grape-Nuts will obviate the necessity of an operation in appendicitis. This is lying and potentially deadly lying."

In reply to this exhibition of—well let the reader name it, the Postum Co., says:

Let it be understood that appendicitic results from long continued disturbance in the intestines, caused primarily by undigested starchy food such as white bread, potatoes, rice, partly cooked cereals and such.

Starchy food is not digested in the upper stomach but passes on into the duodenum, or lower stomach and intestines, where, in a healthy individual, the transformation of the starch into a form of sugar is completed and then the food absorbed by the blood.

But if the powers of digestion are weakened, a part of the starchy food will lie in the warmth and moisture of the body and decay, generating gases and irritating the mucous surfaces until under such conditions the whole lower part of the alimentary canal, including the colon and the appendix, becomes involved. Disease sets up and at times takes the form known as appendicitis.

When the symptoms of the trouble make their appearance, would it not be good, practical, common sense, to discontinue the starchy food which is causing the trouble and take a food in which the starch has been transformed into a form of sugar in the process of manufacture?

This is identically the same form of sugar found in the human body after starch has been perfectly digested.

Now, human food is made up very largely of starch and is required by the body for energy and warmth. Naturally, therefore, its use should be continued, if possible, and for the reasons given above it is made possible in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts.

In connection with this change of food to bring relief from physical disturbances, we have suggested washing out the intestines to get rid of the immediate cause of the disturbance.

Naturally, there are cases where the disease has lain dormant and the abuse continued too long, until apparently only the knife will avail. But it is a well-established fact among the best physicians who are acquainted with the details above recited, that preventative measures are far and away the best.

Are we to be condemned for suggesting a way to prevent disease by following natural methods and for perfecting a food that contains no "medicine" and produces no "medicinal effects" but which has guided literally thousands of persons from sickness to health? We have received during the years past upwards of 25,000 letters from people who have been either helped or made entirely well by following our suggestions, and they are simple.

If coffee disagrees and causes any of the ailments common to some coffee users quit it and take on Postum.

If white bread, potatoes, rice and other starch foods make trouble, quit, and use Grape-Nuts food which is largely predigested and will digest, nourish and strengthen, when other forms of food do not. It's just plain old common sense.

BABY WASTED TO SKELETON.

In Torments with Terrible Sores on Face and Body—Tore at Flesh—Cured by Cuticura.

"My little son, when about a year and a half old began to have sores come out on his face. They began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton and was hardly able to walk. I sent to the drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind since, and only for the Cuticura Remedies my precious child would have died from these terrible sores. I used only one cake of Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D. No. 1, Woodville, Conn., April 22, 1905."

A Terrible Possibility.

Little Lucy came home from school crying piteously. It was some time before the family could learn the cause of her trouble, but finally the sobbing grew less violent, and she wailed out:

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

MILLIONS OF OPIUM SMOKERS.

China Frightened at Her Own Demoralization as a Result.

The casual observer may think that the opium traffic—smuggling opium, smoking opium, and eating opium—is a minor trade, and indulged in, by only a few reckless habitues who want to be wafted to other worlds. This is not so. The stamina and the character of the entire Chinese race have already been so sapped by this drug that the resulting demoralization has frightened even the degraded victims of the habit. To-day China, drugged, debauched, frightened at her own desperate condition, is grappling with the vice that has her by the throat. No such heroic effort at moral reform has ever before been made by a human government. And the Christians who debauched her are looking on, skeptically, questioning China's "sincerity." At Tien-tsin, where the Chinese officials had closed all the opium dens in the native city, Mr. Merwin found the dens in the foreign concessions licensed for revenue by the foreign consuls, running wide open. In vain the Chinese officials protested that this laxity completely nullified the effort of their own prohibition. The consuls could not see their way clear to give up the revenue. Truly, it is an extraordinary story.

The most conservative official estimate of the opium-smoking population in China is 100,000,000—only 16,000,000 more than the entire population of the United States. Many officials place the number at 150,000,000.—Success Magazine.

RHEUMATISM RECIPE

PREPARE SIMPLE HOME-MADE MIXTURE YOURSELF.

Buy the Ingredients from Any Druggist in Your Town and Shake Them in a Bottle to Mix This.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being a vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of even the small towns elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists will mix the prescription if asked to.

The Good Provider.

"Though Mrs. McKinley," said a Canton clergyman, "left an estate of about $200,000, she was one of the most charitable women in Ohio. Her experiences in charity work were interesting. I used to like to hear her talk of them.

"She once told me about a colored widow whose children she had helped to educate. The widow rather late in life, married. A few months after she was married Mrs. McKinley asked her how she was getting on.

"'I'se a-gittin' on fine, thank ye,' the bride answered.

"'And is your husband a good provider?" said Mrs. McKinley.

CONTROLLING THE COLORADO.

How the Southern Pacific Company Repaired a Break.

Mr. Harriman promptly took command of the forces of man against nature. With feverish energy, the Southern Pacific company's laborers set to work to repair the Lower Mexican Heading break. Twenty-four hours at a stretch they worked. Every freight car for miles around was pressed into service, hurried to the scene, and pushed back and forth, dumping loads of rock and gravel into the stream. Passenger trains even were held up time and again, while engineers borrowed their locomotives for help in the struggle.

In fifteen days from the time that the work was begun, the break had been closed and the Colorado hurled back into its proper channel. Seventy-seven thousand cubic yards of rock, gravel and clay had man expended in the fight. With this he had patched up a break which the steady onslaught of the river had opened to a width of 1,100 feet in the soft earth banks. The fight was won.

Day by day swarms of workmen are making the great dam stronger and higher. One hundred and forty thousand cubic yards of material, 80,000 of which will be solid rock, will be used to withstand future onslaughts of the river. The great wall, when completed, will be sixty-five feet high, ten feet of which will be above the level of the water. And the Colorado, as it laps this unyielding barrier, must realize that its destructive wanderings are over for all time.

"There's a Reason"

THE GOOD MILKER MAKES THE GOOD COW

What the Hegelund Method Is and What It Is Claimed That It Will Do.

In a recent bulletin of the New York Cornell station, dealing with this subject, Professors Wing and Foord say:

"Milking the dairy cow is such a simple operation and one that occupies in the aggregate so much of the dairyman's time, that it is easy to become careless about it and to look upon the operation as one not requiring skill nor demanding scientific investigation. The feeding of the herd has received careful attention, both by investigators and farmers, until it is now probably correct to say that the dairy cow in the hands of the progressive dairyman is more scientifically fed and nourished than most children. The ventilation and sanitation of stables has also been the subject of much discussion, but it is certainly a fact that the art of milking has not received the attention it deserves; at least not until very recently."

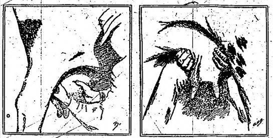

Fig. 1.—First manipulation in the Hegelund method of milking.

The bulletin records experiments to determine the loss due to failure to secure in the process of milking all of the milk secreted by the cow, being primarily a trial on the university her of 12 cows and on two private herds of the Hegelund method of milking, recently tested and described by the Wisconsin station. A comparison was also made of this method and of careful stripping as ordinarily practiced.

The Hegelund method of milking, which is really a series of manipulations of the udder, is described by Prof. Woll, of the Wisconsin station, as follows:

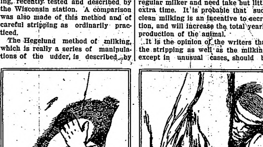

Fig. 2.—Second malpulation in the Hegelund method of milking.

First manipulation.—The right quarters of the udder are pressed against each other (if the udder is very large, only one quarter at a time is taken) with the left hand on the hind quarter and the right hand in front on the fore quarter, the thumbs being placed on the outside of the udder and the four fingers in the division between the two halves of the udder. The hands are now pressed toward each other and at the same time lifted toward the body of the cow. This pressing and lifting is repeated three times, the milk collected in the milk cistern is then milked out, and the manipulation repeated until no more milk is obtained in this way, when the left quarters are treated in the same manner. (Fig. 1.)

Second manipulation.—The glands are pressed together from the side. The fore quarters are milked each by itself by placing one hand, with fingers spread, on the outside of the quarter and the other hand in the division between the right and left fore quarters; the hands are pressed against each other and the teat then milked. When no more milk is obtained by this manipulation, the hind quarters are milked by placing a hand on the outside of each quarter, likewise with fingers spread and turned upward, but with the thumb just in front of the hind quarter. The hands are lifted and grasp into the gland from behind and from the side, after which they are lowered to draw the milk. The manipulation is repeated until no more milk is obtained. (Fig. 2.)

Third manipulation.—The fore teats are grasped with partly closed hands and lifted with a push toward the body of the cow, both at the same time, by which method the glands are pressed between the hands and the body; the milk is drawn after each three pushes. When the fore teats are emptied the hind teats are milked in the same manner. (Fig. 3.)

In trials of this method on 142 cows of the Wisconsin station herd the average amount of residual milk obtained was about one pound per head daily, the average butter fat in the milk 0.1 pound. The average fat content of the herd milk obtained in the regular milking was 4.29 per cent., of the residual milk 10.32 per cent., or 2.4 times as large as the former. The time required for after-milking by the method was from two to three minutes.

One man can readily after-milk 20 cows an hour if there are no extra weighings, sampling and recording of weights to be done. We pay at this station 15 cents an hour for milking. This may be considered a rather high price under present conditions in the northwestern states. The after-milking of 20 cows would take a man about two hours a day and would therefore cost 30 cents. We have seen that we obtain on the average an immediate increase of about one pound of milk and one-tenth of a pound of butter fat per cow by the process of after-milking, or from 20 cows, two pounds of butter fat. If butter fat is worth 25 cents a pound (an average figure), the value of the increased yield would be 50 cents—that is, there would be a gain of 20 cents a day per 20 cows, or about $60 a year, as the direct and immediate gain from practicing the manipulation method.

It is pointed out by Prof. Woll that, besides the immediate gain in milk and butter fat secured, the method has the decided advantage of stimulating milk secretion and thus prolonging the lactation period.

The results obtained by the New York Cornell station bear out in general those of the Wisconsin station. The gains from after-milking varied from 0.7 to 1.94 pounds of milk per head per day containing from 0.079 to 0.171 pound of butter fat. The results were slightly in favor of the Hegelund method as compared with stripping, "but the difference was so small that a definite statement in favor of either method can hardly be made." . . .

All the milk secreted by a cow should be drawn at each milking. If necessary, manipulation of the udder and stripping should be resorted to in order to accomplish this end. The after-milking should be done by the regular milker and need take but little extra time. It is probable that such clean milking is an incentive to secretion, and will increase the total yearly production of the animal.

It is the opinion of the writers that the stripping as well as the milking, except in unusual cases, should be done with the whole hand and not with the thumb and forefinger alone. In milking, the thumb should be turned out and never inclosed within the palm, as is often done. The hand should be opened wide enough to allow the teat to fill its full capacity, aided by a slight upward pressure upon the udder; the thumb and forefinger should then be closed, followed by the second, third and fourth fingers in the order named.

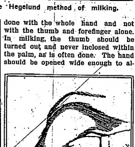

Fig. 3.—Third manipulation in the Hegelund method of milking.

Feeding Sheep.—In the sheep feeding trials at Woburn, England, oats and barley mixed equally by weight returned a weekly increase of three pounds per head, and oats alone 2.9 pounds, barley alone 2.8 pounds, and the oats and wheat 2.6 pounds per head weekly. Wheat alone did the best of all the grains fed, it giving a weekly increase of 3.06 pounds per head.

Change the Pasture.—Do not keep one piece of ground in pasture too long, if it can possibly be farmed. Other parts of the farm need the manure that is voided in the pasture and when there is too much manure voided on a pasture, the grass becomes too rank and washy for the animals to relish it.

Ground Bottom for Silos.—One of the most successful dairymen near Columbus, O., builds his silos with ground bottom. He prefers the ground to a plank floor. He never fails with his silage. It saves time, labor and cost. That is the way we built ours.

Look to the Hair.—The coat of the beef animal indicates much. If it is soft and velvety, he is being well fed and is utilizing his food. If it is hard and wiry he is not receiving the kind of feed he should have or is not utilizing it.

Chicken Pot Pie.—There is only one fit place for the old hens now—inside of a good pie. Don't carry the old hen over unless you know that she lays the golden egg.

Give Flock Good Care.—The farm flock can be made to yield a larger revenue than it does at the present time.

BACKACHE AND DESPONDENCY

Are both symptoms of organic derangement, and nature's warning to women of a trouble which will sooner or later declare itself.

How often do we hear women say, "It seems as though my back would break." Yet they continue to drag along and suffer with aches in the small of the back, pain low down in the side, dragging sensations, nervousness and no ambition.

They do not realize that the back is the main-spring of woman's organism and quickly indicates by aching a diseased condition of the feminine organs or kidneys, and that aches and pains will continue until the cause is removed.

MISS LENA NAGEL

OUIDA MEETS MATCH.

Gets Roland for Her Oliver From Mrs. John Bigelow.

There is a very amusing anecdote told about the famous writer, Ouida, who is now living in straitened circumstances, and Mrs. John Bigelow of New York.

When Mr. Bigelow was United States minister to Italy, Mrs. Bigelow accompanied him to Rome. During her stay there she decided to know Ouida, although she had often been told that the authoress loathed Americans. But that made no difference to Mrs. Bigelow. She was a woman of very determined character, and when she made up her mind to do a certain thing nothing could stop her.

So one afternoon she called upon the authoress. At first the footman would not admit her, but finally consented to take up her card to Ouida. Mrs. Bigelow calmly followed him into the hall and stood waiting.

Ouida hearing the discussion at the door, was leaning over the stairs, and when she read the name on the card said, loudly:

"Tell her I don't care to see a beastly American."

Mrs. Bigelow, of course, heard the remark, and she marked majestically to the foot of the stairs and called up:

"Well, you had better see me. The Americans are the only people who read your nasty books."

Ouida was so astounded that she came promptly down, and shortly after Mrs. Bigelow left in triumph. After that they saw much of each other and became very good friends.

MINNESOTA ASKS ARMY OF SERVANTS

FEDERAL BUREAU'S INQUIRY BRINGS APPEAL FOR DOMESTIC SERVANTS.

DAKOTAS ASK FOR FARM HELP

Washington, Oct. 16. — "Send us some domestic servants," is the cry of Louis Levy, superintendent of the Minnesota free employment bureau, in answer to queries propounded by the bureau of information of the department of commerce and labor for information about the demand for labor in Minnesota.

"Between 750 and 1,000 domestic servants could find employment in Minneapolis alone, at wages from $2 to $6 a week," says Mr. Levy. "In St. Paul wages range from $12 to $18 a month and the demand is far greater than the supply. In Duluth the wages are about the same as in Minneapolis, and a number of servants could be placed through this office."

Could Place 300 In an Hour.

Mr. Levy says that Scandinavians and Germans are preferred, but that all should be able to speak English.

As to other classes of labor, he says that in many instances he could place from 200 to 300 in an hour if he could get them at wages from 20 to 25 cents an hour.

Farm laborers are needed in spring and summer, the demand beginning about March and April and eight months' work being given at from $25 to $35 a month.

C. N. McIlvane, commissioner of immigration of South Dakota, says that workmen are needed throughout the state, farm laborers more than others. Mechanics are needed in all the larger cities, and if next season is anything like the one just past 3,000 skilled laborers will be needed in the state.

Room for 10,000 Immigrants.

Settlers in any number can get improved land all over the state at from $10 to $100 per acre, and government land is to be had west of the Missouri river.

N. C. Galbraith, commissioner of agriculture and labor of North Dakota, says that 10,000 laborers can find profitable employment in that state.

AVERTS DUAL LYNCHING.

North Dakota Sheriff's Prompt Action Saves Negroes.

Bottineau, N. D., Oct. 16.—A double lynching was narrowly averted at Russell, in this county last night, the result of one of the most vicious cutting scrapes ever perpetrated in this part of the state. John Harrish and Lou James, two negoes working with a threshing rig, went into Russell, filled up with bad whisky and created trouble.

Hans Twete, a saloonkeeper, and his bartender tried to throw them out of the place. Several shots were fired and the bartender was cut twice from ear to ear, besides being stabbed once in the breast. He may recover.

Sheriff McKinnon by prompt action saved the negroes from being lynched. He took them to the county jail here.

Drilling on Mesaba Range Brings Good Returns.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 16.—The continued rapid development of the iron lands in this section of the Mesaba range is bringing many solicitations for options on private property in this vicinity, and some holders have taken advantage of these opportunities to get some substantial benefits without letting go of their titles. The drilling on the state lands lying about two miles southwest of Pokegama dam is showing the land to be rich in ore, and the prospects are that the state will reap a handsome profit from the development of this property.

FIRE CAUSES $50,000 LOSS

ST. PAUL MERCHANTS SUFFER HEAVILY BY STUBBORN BLAZE.

St. Paul, Oct. 16.—Fire started at 6:42 last night in the basement of the Five and Ten-cent store, 57 and 59 East Seventh street, resulted in a total loss of $50,000 and gave the firemen one of the hardest battles they have had recently. The fire burned from 6:42 until midnight, and every effort upon the part of the firemen to smother the flames were futile. The fire apparently was under control several times, when it would burst forth with renewed energy.

The Five and Ten-cent Store company is the heaviest loser, its stock, valued at $30,000, being totally destroyed by fire and water. The damage to the Woolworth building, in which the Five and Ten-cent store is located, is about $5,000. The firm of W. A. Friend and the White House department store each sustained a $5,000 loss from smoke and the water which flooded the basements. So immense was the volume of water poured onto the flames that the basement of the Stronge & Warner company at Seventh and Minnesota streets was flooded. That and other firms in the block suffered losses aggregating $5,000.

CREMATED IN JAIL.

Stranger Loses His Life and Town Loses Its Fire Apparatus.

Viberg, S. D., Oct. 16.—On Saturday the city fire house and jail were burned, and all the fire-fighting apparatus was consumed. Only about a score of people were aroused, and as the fire had gained much headway, no one could get to the fire bell. In the early evening a drunken hobo made himself objectionable and the marshal locked him up in the jail in the rear part of the building. About 1 o'clock it was found that the building was on fire and all efforts made to rescue the prisoner were fruitless. His charred remains were found after the fire had burned itself out. The city's loss amounted to about $3,000.

Webster City, Iowa, Oct. 17. — Bloodhounds last night were put upon the trail of the gang which attempted to blow up the little town of Stratford Monday night.

Yesterday morning five huge sticks of dynamite were found under the city water tank in the very heart of the town. The fuses had been lighted, but the spark had gone out. Probably because they feared they had been discovered, no further attempt had been made. There was enough of the explosive to have blown to atoms tthe entire town and killed scores of people.

The trail of the hounds has been lost in the Des Moines river west of the town. The town is in a furor of excitement for fear the gang may return and again attempt their work.

POTONIEC IN CELL?

Prisoner at Valley City, N. D., May Be Minneapolis Murder Suspect.

Valley City, N. D., Oct. 17.—George Potoniec, accused of the murder of his wife in Minneapolis, is believed to be a prisoner in the jail here. Yesterday the conductor of a work train at Alta telephoned to the Valley City authorities that he was holding a man whom he believed they wanted. The man was brought to this city. H bears a striking resemblance to the published pictures of the missing man. The prisoner gave his name as Parker and denied all knowledge of the Minneapolis tragedy. As he is a Pole and speaks broken English his name of Parker seems incongruous, to say the least. He will be held until the police of Minneapolis are advised.

RETIRED PASTOR AND WIFE CELEBRATE THEIR JUBILEE

REV. AND MRS. GEORGE HOERGER.

The fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Rev. and Mrs. George Hoerger was celebrated at the German M. E. church at Faribault. A large number of the members of the congregation and numerous friends were present.

Rev. and Mrs. Hoerger are both natives of Germany. Mr. Hoerger was born on March 22, 1835, at Sontheim, Wuertenberg, and came to this country in 1855. Mrs. Hoerger, whose maiden name was Agatha Soutter, was born on May 1, 1841, at Friedenstadt, Wuertenberg, and came to America in 1853.

After coming West they both located at Aurora, Ill., where they met and were married in October, 1857. Mr. Hoerger was then in the shoe business. In 1866 he entered the Northwestern conference of the German M. E. church.

During his ministerial work he supplied the following places: Winona, 1866-1867; St. Charles, 1867-1868; Blooming Grove, 1868-1870; Cannon River, 1870-1872; Red Wing, 1872-1875; Rochester, 1875-1877; Winona, 1877-1880; La Crosse, Wis., 1880-1882.

In the fall of 1885 he again resumed his labors in the church and located at Mankato, where he remained until 1888, and Owatonna, 1888-1890, after which he again gave up his chosen work and removed to Faribault, where he and his wife have since resided.

STATE GETS MORE LAND.

The state auditor has received from the interior department at Washington its approval of indemnity land selections in the Duluth land district, amounting to 38,624.41 acres.

The tracts selected are in St. Louis, Lake, Cook, Itasca and Koochiching counties. They are to be patented to the state to make up for school sections on the Red Lake Indian Reservation, and also for school sections that fall short of the 640 acres because of lakes.

The land is largely timbered and in time the stumpage will be sold. Mr. Iverson hopes, however, that iron ore will be located on some of the pieces.

He has made as many selections as possible along the general direction of ore finds, picking out a number of stray forties that have been left from timber and stone selections.

SEARCHING FOR THE FLAG.

F. A. Carlson, president of the Association of the Civil War Veterans of the Third Minnesota, is in search of a flag which has been lost for several years.

After the regiment was mustered out of service in 1865, the national emblem was presented to the City of Red Wing in appreciation of the reception accorded them upon the old soldiers' return from the battle field. The flag was first presented to W. W. Phelps in 1865, who at that time was mayor of the city, L. A. Hancock making the presentation speech. E. W. Hawkins made a tin box and in it the flag was placed, which was for some years kept in the Masonic hall. Five years later, when Decoration day exercises were held, Old Glory was last seen floating from the breeze over the door of Christ Episcopal church.

It is believed that the flag can be traced and shown at the annual reunion of the Third Minnesota, which will be held at Red Wing next summer.

FINANCIAL CRISIS IS SAFELY PASSED

BIG MEN OF FINANCE TAKE HOLD—CORTELYOU DEPOSITS $25,000,000.

ROCKEFELLER TO THE RESCUE

WILL HELP TO RESTORE CONFIDENCE TO FULL EXTENT OF RESOURCES.

New York, Oct. 24.—The crisis in New York financial circles was safely passed last night. After prolonged conferences in J. P. Morgan's office an organization of the presidents of all the leading trust companies was effected. It was in the nature of a protective combination. A committee was appointed to make an examination of all the trust companies. Following this organization, which was regarded as one of the most important adjustments ever successfully carried through in New York, a report was made regarding the affairs of the Trust Company of America.

Cortelyou Deposits $25,000,000.

As a result the committee representing all of the trust companies of New York unanimously agreed to come to the aid of the Trust Company of America by providing such funds as it needs.

At the same time and more important, the secretary of the treasury, having satisfied himself as to the condition of the New York banks, authorized an announcement that he had directed that government deposits be placed in the banks of this city to the extent of $25,000,000 to-day.

These two measures are admittedly adequate for all the needs of the banking and trust corporations of New York in the present emergency.

Rockefeller to the Rescue.

New York, Oct. 24.—John D. Rockefeller has taken an active interest in the present financial situation, and he has arranged to loan very large sums to a number of New York financial institutions. In an interview Mr. Rockefeller said that the existing alarm was not warranted, and that he had absolute faith in the future of the values of securities and the soundness of underlying conditions. Said he: "Every one having the good of his country at heart should by word and deed lend a hand now to re-establish confidence, and I propose to do my part to the full extent of my resources."

The Worst Is Over.

There was a shap turn of sentiment in financial quarters late yesterday, renewed confidence in local banking institutions taking the place of the panicky feeling that has threatened solvent houses and demoralized the stock exchange for the past few days. Last night those financiers whose deliberate opinions are most highly esteemed by the public expressed the conviction that the worst was over and that out of the present chaos a condition more stable than has for some time existed was rapidly shaping itself.

Confidence Is Restored.

Many of the banking men who had labored almost day and night recently that the integrity of New York's financial institutions might be maintained went home early last evening satisfied that suspected houses which had been found worthy of support had been fortified against incipient runs or other contingencies.

Several factors contributed to this change of feeling. First and foremost was the determination reached yesterday by men of great influence in the financial world and whose probity is unquestioned to restore confidence, insure safety and prevent panic.

Morgan Takes a Hand.

Conspicuous among those were J. Pierpont Morgan and James Stillman, president of the National City bank. Throughout the day there were conferences at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., and while guarded statements only of what was done at these gatherings were given out during the business hours, the fact that such men were conferring, linked with their known personal standing and financial resources, did much to allay fear for the future. News of these conferences quickly ran through the financial district, allayed the fears of the extremely nervous and certainly brought a recovery of prices on the stock market toward the close of a day during which new low levels had been reached.

Cortelyou Dumps in $10,000,000.

Next in point of influence was the presence at the subtreasury of Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou, who not only lent the moral influence of a representative of the government, but during the course of the day caused to be deposited with New York banks large sums, said to be $10,000,000.

Another potent factor in bringing about a better feeling and the undoubted return of saner sentiment and improved confidence was the ability of the Trust Company of America to withstand an all-day run, as it successfully did.

Only One Big Run.

There was only one run of importance yesterday, and this fact was an encouraging feature.

The clearing house report was also favorable yesterday. Apparently the national banks have passed the crisis and those which have required assistance gave evidence yesterday of being able to take care of themselves.

The failure of the Knickerbocker Trust company, which suspended Tuesday, did not exercise such an adverse influence on the money situation as might have been expected.

To Help Each Other.

Another favorable development yesterday was a sort of tacit understanding between the banks and the members of the stock exchange to aid each other, the banks by loaning money at something like the normal rates and the traders by preventing the bottom dropping out of the prices on the exchange.

CREDIT IS GIVEN AN AWFUL JOLT

VAULTS OF BIG NEW YORK BANK EMPTIED — BROKERS FAIL FOR $6,000,000.

ASK CORTELYOU FOR HELP

NEW YORK BANKERS UNABLE TO STEM THE RISING TIDE OF DISTRUST.

New York, Oct. 24.—Credit, the under-the-surface foundation of all business, trembled for a time yesterday, and before confidence could be restored New York's second largest financial institution had emptied its cash vaults under pressure of the biggest run experienced here in a generation, a stock exchange firm had failed for $6,000,000, Wall street's principal securities had settled from $25 to $8 a share, call money had risen to 70 per cent, and local bankers, unable to stem the tide of distrust, had been forced to appeal for relief to the secretary of the treasury at Washington.

Assurances Ignored.

All this was in the face of reassuring statements by the acting state superintendent of banks that the suspected bank was solvent; declarations by prominent bankers that there was no true basis for alarm, and assurances from Washington that Secretary Cortelyou would not hesitate to act promptly in any situation where legitimate business was threatened.

Now that the first scare is over and the worst of the future discounted, it is believed the local banking firms will soon readjust themselves.

Secretary of the Treasury George B. Cortelyou reached New York from Washington at 9:30 o'clock last night. He was met at Jersey City by Hamilton Fish, assistant United States treasurer, and the two were in earnest conversation during the ferry trip to New York. Upon reaching this city they went at once to the Hotel Manhattan, where several bankers later presented to the secretary the various phases of the local financial conditions.

Before leaving Washington late yesterday Mr. Cortelyou directed that $6,000,000 be deposited with New York banks as soon as the necessary collateral had been furnished.

Secretary Will Act.

The secretary issued this statement:

"The secretary of the treasury is keeping in touch with the business conditions throughout the country. In the matter of public deposits he will at all times consult the needs of legitimate business interests and will not hesitate to deal promptly and adequately with any situation that may arise."

Mr. Cortelyou's statement when received here did much to put a better face on things, and it was predicted that the secretary's visit would result in further deposits of $15,000,000.

Pays $44,444 a Minute.

The Knickerbocker Trust company, the storm center yesterday, paid out cash to depositors at the rate of $44,444 a minute for three hours yesterday and then closed its doors. The directors had, as they thought, fully prepared for a run, and caused to be announced in yesterday's papers that $8,000,000 in cash was on hand to meet all eventualities. The $8,000,000 lasted until 1:30, when Vice President Brown announced that the bank had no more cash available, and payments were suspended. Mr. Brown said that the bank would open to-day and payments be resumed at 10:30 o'clock. The Knickerbocker, it was announced, had ample securities to meet all demands, was perfectly solvent, and it was only a question of raising the cash, when all depositors who wished to withdraw could do so.

Hopelessly Insolvent.

Subsequently it was learned that the position of the Knickerbocker Trust company was regarded by those at the conference as hopelessly insolvent, and that no aid was to be extended to that institution.

Statement by Cortelyou.

Secretary Cortelyou made the following statement shortly before 1 o'clock this morning:

"I repeat what I stated before leaving Washington this afternoon, if for no other reason than to emphasize the attitude of the treasury department. It will use its facilities to assist in every proper way legitimate business interests and its actions will be prompt and thorough.

"The national banks of New York city are in an exceptionally strong condition. The general situation here seems to be well in hand and is being looked after by many strong and influential men."

TAKE UP THE TRUST PROBLEM

NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION CONFERENCE BEGINS IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—The trust conference of the National Civic Federation, which is to continue for four days, opened here yesterday. About 400 delegates were present, representing forty-two states and approximately eighty different organizations of a mercantile, civic and municipal character. President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university, the president of the federation, occupied the chair.

Wade H. Ellis, attorney general of Ohio, spoke on "Present Principles Enunciated by the New Organization of Attorneys General." He said in part:

"Let us be done with all rivalry between state and federal jurisdiction. Let us indulge no timid fears about the perpetuity of our dual form of government, and revive no bugaboos of a past generation to fright the souls of the unwary.

"The trust question cannot be fenced in by state lines. Whether we will it or not, it has become a national cause, and it will have to be decided in a national forum. The effort should be rather to seek one effectual remedy than to emphasize a conflict between many."

A. P. Ankeny of Minneapolis spoke on "Does the Power to Regulate Rates in Transportation of Commerce Rest With Congress or the States?"

It is stated in the bill that Davis and Bryan have sold the stock of the mining company, for which they have received more than $1,000,000, and have also negotiated a loan for $108,000 for the company, but that none of the money from the sale of the stock or the loan has reached the treasury of the company.

EASIER FEELING IN WALL STREET

RECENT TENSION IN BANKING CIRCLES IS CONSIDERABLY RELIEVED.

PRICES ADVANCE STEADILY

RALLY OF PRONOUNCED PROPORTIONS ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

New York, Oct. 23.—The recent tension of the banking community was yesterday considerably relieved and the day passed with no adverse developments of a serious character, but with much that was reassuring. At the same time there was evidence that some of the banks most affected by recent events were still in need of assistance, but the promptness with which the clearing house accorded it did much to allay further alarm.

The general improvement was reflected in the buoyancy of the stock market and the steady advance in prices from previous low levels.

Situation Still Serious.

The clearing house was called upon to meet debit balances of the Mercantile and the New Amsterdam banks to the extent of upward of $2,000,000.

The fact that the clearing house committee regard the situation as still serious was shown by the remark of a member of the committee that the Mercantile bank's debit balance was "unexpectedly large and disconcerting."

William Sherer, manager of the clearing house, stated that the situation was under control; that some of the more awkward features had been eliminated, and that from this time there would begin a new era in New York banking.

On the stock exchange the improved banking conditions resulted in a rally of pronounced proportions. One development yesterday which did not tend to ease the prevailing conditions was the application for a receiver for the firm of Otto Heinze & Co., the brokers, who were suspended from the New York stock exchange last week after a disagreement between that firm and Cross & Kleeberg over the acceptance of a block of stock of United Copper.

HARRIMAN NEEDS VOTES.

Agrees to Postpone Meeting Until Injunction Is Decided by Court.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Stuyvesant Fish early yesterday secured postponement of the Illinois Central stockholders' meeting until Dec. 18. The Harriman people agreed to the adjournment, although they had previously been anxious to push matters as rapidly as possible.

The decision to adjourn the meeting was the result of a conference between William Nelson Cromwell, for Mr. Harriman, and Judge E. H. Farrar, for Mr. Fish. The overtures came from Mr. Cromwell, who sought out the Fish people and declared that he wished to come to some sort of an agreement. He was informed by Judge Farrar that the only agreement that could be recahed was to accept the terms of Mr. Fish, which would be the adjournment until Dec. 18, and a decision of court, if the Harriman people so desired, to determine the right to vote the 286,731 shares of stock against which a temporary injunction was issued by Judge Ball one week ago. After an extended conference Mr. Cromwell assented.

WILD SCENE IN WHEAT PIT

MINNEAPOLIS TRADERS GO CRAZY OVER FLUCTUATIONS OF MARKET.

Minneapolis, Oct. 24. — Grain brokers went crazy yesterday and the market was the wildest seen in the Minneapolis chamber of commerce pit in many years. Buying and selling orders flooded the pit and prices jumped about so fast that the most level-headed traders went wild with excitement and the scene became one of indescribable confusion.

All relation to the rules of supply and demand seemed to have gone out of the wheat market. The entire market seemed to hang on the financial situation in the East.

During the first hour wheat had run the scale from $1.04 to $1.07 1-2 for the December option. It had made half that distance once, been set back a third of the way, and then shot again to the top. For the next two hours the trend was slightly downward, and in the final hour of trading it climbed jerkily to the top, sometimes losing all it had gained in previous onslaughts, and then winning it all back and a little more until the high point for the day was again reached just as the gong put an end to the frenzied antics of the bewildered traders.

On the whole the bulls gained the victory for the day, although it was not such a decided advantage because of the many fluctuations.

Conflagration Continues Invasion and 1,000 Tons of Hay Are Burned.

GERMANY WINS IN BALLOON RACE

ONLY PROXIMITY OF ATLANTIC OCEAN STOPS FLIGHT OF POMMERN.

FRANCE IS CLOSE SECOND

GERMAN BAG COVERS 880 MILES, WHILE FRENCHMAN GOES 875.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 24.—Proclaimed as the most remarkable ballooning contest in the history of world aeronauts, with every racing record broken, the second international cup competition, which started from here on Monday last, ended yesterday with Germany accorded the winning laurels. The finish of the race was the closest and most exciting the followers of the sport have even known.

France Is Second.

The victorious balloon, the Pommern, which landed at Asbury Park yesterday morning, had but slightly more than five miles the advantage of the French contestant, L'Isle de France, second in the race, which descended during the afternoon at Herbertsville, N. J., a few miles from the Atlantic coast. Another German balloon, the Dusseldorf, stands third in the race. American entries are fourth and fifth, a third German team is sixth, a French team seventh, American eighth and English ninth.

Wins by Five Miles.

The unofficial estimated air line flight of the Pommern is 880 miles and that of L'Isle de France is 875. The Dusseldorf, third, landed near Doven, Del., is estimated to have covered 790 miles. The official measurements will be computed at the geological survey of the United States government at Washington. Only the proximity of the Atlantic ocean stopped the wonderful flight of the Pommern. The balloon could have remained in the air many hours longer, and undoubtedly would have added several hundred miles to her record but for the expanse of water ahead.

This is the year the farmer makes good, as everything he has to sell commands a big price.

It is suspected that the present wall street panic has been caused by the farmers getting all the money.

Judge Lochren and his federal court contempt of court order is liable to make a governor of Attorney General Young.

It seems to be the general belief that Bryan will be the Democratic nominee and that it will be "lemons" for the unterrified.

Look over the list of creamery patrons who drew over $50 for the month of September and see if it don't figure out that this is a pretty good country for a farmer to prosper and make money.

Will some one who is a lawyer please inform us how Frank B. Kellogg can act as assistant U. S. attorney and prosecute the Rockefeller Standard Oil trust and at the same time be retained as chief council in Minnesota for the Rockefeller Steel trust?

Commissioners Meet.

The county board held a meeting last Saturday and three of the board decided not to act on the county seat removal petition on account that the old petition had not been disposed of. This throws the case in the courts again and no one can tell what may happen.

Fourteen Months on Homestead.

United States Land Office,
Crookston, Minnesota, Oct. 22, 1907.

"Commutation proofs offered under a homestead entry made on or after November 1, 1907, will be rejected unless it be shown that the entryman has, in good faith, actually resided upon and cultivated the land embraced in such entry for the full period of at least fourteen months."

This means that on all homestead entries made after the last day of this month, the six months formerly allowed as constructive residence will not be allowed but full fourteen months' actual residence will be required. It does not affect homestead entries made prior to the first day of next month. All such entries will be treated the same as they have been during the past few months, but all will be required to be actually living upon their land at the time they apply for notices of intention to make commutation proofs.

The six months allowed within which to establish residence will be the same as in the past, but fourteen months' actual residence will be required. Heretofore the six months has been allowed as residence if residence were established within that six months, and it will remain so as to all entries made before November 1, 1907. The foregoing is as ordered by the Department of the Interior, October 18th, 1907.

Creamery Report.

The month of September is passed and on account of the early frost the pastures are getting poor and the number of pounds of butter made at the creamery is getting less but the large price received makes the care of the cow a paying job. The one that gives his bosses plenty of good feed at this time of the year will likely get a large cream check during the winter, so if you like the dollars do not save the feed. The business done at the creamery for the past month is nearly $,7000 and the price paid is 30c per pound for butter fat. Ptolemy's Big Boat.

Ptolemy (Philopator) was fond of building big boats. One of these is said to have been 420 feet long, 57 feet broad and 72 feet deep from the highest point of the stern. This vessel had four rudders or what some would call steering oars, as they were not fastened, each forty-five feet long. She carried 4,000 rowers, besides 3,000 marines, a large body of servants under her decks and stores and provisions. Her oars were fifty-seven feet long, and the handles were weighted with lead. There were 2,000 rowers on a side, and it is supposed that these were divided into five banks. That this extraordinary vessel ever put to sea is doubted, but that she was launched and used at times, if only for display, several historians are agreed.

Getting Round It.

A famous mountaineer said of mountain climbing at a dinner in Brooklyn:

"Peaks that seem inaccessible may be climbed by turns and twists. Mountain climbing is a question of getting around the bad places. Getting around your difficulty—that is the secret of mountain climbing. Liszt, the great musician, had the ability to get around things; hence I am sure he'd have made a good mountaineer. Once at a dinner Liszt's hostess cried in a horrified voice that there were thirteen at table.

"'Don't let that alarm you, madam,' said Liszt, with a reassuring smile, 'I'll eat for two.'"

If Lion Pulls and Horse Pulls.

If a lion and a strong horse were to pull in opposite directions, the horse would pull the lion backward with comparative ease. But if the lion were hitched behind the horse and facing in the same direction and were allowed to exert his strength in backing he could easily pull the horse down upon his haunches or drag him across the ring, so much greater is his strength when exerted backward from the hind legs than in forward pulling.—Chambers' Journal.

Thanksgiving—Then and Now

Of all the monthly talks that Dr. Edward Everret Hale has given the readers of the Woman's Home Companion, none has been more delightful than the November issue on "Thanksgiving—Then and Now." With his wonderful power of reminiscencing, Dr. Hale talks rather than writes, to his readers on the earliest New England Thanksgivings in their Puritanic setting, and then on our latter day celebrations, yet pregnant with possibilities in which twentieth-century steam cars and motors play a large part. No one could have written so delightful a Thanksgiving homily but Dr. Hale.

BRAVE DEEDS

A little boy about eight years old had a dog that was very wise. When the boy went to the woods or to any neighbor the dog followed him. Everybody thought that the boy was safe when the dog came with him. One day the boy went to the river to see if the ice was strong because he wanted to skate.

When he came to the river he saw that the ice looked strong. The boy ran out on the ice until he came to the middle of the river when the ice broke and the boy fell in. The boy screamed for help. The dog leaped in and swam out to the boy. The boy clung to the dog's back and the dog swam to shore with him.

Roy Wallen,
3rd Grade.

Once there lived a dog whose name was Fido. He was a large dog and loved his master's children very much. One day one of his master's children was going down to the sea to play so she took Fido with her.

She sat on the shore throwing stones into the sea and watching the birds fly. She saw a pretty shell on the shore a short distance away and went to get it. Just as she got off the bank to get the shell she fell into the sea. The sea was very deep. Fido saw her fall and he plunged after her. He caught her by the hair and brought her to the shore. After the little girl came to again and was better she went home and told of her accident. Fido was praised and loved by all people after that. Whenever any of his master's girls went to the sea to play Fido would always go with them.

Irvin Hanson,
3rd Grade.

A Pioneer Gone.

Died!—On Monday morning October 21st Mrs. Albertine Olson, wife of Carl H. Olson deceased, aged seventy years five months and seventeen days.

A peaceful end came to the life of Mrs Albertine Olson at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Forseen after an illness lasting since the first part of September. She was born April 4th, 1837 in the parish of Edswold, north of Christiana, Norway, and was married to Carl H. Olson in 1856. They emigrated to this country in 1868, settling at Welsh Creek, Goodhue county, Minnesota.

In the fall of 1880 they moved onto a homestead in Black River township, where they lived until they moved into this village in 1891, where she has since resided.

In the twenty seven years that she has lived in this vicinity Mrs. Olson has done many an act of kindness and charity that endeared her in the hearts of her many friends, and her death though not untimely will be the cause of sorrow to all who knew her.

Nine of the eleven children survive her. They are Mrs. Frick, of Red Wing; Oscar, of Fosston; George, of Little Falls; Alfred, of Bray; Mrs. Forseen, Mrs. O. F. Post; Henry and William of St. Hilaire.

The funeral took place from the United Lutheran church on Wednesday Rev. Wangenstein officiating. The pall bearers were Messrs. Patterson, Dahl, Burkee, Wilson, Eickhoff and Gigstad. The church was tastily decorated and the casket was covered with cut flowers and roses. The interment was made in the Swedish cemetery.

A Good Medicine.

Laughter not only gains friends but it's a good medicine—keeps the eyes bright, the heart light and increases the number of red corpuscles. ARE YOU GOING TO COLLEGE? If so, you should remember the Crookston College has six experienced teachers, accommodations for 500 students, uses the most up-to-date methods in teaching telegraphy, has placed every one of its graduates in good positions, and can furnish you board and room in private family for $3.00 per week. Send for catalog to J. C. Sathre, Crookston, Minn.

Farmer's Bulletin No. 79, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after pointing out the great future of the sugar-beet industry in the United States, says: "In general it may be said that any soil which will produce a good crop of Indian corn, wheat, or potatoes will, under proper cultivation, produce a good crop of sugar beets." What possibilities has that rapidly growing money-producer for this county? Is onyone prepared to say, basing his say so on fair trial in the county? Had there been an experiment station on a small scale in the neighborhood—a county agricultural school, for instance—where careful experiments could be carried on we could have direct information of the highest class on that point as well as on a host of others.

Kick the Printer

BULLETIN
LATEST NEWS
BOOM

In the city of Brooklyn, N. Y., there has been for many years a conspicuous signboard outside an office which reads, "KICK THE PRINTER."

Bibulous persons sometimes go inside to carry out the apparent request, but they discover that the printer is a gentleman by the name of Kick.

In every town there are persons who, if they do not actually feel like kicking the printer—the newspaper man—at any rate do a lot of kicking at the way he conducts his paper.

Please DON'T kick the printer; he is doing the best he can.

And what he does for the town and community, despite his occasional mistakes, may be a great deal more than the kickers themselves are doing. Did THAT ever occur to you?

We are all neighbors in this town. What helps one helps the others. What hurts one hurts the others. Every community is a mutual benefit association, whether organized or just running wild. The printer is a charter member.

If you had no printer—no newspaper—how would you like that? Do you know what happens to towns that don't support a newspaper? Nothing happens. Nothing ever happens in a town like that. As soon as things begin to happen in a town the newspaper comes along and tells about them.

The newspaper boosts the town. It records progress and offers suggestions, by the editor or the readers, as to further progress. Every copy of every issue advertises the town. This is all free advertisement. It costs the town nothing. It costs the people nothing. It is a part of the business.

In view of this fact, which nobody can dispute, it is much better to pat the printer on the shoulder now and then or to speak kindly of him than to kick him.

NO; DON'T KICK THE PRINTER.

MEN WANTED.

We can give steady employment to a few more Conductors and Motormen. Any able-bodied man, with average intelligence and a common school education, can learn the work with about ten days practice, and then he has a trade at which he can always find steady employment as long as he conducts himself properly. Car men always have steady work the year round, regardless of seasons or weather, and if they are industrious and steady can earn from $75 to $85 per month. There is no danger of being laid off on account of the work closing down; very little danger of wages being reduced in case of hard times, and no lost time on account of rainy days.

Men at this work earn about as much as they would receive at most outdoor work if paid at the rate of $3.00 to $4.00 per day, when the time lost at other kinds of work is considered. We pay 21 cents per hour to start with the first year, and from that up to 25 cents per hour at the end of five years.

MISS ADELAIDE NICHOLS

PERIODS OF PAIN

While no woman is entirely free from periodic suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Irregularities and pain are positive evidence that something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to serious derangement of the feminine organism.

Thousands of women have found relief from all periodic suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, as it is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science.

It cures the condition which causes so much discomfort and robs that period of its terrors. Women who are troubled with painful or irregular functions should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health and strength by taking

Miss Adelaide Nichols of 324 West 22nd Street, New York City, writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"If women who suffer would only rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound their troubles would be quickly alleviated. I feel greatly indebted for the relief and health which has been brought to me by your inestimable remedy."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures Female Complaints such as Falling and Displacements, and Organic Diseases, Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, and invigorates the whole feminine system. For the derangements of the Kidneys of either sex Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

One trial will convince you that Sloan's Liniment will relieve soreness and stiffness quicker and easier than any other preparation sold for that purpose. It penetrates to the bone, quickens the blood, drives away fatigue and gives strength and elasticity to the muscles.

Thousands use Sloan's Liniment for rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache sprains, contracted muscles, stiff joints, cuts, bruises, burns, cramp or colic and insect stings.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Some of the choicest lands in the grain growing belts of Saskatchewan and Alberta have recently been opened for settlement under the Revised Homestead Regulations of Canada. Thousands of homesteads of 160 acres each are now available. The new regulations make it possible for entry to be made by proxy, the opportunity that many in the United States have been waiting for. Any member of a family may make entry for any other member of the family, who may be entitled to make entry for himself or herself. Entry may now be made before the Agent or Sub-Agent of the District by proxy, (on certain conditions) by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

"Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-West Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person, the sole head of a family, or male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less."

The fee in each case will be $10.00. Churches, schools and markets convenient. Healthy climate, splendid crops and good laws. Grain-growing and cattle raising principal industries.

PIE AND PRESIDENCY

SECRETARY CORTELYOU FOND OF THE PASTRY.

New England Press Comments on Psychological and Political Questions Involved in Connection With Appetite.

Presidential candidates on the Republican side cannot fail to note the earnestness with which the Boston Transcript and other New England journals sieze upon the fact that the Hon. George B. Cortelyou is a regular and discriminating consumer of pie at luncheon. Since the publication of details concerning the leading factors in Mr. Cortelyou's midday repast, the press of New England has been teeming with comment upon the psychological and political questions involved. Some of the Yankee papers insinuate that the publication of the Cortelyou luncheon menu meant the launching of the Cortelyou presidential boom, while others think the revelation of Mr. Cortelyou's pie eating proclivities makes him ipso facto and par excellence, the New England candidate. From either point of view the pie discovery assumes political importance. "There may be much in this apparently simple fact," observes the Boston Transcript, with typical conservatism. Much? Decidedly much, when the truth is grasped that it is mince pie that attracts the secretary of the treasury. From an "apparently simply fact" the discovery assumes aspects extremely complicated, obscure, and potential. The Boston paper does not fail to note that Mr. Cortelyou was a New Englander in the most plastic period of his life, where he absorbed not only pie itself, but the history and influence of pie in character molding and nation building. The clam pie of Marblehead, that great breakfast food that has made its survivors indestructible in war and obstreperous in peace, is no stranger to George B. Cortelyou. Nor is he unacquainted with the pumpkin pie that sustained the Green mountain boys in many a scrimmage. He knows and admires the voluptuous custard and the cranberry that coquettes under its crisscross mask. He has prosecuted many an investigation of the fair seeming but explosive huckleberry, and the apple, cherry, peach and prune have not prevailed against him. But with the access of wider experience and augmented confidence, Mr. Cortelyou finds his chief delight in the pie of pies, the protean, subtle, and mysterious mince. In it he finds food for thought, intimations vague but inspiring, manifold memories and mysteries which baffle while they stimulate his keen and analytical assault. Mince pie is the food of mature man. It is the cosmopolis of pie yielding treasures to the true lover of research, but completely bewildering the untutored. George B. Cortelyou's devotion to mince pie may make him the choice of New England for president, but it is unjust to insinuate that he is trying to reach the white house by the mince pie route. Mince pie has helped to make him what he is. He is not the man to turn his back upon his friends nor to use them as his ladders. If the discovery of his long association with mince pie brings him political honor, it will be merely another piece of good fortune in a singularly fortunate career. He has not advertised his intimacy with mince pie, but, on the other hand, now that the truth is known, he will not desert the friend of his youth and the prop of his maturity.

Potomac Filling Up.

The filling up of the channel of the Potomac above the new bridges has been very rapid in the past two years, the depth having been reduced from about 22 feet to less than 18 feet, and in the tidal basin, it is stated, the deposits of sediment have caused an even more rapid decrease in the depth of the water.

A few years ago the smaller tugs were able to get into the tidal basin and cruise about without danger of going aground, and on several occasions the harbor police boat Vigilant, in breaking up the ice on the basin, traversed it from end to end. At that time there was about six feet of water in the basin at the lowest tides, and six or seven feet could be found at the inlet where the basin and river connect. Recent measurements, it is stated, found less than three feet in the center of the basin, and it is so shoal at the entrance that but few of the tugs employed on the river can pass through it without sticking in the mud.

The rivermen are at a loss for the cause of the rapid filling of the basin and channels in the vicinity of this city. Some ascribe it to the fact that the sand and gravel diggers, several of which were constantly at work above the Long Bridge until within the past three years, do not now keep a good depth of water close to shore and thus give a place where much of the sediment may settle.

Revision.

Miss Church—Our minister is very strongly in favor of Bible revision.

Miss Wise—So is his daughter.

Miss Church—Who? Mae?

Miss Wise—Yes; her name is "Mary Catherine" in their family Bible, but she wants to scratch it out and make it "Mae Kathryn."

Suiting Him Exactly.

Host—Why on earth did you put poor Jenkins between two such chatterboxes at the table?

Hostess—Why, dear, you know he is so fond of tongue sandwiches.

It Tastes Just the Same.

"You say you were in the saloon at the time of the assault referred to in the complaint?" asked the lawyer.

"I was, sir."

"Did you take cognizance of the barkeeper at the time?"

"I don't know what he called it, but I took what the rest did."

Mr. Knox—I believe Kicker's wife thinks more of her dog than she does of him.

Inexpensive Mixture of Harmless Vegetable Ingredients Said to Overcome Kidney and Bladder Trouble Promptly.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement in a New York daily newspaper, that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe; try it:

A well-known physician is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause the afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

SKIN SORE EIGHT YEARS.

Spent $300 on Doctors and Remedies but Got No Relief—Cuticura Cures in a Week.

"Upon the limbs and between the toes my skin was rough and sore, and also sore under the arms, and I had to stay at home several times because of this affection. Up to a week or so ago I had tried many other remedies and several doctors, and spent about three hundred dollars, without any success, but this is to-day the seventh day that I have been using the Cuticura Remedies (costing a dollar and a half), which have cured me completely, so that I can again attend to my business. I went to work again to-night. I had been suffering for eight years and have now been cured by the Cuticura Remedies within a week. Fritz Hirschlaff, 24 Columbus Ave., New York, N. Reporter—What do you think of the action of the Chicago judge in fixing the oil trust's penalty at so many millions?

Prominent Citizen—I think I may safely say without committing myself, that it is a fine thing.

CHATELAINE BAGS.

Crocodile and Tiger Heads Replace Flowered Brocade—The Rat Freak.

The stamped leather and flowered brocade chatelaine bags which have been fashionable in England for a year past have suddenly disappeared.

The up-to-date waist bag must present the head of some reptile or wild animal to the beholder. Crocodiles' heads, tiger cats' or wolves' muzzles will fill the requirements of the mode.

The bags are fastened to the girdle with chains, which seem to surround the throat of the animal. A bridle of silk with tassels or a metal bit and chain set between the teeth serves to open the jaws which form the mouth of the bag. The owner inserts her fingers between bristling rows of teeth to extract a dainty handkerchief or card case.

Another strange chatelaine is made of the skin of a rat with head and tail complete. It is lined with satin, and a silver neckband indicates the opening.

When it is slung by a chain and filled out with a powder puff and a handkerchief or so it looks unpleasantly alive with its glass eyes.

OLD SOAKERS

Get Saturated with Caffeine.

When a person has used coffee for a number of years and gradually declined in health, it is time the coffee should be left off in order to see whether or not it has been the cause of the trouble.

A lady in Huntsville, Ala., says she used coffee for about 40 years, and for the past 20 years has had severe stomach trouble. "I have been treated by many physicians but all in vain. Everything failed to give relief. Was prostrated for some time, and came near dying. When I recovered sufficiently to partake of food and drink I tried coffee again and it soured on my stomach.

"I finally concluded that coffee was the cause of my trouble and stopped using it. I tried tea in its place and then milk, but neither agreed with me; then I commenced using Postum, had it properly made and it was very pleasing to the taste.

"I have now used it four months, and my health is so greatly improved that I can eat almost anything I want and can sleep well, whereas, before, I suffered for years with insomnia.

"I have found the cause of my troubles and a way to get rid of them. You can depend upon it, I appreciate Postum." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

A DOG COMMITS SUICIDE.

Forlorn Cur Leaps from Eighth Story of Building.

In a fit of melancholia, "Billie Scroggs," a little waif, homeless and a wanderer, committed suicide by jumping off the ledge on the eighth story, just under the coping of the Evening Star building. Billie acted strangely all day. He did not run around with his characteristic abandon, making friends with the newsboys, and this excited comment.

Unobserved, he climbed the stairs in the newspaper building. It was pleasant to sit high above the madding, rushing crowd below, far above the reach of old shoes, tin cans and firecrackers. But, alone and undisturbed by curse or kick, his melancholia grew, and with face upturned toward the new moon, hanging clear above the post office tower, he howled piteously. Finding no solace, he paced up and down, and his agitation grew when in an agonized moment he saw little Jimmy in the street below, and leaped.

Pedestrians passing the corner stopped suddenly as his little body hit the pavement with a thud.

Two young ladies of romantic disposition who were passing at the time were deeply affected by the scene, and were all a-flutter, one of them exclaiming: "I wonder was it live or just fits."

The little body hurling through the air narrowly missed several persons, and the suicide created something of a sensation. A great crowd congregated and curses in life were turned to sympathetic, kindly words in death, as "Bille" breathed his last.

MUCH ABUSED SHARK.

$1,000 Reward for Proof That One Ever Ate a Man.

The sharks of the oceans are the most abused and most hated of all creatures. There are more absurd stories concerning their ferocity, more ridiculous nonsense about the contents of their bellies, than would fill a large volume.

The late Herman Oelrichs once offered $1,000 for an authentic case of anyone being killed and eaten by a "man-eater"—and no one has yet been able to get the money.

I have myself offered several times to duplicate the reward, but met upon each occasion with such showers of "authentic" cases—none of which was proved—that I gave the matter no further consideration.

That a shark will not attack a man in the water is manifestly too much to say, for at certain seasons vast hordes of schools of these pests, or rather scavengers, will "strike" at almost anything that is dropped into the sea.

These littorals are fierce from hunger and a small fish, which a man could easily pick up and whirl about his head—a common way of killing a shark along the southern coast—will strike savagely, probably at a man or any other living body which offers something in the way of food. So also will the bonito, or one of the mackerel tribe.—Technical World.

New Fairbanks Hostess.

"The prettiest woman in America," said Burne-Jones of Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks, nee Edith Cassidy of Pittsburg, and now wife of Warren C. Fairbanks, the vice president's oldest son.

Mrs. Fairbanks, Jr., ran down from the Fairbanks country place in Massachusetts to New York one day recently, looking bewitching in a gown of tailored white cloth, made with the long coat styles she affects. She explained her presence thus:

"You see, dear mother (meaning Mrs. Fairbanks, wife of the vice president) is still too ill to assume the social duties of her position next fall, and as Mrs. Timmons, her daughter, is temporarily unable to substitute for her charming mother, it is 'up to me' to be chatelaine for the next winter. So I am bolstering up my gowns by having some fetching new ones made here by my favorite modiste."

Mrs. Fairbanks, accompanied by her small daughter, who already shows promise of her mother's beauty, has been spending the summer on the Fairbanks farm in Massachusetts. Affable and lovable in disposition, it is anticipated that she will make a delightful hostess of the Fairbanks menage in Washington.

Women in Government Service.

The retiring director of the mint in Washington has recommended that his private secretary, Miss Henrietta M. Kelly, be kept in the same place and her salary increased from $1,600 to $2,000 a year. There are but few women who hold executive offices under the government. Among them are Miss Anna R. Roe, chief of the numbering division, and Miss Annie E. Beale, chief of the examining division in the bureau of engraving and printing. Both these women have been in the service for many years, have received their promotions on their merits and receive the full salary of their offices, $2,000 a year.

In Behalf of Science.

Him—I understand that you are very much interested in scientific experiments?

Her—Yes; for years I have been trying to prove to my own satisfaction that germs cannot be transmitted by kissing.

His Opportunity.

"He is a regular chatterbox."

"Only during his vacation."

"His vacation? Why, he is at his office every day."

"I know, but his wife is away."

Simple Enough.

"The leddy hasn't the money now," said Delia, "but ye kin lave the ice an' she'll pay ye on Saturday."

"But," protested the new iseman, "s'posin' she ain't got the money then?"

"Well, if she ain't ye kin take yer ice back."

What He Got.

"Have you heard from your sister since she went abroad?"

"She has sent me seventeen picture post cards, but I haven't heard from her."

EUROPE MUST PAY US MANY MILLIONS

MONEY FROM PRODUCTS BEING MARKETED ABROAD WILL SOON BE AVAILABLE.

WILL REMOVE STRINGENCY

NOW GENERALLY FELT THAT UNREASONING PANIC IS AT AN END.

New York, Oct. 31.—The enormous influence which American products are exerting in building up a credit balance abroad was the most signal development of the financial situation yesterday. Reports from all quarters show that the great American staples—wheat, cotton, copper, tobacco, oil, meats—are on their way to Europe, this being the season of the year when American products are marketed abroad. The immediate effect of these shipments is to give the United States credit abroad which can be speedily converted into cash.

Aggregate Is Colossal.

Those natural resources of the country promise to exert even greater influence than the sale of American securities abroad. The latter have to some extent suffered discredit under recent pressure, but the intrinsic value of American staples used abroad and their colossal aggregate at this period of the year is beyond the reach of financial distrust.

The foreign sales of millions of pounds of American copper Monday were supplemented yesterday by reports of similar heavy export shipments alone giving a foreign credit of $14,000,000. The shipments of tobacco to Europe this year promise to break all records.

$100,000,000 for Tobacco.

Europe will pay over $100.000.000 for this tobacco, and much of this money will soon be available in this market. Reports from the South show the cotton crop moving toward Europe, while the West is sending grain and meat products in the same direction.

While money at the stock exchange was loaned during most of the day at high rates, it fell near the close of the day to 5 per cent, offers of several million dollars at that rate being made by a number of the leading banks.

Panic Is at an End.

Comparative calm reigned among New York bankers yesterday. They all realized that the pressure for money was not over, but they felt generally that the unreasoning panic was at an end and they would be able to meet all reasonable demands for currency. These demands are coming in in considerable amounts from the West and South in order to obtain money to move the crops, and it is feared that the sections where the movement is largest may be more or less hampered in their efforts to obtain funds. The general refusal to pay cash for hoarding, in the West and South as well as in New York, it is believed, will prevent the undue absorption of currency and permit the employment of what is available in the most effective manner.

Good Reports From All Sections.

Runs upon the banks are practically over.

The arrival of nearly $20,000,000 in gold, it is believed, will considerably relieve the situation and perhaps make call money a little lower on the stock exchange.

The decline in stocks yesterday was generally attributed to the continued scarcity of money for speculative purposes, the refusal of brokers to make transactions except for cash and the absence of buying interests under present disturbed conditions.

Aside from the satisfactory local conditions, reports from all sections showed a favorable tendency. No failure was recorded at any point throughout the country.

DIES DEATH OF HERO.

Railroad Man Sacrifices His Life to Save Three From Death.

Pittsburg, Oct. 31.—Michael Mason, a middle-aged man employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad company at the union station, this city, last night sacrificed his own life in saving three other persons from what seemed inevitable death. A man, woman and child reached the station on the Greensburg express and, becoming confused in passing through the train, got off upon the tracks in front of an incoming train. Mason leaped to their side and with a vigorous push hurled them from the track to the platform at the side, but before he could himself reach that platform the train was upon him and he was crushed to death.

DEAD IN THE WALDORF.

Coroner Believes Philadelphia Man Was Murdered.

New York, Oct 31. — A man who Thursday registered at the Waldorf-Astoria as H. B. Potter, Jr., of Philadelphia, was found dead in his room last night. On the body were several wounds which the coroner thought could not have been self-inflicted. An autopsy will be held. It is believed that the man had his injuries before he went to his room. He was about thirty years old.

PRICE OF MEAT IS REDUCED

PACKERS BEGIN REDUCTION OF COST OF LIVING IN UNITED STATES.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—A general reduction in the retail prices of meats is prophesied for Chicago and the Middle West.

The first cut in packers' prices has been announced in Omaha, where it was reported last night that Edward Cudahy of the Cudahy Packing company had reduced the price of all meats 10 per cent, and that a still further reduction was expected.

In explanation Mr. Cudahy said he believed that the time has come for a general and substantial reduction in the cost of living if the average citizen is to share in the country's prosperity.

Consumers to Get Benefit.

"I believe," he said, "there will be an immediate decline all along the line of produce and staple supplies necessary to human life. For some time we have have been buying cheaper, and we thing we are justified in selling cheaper. The consumer will get the benefit, as the retailers have promised to pass the reduction along. It will mean a saving to every man, woman and child in the country."

Following the Omaha example, Sioux City dropped into line with the same cut, though the order has not been received officially in the packing plants there.

St. Joseph was not so confident of a decline. The general manager of one of the plants there said if there was a decline it would come without any radical cut. Local packers said that the low trend of the price of live stock probably would continue for some time, and necessarily would cause a reduction of retail prices.

WESTS ASSURES WEALTH.

Greatest Era of Prosperity Country Has Ever Known Indicated.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Prosperity such as never before has been enjoyed in this country is indicated in statements by statisticians and railroad presidents. They base their statements on the wealth of the farms.

The value of the leading cereals and other produce of the American farmer this year is $324,000,000 more than it was a year ago.

With an unprecedentedly prosperous year in his immediate wake and a banner one directly before him, the American farmer to-day is the richest and most independent person in history.

While the national government will not estimate fully the value of the crops until Dec. 1, preliminary deductions, usually more conservative, indicate clearly the enormous worth of the farm products.

Estimates Show Prosperity.

The following table shows the government's October estimates of this year's yields of corn, wheat and oats.

	Estimated Yield, 1907.	Yield. 1906.
Corn	2,500,000,000	2,903,000,000
Wheat	625,567,000	735,000,000
Oats	741,520,000	931,000,000

The approximate farm value of crops is summarized as follows:

	Farm Value, 1907.	Farm Value, 1906.
Corn	$1,375,000,000	$1,185,000,000
Wheat	531,000,000	519,000,000
Oats	333,000,000	300,000,000
Other products	1,717,000,000	1,628,000,000
Total value.	$3,956,000,000	$3,632,000,000

Increased valuation over last year. $324,000,000.

Causes Feeling of Optimism.

It is this estimated value of crops, based on the amounts of shipments the railroads are handling, the shortage of cars, the value of the cotton crop in the South, the tremendous value of the corn and wheat crops in the North and West, the value of fruit and vegetables in California and the booming conditions generally throughout the West that causes a feeling of optimism.

George H. Crosby, freight traffic manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, said that the exceptionally high prices farmers were receiving for their grain was the greatest guarantee of a continuance of prosperous conditions.

JEALOUS MAN'S AWFUL WORK.

Kills Two and Then Blows His Own Head Off.

Tulsa, I. T., Oct. 31.—B. H. Stockwell of this city last night shot and instantly killed W. E. Campbell, a prominent oil man and capitalist, formerly of Winfield, Kan., and then murdered his own son, aged thirteen, and committed suicide. Insane jealousy is given as the cause. The heads of all three were blown off.

MISTAKEN FOR A BEAR.

Hunter Is Shot and Killed by a Companion, Who Made a Mistake.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 31.—John C. Kruse, mining superintendent at Iron Mountain, was shot and killed yesterday by George Gibbons while the men were hunting together. He was mistaken for a bear.

Students Go on Strige.

Pewaukee, Wis., Oct. 31.—Angered over the summary discharge of Miss Helen E. M. Roberts of Chicago, the popular assistant principal, fifty students of the Pewaukee high school went on a strike Monday, leaving the school in a body. They refuse to return unless the teacher is reinstated. A special meeting of the school board will be held to reconsider the matter, and it is stated on good authority that unless the teacher is reinstated the school directors may be asked to resign.

SITUATION NOW ALMOST NORMAL

FEW NEW FEATURES OF IMPORTANCE IN NEW YORK'S FINANCIAL FLURRY.

MANY FAVORABLE SYMPTOMS

LARGE PURCHASES OF SECURITIES IN SMALL LOTS GOOD AUGURY.

New York, Oct. 31. — The financial situation yesterday was so nearly normal that there were few new features of importance. It was stated by bankers that the calls for money from the neighborhood of New York and the East appeared practically satisfactory, as such urgent calls for currency as were being received came from points west of the Mississippi. These calls are being met as fast as conditions permit.

Mr. Williams, the new superintendent of banking, gathered most of the cash from suspended banks yesterday and deposited it with going institutions, thereby adding several million dollars to the market funds.

Need Money for Cotton.

One of the points at which the most serious pressure for money is expected is at New Orleans, where the movement of the cotton crop calls for cash. The pressure there is always heavy at this season and promises to be even more intense this year.

A committee of New Orleans bankers is in Washington and hopes to secure a promise from Secretary Cortelyou to deposit substantial sums in New Orleans banks and other Southern institutions. Secretary Cortelyou appears to recognize that benefits conferred by this policy will not be limited to New Orleans and the South, but will aid in the movement for the prompt delivery of American product in Europe and the creation of a credit balance which will cover the imports of gold.

It is estimated by good judges that there are 400,000 more names of stockholders on the books of the railway and industrial corporations than was the case a year ago. This is regarded as a good augury by bond dealers, whose market has been very flat for many months. The absence of any failures, either financial or mercantile, in New York of any importance, except that of Kessler & Co., a private banking firm, and the offer of call money at lower rates than during most of the time Tuesday were other favorable symptoms of the situation.

ASKS QUICKER DEATH.

Judge Tells Negro Murderer He Is Sorry He Can't Accommodate Him.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Richard Walton, the negro who recently murdered Mrs. Lillian Grant White by strangling her and who, after a pursuit of several weeks was arrested in Springfield, Ill., yesterday was sentenced to be hanged.

Walton entered a plea of guilty, despite the warning of Judge Brentano that under it he could be sentenced to death. Judge Brentano sentenced Walton to be hanged Dec. 13.

"Can't you make it shorter, Judge?" asked Walton.

"I regret that the law will not permit me to accommodate you. That is the earliest day possible," replied the judge.

PERJURY IS CHARGED.

St Louis Politician Indicted by the Grand Jury.

St. Louis, Oct. 31. — William R. Coyne, well known in local politics, was indicted last evening and arrested on a charge of perjury. The indictment results from an investigation by the grand jury into the charge that Members Warner, and Priesmeyer of the house of delegates received $500 to get a bill passed permitting the erection of a garage by Henry Ascher. Coyne has been questioned by the grand jury and refused to answer until ordered to do so by Judge Muench in the court of criminal causes.

LUMBER RATES ADVANCE.

Increase on Shipments From California Will Average $30 a Car.

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—A big advance in rates on lumber shipments from this state to all eastern points is to go into effect Friday. About 12,000 cars of fir and 5,000 cars of redwood are annually shipped from California to the east, and the advance in rates is equal to $30 a car. Similar rates may go into effect on the same date from Oregon and Washington, but the lumber shippers of the Northwest are fighting the matter in the federal court.

ACTOR FACES UGLY CHARGES.

Raymond Hitchcock Indicted on Testimony Given by Young Girls.

New York, Oct. 31.—Six indictments were found against Raymond Hitchcock, an actor, yesterday by the grand jury on charges of criminal assault and abduction. Hitchcock will be arraigned in the court of general sessions to-day. The indictments were based on the testimony of Elsie Voecks, Helen von Hagen and Flora Wishton, all of whom are of tender years.

TAFT TO RUSH TO GERMANY

GETS LONG CABLE FROM PRESIDENT WHICH CHANGES HIS PLANS.

Manila, Oct. 31.—As the result of voluminous cable correspondence between President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft it is understood that the latter will leave Manila on Nov. 2 in order to reach Berlin at the earliest possible moment. It is impossible to communicate with the secretary at present, and the officials are silent regarding the change in his plans. It is understood, however, that he will leave here on the flagship Rainbow. Rear Admiral Hemphill received a cablegram on Monday asking whether he could make the cruiser ready to sail on Sunday. He responded in the affirmative and was told unofficially that a matter of the utmost importance is pending in Germany, and Secretary Taft's presence there is necessary immediately.

The hasty departure of Secretary Taft will cut short his stay in the Philippines one week.

Not Known at Capital.

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt yesterday declined to discuss the reported change in the plans of Secretary Taft, and it was stated in other official quarters that nothing was known on the subject. State department officials said that Secretary Taft's visit at Berlin would be purely social, and there was no unusual situation there to cause his hastening from the Philippines.

VETERAN EDITOR IS DEAD.

D. Sinclair Passes Away in Winona After Long Illness.

Winona, Minn., Oct. 31.—D. Sinclair, former editor of the Republican, died yesterday. Mr. Sinclair served for several years as postmaster of Winona and was at one time a member of the legislature.

D. Sinclair has lived a rather retired life for the last six and a half years since resigning the editorship of the Winona Republican in 1901, when the consolidation of the Republican and the Herald took place. He had wielded the editorial pen on the former paper continuously for forty-five years, a record which it is said is not equaled in Minnesota journalism. For several years his health has been so poor that he has been confined to his home for the greater part of the time, although able to ride out in pleasant weather.

Mr. Sinclair was the first president of the Minnesota Editorial association, an honor which he richly deserved by reason of his ability, integrity and perseverance in newspaper work. He was born Jan. 12, 1835, at Thurso, Caithnesshire, Scotland, and was educated in the common and grammar schools of his native town.

HOUSE IS DYNAMITED.

Attack on Lodging Place Laid by Police to Feud Between Rival Places.

Duluth, Oct. 31. — An unsuccessful attempt was made last night by unknown parties to blow up a small boarding house conducted by Nich Rich at 15 South Fifty-fourth avenue west, presumably with dynamite. Beyond splintering boards in the front of the house and arousing the boarders and some of the neighbors from their slumbers, no damage was done.

The attempt to wreck the house is believed by the police to be the culmination of a feud between the Rich house, the boarders in which are Italians, and a Finnish boarding house adjacent, conducted by Mike Ryyninen. An investigation is being made.

BOY GETS TEN YEARS.

Clifford Peterson Will Enter Prison at Age of Seventeen.

Waterloo, Iowa, Oct. 31.—Clifford Peterson, aged seventeen, of Waterloo was sentenced to serve ten years in the penitentiary. Peterson changed his plea to guilty after a whole day spent in selecting a jury.

Peterson was an accomplice of Harry Chapman, aged nineteen, who got a sentence of thirty years under indictments on the same counts.

The crime charged was holding up Fred Ballou, cashier of the Cascaden Manufacturing company on Sept. 23, when Chapman shot the victim because he refused to surrender some money. Ballou survived.

CAN SELL NO CASH WHEAT.

Winnipeg Grain Men Hampered by Money Stringency.

Winnipeg, Oct. 31. — The condition of the wheat market has been seriously complicated by the money market stringency on the American side of the boundary, banks having refused to send money into the country for buying at the elevators. In Winnipeg grain men cannot borrow money from the banks to carry wheat across the lake from Fort William, and all wheat must be paid for when it goes into store at Fort William except to milling companies. Cash wheat could not be sold for the last three days.

WOULD PROSECUTE ROADS.

Attorney General Ready to Act When Health Board "Shows" Him.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 31. — Attorney General Galen yesterday notified the state board of health that if proper evidence were submitted to him he would bring actions against the railroads for alleged failures to observe rules of sanitation. The attorney general also ruled that because of the failure of one man to qualify and the absence of another abroad that Helena had no board of health.

NAVAL BATTLE AT VLADIVOSTOK

MUTINOUS CREW OF RUSSIAN WARSHIP ENGAGE FOUR OTHER VESSELS.

MANY KILLED OR WOUNDED

REBELS SUBDUED AFTER FIERCE FIGHT AND THEIR VESSEL IS BEACHED.

Vladivostok, Oct. 31. — A naval battle took place in this harbor yesterday between the mutinous crew of a Russian torpedo boat destroyer and their loyal comrades. The mutineers were subdued, but not before a number had been killed and wounded. The mutinous boat is the Skory, and she gave fight to the gunboat Mandschur, the destroyers Carsovos, Smely and Serditz and the garrison of one of the forts. The Skory was beached to save her from sinking after her guns had done considerable damage and several officers and men of the other ships had been killed or wounded.

The crew of the Skory were incited by agitators, including some Jews who had managed to get on board and took charge of the destroyer. She steamed out into the harbor with the red flag flying and at once opened fire on the town and forts. A gunboat and three destroyers went out to engage her. With the aid of the forts they soon had the Skory riddled and helpless.

Several persons in Vladivostok were killed by shells from the Skory. The town has been declared in a state of siege.

American Is Victim.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 31.—The United States embassy here has received a dispatch from the American consul at Vladivostok stating that an American was wounded in the recent riots in which Russian sailors and civilians participated.

The dispatch adds that property is safe and that the government officials have taken measures to preserve order.

The two abortive mutinies at Vladivostok, one in the army and the other in the navy have again drawn attention to the conditions existing in the two arms of the service.

The revolutionists have resumed their active propaganda among the soldiers and sailors of Russia, and they have been aided by the efforts which are being made to restore the discipline which became slack during the revolts of 1906.

SAILORS EATEN BY CANNIBALS

ENTIRE CREW OF FORTY OF SAILING SHIP MEET TERRIBLE FATE.

New York, Oct. 31.—Eaten by cannibals was probably the fate of the crew of forty sailors that took the big sailing ship Arthur Sewell out of Philadelphia April 3, on the start of her long voyage to carry coal to the Philippines.

Word has just been received at the maritime exchange that the vessel was wrecked near Terra del Fuego and all signs point to the survivors having been captured by the cannibals that infest the island in that vicinity. The news of the wreck and the almost certain fate of the crew came from the sealing steamer Fridthjof.

Since the Arthur Sewell sailed not one word was received regarding her until a letter came yesterday from the Norwegian sealer. The Sewell's first stopping point was to have been Seattle.

The line of demarcation between the United States and Canada in the far north is the 141st meridian, which starts from the coast at Mount St. Elias and crosses the Yukon river at a point ninety miles below Dawson.

BATTLE OVER ONE JUROR.

Attorneys in Steve Adams' Case Progress Slowly.

Rathdrum, Idaho, Oct. 31. — The work of securing jurors to try Steve Adams progresses slowly. Most of yesterday was taken up in the examination of L. G. Willis, one of the editors of the Coeur d'Alene Journal. The defense appears to be making a strong effort to get him off the jury. Attorney Clarence S. Darrow arrived yesterday and has taken charge of the examination of jurors. There are still sixty-three jurors in the box who have not been called.

1,500 ARE KILLED; CITY IS WIPED OUT

TOWN OF KARATAGH, IN BOKHARA, IS OVERWHELMED BY A LANDSLIDE.

EARTHQUAKE CAUSES DISASTER

SECTION OF MOUNTAIN BREAKS LOOSE AND THUNDERS DOWN ON CITY.

Tashkend, Russian Turkestan, Oct. 31. — The little town of Karatagh, in the Hassar district of Bokhara, has been overwhelmed by a landslide that followed the earthquake of Oct. 21. According to the latest reports of the disaster a majority of the inhabitants lost their lives.

The first report of the casualties was exaggerated, the death list being placed as high as 15,000.

Karatagh had about 2,500 residents, and there is reason to believe that about 1,500 were buried alive. Among those who survived are the governor of Karatagh and his mother.

The town is remotely situated, and it takes a full week for news to come from there, but according to one courier an enormous section of the Karatagh mountain, which practically hung over the town, broke loose and thundered down upon the village. Efforts are being made to communicate with the survivors and send in such relief as may be required.

The foreign workmen, hatless and coatless, rushed to the bank. All were promptly paid in silver. Some had to take off their shirts to make money bags. Yesterday nearly all took their money back.

Good Profit in Beans.

Last Friday, John Vosler of East Grand Forks started to thresh his crop of beans. Mr. Vosler has a field of 75 acres of navy beans on his Minnesota Point farm and estimates a yield of at least 25 bushels per acre. He has been making a specialty of beans for a number of years, and finds them one of the most profitable crops that can be grown beating wheat and other grains by many points. He disposes of his entire crop to the wholesale houses at Grand Forks. Last year he sold at $1.50 a bushel. At present the wholesale price is $2.00 which will net him a handsome sum, although the expense of raising and harvesting the crop is considerable. He has a steam threshing machine, especially adapted to the threshing of beans.

Holes In the Legs.

A scientist says that hogs' legs perform a function not known to any other animal, and that is an escape pipe or pipes for the discharge of waste water or sweat not used in the economy of the body. These escape pipes are situated upon the inside of the legs, above and below the knee in the fore legs and above the gambrel joints in the hind legs, but in the latter they are very small and functions light. Upon the inside of the fore leg they are in the healthy hog always active, so that moisture is always there from about or below these orifices or ducts in the healthy hog. The holes in the leg and breathing in the hog are his principal and only means of ejecting an excess of heat above the normal, and when very warm the hog will open the mouth and breathe through that channel as well as the nostrils.

STAGE FRIGHT.

Actors Have Been Known to Die From the Malady.

Perhaps the most terrible malady which can attack the actor in the course of his performance is the peculiar disease known as stage fright. Through its evil effects strong men and women have been known to faint, break down and do many other queer things, and there are even on record several cases of people who have died through this horrible seizure.

Some years ago a young novice who was to appear for the first time arrived at the theater very white and shaky. Brandy being given him, he appeared slightly better, but no sooner had he set his foot on the stage than he clapped his hand to his heart, with a low cry, and fell down dead. The overwhelming sensation induced by stage fright had attacked his heart, and his theatrical career ended thus even at its beginning.

Quite as ghastly was the case of the young amateur actress who, strangely enough, had never experienced stage fright when playing with her fellow amateurs, but who was seized with the attack on making her first professional appearance. She went through the scene aided by the prompter, her eyes glazed, her hands rigid, and when the exit came it proved her exit from life's stage as well as the mimic boards, for she staggered to her dressing room and fell into a comatose state, from which she never recovered.

Perhaps, however, the most peculiar instance of all was that of the veteran performer who had gone through thirty years of stage work without experiencing this malady. One night, however, he confided to a fellow player that a quite unaccountable nervousness had suddenly taken hold of him and that he did not think he could ever act again.

His comrade laughed at the notion and urged him to go on, as usual, but his astonishment may well be conceived when the poor old player went on the stage and, after making several vain efforts to speak, fell back and expired. The doctor who made the postmortem examination stated that death was due to failure of the heart's action, evidently induced by the presence of an attack of stage fright.—Pearson's Weekly.

TYBURN TREE.

Lord Ferrers' Tragic Journey to the Famous Old Gallows.

Park lane was Tyburn lane, and it seems as if the gallows—described in an old document as movable—at one time stood at its east corner. It was there the ferocious Lord Ferrers was hung in 1760 for murdering his servant. Horace Walpole's words paint the picture well: "He shamed heroes. He bore the solemnity of a pompous and tedious procession of above two hours from the Tower to Tyburn with as much tranquillity as if he were only going to his own burial, not to his own execution." And when one of the dragoons of the procession was thrown from his horse Lord Ferrers expressed much concern and said, "I hope there will be no death today but mine."

On went the procession, with a mob about it sufficient to make its progress slow and laborious. Small wonder that the age of Thackeray, with Thackeray's help, set up its scaffolds within four high walls. Asking for drink, Lord Ferrers was refused; for, said the sheriff, late regulations enjoined him not to let prisoners drink while passing from the place of imprisonment to that of execution, great indecencies having been committed by the drunkenness of the criminals in the hour of execution. "And though," said he, "my lord, I might think myself excusable in overlooking this order out of regard to your lordship's rank, yet there is another reason, which, I am sure, will weigh with you—your lordship is sensible of the greatness of the crowd; we must draw up at some tavern; the confluence would be so great that it would delay the expedition which your lordship seems so much to desire." But decency—so often paraded by those who outrage it—ended with the murderer's death. "The executioners fought for the rope, and the one who lost it cried—the greatest tragedy, to his thinking, of the day!"—London Sketch.

Laughter overcame her for the moment.

Mark Twain's Story of his Life

Mark Twain refuses to let his captivating autobiography be published in book form until after his death, but journalistic enterprise has come to the rescue, and we are to have Mark's masterpiece after all. He has consented to let it appear as a serial. It has been secured at an enormous cost by the Sunday Magazine of the Chicago Record-Herald, which has a name for capturing big prizes of this sort, such as Conan Doyle's "Sir Nigel" and Kipling's "Son's of Martha."

Thus it falls out that the readers of The Sunday Record-Herald are to have a delightful treat without extra cost. For months to come Mark Twain will go on telling in his droll way about the people he has met, how he came to create Colonel Sellers and Tom Sawyer, and all the funny things that have happened to him. The whole is to be profusely illustrated. The first installment in the issue of October 27, is accompanied by a magnificent portrait of the humorist. Everybody who likes Mark Twain will want to read this great biography.

School Notes.

The most irregular thing this week is the weather.

++ 0 ++

The seventh grade has a good start on a month's perfect attendance.

++ 0 ++

Miss Emma Hoff and Mrs. Thoreson of Thief River Falls visited school on Monday.

++ 0 ++

We have a correction to make this week. Irvin Hanson and Roy Wallen, whose compositions were published last week, are in the fifth grade instead of in the third, as indicated in that issue.

Indoor baseball played outdoors was cut short Wednesday by a change in the weather. The game is a good one for exercise and fresh air at intermissions and the best part of it is that the girls as well as the boys can join in and enjoy it.

++ 0 ++

The primary pupils have been feeling exceedingly good since the arrival of the "Sunbonnet Babes Primer." They went wild over it at first and their interest in it does not seem to diminish much. They clamor to be allowed to take it home with them, reading it in school isn't enough.

++ 0 ++

The physical geography class went out on an excursion after last recess on Friday to study the physical features of the immediate vicinity. Some very interesting observations were made. There are indications that the country here is older by a few thousand years than that lying west of the sand ridges. A fine example of successive stages of river erosion is within ten a minutes' walk from the postoffice. Here we can see where the river was in its younger days and the changes that have taken place since. More anon.

WRINKLES.

Once I had a puppy. When he was little he had many wrinkles so I called him "Wrinkles," but when he had grown to be a large dog he did not have very many wrinkles and was very handsome.

One day while I was down by the river, I had Wrinkles with me. There was also a little child down there playing by the water's edge. The child tumbled into the water. Wrinkles jumped up and ran to where the child had fallen in. He jumped into the water and grabbed the child by its dress and pulled it up on shore.

I carried the child home to his mother and she was very glad to see him safe. She gave wrinkles a collar for a reward.

THE MAGIC OF MUSIC

Power of the Melody of the Voice Over Man and Beast.

SINGERS WHO SAVED LIVES.

The Way Lablache, the Basso, Conquered a Bear and a Burglar—Grisi's Control of a Madman With a Razor. A Musical Wife's Presence of Mind.

That music really has charms to soothe the savage beast is proved by the many times that the power of song has been the means of saving life. On one occasion when Luigi Lablache, the great opera basso, was aimlessly strolling through a French fair he was surprised by a sudden stampede of the sightseers, who rushed by him in a great panic, crying that one of the great bears had escaped from the menagerie. So surprised that he scarcely realized his danger, the singer stood his ground and almost immediately found himself face to face with the maddened beast, which halted for a moment before making its final rush. In that moment Lablache began to sing one of his favorite airs in a voice so deep and terrifying that the bear slunk away, thoroughly cowed.

It was this same singer who, when confined to his bed by a broken leg, was surprised by his landlady, who burst into his room, crying that a robber was in the house and was about to kill her husband unless he revealed the hiding place of their money and plate. Lablache, unable because of his injury to give other assistance, began to sing an aria in such thunderous tones as to terrify the robber, who fled.

Mme. Giulia Grisi was once traveling from the south of France to Paris in company with several companions of her own sex, when their privacy was intruded upon by a man who entered their apartment at a wayside station. Before long he began to act so oddly as to make the women apprehensive and at last terrified them by drawing a razor, which he began to flourish, at the same time demanding that he be permitted to sever their heads. The women realized that they had a madman in the carriage with them and also that they were without protection until the next stop of the train. In consequence they became hysterical—all save Grisi, who with great coolness suddenly began to sing in a soft voice that gradually assumed volume as she gained the attention of the man, whose threatening attitude gave way to rapt attention as the song advanced. Song after song did Grisi sing, and not another movement did the man make until the next station was reached, when the alarm was given and he was taken into custody. It transpired afterward that he had escaped from a lunatic asylum.

Jennie Lind once saved not only her own but hundreds of other lives by her gift of song. A fire broke out back of the stage in a small theater in her native land where she was singing. The audience became alarmed, and there might have been a panic had not Jennie Lind stepped coolly out upon the stage and begun singing a favorite folk song. Reassured and entranced, the audience reseated themselves, and the fire was soon extinguished.

Another well known opera star while traveling with some friends in Mexico was surprised by a company of half breed bandits, at whose approach the escort fled, leaving their charges to the mercy of the robbers. The attitude of the latter on finding that their captives had little money and valuables was menacing in the extreme, and the travelers all expected to be murdered that night. When the robbers were eating their supper the star began to sing, and his captors were so delighted that they demanded more. For a time he gratified them, but at last suggested that he should sing for the freedom of himself and his friends. To this the bandits, cheered by wine and song agreed, and after having sung for an hour he and his companion were free.

Kneissel, the notorious Bavarian brigand, once planned to rob a house in the neighborhood of Munich and, if necessary to secure the money and plate he knew was in the house, murder the inmates, a young married woman and her two female servants. His approach was heard by the wife, who, instead of losing her head, sat down to her piano and began to sing. The brigand listened for awhile and was on the point of forcing an entrance into the room when the song ceased and a man's voice struck up a rollicking air, to be followed in a few moments by a third man's voice singing a familiar chorus. Kneissel paused. The husband evidently had returned unexpectedly and had brought with him a friend. He was not prepared to attack the house against two men, so he beat a hasty retreat, little thinking that the voice he had heard proceeded from the lips of the young wife, a fine singer, who was an adept at mimicry.

Some years ago a released convict went to the house of the Indiana judge who had sentenced him to prison, with the intention of shooting him. As he crept nearer to the window beside which the judge was sitting and raised his revolver to fire the sweet voice of the judge's wife floated out on the summer air from the bedroom, where she was singing her baby to sleep, all unconscious of her husband's peril. The lullaby she sang was one that the convict's mother used to croon to him, and, throwing aside his revolver, he walked boldly into the house and confessed to the judge his intention. The judge befriended him, and he is today one of the most influential and respected citizens of a town in the far west. —Addie Farrar in Chicago Record-Herald.

Farmer's Bulletin No. 79, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after pointing out the great future of the sugar-beet industry in the United States, says: "In general it may be said that any soil which will produce a good crop of Indian corn, wheat, or potatoes will, under proper cultivation, produce a good crop of sugar beets." What possibilities has that rapidly growing money producer for this county? Is onyone prepared to say, basing this say-so on fair trial in the county? Had there been an experiment station on a small scale in the neighborhood—a county agricultural school, for instance—where careful experiments could be carried on we could have direct information of the highest class on that point as well as on a host of others.

ADVICE TO VICTIMS

TELLS READERS HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM AT HOME.

Directions to Mix a Simple Preparation and the Dose to Take—Overcomes Kidney and Bladder Trouble Promptly.

There is so much Rheumatism everywhere that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

BABY IN TERRIBLE STATE.

Awful Humor Eating Away Face—Body a Mass of Sores—Cuticura Cures In Two Weeks.

"My little daughter broke out all over her body with a humor, and we used everything recommended, but without results. I called in three doctors, but she continued to grow worse. Her body was a mass of sores, and her little face was being eaten away. Her ears looked as if they would drop off. Neighbors advised me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and before I had used half of the cake of Soap and box of Ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's face and body were as clear as a new-born babe's. I would not be without it again if it cost five dollars, instead of seventy-five cents. Mrs. George J. Steese, 701 Coburn St., Akron, O., Aug. 30, 1905."

1907 A RED LETTER YEAR.

Right to Vote Won by Women in Four Countries of Europe.

Women all over the world are beginning to look upon 1907 as a red letter year for their sex. Their first notable step ahead this year was the granting of parliamentary suffrage to the women of Norway. Then Swedish women were made eligible for municipal office; next came the granting to the women of Denmark of the right to vote for and serve as members of boards of public charities, and now the British parliament has just passed the bill making women eligible as town and county councillors and aldermen.

In 1888 when the county councils were instituted in England it was thought that women were eligible, and three—Lady Margaret Sandhurst, Miss Jane Cobden and Miss Cons—were elected by the voters of London. Beresford Hope, who had been defeated by Lady Sandhurst, contested the election on the ground that women were not eligible. The litigation was prolonged and meanwhile the women were allowed to serve. One of the duties assigned to Lady Sandhurst was the supervision of twenty-three infant asylums. When Mr. Hope finally succeeded in ousting her one of the leading London dailies sarcastically remarked:

"It is to be hoped that the gentleman will find himself equal to mothering all those babies."

TAKE THEM OUT

Or Feed Them Food They Can Study On.

When a student begins to break down from lack of the right kind of food, there are only two things to do; either take him out of school or feed him properly on food that will rebuild the brain and nerve cells. That food is Grape-Nuts.

A boy writes from Jamestown, N. Y., saying: "A short time ago I got into a bad condition from overstudy, but Mother having heard about Grape-Nuts food began to feed me on it. It satisfied my hunger better than any other food, and the results were marvelous. I got fleshy like a good fellow. My usual morning headaches disappeared, and I found I could study for a long period without feeling the effects of it.

"My face was pale and thin, but is now round and has considerable color. After I had been using Grape-Nuts for about two months I felt like a new boy altogether. I have gained greatly in strength as well as flesh, and it is a pleasure to study now that I am not bothered with my head. I passed all of my examinations with a reasonably good percentage, extra good in some of them, and it is Grape-Nuts that has saved me from a year's delay in entering college.

"Father and mother have both been improved by the use of Grape-Nuts. Mother was troubled with sleepless nights and got very thin, and looked care worn. She has gained her normal strength and looks, and sleeps well nights." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

When the Light Dawned

By L. ROBBINS

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"We have been married just six months to-day," said Mrs. Singleton, as she passed the cup of fragrant coffee across the table to her husband.

"So we have," he answered, as he took the cup.

"Don't you repent?" questioned Mrs. Singleton.

"Repent! Well, I guess not," answered Mr. Singleton, with emphasis. "Why, I never really lived before."

"But the expense," said Mrs. Singleton.

"Expense!" echoed Mr. Singleton. "Why, the expense for both of us isn't as large as it used to be for myself alone."

"But it is going to cost you more to live now," said Mrs. Singleton. She spoke with an effort, and the natural pink of her cheeks had deepened into red.

"How so?" demanded Mr. Singleton, with a surprised lifting of his eyebrows.

"I have got to have—I mean I need—some new clothes. It is almost May, and my winter things are beginning to look unseasonable. You know I went without new hats and dresses last summer so as to have more money to spend on my wedding clothes, and—and so I have hardly anything that is fit to wear now," explained Mrs. Singleton.

Mr. Singleton made no answer to this, and his wife fancied he was not pleased, for he continued his breakfast in silence.

When he had finished eating he took out his pocketbook, examined the bills with which it seemed well filled, hesitated, then extracted one, and folding it, tossed it across the table.

"Guess it isn't best to give you too much at a time; it might make you wasteful," he said, with an attempt at jocularity, as he returned his pocketbook to his pocket. "Spend that carefully, and if it isn't enough, you can ask me for more."

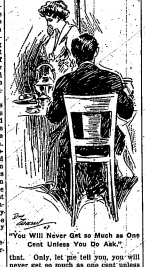
Mrs. Singleton's lip quivered and her blue eyes flashed fire, as she held the bill irresolutely between her fingers.

"Must I ask you for every dollar I need for myself, and have it doled out to me this way, with an admonition not to squander it?" she asked, trying unsuccessfully to hide her indignation and speak lightly.

"Of course you will have to ask for it. How am I to know you want money if you don't ask for it?" retorted Mr. Singleton, his face flushing. "As for 'doling it out,' and 'admonitions,' why, it is an established fact that all women are naturally inclined to be extravagant—"

"You can keep your paltry ten dollars," his wife broke in hotly. "This is the first time I have asked you for money, and it will be the last, for I will never again ask you for so much as one cent as long as I live."

"Very well," returned Mr. Singleton, icily, "you will please yourself about that. Only, let me tell you, you will never get so much as one cent unless you do ask. You may find it a trifle inconvenient, after awhile, and change your mind."



"You Will Never Get so Much as One Cent Unless You Do Ask."

Singleton decided that the best way to bring Ethel around was to act as though nothing had happened, so that very soon the two seemed to be on perfectly friendly terms.

Ethel knew if she went about even a little people would soon begin to notice that she always wore the same clothes, and she wasn't going to have them say or hint unkind things about Arthur's liberality to her. So she ceased attending church, except on cool or cloudy Sundays, made no more calls, and always had some plausible excuse ready when her husband invited her to go to entertainments.

So the summer passed.

Singleton never for an instant contemplated the possibility of owning that he was wrong. Didn't the Bible say expressly that a woman should be subject to her husband? Meantime it was all very annoying and uncomfortable.

In December the firm for which Singleton worked wished him to go west for them on a certain business venture. It promised to be a fine chance, for if he did well he would doubtless be promoted, with an increase of salary, on his return.

So Singleton journeyed west. He made a stop at Cleveland on the way, for he had arranged to spend a few days with his two brothers there, neither of whom he had seen for several years.

Frank Singleton was the oldest of the three, and Arthur had always looked up to him. He was a prosperous business man and lived well.

"How do you manage with your wife about money matters?" he ventured one evening after dinner. "If she wants money, you require her to make her wants known, I suppose?"

"Require her to ask me for her own!" exclaimed Frank, in good-natured scorn. "Not much. I should think well of myself to subject my wife to such humiliation! She has as much right to what I make as I have. It would look pretty, wouldn't it, for me to require her to get down on her knees and beg humbly for a dollar every time she happened to want one? Besides, no woman of spirit would stand such nonsense. My wife knows where I keep my money, and when she wants any she goes and helps herself. We no longer live in the dark ages, my boy."

An angry retort rose to Singleton's lips, but he reflected that it was his last day with Frank, and so he held his peace.

At Sam Singleton's there was a different state of things. Sam was not rich. He had a rather meager salary and lived in a small house. His wife was a delicate little lady, and there were three children.

Singleton found the atmosphere of this house peculiarly delightful. Sam was a large man, and his soul matched his body. His children adored him. He had a thoughtful, protecting consideration of his wife, and she in turn seemed to lean and depend on him.

"Here," he told himself, "I'll wager there's no foolish pride about asking for money."

At dinner time, on the last day of his stay, Sam suddenly looked across the table at his wife. "Oh, Ellen," he said, in the most matter-of-fact way, "can you let me have five dollars?" And Ellen left the room for a minute and returned with the money, which she gave him.

"Metaphorically speaking," explained Sam, with a laugh at Arthur's look of astonishment, "my pockets all have holes in them, so I let Ellen have the handling of the cash, and it goes twice as far as it would with me. She is a born financier, which, sad to say, I am not."

The business on which Singleton had come prospered, and the months slipped away with tolerable swiftness. Once on his way home, however, he was seized with a fever of homesickness, and the cars seemed almost to creep.

He had written brief letters to Ethel during his absence, and she had also written, but less often and more briefly, saying that as nothing happened, there was nothing to write. His last two letters had not been answered at all, and he felt a vague uneasiness.

The long journey was at last ended, and Singleton found himself running up the walk of his own yard. There were no lights in the house, but he thought little of that, for it was barely dark yet. He hastily unlocked the door with his latch key and entered. To his dismay there was nobody in any of the rooms.

Half beside himself with dread, he hurried to the nearest neighbor's. Mrs. Allen responded to his imperative ring of the bell.

"Do tell me what has happened?" implored Singleton, his heart standing still with a nameless fear.

"Mrs. Singleton has been sick—quite sick," said Mrs. Allen. "But she's getting better now," she hastened to add.

Singleton breathed again.

"She got your letter asking her to see about the fire insurance on the house, and on looking at the policy she found it ran out that very night at 12 o'clock. So she set out in a pouring rain to have it renewed, and her shoes were very thin and her overshoes leaky—"

"Where is she now?" demanded Singleton.

"Her mother came and nursed her until she was able to travel, and then took her home with her."

"How long since?"

"About a week ago."

It was in the middle of the forenoon when he entered his mother-in-law's house.

Ethel started up with a joyful cry, and Singleton's heart smote him as he saw how thin and pale she was.

"Ethel," he said at length, drawing her down on the sofa beside him. "I have a confession to make. You have been the best and dearest wife a man ever had, and I have treated you abominably. In that disagreement of ours I was wrong—entirely and inexcusably wrong. And I have been in the wrong ever since you married me. I have wanted to have my own way in everything, and to domineer over you and be your master. But while I have been away I have had time for thinking, and I have come to see the marriage relation in a very different light. When a man comes to love his wife more than himself, he no longer wants to lord it over her. He only wants to make her happy."

Ethel's eyes were full of tears.

"Do you forgive me?"

"I don't feel as though there was anything to forgive," she answered, smiling.

Heroic Deed of Doctor.

Few among the recipients of the recent birthday honors of King Edward have had a more adventurous career than Sir William MacGregor, governor of Newfoundland, who has now been awarded the G. C. M. G. More than 30 years have passed since, while holding the post of medical officer in Fiji, he performed a remarkable feat of heroism. A shipful of Indian coolies had been wrecked about 12 hours' steaming from the capital, and Dr. MacGregor—a man of vast physical strength—who headed the relief party, clambered along a broken mast which gave access to the vessel and returned again and again with a man or woman on his back, and sometimes a child gripped by its clothes in his teeth. His greatest feat, however, was the rescue of a woman who had fallen on to a reef below, and who, having got at the spirits below, was mad with drink. Two men who tried to save her were swept out to sea, but young MacGregor, lowering himself down a rope, seized the knot of the woman's hair in his teeth and dragged her up to life again.

IS A CITY OF BEAUTY.

Americans May Well Be Proud of National Capital.

The original plans for the national capital, as approved by Washington and Jefferson, provided for a system of streets running east and west and north and south. These streets were cut at irregular angles by two systems of avenues, which radiated like the spokes of a wheel from the president's house and the capitol. The east-and-west streets were named for the letters of the alphabet from "A" to "W." A peculiarity of the system is that there is no "J" street. This was because few fonts of type made a distinction between capital "I" and capital "J" until 1818, and these streets were named before the dawn of the nineteenth century. The long avenues cross the streets and each other at angles which confuse the stranger, but at each crossing there is a little park or patch of green to relieve the monotony of a desert of asphalt. Where two or three avenues are gathered together there is a circle or a square, usually ornamented by a statue, and always with grass and flowers and trees.

There are 275 of these little parks less than one acre in extent, and 26 others that are more than an acre in size. There are also ten large parks in the central portion of the city, the largest being the Mall, reaching from the Botanical gardens at the foot of Capitol hill to the monument, a distance of three-fourths of a mile. The crowning glory of Washington's park system is Rock Creek park and the Zoological park, which are practically one. These have a combined area of 1,776 acres. Rock Creek park is not excelled in beauty by any driving park in the country. The drives wind about the valley of a swift stream flowing through great bowlders, and there have been no disfiguring "improvements." The roads are good, the bridges pretty and the fords paved, but otherwise one sees nature unprofaned by man. Few cities have the advantage of so wild a forest at their very gates.

"Daughters" Preserve a Relic.

One of the interesting exhibits in the Jumel mansion, Washington's headquarters, which is being made into a museum by the Daughters of the American Revolution, is a large piece of wall paper framed and glass covered. It is an exact reproduction of the wall paper originally on the walls of the long room and is all that remains of the paper with which the lower rooms were covered, the rest having been carried off by souvenir hunters.

A sample of the original wall paper of the time of Mme. Jumel was sent abroad and copied precisely and the walls of the council room, tea and drawing room papered with it. But the vandalism of the souvenir hunter wasn't proof against the beauty of the historic design and bit by bit the paper was stripped until only one comparatively small section remained.

Unwilling to lose this the Daughters had it removed and preserved by framing. It can be seen decorating the guard room any day between the hours of 10 and 5, when the house is open to visitors in charge of a caretaker. A curator is to be secured very soon whose business it will be to explain to visitors the history of the relics which the society is acquiring.

No Wonder She Was Scared.

A treasury clerk at Washington who is noted for his dry wit, and who takes the keenest delight in playing practical jokes of a harmless nature on unsuspecting humanity, recently scored a good one on Cymbaline, the colored woman who is employed at his home as maid of all work. The woman had engaged in a wordy war with another colored girl, it appeared, and the latter had threatened to "git de man after her." This, in the vernacular of the alleys and byways, meant that she would have the offending woman arrested.

"Cymbaline," exclaimed the treasury clerk at the breakfast table the other morning, "I'm afraid that girl is going to make serious trouble for you."

"What is she bin' doin' now, Mr. William?" asked the frightened servant.

"Why," was the reply, "she has taken out a writ of anniminaculous against you and says she is going to have you hornswobbled."

"Laws a-mercy!" shrieked Cymbaline as she fled in terror to the kitchen.

Could Provide for Many.

Secretary Taft, the hugest statesman of his time, took a yellow car in Washington to go to the capitol.

He nearly filled the seat, but at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue a small boy got on and timidly sat down beside the gigantic secretary.

The small boy wore what was obviously a suit of clothes made over for him from his father's clothes. He was rather proud of it, too, for after riding a block or two he said to the secretary: "My mamma made me this suit out of one of papa's."

"Indeed!" said the secretary; "I think it is a very pretty suit."

The small boy looked the big secretary over. "Say, mister," he said, after the survey was completed, "how many of your little boys has to wear your clothes?"—Saturday Evening Post.

Labor's Headquarters.

In a modest little brick structure under the shadow of the monster Pension building at Washington is located the nerve center of the organized labor movement in the United States and Uncle Sam's new possessions. In these quarters, which are none too commodious for the strenuous activities carried on therein, an executive staff of upward of three dozen men and women keeps in close touch with an army of 2,000,000 artisans in every state and territory in the union. This beehive is the national headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, that great central body that exercises jurisdiction over the local workingmen's organizations from one end of the country to the other.

ELECTIONS HELD IN MANY STATES

GOVERNOR GUILD OF MASSACHUSETTS RE-ELECTED BY 100,000 MAJORITY.

TOM L. JOHNSON AGAIN WINS

DEFEATS CONGRESSMAN BURTON IN FIGHT FOR MAYOR OF CLEVELAND.

Elections held throughout the country yesterday passed off comparatively quiet. The returns from various sections show the following results:

Massachusetts re-elects the entire Republican state ticket, headed by Gov. Curtis Guild, Jr. Henry M. Whitney, the Citizens-Democratic candidate for governor polled a much larger vote than Charles W. Bartlett, the anti-merger Democrat.

Pennsylvania elects John O. Sheatz (Rep.), head of the ticket, for state treasurer, by a large majority.

New York state elects Edward T. Bartlett and Willard Bartlett, joint candidates on the Republican and Democratic tickets for justices of the court of appeals, over the candidates of the Independence league (Hearst).

New York city elects the Tammany candidates by considerable majorities over the Independence League-Republican fusion candidates.

In New Jersey the latest figures favor the election of Katzenbach (Dem.) as governor, but the lead is small over Fort (Rep.), less than 1,000 votes separating them.

The Maryland contest for the governorship is in doubt, owing to the lateness of the returns. Chairman Vandiver of the Democratic state committee claims the state by 12,000, and conservative estimates, based on meager returns, give Crothers (Dem.) for governor a plurality of 6,000 to 8,000.

The Rhode Island elections indicate the re-election of Gov. James H. Higgins (Dem.) over Frederick H. Jackson (Rep.) by a plurality estimated at about 1,500, showing a Democratic gain from the plurality of last year.

The election of the Democratic ticket in Mississippi, headed by E. F. Noel for governor, is a foregone conclusion, as there is no opposition.

In Kentucky the returns indicate the election of the entire Republican state ticket, headed by Wilson for governor. The legislature will be Democratic by a safe majority.

In Nebraska M. R. Reese, Republican candidate for the supreme court, the most important state office voted on, is undoubtedly elected.

The mayoralty contest in Cleveland resulted in the election of Tom L. Johnson, present mayor, over Congressman Burton.

The American or anti-Mormon party at Salt Lake City is estimated to have the largest plurality ever given in that in that city.

In Toledo Mayor Whitlock and the entire independent ticket is elected. Cincinnati elects Col. Leopold Markbreit, the Republican candidate for mayor.

Meager returns from San Francisco show Taylor, Democratic and Good Government candidate for mayor, leading, with the Union Labor candidate showing unexpected strength.

IS ON TRIAL BEFORE SENATE.

Former Italian Minister Before High Court—Violence Is Feared.

Rome, Nov. 7.—The trial of Signor Nunzio Nasi, former minister of public instruction, who is charged with the falsification of documents and defrauding the state treasury out of several million lire, began yesterday before the senate, constituted as a high court of justice. Michael Lombardo, who was under secretary of finance, was placed on trial with Nasi, charged with implication in the frauds.

Signor Nasi did not appear as a man accused; he filled the role of a powerful and fascinating orator. While the accused was making an eloquent speech to the court many senators, including Visconti Vonosta, left their seats and drew near Signor Nasi's chair in order to hear him better. He spoke for five hours and denied all the accusations brought against him.

He insisted that he be judged as a minister; that the duties and responsibilities inherent to that position be taken into consideration. He maintain that what appeared to be peculation was in reality money spent for certain purposes that he would never reveal were it not necessary to do so for his own defense.

The government has taken every precaution to preserve order, for it is certain that there will be serious demonstrations in favor of the accused man.

STRIKER KILLS SELF.

Could Get No Work and Was Ashamed to Be Idle.

Oelwein, Iowa, Nov. 7. — Otto Heinze, over fifty years old, committed suicide, it is supposed, by poison. He was one of the men out on a strike on the Chicago Great Western railway. He had a wife and three children. He had tried to get work at two or three other places, but was refused on account of his age. He worried over his troubles and said he was ashamed to lie around idle.

BLOOD FLOWS IN ELECTION RIOT

TWO CITIZENS AND TWO POLICEMEN ARE SHOT AT LEXINGTON, KY.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 7.—Following an election day riot here yesterday afternoon Clyde Campbell was killed, Patrolman Michael Murphy probably fatally wounded and Patrolman Marion Smith and W. R. Campbell, Clyde's father, severely wounded.

The elder Campbell, a Republican candidate for councilman, was arrested after he had protested against what he termed election frauds. His son came to his assistance and was shot by Murphy. W. R. Campbell then shot Murphy, who returned the fire, severely wounding his man, although himself probably fatally hurt.

Thomas A. Knight, who saw the tragedy, said that in a large crowd at a voting place he saw Policeman Murphy struggling with W. R. Campbell. When the struggle seemed nearly over and the policeman's antagonist seemed to be ceasing his resistance he saw Campbell, Jr., run up and strike Murphy in the face. Murphy turned and kicked young Campbell in the stomach.

A little later young Campbell came running up with a revolver in his hand. Young Campbell demanded of Murphy that he turn his father loose, but Murphy refused.

Just then Patrolman Smith came up and as young Campbell turned to see the officer Murphy struck him three times over the head with his club. Young Campbell dropped to his knees, and as he did so the elder Campbell shot Murphy in the back.

Smith then drew his revolver and the shooting became general. Smith shot old man Campbell. Murphy staggered up against the side of the building and continued to fire, shooting several times. He was still using his pistol when he was struck by another bullet, apparently fired by young Campbell. Murphy had fallen, but he got up and staggered to where young Campbell was struggling with some one who had caught him. Murphy leaned over, placed the muzzle of his pistol within a few inches of young Campbell's body, took deliberate aim and fired.

TREASURE REACHES GOTHAM.

Ship Brings $7,100,000 in Gold to Relieve the Present Stringency.

New York, Nov. 7.—The arrival of the first treasure ship laden with gold for the relief of the present stringency was the feature of the financial situation yesterday. The Kronprinzessin Cecilie was reported off Fire Island at 6 o'clock in the morning and soon after 10 o'clock had docked and was unloading $7,100,000 in the yellow metal which will go to strengthen New York bank reserves. The new Cunard liner Lusitania will follow closely in her wake with $10,000,000, and $14,000,000 will follow during the remainder of the week and early next week.

The additional withdrawals of £750,000 from the Bank of England yesterday for the United States and £25,000 for Canada bring up the total gold engagements on the present movement to about $36,000,000. The news that the Bank of France bought yesterday £3,000,000 in sterling bills on London was regarded here as an event of the first importance as indicating that French financiers were not only able but willing to help London and thus indirectly to help America by relieving the strain on the Bank of England caused by the heavy American demands for gold. It is hoped that this action of the Bank of France will deter the Bank of England from raising its discount rate to 7 per cent at the meeting of the directors on Thursday and the Imperial Bank of Germany from raising its rate from 6 1-2 to 7 1-2 per cent.

That the corner in the recent monetary difficulties has been turned was evidenced yesterday when at a conference of J. Pierpont Morgan, Levi H. Morton, George W. Perkins, together with several other well known financial men, attention was chiefly directed to the situation in other financial centers throughout the country to ascertain if the strain of the last two weeks had disclosed any weak spots. With the situation cleared here the bankers feel that they are now in a position to render such aid as they can to either point should it prove necessary.

NEGRO VICTIM OF JEALOUSY

KILLED BY ANOTHER NEGRO, WHO CONFESSES CRIME TO THE POLICE.

Minneapolis, Nov. 7.—Galenus Jones, colored, was shot through the heart and instantly killed at his home last evening. S. Matthews, a colored man who was arrested, is said to have confessed to the police that he did the shooting.

Matthews is said to have been insanely jealous of the attentions of Jones to a white woman named Nellie Hayes. Last evening about 8:30 Matthews left his home, after making threats that he was going to "get some one." He evidently went directly to the Jones place, which is on the second floor of the building. There a spirited quarrel arose between him and Jones.

The Hayes woman is said to have been in the house at the time. Pearl McMullen, the white wife of William A. McMullen, a colored employe in a down-town saloon, also was in the house. She became frightened at the quarrel and the threats of Matthews and ran down the stairs to call a policeman. She had scarcely reached the ground floor when she heard the shot which killed Jones.

After the shooting Matthews is said to have left the house hurriedly and gone directly across the street into the Millett saloon. As he entered he is said to have muttered, "I got him this time."

He ran out the back way and disappeared. Shortly afterwards Mrs. McMullen saw him walking on Washington avenue, about two blocks from the scene of the murder, and pointed him out to the police, who at once placed him under arrest.

SEND MONEY TO MOVE THE CROPS

GOTHAM BANKERS PREPARE TO SHIP ALL AVAILABLE MONEY TO NORTHWEST.

CORTELYOU ALSO TAKES ACTION

$3,000,000 OF GOVERNMENT MONEY TO BE PLACED IN TWIN CITY BANKS.

New York, Nov. 7.—Now that the monetary strain has been lessened locally, the New York banks began preparations yesterday to ship all available currency to the Northwest to aid the movement of crops. While there is concerted action among the city's banking institutions to meet the demand from the crop country, the individual banks also will send all the funds that can possibly be spared. Estimates of the amounts that the New York banks will send to the Northwest within the next six weeks vary. The Chase National bank and the First National bank have commenced to ship daily sums ranging from $25,000 to $50,000 to banks along the route of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads.

Hill Asks Bankers to Help.

James J. Hill held a conference with officials of the Chase National bank and other institutions, at which, it is stated, he asked that the Northwest be given all possible assistance. He was informed that while the local banks could not furnish the usual amount of money for crop moving, they were anxious to do all they could to expedite the shipment of cereals to the seaboard and thereby strengthen this country's position in the foreign money markets.

Cortelyou to Send $3,000,000.

The bringing in yesterday of gold from abroad has already proved helpful in expediting the movement of currency to the Western wheat field. The premium for currency became lower yesterday and this enables several banks to ship larger amounts than would have otherwise proved possible to correspondents west of the Mississippi. It was learned here yesterday that government deposits directed by Secretary Cortelyou to be placed in St. Paul and Minneapolis amount to $3,000,000, and that this sum will be forwarded from Washington.

General Conditions Improve.

General conditions in the financial situation were favorable yesterday. The runs on trust companies had practically ceased under the encouraging support of the trust company committee, gold engagements were further increased, the stock market rose buoyantly. It is now believed that the situation will gradually simmer down with the continuous arrival of gold until the stringency is converted into the plethora of reserve money in banks which usually follows a crisis.

The trouble arose originaly from fear that the government will withhold rations, and with the approach of winter the Indians apprehend destitution. The money panic has about run its course and we may now look for easier terms.

The parcel post would deliver us from the robber express barons but would deliver us to the Metropolitan Mail order concerns.

The open season for big game will cammence tomorrow, November 10th, and the usual number of men and deer will probably be killed.

The elections this week decided that it will be Mayor McPhee of Crookston, Mayor Hamre of Thief River Falls and Mayor Duffy of Red Lake Falls.

Weather prophets seem to differ materially about the kind of a winter we are going to have this year. Some predict a mild one while others say it will be very severe.

Last Tuesday's elections throughout the country seem to give a little comfort to all political parties. Kentucky went Republican, New Jersey went Democratic, and Delaware went dry.

The Evening Press of Grand Forks declares that a poll of the democrats of North Dakota shows our own John A. Johnson in the lead for the democratic nomination for president.

There is a moral in the recent panic. Don't monkey with the trust magnate when he is skinning the public; it makes him ugly. Just take your medicine and say you like it, and maybe they won't take quite all you have saved.

Cheap.

The clubwoman giggled.

"You know, my husband's birthday is next week," she said, "and I"—

Laughter overcame her for the moment.

—"and I have been taking a cigar out of his case every day for the last three months. Well," she went on, "I've got a hundred now, and I'll give them to him for a birthday present."—Exchange.

Hear one side and you will be in the dark. Hear both sides and all will be clear.—Haliburton.

The Name Bismarck.

Few people know how Bismarck and his ancestors got their name. Bismarck is the name of one of those ancient castles a short distance from Stendal, on the road from Cologne to Berlin, in the center of the old marquisate of Brandenburg. The castle had this name because it defended the "marca," or the line where the river Biese formed a boundary in former times or mark of defense against intruders: hence the name of Bismarck.

When Greek Meets Greek.

"Gracious, my dear," said the first society belle; "I do hope you're not ill; you look so much older tonight."

"I'm quite well, thank you, dear," replied the other. "And you—how wonderfully improved you are! You look positively young."—Philadelphia Press.

"PAGEANT."

Professor Skeat on the Proper Pronunciation of the Word.

Instead of trusting to casual observers, it is far better to understand the principles that govern our pronunciation. There is one principle in particular which, rightly considered, gives us a good deal of help in the instance under consideration.

In my "Primer of English Etymology" I give some simple rules of accentuation. Rule 1 is as follows: "When the length of a word is augmented an original long vowel is apt to be shortened by the accentual stress falling upon it." Such augmentation is due to the formation of a derivative.

An easy example is seen in the case of cone, pronounced with a long "o," for if we form a derivative by adding the suffix "ic" the result is conic, with a short "o."

There is a general principle that affects the whole language and sets up a standard habit. By way of illustration, compare bile with bilious, crime with criminal, brake and bracken, dine and dinner, mine and mineral, coal and collier and perhaps at least seventy more. A remarkable instance is seen in collie, which is merely a new pronunciation of coaly. Certain dogs were once called coaly dogs because of their coal black markings. An extension of the same principle may be made in comparing the dissyllabic forms agent and cogent with the allied trysyllables agitate and cogitate.

When once such a principle has become general it is obvious that a word like pageant will be influenced by the very large number of dissyllables that have the former vowel short, and this is why the truly normal pronunciation of the word resembles the "a" in Paget. I do not certainly know the origin of that name, but I suppose it is merely the diminutive of page, in which the "a" is shortened as a matter of course simply because the diminutive "et" has been added.

The pronunciation of primer has often been discussed, and many are they who think that they clinch the matter by saying that the "i" in the Latin primus is long, for that proves nothing at all as regards modern English, and those who have studied our peculiar ways with the closest attention are well aware that the normal way is, after all, to pronounce it as if it were spelled primmer. We do not therefore spell it with a double "m," because that is not our system. We write tonic and conic and mimic in order to show their connection with tone and cone and mime, and we trust that the unfortunate reader, after he has thus had the etymology explained to him, will provide the pronunciation for himself. Such a word as pageant may be usefully compared with magic and tropic and agitate.—London Academy.

SAVED BY QUICK WIT.

The Escape of Sir Archibald Douglas at Poitiers.

In the battle of Poitiers (1356) a number of Scottish soldiers fought on the side of the French, and several of them were taken prisoners by the English. Among them was Sir Archibald Douglas, half brother of Lord William Douglas. Being dressed in a suit of splendid armor, the victors thought they had captured—as indeed they had—some great nobleman. Several of the English were about to strip off his armor when Sir William Ramsay of Colluthie, who was also a prisoner, happening to catch Sir Archibald's eye, gave him a meaning look. Pretending to be very angry, he cried out: "You rascal, how is it that you are wearing your master's armor? Come here and pull off my boots!" Douglas, seemingly thoroughly cowed, went humbly forward and drew off a boot, with which Sir William began to beat him. The English onlookers at once interfered on Douglas' behalf, saying that he was a person of great rank and a lord. "What!" shouted Ramsay, shaking with laughter. "He a lord? Why, he is a base knave and, I suppose, has slain his master. Go, you villain, and search the field for the body of my cousin, your master, and when you have found it let me know, that I may give it decent burial." All this was acted so naturally that the English allowed Ramsay to ransom the pretended manservant for 40 shillings. The money having been paid, Sir William gave Douglas another thrashing and then bade him begone. Sir Archibald lost no time in effecting his escape, which he owed solely to the ingenuity of his friend.

A Curious Anomaly.

Until a few years ago the Philippine Islanders held their Sunday on the day which was Monday to the inhabitants of the neighboring island of Borneo. This curious anomaly arose from the historic fact that the Philippines were discovered by Spanish voyagers coming from the east round Cape Horn, while Borneo was discovered by Portuguese coming from the west, and sailors lose or gain a day according to their direction in crossing the Pacific.

When to Lift Your Hat.

In answer to the question, "Please tell when and where are, or is, the correct time for a gentleman to lift or remove his hat," we reply: Without consulting authorities of etiquette, in fact giving it to you offhand, so to speak, we should say at the following times and on the following occasions, respectively, the hat should be lifted or removed as circumstances indicate: When mopping the brow, when taking a bath, when eating, when going to bed, when taking up a collection, when having the hair trimmed, when being shampooed, when standing on the head.—Wichita (Kan.) Beacon.

Theater Seats.

The seats were in the orchestra on the theater's left. "The left side of the house always sells out first," said the box office man. "Everybody seems to prefer it to the right. I don't know why. Boxes especially—we can sell two left to one right box every time. Nobody takes the right side for choice. And there is no reason for this. As much goes on in the right extremity of the stage as in the left—we proprietors always look after that—and you see just as much from the right as from the left side. Why, then, is the left side always at a premium?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Sugar as a Food.

Some interesting experiments with referance to the nutritive value of foods containing sugar were recently made at the instance of the war office at Berlin. It is a fact well known to Alpine tourists that on difficult climbing excursions an increased desire is felt for sweets and sweetened. The well known food value of golden grain belt beer makes it a favorite in home circles and especially recommended as a tonic and an aid to digestion. White Africans.

The Berbers, who, although African, are as white as Europeans, are the oldest white race on record, says an explorer. They are supposed to have come from the south of Europe in ancient days, the Dundee Advertiser says, and, although their language and customs are entirely different from ours and their religion Mohammedan, they are probably closely akin by descent. Blue eyes and fair hair are not at all uncommon among the Berbers, and many of them have rosy cheeks and features so like our own that were they dressed in British fashion they would easily pass as natives of the British isles.

Dairymen Meet.

The fifth annual meeting of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association was held at Crookston on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. In the butter contest Louis Flagel of Erskine took first prize with a score of 94½ and George L. Austin of the St. Hilaire creamery took second with a score of 94. In the election of officers for the ensuing year Geo. L. Austin was elected secretary.

Pensions Increased.

Congressman Steenerson writes that Alfred C. Mayfield of St. Hilaire, late company seargent 44 Regular Wisconsin Volunteer infantry, has had his pension increased to $12.00 a month from March 11th 1907. Also that Peter Peterson of St. Hilaire, late landsman U. S. Navy has been granted a a pension of $20 a month from May 23, 1907. The many friends of both gentlemen will be pleased to learn of their good fortune.

Human Muscles.

If the muscles in the arm of the average man were put together and a nervous impulse passed into them, their contraction would lift a weight of 224 pounds from the ground. Muscles have the unique power when stimulated by nerve impulse of contracting somewhat as rubber bands might do if they could squeeze themselves up shorter. They are, in fact, the reverse of rubber, for they contract only and cannot stretch out.—Minneapolis Journal.

School Notes.

This frosty weather mornings makes one think of his skates.

Leo Carpenter returned to us Monday to go on with his grade, now the eighth. Also, Schmar Hauge entered the third grade, Theo. Bluson the fourth and Bennie Johnson the fifth.

One of the big problems in the school room is to secure plenty of light at all times of the day and have it equally distributed. This is particularly hard to secure during the winter months when the sun dips low and the curtains have to be pulled all the way down at certain times of the day. To overcome this difficulty an experiment is being tried in the high school room and it seems to give the desired results. The curtain holders are lowered about twelve inches and the part of the window pane above is dabbed with whiting, slightly colored. This arrangement breaks up the direct sunlight but still admits the light.

++o++

Lillie Johnson finished teaching her term of school and is now amusing herself with some of the easier high school subjects such as algebra, ancient history, etc.

Excuse blanks are being distributed, a few at each home. The parents are requested to send one of these excuse blanks, properly filled out, along with the child when he returns to school after having been absent. This is required so that the teacher may know that the child stayed out with the parents' consent. We hope the parents will always try to be very careful to comply with this rule, for the pupil will not be admitted to his class until he brings the excuse signed by one of parents. This is required so that we may know, as before stated, that the absence is necessary and with the consent of the parents.

AGOONACK

Agoonack lives in the far north. She is a little Esquimo girl. Where Agoonack lives it is very cold. Her house is made of blocks of snow, and there are two passages to go through before you get into the room where they live. They have a dish with oil and a wick in it which they keep burning. This they use as a lamp and also as a stove.

They eat the flesh of the whale and the seal and also from the bear. They dress in fur clothes. Agoonack eats tallow candles and bird's legs dipped in fat as candy. She likes them very much.

When the men go out hunting and bring home a bear they have a great feast. They invite all their neighbors and after they have eaten they dance, sing and tell stories. Sometimes while they are having this feast a snowstorm comes up and covers the doorway so the people have to stay there for many days.

When Agoonack's birthday comes she receives a sled made of bone as there are no trees there. Then her dogs are big enough to ride her.

One day Agoonack's mother puts on the little girl's shabby clothes and takes her up on the mountain and there she sees the beautiful sun. She is very glad to see the sun for then most of the snow will melt and she can play football. Every day the sun comes farther up until it is above them. Then some flowers grow. Soon the sun stays away longer every day until at last they cannot see it until the next summer.

Farmer's Bulletin, No. 79, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after peinting out the great future of the sugar-beet industry in the United States, says: "In general it may be said that any soil which will produce a good crop of Indian corn, wheat, or potatoes will, under proper cultivation, produce a good crop of sugar beets." What possibilities has that rapidly growing money-producer for this county? Is anyone prepared to say, basing his sayso on fair trial in the county? Had there been an experiment station on a small scale in the neighborhood—a county agricultural school, for instance—where careful experiments could be carried on we could have direct information of the highest class on that point as well as on a host of others.

A TALENTED WRITER

Praises Peruna as a Catarrh Remedy

MRS. E. M. TINNEY

Mrs. E. M. Tinney, story writer, 825 E. Nueva St., San Antonio, Tex., writes:

"During 1901 I suffered form nasal catarrh, which various other remedies failed to relieve.

"Six bottles of Peruna, which I took, entirely cured me, the catarrh disappearing and never returning.

"I therefore cheerfully recommend Peruna to all similarly afflicted."

Mrs. Ellen Nagle, 414 4th street, Green Bay, Wis., writes:

"I have often heard Peruna praised and it is more widely known here than any other medicine, but I never knew what a splendid medicine it really was until a few weeks ago when I caught a bad cold which settled all over me.

"The doctor wanted to prescribe, but I told him I was going to try Peruna and sent for a bottle and tried it.

"I felt much better the next morning and within five days I had not a trace of any lameness or any cough.

"I consider it the finest cough remedy."

PERUNA TABLETS:—Some people prefer to take tablets rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the solid medicinal ingredients of Peruna.

State News of the Week Briefly Told

Timothy Sullivan was killed near Biwabik by a Missabe road train.

Mrs. Mary Gittens, a pioneer of Pine Creek, died, aged eighty-one years. She was one of the oldest settlers in the valley.

The warehouse of the Hinckley Implement company at Hinckley burned to the ground. The loss is $2,400; insurance, $1,500.

Jackson Kidder of Fergus Falls, clerk of court of Ottertail county, shot his left hand off while hunting at Little Pine lake, near Perham.

All of the elevators at Benson and at the small towns near by have been closed until the present unsteadiness in the markets has ceased.

H. H. Luders, who owns the largest farm in Otter Tail county, met with a serious accident. His right hand was cut off in a corn shredder.

Louis Rehfeldt suicided at his room in the Milwaukee house at Winona by shooting himself in the right temple. He had been on a prolonged spree.

The Midway horse barn at Breckenridge, owned by G. E. Moody of Wahpeton, N. D., was totally destroyed by fire. The building was valued at $2,000; partially insured.

Fred Shellgren, a pioneer citizen of the east end of Swift county, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. He was found in his room shortly before he died. No cause has been given for his deed.

Freight Train No. 69, west-bound, was wrecked two miles west of Grand Meadow, and six cars and the caboose were derailed. The track was badly torn up for several hundred feet. No one was seriously hurt.

Residents of Janesville are greatly aroused over the desecration of a cemetery near the village. Vandals entered the graveyard in the dark, overturned a dozen tombstones and committed other lawless acts.

Jacob Hyoonen, a miner employed at the Canister mines at Bovey, was killed while descending the shaft on a ladder. A piece of board fell when he was within fifty feet of the bottom and knocked him off the ladder.

The jury in the case of the state against John Meagher, charged with the murder of Morris Frawley on the Big Fork river, brought in a verdict of not guilty at Duluth. Mr. Meagher is of Northfield, where he bears a good reputation.

A stranger forged the payee's name to a check he found given by Frank Sabothka, a thresher, on the Windom National bank for $40. The forgery was discovered immediately, but the forger escaped on a train. The sheriff captured him later.

Rev. T. H. M. Villiers Appleby, Episcopal archdeacon of Duluth, had an interview with President Roosevelt last week, at which he took occasion to complain of his unsuccessful efforts in retaining certain Minnesota land for church purposes.

According to the figures of the Duluth Directory company, just given out. Duluth now has a population of 86,188, a gain of 4,885 during the year ending Oct. 1. The total number of names is 36,404, and to this is applied the multiple of 2 1-4.

A prairie fire in Lac qui Parle county, which had its origin across the line in South Dakota, has been reported to Gen. C. C. Andrews, state forestry commissioner. The fire burned over several hundred acres, destroying some corn and thousands of tons of hay and straw.

Fire that originated in room 31 of the Tremont hotel at Duluth at 9 o'clock last night did damage to the amount of $15,000. It is supposed the fire originated from a carelessly thrown match or cigar stub. People in their rooms had not retired, and all escaped without injury.

A prairie fire was started by sparks from a passing train near Little Falls. The grass was as dry as powder, and the firemen struggled five hours before the conflagration could be put out. Several acres were burned black and bare. Section men were called in to assist the firemen, and the fire was finally put out.

Trading in grain was suspended on the Duluth board of trade Monday morning, owing to the money conditions. No sales were made in either cash grain or the options although the trading room was open and the members on the floor. Business will not be resumed until conditions improve, and the country elevators are being advised not to buy grain.

On account of a dense fog and rails that were slippery with frost, two street cars bumped into each other at Winona, and both were badly smashed. One was loaded with workmen going to the factory district and the other with people coming down town to their offices and stores. Every person on both cars was bruised, but strangely not one was seriously hurt.

August Ratzu, forty-four years old, fell into the elevator of the Laird-Norton planing mill at Winona, and, although it appeared that he was not seriously hurt, he died the next morning. Examination showed that a small blood vessel in the brain was ruptured, which caused his death.

The worst swamp fires for thirteen years are raging in Woodside and Eastern, near Parkers Prairie. They have been burning for several days, and are taking a northerly direction, following the Wing river. Hundreds of tons of hay have been destroyed.

Gilbert Peterson, a young man of Parkers Prairie, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a shotgun. He was in poor health and had been melancholy for several weeks.

William Paeschke, a farmer of Roseville, living about two miles west of Paynesville, was seriously injured by being thrown from a load of corn which he was hauling from the fields to the barn yard. Mr. Paeschke was thrown to the hard ground. He was alone at the time of the accident, and when discovered was unconscious.

PRESCRIPTION WHICH ANYONE CAN EASILY MIX.

Said to Promptly Overcome Kidney and Bladder Afflictions—Shake Simple Ingredients Well in Bottle.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A prominent physician is the authority that these simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from any druggist even in the smaller towns.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive Kidneys, overcoming Backache, Bladder weakness and Urinary trouble of all kinds, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many persons.

The Scranton (Pa.) Times was first to print this remarkable prescription, in October, of 1906; since when all the leading newspapers of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and other cities have made many announcements of it to their readers.

The Old-fashioned Way.

GERMANY HELPS BOYS.

Looks Up Positions for Them Before They Leave School.

When an American boy leaves school he does not always know what sort of work he wants or is fit for. Or even when he knows exactly what kind of a job he desires, he often does not know at all how to find it. Such a job as he aims for may not exist within his opportunities of place and time. So the boy leaving school may drift into an unsuitable occupation, or, worse, into no occupation at all, in spite of an honest wish originally to work. In Germany they order these things better.

Every year printed schedules of comprehensive questions are sent to every head teacher of the Munich schools to be distributed among the pupils who are going to leave the schools that year.

The pupils are asked to put themselves in communication with the municipal labor bureau, which will advise them as to the choice of a vocation, and give them the best chance possible to secure work.

Yearly circulars are also sent to all the trade guilds and other labor societies to enlist their co-operation.

The children respond readily to the aid given them. Boys come by dozens to the offices of the bureau in search of positions as apprentice or beginner. Each brings a form of application filled up by himself, but signed by his teacher.

When the bureau finds a place for him he is notified by post card and presents himself for examination by the employer, wherever and whenever the latter may appoint.

Whther the boy takes the job or not, he must report to the bureau the result of the interview, and this goes on until work is procured which suits him and which he is able to do.

For the direction of the boys the labor bureau has prepared, with the aid of expert employers and medical men, a handbook of the industries open to a boy. This handbook describes the different kinds of work, the qualifications necessary to each, the prospects of promotion or steady employment, the health conditions, the dangers and difficulties, the cost and time of training and everything else which the boy and his parents ought to know before choosing his career.

A ladies' committee has lately been appointed to look after the girls, also, from the schools. So the young people of Munich have a first-rate chance for a good start in life.

Pantaloons Fooled Her.

Two titled Chinese maids, on their way to enter Wellesley college, were barred from the women's waiting room at the railroad station to-day.

The trouble with the little Celestial maids was their flowered silken pantaloons made them look like boys.

Miss Faung Yui Tsao, their guardian, held a whispered talk with Mrs Chase, the station matron, who blushed, smiled and let the maids pass in They were Miss Chi Che Wang and Miss Ming Hsiahu.

The Right of Selection.

The strong-minded lady glared at the little man.

"Women will soon claim the right of matrimonial selection," she said.

"With the consent of the selected, of course?" quoth the little man.

"That will be determined later," said the strong-minded lady. "But you may rest assured of one thing There will be no shilly shallying."

With this mysterious warning the strong-minded lady turned and went her way, leaving the little man in a cold perspiration.

A Prognostication.

He was a brand new milkman, and, lacking the wisdom of more experienced members of the species, knew not that on certain subjects he should at all times maintain a frigid silence. "It looks like rain this morning, mum," he said pleasantly, gazing skywards, as he poured the milk into his customer's jug. "It always does," was the curt reply. And the milkman was so dissatisfied with the remark that he strode away and savagely kicked a lamppost.

TESTED BY TIME.

A Cure That Has Held Good for Four Years.

Mrs. Mary Crumlish of 1130 West Third Street, Wilmington, Del., says: "Some years ago I began to feel weak and miserable and one day awoke from a nap with a piercing pain in my back that made me scream. For two days I could not move and after that I had backache and dizzy spells all the time. My ankles swelled and I ran down dreadfully. I was nervous and had awful headaches. I wonder that any medicine could do what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me. They cured me four years ago and I have been well ever since."

Striking Its Gait.

"What are they going to do with that racing drama?"

"Why, of course, put it on for a run."

Well Done.

A party of distinguished Englishmen which included a judge of the high court, an editor and a naturalist, were sitting in the editor's room, when a singular spider ran across the floor and disappeared under some books.

It was a giant, one of the largest species found in England, and the naturalist lifted the books instantly. The spider darted toward the old justice. He sprang up, and the spider's life ended.

"It was a very rare species," murmured the naturalist, regretfully.

"I made it rarer," said the judge.

She Did Not Fear Death.

An old lady on her seventy-third birthday once said, "I do not mind getting old, and I do not fear death, but I live in constant fear of paralysis."

"For some time I have been wanting to tell you of the great good your wonderful Sloan's Liniment is doing here," writes Mr. James F. Abernethy, of Rutherford College, N. C. "In fact, all your remedies are doing noble work, but your Liniment beats all. In my eight years' experience with medicine I find none to go ahead of it, having tried it in very many cases. I know of one young man, a brick-mason, who suffered from a partial, yes, almost complete, paralysis of one arm. I got him to use your Liniment, and now he can do as much work as ever, and he sings your praise every day. I get all to use it I possibly can and know there is great virtue in it. I have helped the sale of your noble remedies about here greatly, and expect to cause many more to buy them, as I know they can't be beat."

CAMELS DWELT IN OREGON.

In Days of Old When the State Was a Tropical Wilderness.

That the whole of interior Oregon was once the bed of the Pacific ocean has been proved beyond question, says Sunset, by the investigations of Prof. Thomas Condon, Dr. Diller and other noted geologists. That the region was later a tropical country has been equally well estabilsehd.

Numerous discoveries of the bones of these animals, and rocks containng the perfect imprint of the plants of the tropics, have been made, and it is no longer an occasion for surprise when well diggers or irrigation excavators unearth the fossil remains of a camel or a broad-faced ox. Within recent years many fossil beds of beautiful palm leaves have been found in Eastern Oregon.

The Cascade Hills, Blue Mountains and Owyhees, once islands surrounded by tropical lakes, were covered with luxuriant growth, forests and flowering shrubs, for Knowlton tells us the magnolia and cinnamon and fig trees were there.

To-day the soil presents a finely ground mixture of basalt and volcanic ash, containing the elements of most fertile soil, and when properly watered producing enormous crops of vegetables, fruits and grains common to emperate zones. The climate has been changed, says Prof. Condon, by the upfolding of the Cascade range, shutting off from the interior the softening influence of the Japan current and the drift of ocean fogs and clouds.

HER "BEST FRIEND."

A Woman Thus Speaks of Postum.

We usually consider our best friends those who treat us best.

Some persons think coffee a real friend, but watch it carefully awhile and observe that it is one of the meanest of all enemies for it stabs one while professing friendship.

Coffee contains a poisonous drug—caffeine—which injures the delicate nervous system and frequently sets up disease in one or more organs of the body, if its use is persisted in.

"I had heart palpitation and nervousness for four years and the doctor told me the trouble was caused by coffee. He advised me to leave it off, but I thought I could not," writes a Wis. lady.

"On the advice of a friend I tried Postum Food Coffee and it so satisfied me that I did not care for coffee after a few days' trial of Postum.

"As weeks went by and I continued to use Postum my weight increased from 98 to 118 pounds, and the heart trouble left me. I have used it a year now, and am stronger than I ever was. I can hustle up stairs without any heart palpitation, and I am cured of nervousness.

"My children are very fond of Postum and it agrees with them. My sister liked it when she drank it at my house, but not when she made it at her own home. Now she has learned to make it right, boil it according to directions, and has become very fond of it. You may use my name if you wish, as I am not ashamed of praising my best friend—Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

COPPER FOR GOLD.

Bank of England Branch Swindled in an Unusual Way.

A remarkable story of halfpennies being substituted for half sovereigns was told at the Manchester city police court recently, when Henry Douglas Anderson, who had been employed at the Manchester branch of the Bank of England, and after absconding had been arrested in Canada, was charged with stealing £1,081.

In stating the case for the prosecution, F. E. Smith, M. P., said that the prisoner's duty was that of separating lightweight gold coins from those of full weight, and he had to put the full weight coins into bags which he had to label and sign. On July 31 he absented himself, and on August 2 the bank issued twenty-five bags of half sovereigns to Messrs. Williams, Deacon's bank, and fourteen of them, which had been made up by the prisoner, were found to have been tampered with, half sovereigns having been replaced by the necessary number of halfpennies to make up the correct weight. Two other bags in the bank's treasury which bore his signature were also found to have been tampered with in the same way, and the total sum missing was £1,081.

On September 13 the bank received a letter from the prisoner in Winnipeg, in which he practically admitted his guilt and made reference to the mad act he had committed.

Evidence was given by a number of bank clerks, including a retired detective inspector, named John Woolven, who, describing his search for Anderson, said he went down to Whitstable-on-Sea and found the prisoner's wife and family living there. In a drawer he found £647.

QUEER PLACES FOR TUBS.

English Methods of Providing Facilities for Bathing.

The notorious disregard of the necessity for bathing facilities in the English household, built in the past as well as those of the present day, which has created so much adverse criticism on the part of visiting Americans, is gradually being overcome. However, to an American the subterfuges for bathrooms are extremely amusing. In one case, and this is very recent, it was proposed in a "model" house to sink a bathtub in the floor of the kitchen and to cover it with a trapdoor when not in use, the supply of water being obtained from the nearby sink by means of a flexible hose connection.

A still more recent so-called "bath installation for small houses and cottages" which is advertised in the leading plumbers' trade journal of Great Britain consists of a galvanized iron bathtub arranged upon a platform which, it is proposed, to elevate bodily to the ceiling when not in use. It is explained that this makes an admirable installation for the "scullery or kitchen of the small house property."

The bath is fixed upon a platform with feet, and by means of pulleys and steel ropes it is raised much as an elevator would be, upon uprights placed against an adjacent wall. Short lengths of hose are used to connect the bath with the hot and cold water pipes of the sink.

When it is desired to empty the bath it is raised above the level of the sink, a rubber hose allowing it to be emptied into the sink.

THE SIGN BEARS.

Plea of Man With the Wilted Collar to Have Them Taken Inside in Summer.

"I'm not so sure," said the man with the wilted collar, "but what we ought to have is a law, or a by-law, or a city ordinance, or an act of the legislature, or an amendment to the constitution, or something of that sort to compel furriers to take in the bear signs in summer, or at least in such weather as we've been having these last few days.

"I go along the street hot and uncomfortable, perspiring and dripping, more like a peripatetic irrigation plant than a human being, and I don't see how anything could make me feel any worse; and then all of a sudden I come across one of those sign bears out on the sidewalk, standing upon its hind legs and holding its forelegs out in front as far as it can get them from its body, and with his mouth wide open, standing there panting in misery in a heavy fur coat with the thermometer at 90, and that adds to my wretchedness about 80 per cent instantly, and it must afford others in just the same way.

"Let's amend the constitution, or do something to compel the furriers to take in their sign in summer."

Policeman's Badge Over His Heart.

Many persons are puzzled to know why policemen wear their badges so low on their coats instead of on the flap made for that purpose. As a matter of fact, the badge or star, as he calls it, of many a policeman is right next to his heart.

Some of the bluecoats of this city can thank their "stars" for being alive. This little metal shield has deflected the bullet of burglar or highwayman and at times, too, has stopped the knife thrust of would-be assassins. During the last twenty or thirty years there are many cases on record showing that the little badge has been a lifesaver. Even bullets fired at close range, as a rule, cannot penetrate the shield. That's why a bluecoat always feels safer in keeping the star at a vital spot. When off duty some policemen wear their stars on their vests, but always directly over the heart. They are so accustomed to the little protector that they feel uneasy without it.

Bemidji will be the scene of a double execution on Feb. 7. Gov. Johnson has performed a disagreeable official duty in setting the date for the execution of two murderers, recently convicted in Beltrami county, Merton S. Munn and Peter Mathieson. The men were not associated in crime, but were convicted about the same time, and will pay the penalty together.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

The kidneys are essential organs for keeping the body free from impurities. If they should fail to work death would ensue in very short time.

Inflammation or irritation caused by some feminine derangement may spread to some extent to the Kidneys and affect them. The cause can be so far removed by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that the trouble will disappear.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, swelling of the limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with

FAMILY'S SKIN TROUBLES.

Eczema, Heat Rash, and Scalp Affections Afflict Different Members, But Cuticura Cures Them.

"My wife had eczema for five or six years. It was on her face and would come and go. We thought we would give the Cuticura Remedies a trial. We did so and she has never had a sign of eczema for four years. I myself used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment some time ago for falling hair. I now have a very heavy head of hair. We used Cuticura Remedies for our baby, who was nearly bald when young. She has very nice hair now. She is very fleshy, and we had so much trouble with heat that we would bathe her with Cuticura Soap and then apply Cuticura Ointment, it would dry the heat up so much quicker than anything else. Mr. H. B. Springmire, 323 So. Capital Street, Iowa City, Ia., July 16, 1905, and Sept. 16, 1906."

His Time Would Come.

"Well," sighed the Billville brother, "havin' quit about everything else, I think I'll take to smokin'."

"I shouldn't do that, dear," said his wife. "At least not now. Wait a while. You'll be sure to smoke hereafter!"

It is a real shy man's secret belief that nothing worse can happen to a man than to have a baby left on his porch.

BRITONS SCRAMBLE TO MEET EMPEROR

DELAY IN KAISER'S ARRIVAL CAUSES HITCH IN THE WELCOME PLANS.

OFFICIALS WERE AT LUNCH

ARRIVAL AT PORTSMOUTH ONE HOUR AHEAD OF TIME SURPRISES GUARDS.

Portsmouth, England, Nov. 13.—Owing to a chilling, impenetrable fog, which made a passage from the Isle of Wight impossible, the German imperial yacht Hohenzollern, having on board Emperor William, the empress and the other members of the German imperial party, who are to visit King Edward and Queen Alexandra, was unable to cross the harbor bar here on the early tide and did not reach the jetty until three hours after the appointed time yesterday afternoon.

The Hohenzollern, with the escorting fleet, anchored off Selsea Hill, not having been able to enter Sandown bay, Isle of Wight, according to program.

Boarded Imperial Yacht.

The prince of Wales, who had been delegated by King Edward to personally welcome the German emperor and empress, had in the meanwhile boarded a torpedo boat, accompanied by Field Marshal Lord Roberts, and gone out in the darkness to find the imperial yacht and succeeded in getting on board of her just as the fog lifted sufficiently to enable the Hohenzollern to proceed to Portsmouth.

The British channel fleet, under the command of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford and numbering nearly fifty warships, dressed from stem to stern, saluted the German emperor as the Hohenzollern passed up the narrow waters of Spithead, the land batteries joining in the welcome.

Surprised Guards of Honor.

Owing to the delay caused by the fog the hour of the arrival of the Hohenzollern at the jetty was miscalculated, with the result that all the officials and the guards of honor who had been patiently waiting throughout the morning for her arrival had gone to luncheon when she finally appeared through the fog. The emperor apparently enjoyed the surprise he had sprung on the British officials and the consequent scramble to get back to the jetty in time to take part in the welcome.

After inspecting the guards of honor, the German emperor and empress and their suites, accompanied by the prince of Wales and his suite, left Portsmouth by train for Windsor, amid the fire of a royal salute from the assembled warships and the garrison batteries.

The imperial party reached Windsor at 5 p. m. and were warmly greeted by King Edward and Queen Alexandra. The two monarches and their wives cordially embraced and then went to Windsor castle.

ARE IN FEAR OF HIGHBINDERS.

Chinese Tongs in Minneapolis May War as Result of Gambling Raid.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—Fearful that Cinese highbinders may try to kill them or wreck their homes with dynamite, two Minneapolis Chinamen are being guarded by the police. Charles Moy and Jim Mar, who are the complainants in the cases against fifteen Chinamen arrested in a gambling joint two weks ago, fear personal injury, and the police have been asked to protect them. Threats are said to have been made that the Chinese laundry at 210 Central avenue will be wrecked and the police are watching the building.

The fifteen Chinamen were arrested in a raid on On Quong's place at 229 Fourth Fourth avenue south. Fifteen Chinamen were rounded up. Gambling devices and opium outfits are said to have been found, and the gambling paraphernalia was in court yesterday to be used in evidence.

The Chinamen all gave bail for their appearance and at once sought the assistance of Albert H. Hall as their attorney. Rumors of trouble between the "tongs" among the Chinamen began to be heard soon after the arrest, but little credence was given the stories until evidences of threats against the complaining witnesses were shown to the police.

The two witnesses claim that they were fleeced out of nearly $1,000 in the On Quong place, and On Quong and Sam Moy were placed on trial yesterday to answer the charge.

MUCH MORE CHEERFUL.

Financial Business on a Normal Basis in New York.

New York, Nov. 13. — The week opened with a cheerful tone in the financial district. The two trust companies against which there had been severe runs were transacting business on a normal basis yesterday, receiving deposits and paying out money on checks as though nothing had ever happened out of the ordinary.

The flow of gold from Europe to the United States continues.

KAISER MAKES PEACE TALK

BRITONS RECEIVE HIM WITH RESPECT TINGED WITH COOLNESS.

London, Nov. 14.—Emperor William of Germany, the guest of King Edward, made a speech yesterday at the Guild hall, where he was entertained by the city of London. He urged the strengthening of the Anglo-German relations and emphasized his unalterable desire to foster the peace of the world. The day passed off without the expected socialistic demonstration, much less any disorder or rioting.

The reception accorded Emperor William by the people of London has been respectful, but compared to that given some other royal visitors of recent years, it was in no sense enthusiastic. The atmosphere which has prevailed during his appearance in public has been tinged with decided coolness.

Emperor William evidently intends that his visit will inspire better feeling, but the results are yet to be seen. However cordial the relations between the ruling house of Great Britain and Germany may be, the British public does not share the sentiments. A large section, if not a majority, of English people persist in believing Germany to be Great Britain's one enemy among the nations.

ALL RUSSIA IN TERROR.

Anarchy and Disorder Reigns Everywhere.

Copenhagen, Nov. 14. — Herman Bang, the well known author, publishes in a ministerial paper a private interview with a prominent Russian friend belonging to the government party in his country. This friend declares that never before was he so anxious as to Russia's future as now. Anarchy and disorganization, he says, are extending more and more, and the central government of St. Petersburg is perfectly powerless. The governors all over the country keep up a reign of terror, but Russia as an empire no longer exists. It consists only of several countries loosely bound together.

$200,000 FRAUD CHARGED.

Insurance Agency's President Arrested on Postal Charge.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 14. — J. C. Wilson, president of the Interstate Fiscal Agency Company, agents for the Kansas City Life Insurance company in Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska was arrested yesterday charged with using the mails to defraud. The government officials allege that over $200,000 had been collected by the Kansas City Life Insurance company's Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska agents since last January. The formal charge against Wilson as president of the Interstate Fiscal Agency company is that he misrepresented facts to get business.

DOUBLE MURDER CHARGED.

John Graves Follows Brother to Grave as Result of Shooting.

Rapid City, S. D., Nov. 14. — One week after his brother Frank died, John Graves, the other victim of the murderous attack of Ed Wallace, a local colored man, passed away, and Wallace now will have a double charge of murder to face. Both the Graves boys were colored, and, it is alleged, were shot down by Wallace during an attempt to separate the latter from a woman he was beating.

URGES BANKERS TO SEND CASH TO WEST

SECRETARY CORTELYOU EXERTING ALL HIS INFLUENCE TO AID THE WEST.

HELP TO MOVE GRAIN CROP

ARRANGEMENTS ARE MADE TO PLACE TRADE ON A NORMAL BASIS.

Washington, Nov. 14.—While there is an increasing degree of confidence among the officials of the treasury that the situation in the monetary world is soon to improve materially, they are not prepared to demonstrate conclusively that they have positive assurances to that effect.

Secretary Cortelyou is in constant communication with the bankers and leading financiers of the East and West, and yesterday he announced that he is exerting all the influence he can bring to bear to induce banks in New York to forward cash to the Western banks, that their requisitions be honored out of their reserve on deposit in New York.

Conditions Improving.

The secretary believes that conditions have so greatly improved that the New York banks holding cash as the central reserve agents of the Wesetrn banks should be able to meet requests for cash payments.

This is what the secretary is urging shall be done and he is confident that his wishes in this respect will be met by the central reserve banks in New York and that the banks in the Western centers where the tightness of money is severely felt will be helped out from this time forward. It is intimated that the secretary has other plans for helping to improve the situation, but he declines to discuss the subject or to say in advance when he can be expected to make public the details of any plans which he may evolve to that end.

Help Grain Trade.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 14.—Grain checks will be in circulation throughout the towns and surrounding country and will be accepted as cash by jobbers, as well as merchants and small business houses, beginning Thursday morning. Thirty banks have agreed to support the plan.

"The plan has been in operation four days in the Northern territory, and the grain has started to move," said J. L. MaCaull of Minneapolis, chairman of yesterday's meeting. "and there has been no complaint from any quarter. We do not expect that there will be any extraordinary movement of grain as a result of this plan, but we expect a normal market, which will prove a great relief to the present financial situation."

$20,000 VANISHES FROM RIG.

Paymaster Is Robbed of Payroll While on Way to Pay Men.

Trinidad, Colo., Nov. 14. — Checks and currency to the amount of $22,000, intended to pay the wages of the Carbon Coal and Coke company's miners at Cokedale, were stolen yesterday afternoon while in transit in a stage from the Longsdale railroad station to the camp, distance of only two miles. Charles Macomber, driver of the stage, was arrested on suspicion, but he declares he knows nothing about the supposed theft. The money packages had been carelessly thrown with other express matter into the stage.

Abraham Thompson, the paymaster, accompanied by Jim Williams, a guard, left here at dusk last night to drive to Cokedale. The money, which was contained in two canvas sacks, was placed under the seat. According to the story of Thompson, they encountered no one en route to their camp, but when they arrived at Cokedale and the miners had formed in line to receive their pay it was discovered that the money was missing.

BANKER WALSH ON TRIAL.

Defense Holds Good Securities Were Substituted for Funds Used.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—John R. Walsh, former president of the Chicago National bank, was placed on trial yesterday on the charge of misappropriation of the funds of that institution, in the United States district court. The indictment contained 160 counts.

The chief issue is whether or not Mr. Walsh used the funds of the bank to aid his own enterprises.

The defense will be technical. The government charges that Mr. Walsh substituted for the money it is alleged he took from the bank securities that were of a doubtful character. The defense will contend these securities were good and that nobody ever lost a dollar because of them.

The greater part of yesterday was consumed in the selection of the jury.

Indicted for Lynching.

Guthrie, O. T., Nov. 14. — Mike White, C. A. Green and Frank Williams, charged with leading the mob that lynched a negro murderer at Osage Junction two months ago, were indicted for first degree murder by a federal jury at Pawnee yesterday.

Killed in Saloon Quarrel.

Boone, Iowa, Nov. 14.—George Aunspach, during a quarrel in a saloon yesterday, shot and fatally injured Frank Williams and seriously wounded W. Oviatt and Charles Ortner.

IMPROVE RIVER, LOWER RATES

GEN. MACKENZIE REPORTS ON VARIOUS PROJECTS UNDER CONSIDERATION.

Washington, Nov. 14. — The report of Gen. MacKenzie, chief of engineers, made public yesterday, contains a vast mass of interesting and instructive details regarding river and harbor projects in the Northwest, especially with respect to the Mississippi river and the Great Lakes, including the rivers and harbors of Minnesota. The report is voluminous and exhaustive, and contains much of historical interest regarding the work on the various projects from their inception down to the present time.

Mississippi Project.

In view of the interest manifested in the Mississippi river, porjects along its several reaches, a large part of the report is devoted to that subject. The work of the last year, in making a beginning on the new project for a six-foot channel in the upper Mississippi river, is detailed, including the operations to snag the river. The entire project is to cost $20,000,000, and the engineer's estimate is that it will require twenty years for completion.

A chapter is devoted to freight rates between St. Paul and St. Louis, and the influences of river traffic upon these rates. The essence of the showing made is that the rates are nearly 50 per cent lower by water than by rail, and a summary of the differences ranges from 40 to 63 cents per hundred on the various classes of freights.

Would Cut Freight Rates.

A chapter is devoted to the reach of the river between St. Paul and Minneapolis, wherein it is related that $932,000 can be profitably expended in completing the project. This improvement is noted by the engineers as certain to have a tendency to reduce materially the rates on wheat and flour.

Minute details are given of all the minor projects in Minnesota and other Northwestern states, and an elaborate array of facts and figures is given in connection with the Great Lakes general improvement and the various harbor projects. The amount of $106,000 was expended on the Duluth-Superior harbor during the year.

NO RIGHT TO ASK QUESTIONS.

Harriman Says Inquiries Did Not Relate to Interstate Commerce.

New York, Nov. 14. — Arguments will be heard to-day on the petition of the interstate commerce commission for an order requiring Edward H. Harriman to answer certain questions propounded by the commission in its investigation of the Union Pacific railroad and its allied lines the early part of this year. Counsel for both sides yesterday were in active preparation for what promises to be a legal battle the result of which may have an important bearing not only on the direct issue involved but on the province and limitation of the commerce investigations in the future.

Dazzling Array of Counsel.

The argument will be made by distinguished counsel before Judge Hough, in the United States circuit court. The government will be represented by Henry L. Stimson, United State district attorney; Frank B. Kellogg and C. A. Severance of St. Paul, while Former Senator John C. Spooner of Wisconsin, Former Judge R. S. Lovett of the Union Pacific and John G. Milburn of this city will appear for Mr. Harriman.

Mr. Harriman at the investigation declined to answer certain questions regarding the purchases of stock and the sale to the Union Pacific, and in the answer to the commission's petition, which has just been filed, counsel for Mr. Harriman contend that Mr. Harriman's acts in the matter did not relate to interstate commerce and therefore the commission had no right to put the questions and to demand answers.

The Federal Contention.

It was learned that in the brief which will be filed by federal counsel in court to-day it will be claimed that the interstate commerce commission is making this investigation, was virtually a congressional committee of inquiry and was exercising the inquisitorial powers of congress.

It is expected that it will require two days to complete the arguments.

SIX BADLY HURT IN WRECK.

Pennsylvania Road's Special Runs Into Freight.

Pittsburg, Nov. 14. — Six persons were more or less seriously injured when a Pennsylvania special train ran into a stationary freight train in the yards at Larimer, near Greensburg.

Stolen Goods Found.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Nov. 14. — A search of the home of J. H. Ball, the father of Owen Ball, the young man who was arrested on Saturday on suspicion of having robbed the L. C. Abbott hardware store, resulted in the finding of a large quantity of stolen property.

Forgeries Net $33,000.

Pittsburg, Nov. 14.—B. O. Smith of Fort Smith, Ark., is in jail here on suspicion of having practiced forgery in various cities. Detectives claim that Smith is wanted in Kansas City, the bankers' association of that city offering $200 for his arrest on charges of forgery aggregating $33,000.

Canton, Ohio, Nov. 14.—The passenger elevator in the McKinley hotel dropped four stories last night and three persons received probably fatal injuries.

TOLD TO BUY GRAIN AT HIGHEST PRICE

LINE ELEVATORS GET ORDERS FROM DULUTH AND MINNEAPOLIS MANAGERS.

FOREIGN DEMAND IS STRONG

CORTELYOU DENIES RUMOR AS TO CALLING IN GOVERNMENT DEPOSITS.

Duluth, Nov. 14.—A most encouraging piece of news developed yesterday when it was learned that all the line elevators in North Dakota and Minnesota had been given instructions by the Duluth and Minneapolis managers to buy all the grain that is offered and to pay the highest price for it.

Since the recent financial stringency spread over the country more or less risk has attended the situation, and no such sweeping instructions were contemplated, but now that the clouds are disappearing and money is loosening up the indications are that until the close of navigation there will be an almost unprecedented activity in the grain movement.

Foreign Demand Strong.

The foreign demand for grain is very strong, providing it can be moved before lake freight traffic ceases. In this connection it might be stated that the jobbers of Duluth and Minneapolis have wired a great many of their customers and salesmen to urge the marketing of wheat at once to the end that the farmers may receive the highest possible price for the same. If they hold back until navigation closes prices will necessarily be much lower on account of the all-rail haul from the Head of the Lakes to seaboard.

Cortelyou Lays Rumor.

New York, Nov. 14.—Secretary of the Treasury George B. Cortelyou arrived in town last night and at once set at rest the Wall street rumor that he had decided to call upon the national banks of the country soon for 10 per cent of their government deposits.

"Of course," he said, "I have done nothing of the sort." Then he added: "This is no time to deal in rumors, especially as to the actions of the secretary of the treasury."

SHOWS BIT OF PURE GOLD.

South Dakotan Exhibits Find in a Gravel Bed.

Burke, S. D., Nov. 14.—Nels Magee, one of the pioneers of Gregory county, is in Burke, exhibiting a nugget of pure native gold weighing fifty-one grains which he recently found on a gravel knoll in Tripp county. He declares that there is much more of equal purity in the same locality, as this is undoubtedly a glacial deposit.

LINE NEARLY READY.

Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg Road Up to Border.

Duluth, Nov. 14.—Passenger trains will be operating from Duluth to the Canadian border on the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road within thirty days. It will be some time before trains are running between Duluth and Winnipeg, owing to the delay in the construction of the bridge across the Rainy river.

MANY INDUSTRIES CENTERED IN CHICAGO COMPELLED TO CUT DOWN FORCE.

BUSINESS SLUMP RESPONSIBLE

HINES LUMBER COMPANY DISCHARGES 15,000 MEN IN THREE STATES.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Large reductions in working forces in many industries in Chicago have been made within the last few days, owing directly to scarcity of orders and business depression. Several hundred men were laid off yesterday in various woodworking establishments. The Republic Iron and Steel company's bar iron mill at East Chicago and the Griffin Wheel company's plant shut down last Saturday night.

The following list shows the industries in which the greatest number of men have been laid off:

Eighteen Thousand Men Laid Off.

International Harvester company, approximately, 1,000; Republic Iron and Steel company, 600; Griffin Wheel company, 400; Hines Lumber company (in Chicago), 300; Hines Lumber company (in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota), 15,000; Allis-Chalmers company, 250; Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, 100; F. I. Abbott, woodworkers, 100; L. E. Becker, soda fountain fixtures, 100; Bush & Gerts Piano company, 100.

In addition to these concerns there are several which are running short time in an effort to maintain their forces.

Run Short Time.

Among these are the Interstate Steel company's mill at East Chicago, employing 1,200 men, and the Goss Printing Press company's plant, which now runs only seven hours a day and a full force of about 700 men.

Nearly 4,000 machinists in Chicago are idle, and railroads west of Chicago have laid off an aggregate of 25,000 men employed in construction work, maintenance of way and in mechanical departments.

If Roosevelt is not a candidate it looks like a sure thing for Taft.

Ex-Congressman Frank M. Eddy has decided to become a temperance lecturer.

It looks to us as though the banks were responsible for most of the present financial troubles.

The price of wheat and other grain is coming up fast and bids fair to regain its old price in a short time.

Now would be a good time for the farmers to start a plan to build a large cold storage plant here the coming year.

Farmers and millionaires are the only ones who can afford to have a turkey for Thanksgiving if present prices continue.

A Todd County farmer recently sold twelve sacks of clover seed which weighed thirty bushels and brought him $256.00.

If you know of someone you want to have abused have him mentioned as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

The fairly good crop raised this year and present prices are going to cause a boom in farm land prices next year in this vicinity.

The demand for lumber has fallen off considerable so the lumbermen will reduce their cut. The price, however will be the same or higher.

Governor Johnson follows the President's lead and issues a Thanksgiving proclamation. Neither document says a word about a third term.

A two hundred pound man can travel from here to Thief River Falls for sixteen cents but it costs 35 cents to send a six pound package to the same place.

There seems to be prosperity in sight for everyone except the poor newspaper man who sells his paper at a dollar a year and then waits several years for his dollar.

Lumbermen estimate that in twenty years all of the timber suitable for lumber in Minnesota will have cut. There is one consolation, the price can hardly be any higher than it is now.

A prominent farmer in this vicinity informs us that the farmers in this county who could afford to hold their wheat would hold it until they could get one dollar or better a bushel.

Money has been tied up in the banks for a few weeks, and the fellows that are doing the most kicking about it are the ones that didn't have any money in the bank, but some of them are expecting a remittance of their share of the Rockefeller millions as soon as the socialist party gets into power, and they want the banks in shape to cash their drafts when they arrive.—Sunbeam.

The Booster's Pledge.

As there is some talk of organizing a "Boosters' Club" in St. Hilaire, the following is suggested as the Booster's pledge:

"On my word and honor I here and now declare that so long as I am a resident of this community it will be my constant aim to boost it all the time and every time.

"I will do all I can for every public work that has the good of the community for its object.

"I will submit to majority rule and won't knock and howl my head off if things are not always done my way.

"I realize if this community is good enough to make money in it is the proper place to spend it, especially if I ever want to see it again. Therefore I am

"Resolved that I will buy everything at home that I can and will never go farther that necessary.

"I will always say something good of my town and its people or keep my bazoo shut except, of course, in public demonstration."

GOT HIS SHIRTS.

Comical Prank a Princeton Student Played Upon a Tutor.

In "Princeton—Old and New," by James W. Alexander, is the following story:

"The mode of life was simpler in those days than now, but the same humor which still makes collegians so comic effervesced in the old days. When, for example, William Pennington, son of a former governor of New Jersey and himself afterward speaker of the national house of representatives, roomed next door to Senior Tutor Topping it was the custom for each man to hang on the outside knob of his door the bag containing his soiled clothes for the laundry.

"Pennington stuffed his own skirts one day in Tutor Topping's bag and waited for the day when the clean linen was returned and laid out on Topping's bed. Then knowing that two of the younger tutors were in Topping's room, Pennington knocked at his door. On entering he put on an embarrassed air, as if hesitating to speak in the presence of the other tutors.

"Topping in a lofty way said: 'These gentlemen are my friends. I have no secrets from them. Say what you wish.' Pennington still hemmed and hawed, but, again urged to speak, blurted out: 'It is not my fault, Mr. Topping. I did not want to say anything about it now, but as you insist I must ask you to please return the skirts I lent you, as I am in need of them.'

"Topping's rage and horror at being thus addressed before the younger tutors, who looked up to him as a Magnus Apollo, may well be imagined. He began to upbraid Pennington, who interrupted him by saying: 'It's no use, Mr. Topping, trying to deny the fact. I see the skirts there on the bed with your own things.' The tutor stood aghast, but Pennington stepped to the bed and picked out his own skirts marked with his name."

ST. LOUIS' GOLD MINE.

Traces of the Metal Once Found Within the City Limits.

St. Louis has never been known as a gold mining center, but there was once a gold mine within the limits of the city, and, what is more, it yielded gold which is more than a great many gold mines in the Rockies have done.

In the sixties of the last century there was a well dug on a hill just east of Carondelet park, and the well diggers, noticing some bright, sparkling yellow particles in the clay at the bottom, did a little washing on their own account and found several grains of gold in the pan. The news soon got abroad, and two ex-miners from the west who were living in the neighborhood quickly got the idea that there was money to be made in St. Louis gold mining, so they sank a shaft not far from the well, fully expecting rich returns from their work. They did actually find gold, but in quantities so small that they estimated a yield of about 15 cents per ton of clay, so they filled up the hole and gave up the undertaking in that place as a bad job.

But they had all the miner's enthusiasm, and the fact that they found gold at all merely stimulated their zeal to try in another place, so they went to the side of a hill where the Glaize creek had washed away the earth and made a clay precipice. They dug a hole there, where they also found traces of the precious metal, but in no greater quantities than before. Then they went up the creek about a quarter of a mile and sank another shaft, with no better result. They spent the whole spring and summer digging holes around in the neighborhood of the park, but the only benefit they realized from their work was the sobriquet "two lunatics," and people laughed at them so much that both left and went back west, where digging holes in the search for gold was taken more seriously than in St. Louis.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Papa is Brave.

Elschen—Mamma, is papa ever brave?
Mother—He is always brave, I hope. But what makes you ask? Elschen—Because I thought if he were he wouldn't let my governess pull his ears so.—Fliegende Blatter.

Lincoln's Sarcasm.

Probably the most cutting thing Lincoln ever said was the remark he made about a very loquacious man. "This person can compress the most words into the smallest ideas of any man I ever met."

Certain Differences.

"Do they never forget their differences?"
"Why, yes, in a way. He forgets that he's a gentleman, and she forgets that she's a lady."—Puck.

White Africans.

The Berbers, who, although African, are as white as Europeans, are the oldest white race on record, says an explorer. They are supposed to have come from the south of Europe in ancient days, the Dundee Advertiser says, and, although their language and customs are entirely different from ours and their religion Mohammedan, they are probably closely akin by descent. Blue eyes and fair hair are not at all uncommon among the Berbers, and many of them have rosy cheeks and features so like our own that were they dressed in British fashion they would easily pass as natives of the British isles.

Equality.

Uncle—Hello! Dot got a new doll? Little Miss Dot—Hush, uncle, don't speak too loud! She is not one of my own, but belonged to Millie Simpson, who was cruel to her and 'bandoned her, so I have 'dopted her, but I don't want her to know, because I mean to make no difference between her and my own dollies.—London Tit-Bits.

What It Was.

"These deceitful women are so ridiculous!" said Miss Passay. "As for me, I was never afraid to tell what my age was."

ABSENCE OF MIND.

A Funny Story About Ampere, the Famous Mathematician.

You all know the old joke of the professor who, pondering over the saying that in a railway accident absence of body was a good deal better than absence of mind, went to the nearest railway station and tried to take a ticket "for the nearest railway accident," so as to have the matter proved to his own satisfaction. You doubtless know the story, too, of the professor of mathematics whose new parlor maid told him when he rang at his own door that Professor Jones was out. "I'll call again, I'll call again," he said and went away.

But these are stories merely. Here, however, are some incidents from real life: Ampere was remarkably absentminded. Hundreds of stories of his absentmindedness are told, but quite the funniest is that of his dinner at the house of M. Fontanes, the grand master of the University of Paris. For a joke somebody had told Ampere that he must go to the dinner in his academician's uniform of green and gold and girt with his sword. When he got to the house he was very much annoyed to find everybody else in ordinary evening dress. "I will get rid of the sword at all events," he said to himself and slipped it behind the cushions of a sofa. After dinner Ampere forgot himself, as usual, and became lost in abstruse calculation. He took a little piece of chalk out of his pocket and began working out problems on the black satin cover of the mantelpiece. He became so absorbed in what he was doing that all the guests left without his noticing them, and when he wrote down Q. E. D. no one was left in the room except Mme. Fontanes, and she unfortunately sat fast asleep on the sofa where Ampere's sword lay hidden.

Ampere went down upon his knees and pulled gently at the sword, so as to get it away without waking the lady. He pulled and pulled, and presently the sword came out—without the scabbard. At this moment Mme. Fontanes awoke and alarmed the house with her screams of terror at seeing a man on his knees before her with a drawn sword in his hand.

But mathematical professors have not the monopoly of absentmindedness. La Fontaine, whose fables are the delight of adult Frenchmen and their children's earliest task, went to the court of Louis XVI. to present a copy of his fables to the king. And he forgot the book. Fortunately, the king knew La Fontaine, his fables and his foibles and gave him a thousand pistoles (about $250). Unfortunately, though, La Fontaine left the money in his hired carriage on his way back to Paris.

But the prettiest piece of absentmindedness of which I have ever heard was that of Professor Pozzi, who asked a lady who was bewailing the fact that she had no children whether she thought the failing was hereditary. This is even more amusing than the delightful answer made by the engineer of the Seine tunnel, M. Berlier, to a servant who told him when he went to call upon his lawyer that that gentleman had died that morning. "Oh," said M. Berlier, "dear, dear, I'm so sorry. But tell him I won't keep him a minute."—St. James' Gazette.

Oil Wells at Sea.

The whale is by no means the only source of marine oil. Though little known to fame, the humble menhaden yields oil and fertilizer worth $1,000,000 a year, giving employment to 1,800 fishermen and 1,600 employees of fifty factories. The people who are so profitably engaged in slaughtering 700,000,000 of these fishes every year naturally claim that they were created providentially for the express purpose, since they are not fit for food, and yet the supply seems inexhaustible. No one knows whence they come or whither they go. All we know is that every spring vast schools of them appear in the gulf of Mexico, heading north in closely packed masses near the surface, utterly incapable of either defense or escape. All that is needed is simply to scoop them up with big seines.—Brooklyn Eagle.

S. A. Challman, inspector of State Graded schools, visited our school Tuesday. This was Mr. Challman's second visit since he took Mr. Rankin's place, but last spring the school was closed when he came around. He made a couple recommendations where improvements might be made, which recommendations were in line with some changes that the board has had under consideration. Mr. Challman spoke very interestingly and instructively to the pupils in the high school room. He gave some very good advice in an exceedingly delightful way. Sorry he comes only once a year.

The girls are in the majority. There are 71 boys and 99 girls enrolled in our school, making a total of 170. Some boys are missing their opportunity by not going to school or sticking to their work at school longer. In talking to the pupils in the high school room on Tuesday, Mr. Challman said that the thinkers are the ones who rule the land. Sound thinking comes only out of trained minds. Does this mean that the girls are eventually to rule the land? It seems that they are the ones that are most consistantly following up their education thru the grades and the high school. The men are at the top and bottom, a few with a college education and a great many with a fourth or fifth grade education. The girls form, at the present time a middle class and it is a question if they do not represent a greater sum of "trained brains" than that represented by the thin crust of college trained men and the thick bottom layer of untrained brain mass.

THE FIDDLE AND THE WATCH

One day a watch and a fiddle lay side by side in a show case. The fiddle looked at the watch through the corner of his eyes and said, "Oh how small you are, look at me, I am about fifteen times as large as you are." The watch said, "Tell me the story of your life." "Very well listen then," said the fiddle. "First of all I was"—Just then they saw the storekeeper come toward them "Go on with your story" said the watch. "He won't take us."

The fiddle started again, "First of all I was"—The man opened the door of the show case and took the fiddle. The fiddle said, "Good bye friend watch, if I ever see you again I'll tell you the rest of my story." But I don't think they ever saw each other again.

BEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Bear had two children, and they lived in a little cottage near a dense forest. One day one of the little bears said to his mother, "May I go out and play?" Mrs. Bear replied, "you may go if you take your little brother with you, and be careful not to get into any traps." They said they would be careful and ran off to play. They were playing tag when one of the bears ran into a trap and got his foot caught. He tried to get away but the trap was tied to a tree and his foot hurt when he tried to pull it out. Then he began to cry and his brother ran home to tell his mother. Just then Mr. Bear came along. He was very cranky because he had tried to steal some sheep, but the farmer shot at him so he had to go home without any. He tried to get the little bears foot out and at last succeeded. He took the little bear home and put a bandage on his foot and sent him to bed for being soo careless as to run into a trap. The little bear didn't like to be sent to bed but he didn't dare to cry as long as Mr. Bear was in the house. After that when the bears went out to play they were more careful where they went.

A Costly Autograph.

At a charitable sale in Paris once Baron Rothschild stopped at a stall conducted by Gyp, and the fair litterateur addressed him with the usual request to buy something.

"What am I to buy?" said the baron. "You have nothing at all suitable for me. But I have an idea. I should like to have your autograph. Sell me that."

Taking a sheet of paper, the lady wrote upon it, "Received from Baron Rothschild the sum of 1,000 francs for the benefit of charity. Gyp."

Baron Rothschild read it, thanked her and, handing her a note for the amount named, went away delighted with the lady's ingenuity.

The Daughter Balked.

"She declines to elope," explained the old man, with a large, open faced sigh.—Chicago News.

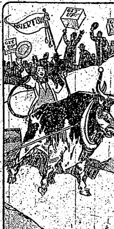
A Fable For Critics

Once there was an Ox. He was a fine, hefty Ox. He could pull a big load. He never balked, but always liked to go straight ahead.

But the Ox had enemies.

There was the Flea and his whole big Family. "We don't care whether this Ox travels or not," said the Flea and his Folks. "All we want is some of his blood." Whereupon the Fleas eternally pestered the Ox and gave him That Tired Feeling.

Then there was the Tom Cat and his brothers—the Doubting Thomases. "We don't know whether this Ox is going the right way or not," said the Thomases, "Anyhow, we'll scratch his back for him." Whereupon the Felines jumped on the back of the Ox and scratched him for fair, which made the Ox exceedingly sorrowful.



Then there was the Fiste Pup and his Fellow Fistes—a whole litter of Fistes. "We don't care how slow the Ox goes," said the Fistes; "the slower the merrier for us. All we want is to lag behind him and bite his Tail." Whereupon the Fistes snapped continually at the Tail of the Ox, which gave the Ox a mighty mournfulness.

Finally the Ox, pestered constantly with the Fleas and the Felines and the Fistes, got to looking sickly. He stopped and lay down on his job, and there was no more going forward for him.

KEY TO THE SITUATION: The town is the Ox. The Fleas and the Felines and the Fistes are those citizens who criticise every progressive movement and do everything they can in their petty ways to make the Ox quit pulling in the right direction.

MORAL: Give the Ox a chance to pull. Everybody holler, "Git up!"

First, that almost every operation in our hospitals, performed upon women, becomes necessary because of neglect of such symptoms as Backache, Irregularities, Displacements, Pain in the Side, Dragging Sensations, Dizziness and Sleeplessness.

Second, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, has cured more cases of female ills than any other one medicine known. Third, the great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time being published by special permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

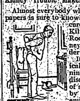
Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.



Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Parties and Pumps.

The late Francis Murphy, well known as a temperance advocate, had many an adventure in the course of his very useful life.

He once told of a case in which a man got a little the better of him in an argument.

The man was a clubman, a generous liver, famous for his wine cellar, and Mr. Murphy read him a strong lecture on the drink evil.

But the bon vivant only smiled, shook his head, and said:

"Well, Mr. Murphy, I have seen many a pleasant party around a table, but I have never seen one around a pump."

The Real Treaters.

"Why don't you ever drink on me?" demanded the bilious man. "Got any objections to drinking on me?"

"None whatever," replied the observant citizen. "What I object to is drinking on your struggling family."

Saying "Hello" to Heart Throbs.

"It is a curious thing," said a prominent lecturer recently, "how some books have a strong radiating personality, so that you feel like saying 'Howdy' every time you come across them. Last Christmas I visited friends back at the old home on the farm. When the supper dishes had been put away, the chores done and the evening lamp lighted we gathered beside the organ for a good old fashioned 'sing.' On the center table were strewn the Christmas remembrances taken from Christmas tree on the evening before. Glancing over them I suddenly exclaimed 'Hello! my good friend, Hello!' and as the others looked up with surprise, I picked up a copy of 'Heart Throbs' and read to them from its pages the 'piece' I spoke in school 40 years ago.

"That was enough to set in motion the friendly entertaining spirit of Heart Throbs, and the music was forgotten as we took turns reading the humorous and pathetic bits of prose and verse that have been preserved in this wonderful volume. Some books have great literary value, some have historical significance, but Heart Throbs is the only book I know that slaps you on the back in a friendly sort of way, suiting itself to your moods and proving faithful to every emotion. Next to my love of the Bible I love Heart Throbs. It is the most notable book of the times."

HOW TO WIN BATTLES.

Men Who Hit What They Shoot at Are the Determining Factor in War.

Other things being equal, good shooting is the determining factor in war. Poorly drilled and hastily organized bodies of men can give a good account of themselves if they know how to shoot and hit what they shoot at.

In our war for independence, says Army and Navy Life, the colonists were woodsmen. They carried and used their arms to supply their homes with food and to protect them from the savage. As marksmen they vastly outclassed the British, and that more than anything else gave Washington the final victory.

Again in our great Civil war, mark the effect of a general knowledge of firearms. In the South were sporting people; they were fond of riding and hunting, shooting at target and at game entered into their sports and pastimes. The North was commercial. Its men knew little or nothing of firearms, save the flintlocks of their grandfathers, objects of curiosity in their shops or homes, except in the far West, where the life of 1776 was still being lived. The result was that in the East the Southern troops were generally victorious for a couple of years until the Northern troops learned to shoot. What little success the North had was in the West, where they had little better than a stand-off.

PLEASANT SUMMER.

Right Food the Cause.

A Wis. woman says:

"I was run down and weak, troubled with nervousness and headache for the last six years. The least excitement would make me nervous and cause severe headache.

"This summer I have been eating Grape-Nuts regularly and feel better than for the six past years.

"I am not troubled with headache and nervousness, and weigh more than I ever have before in my life. I gained 5 lbs. in one week."

State Inspector McDonald is making vigorous efforts at Minnesota Lake to stamp out glanders that have been introduced by horses shipped in from Western points. A number of horses have been shot.

Peter Rasmussen of New Richland was suddenly stricken blind recently while at work. He started to pick up a sack of bran and his eyesight instantly left him. Doctors think that his affliction will be but temporary.

The body of Victor Anderson was found torn into shreds on the tracks of the St. Paul railroad in Merriam Park, St. Paul. It is not known when the young man met death, but it is thought he was killed by a freight train during the night.

D. J. Domboxey, a saloonkeeper of St. Cloud, was found guilty before Judge Donohue of selling liquor to a minor. He was fined $10 and costs. The case has established a precedent which may result in more prosecutions for the same offense.

Eugene Brimsmaid has been arrested at Winona and taken back to Eyota by Marshal H. G. Smith of that place to answer to a charge of jumping a board bill at the hotel of George Gould, and also of obtaining money under false pretenses from George McCudden, an Eyota saloonkeeper.

Carl Jensen, an aged gardener of Glencoe met with probably a fatal accident while moving his daughter's household goods. He mounted the loaded wagon and took his seat on the dashboard in order to drive. He lost his balance and fell to the ground, the wheels passing over him and breaking five ribs and crushing his hips.

Mrs. Esther Knutson, aged seventy-seven, was fatally burned at St. Paul by the explosion of a lamp she was carrying. Her death followed a few hours later at the hospital. She was burned from head to foot. When assistance reached her the flames were burning away the last shreds of her clothing and roasting her flesh.

Nicholas Lehnerty by accident was fatally wounded by his brother, John Lehnerty, while the two boys were hunting near Tyler. John raised his gun to take aim at a muskrat, and the weapon was discharged as it pointed at his brother. The charge of heavy shot entered Nicholas' back near the neck. The boy died fifteen hours after the shooting.

The swine plague is said to be raging in the vicinity of Walters, in the eastern part of Faribault county, and the farmers of Freeborn county who live adjacent are more or less apprehensive lest their herds become infected. As a result many hogs poorly prepared for market are offered. The immediate effect of this is likely to be a reduction in price.

Mrs. Shannon, seventy-six years old, who was traveling with her husband and a son-in-law from Waterloo, Iowa, to Odessa, stepped into the vestibule when the train reached Plato and accidentally fell from the train. A doctor on the train found that she had broken her right leg between the knee and the ankle. On reaching Glencoe she was transferred to the hospital.

Ben Pinkham, it is alleged, assaulted Judge Clawson at Chatfield, cutting an ugly gash in his face. Pinkham was arrested and is now in custody awaiting trial. He was arraigned before Justice Follenstico and the case has been sent to Fountain on a change of venue. Pinkham became angry because Judge Clawson had sentenced a man to ninety days in the county jail for drunkenness.

C. A. Drew of Lake City is dead of heart failure. He was sixty-five years old and was formerly a prominent business man of Northfield, going to Lake City a few months ago. He is survived by a widow and by a daughter, Mrs. R. C. Tennent, wife of Mayor Tennant of Lake City.

Gust Johnson, aged eighteen, was run over by a switch engine in the yards at Minnesota Transfer at St. Paul and both arms were severed just below the elbow. There is little hope of his recovery.

The village of Sleepy Eye has lowered the rate charged consumers for electricity. The former charge was 12 cents per 1,000 volts, but the council has passed an ordinance reducing this rate to 8 cents for large consumers and 10 cents for smaller ones.

Rev. W. W. Pew, formerly pastor of the Christian church at Mankato, is dead at Fowler, Cal. He was a native of Ohio, fifty-seven years of age, and served as pastor in a number of pulpits, going to Fowler two years ago. A widow and son survive him.

The Swan Song.

"The nature fake," said Dr. William J. Long, "is always harmful. A striking instance of this occurred not long since at a Zoo.

"You know the old nature fake about the swan—how this beautiful bird, silent all its days, bursts when dying into the sweetest song?

"Well, at a Zoo one day, a keeper saw a boy steal up behind a swan with a brick in his hand.

"'Here,' said the keeper, 'what are you going to do there?'

"'Ah, lemme alone,' snarled the boy. 'I wanter hear him sing.'"

Will It Come to This?

It was a bright Sunday morning in 1917. "John," called the impatient woman at the foot of the stairway, "please come on down; I have been waiting two hours for you to dress."

"Keep on waiting, Martha," shouted the gleeful husband, "you didn't think anything of making me wait for you to dress ten years ago! I told you then that men would some day wear shirt waists that button at the back and get even. Revenge is sweet."

Not Improbable.

"Do you believe they fine the train?"

"As to that, I can't say. I know they always dock the boats."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. SEALS DOOM OF THE BLACK HAND

"WHITE HAND" SOCIETY IN CHICAGO WILL BE AIDED BY OTHER CITIES.

ITALY WILL ALSO GIVE AID

"MANO BIANCA" SWEARS IN SECRET SPIES—CHICAGO POLICE TO CO-OPERATE.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The first members of the "Mano Bianca" or white hand "police force" were "sworn in" yesterday and started on their task of running down the suspected leaders of the "Black Hand" of Chicago. Twenty Italians—peddlers, clerks and laborers, were enrolled in the secret list of the new society by Stephen Malato, acting chief of police of the foes of the "Black Hand."

Only Mr. Malato and two members of the executive committee of the society know who are the secret agents of its "police department." These men have the names of the eleven "Black Hand" suspects and will watch their every movement.

Other Cities Will Join.

It is probable that the Chicago society will be the main branch of a national movement to rid the country of the Italian and Sicilian blackmailers who have been using the black hand symbol to terrify their victims. Letters and telegrams have been received from influential Italians in New York and other cities asking the object of the Chicago society and indicating a desire to co-operate in the work.

To secure the co-operation of the police Mr. Malato, John G. Garbaldi, Dr. Volina and Dr. S. de Trouf called on Chief Shippy and explained the scope of the movement to him.

"The White Hand can find these criminals more easily than the police can, and we will appreciate its efforts," Chief Shippy said. "Mayor Busse has received a number of threatening letters. So have I, but as we think they were from cranks no attention has been paid to them."

Police Aid "White Hand."

The committee also called on Inspector Backus and Capt. Barcal at the Chicago avenue station, and asked that additional men be detailed in the North side "Little Italy" to assist the "White Hand" sleuths. This will be done. Guido Babetta, Italian consul in Chicago, has asked his government to look up the records of four "Black Hand" suspects. If it is found that they are former convicts they will be arrested and turned over to the federal authorities to be deported.

Beyond being badly shaken up, none of the passengers or trainmen were injured.

BANKS SLOW TO TAKE FIELD

OFFERS ON TREASURY CERTIFICATES WITHHELD—WANT MONEY ON HAND.

New York, Nov. 21. — The government issue of $100,000,000 in treasury certificates of indebtedness continued yesterday to engross the attention of New York bankers, who apparently have not reached a definite decision as to the course they shall pursue. The subscriptions so far received at the local subtreasury seem to indicate that the larger banks in this city are temporarily withholding their offers of purchases.

The subtreasury officials are not disposed to make public the amount of subscriptions received there during the last three days, saying they are merely acting as transmitting agents for the treasury department at Washington.

The fact that the banks are holding off for the time being has led to a more or less definite report that heads of the larger banking institutions are desirous of obtaining assurance from Washington that the money paid out here for the purchase of the new securities will be left on deposit in local institutions.

The currency premium varied between 2 1-4 and 2 3-4 during most of yesterday's negotiations, with some transactions as high as 3 per cent. With the price of currency ruling at these figures it was said the bankers could not see their way clear to purchase the certificates of indebtedness under any other arrangement than the retention of the purchase money on deposit in this city.

The money shipments from New York to the interior have been quite heavy recently, and the banks here are anxious to continue this means of assistance to the general financial situation. The advance in the price of currency yesterday is attributed to the demands from the interior for pay roll purposes.

MOXEY UNDER FIRE.

Bank Examiner Cross-examined in the Walsh Trial.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Evidence tending to show that bonds of the Walsh railroads were sold to various purchasers at practically the figures at which they were accepted by the Chicago National bank as collateral for notes was brought out in the cross-examination of National Bank Examiner Moxey, in the trial of John R. Walsh yesterday afternoon. Ten sales, aggregating $532,000, were gone over and identified by date and amount. It was further indicated by the testimony that the memorandum notes, upon which the prosecution alleges enormous sums were drawn from the bank's vaults by Walsh, were paid upon maturity.

ITALIANS IN WAR TO BITTER END

BLACK HAND TAKES UP CHALLENGE OF NEW WHITE HAND SOCIETY.

HAVE ONE VICTIM ALREADY

SON OF CHICAGO SALOONKEEPER MURDERED BY BLACKMAILERS.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The Black Hand yesterday gave its answer to the declaration of war from the Maro Panica, or White Hand—formed to exterminate the Italian blackmailers who have been terrorizing their countrymen in Chicago.

While a committee of influential Italians was preparing to raise a fund of $50,000 with which to fight and stamp out the blackmailers, Mariano Scardina, a young Italian who left Buffalo a few days ago on account of trouble with a secret society there, was stabbed to death in his father's saloon.

Receives Third Letter.

Shortly before the death of Scardina, Max Friend, a wealthy wholesale liquor dealer, received a third warning from the Black Hand that unless he paid $250 within twenty-four hours he would be killed and his home dynamited.

Word that a society had been formed to drive the blackmailers out of town brought out the fact that an epidemic of threatening letters is on. Nearly twenty cases were reported during the day to the promoters of the White Hand society.

The murder of Scardina was taken to be the result of a saloon brawl by the police until investigation was made. Then the reticence of witnesses showed that something was behind the stabbing.

NEW YORK BANK WILL REOPEN.

Twelfth Ward Institution Announces That It Will Resume.

New York, Nov. 2.—As evidence of the marked improvement in the financial situation in this city came the announcement yesterday that the Twelfth Ward bank, one of the institutions which suspended payment during the early days of the crisis, will reopen for business to-day. News of the promised reopening of the institution spread quickly throughout the Harlem district, where the bank is located, and within an hour a good-sized crowd had gathered in the vicinity of the building. Several of them requested permission to make deposits at once, but they were informed that it would be necessary for them to await the formal reopening of the institution to-day.

No Deposit Required.

The local subtreasury yesterday received its first official advices from Washington regarding the government's issue of $100,000,000 of treasury certificates. Subscriptions for nominal amounts were taken, but nothing was known of the $25,000,000 syndicate said to have been formed to take up a portion of the issue.

No deposit is required with subscriptions to the treasury certificates, and banks and brokerage houses in the financial district announced their willingness to forward bids without exacting any commission.

Proposals for the new Panama canal bonds will have to be forwarded direct to Washington, as the various subtreasuries are not authorized to accept them.

BOND ISSUE IS VERY POPULAR.

Treasury Officials Believe Both Loans Will Be Over-Subscribed.

Washington, Nov. 21.—The communications which came to the treasury department yesterday approving the financial policy adopted and the subscriptions which were received for the Panama bonds and one-year certificates were the subject of discussion at the meeting of the cabinet and afforded general gratification. While details regarding subscriptions are not yet being made public, it seems to be the feeling at the treasury that both loans will be oversubscribed, as was the case with the popular loan of $100,000,000 issued by the Cleveland administration in 1896. The decline in the stock market yesterday is regarded as only a symptom of hesitation until the effect of the failure or success of the measures are proved by the opening of the bids. Several important questions are being raised in communications addressed to the treasury, but the treasury officials are exercising an unusual amount of care in defining their position.

REDS TO EARN THEIR FOOD.

Fifty-seven Male Utes Accept Work at Rapid City, S. D.

Washington, Nov. 21. — Telegrams from Special Agent Downs of the Ute Indians and Supervisor of Indian Employment Bagnett, received at the Indian office here, state that fifty-seven able-bodied Indians, with their families, consisting of a total of about 130, have left the Ute camp for Rapid City, S. D., to go to work. The total number of Indians at the camp is about 370.

FORBIDS TALK OF THIRD TERM

ROOSEVELT WARNS FEDERAL OFFICIALS TO QUIT "THIRD-TERM" TALK.

Washington, Nov. 21.—President Roosevelt has taken steps to head off the "third-term" boom. Federal officials are being warned to quit talking "third term" and to discourage it wherever they can. In connection with this move the administration has decided that no federal officer shall go as a delegate to the next Republican national convention.

This information comes from an absolutely reliable source and will cause much surprise among the politicians. Those who are opposed to the "third term" will be surprised, because they have been inclined recently to believe that the president was laying plans to run again. To his friends the surprise will be over the method which the president has adopted to check his boom. They expected him to make another public declaration.

The president realizes that the most persistent third-term boomers are federal officeholders or politicians who are seeking favor at the White House. To a Western senator a few days ago the president said: "I am not being fooled by this clamor," but he went no further.

JURY WEEPS AT WOMAN'S STORY

Mrs. Bradley Recounts Relations With Brown.

Washington, Nov. 21. — "I am so tired," said Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, the defendant in the trial now in progress in the criminal court in this city, a few minutes before 3 o'clock yesterday, after she spent about four hours on the witness stand relating the details of her acquaintanceship and intimacy with Former United States Senator Brown, with whose murder she stands accused, and Judge Stafford immediately gave orders for the adjournment of the court.

She had not reached the events directly connected with the tragedy in which Brown was killed when court adjourned yesterday.

The court room was crowded during the entire day, and many of the spectators were women. Tears were frequently shed, not only by the general audience but once or twice by members of the jury.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Approximately $2,000,000, which it is charged by the federal prosecutors had been transferred by John R. Walsh from the vaults of the Chicago National bank to the coffers of his several enterprises, has been traced by means of entries in the books of the institution when National Bank Examiner E. P. Moxey stepped down from the witness stand at the adjournment for the day of the Walsh trial. Mr. Moxey occupied the stand throughout the morning and afternoon sessions of court and all told identified eighteen entries, which is is claimed by the prosecution are proof positive of misapplication of funds, as charged. The aggregate of the amounts testified yesterday was $1,000,000. A similar amount was traced in like manner Monday.

FINES GREEK PADRONES.

Import Boys to Work in Shoe Shining Parlors and Fruit Stores.

Chicago, Nov. 21. — Three Greeks, found guilty of having imported boys from their native country to be farmed out to proprietors of shoe shining establishments and fruit stores, were fined by Federal Judge Bethea yesterday. The fines were accompanied by threat of penitentiary sentences should the offenses be repeated. The fines, which ranged from $25 to $500, were based on the making of false affidavits in securing entrance of the boys to the United States.

PROHIBITION BILL PASSED.

Unprecedented Scenes in Alabama Senate Chamber.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 21. — Unprecedented scenes were enacted in the senate chamber of the historical capitol of Alabama yesterday when the statutory prohibition bill was passed. Women and children thronged the corridors and galleries and even usurped the sanctity of the floor itself, pushing the senators from their seats and giving vent to their enthusiasm by shouts and cheers that echoed and re-echoed through the building.

GOMPERS SPRINGS A BIG SENSATION

PRESIDENT OF FEDERATION TELLS OF ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO BRIBE HIM.

GIVEN GREAT DEMONSTRATION

ALLEGED EMISSARY OF MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION OFFERED BRIBE.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 21.—A great sensation was created in the American Federation of Labor yesterday afternoon by President Gompers in his speech replying to the attacks on him and other officers of the federation by the Manufacturers' association when he told of an alleged attempt to bribe him at the Victoria hotel, New York, in October by a young newspaper man giving his name as Charles Brandenburg, the latter, President Gompers said, having declared that he represented the National Manufacturers' association and was prepared to Offer Him Immunity

from all exposure and make him financially secure for the remainder of his life if he would sign a certain paper and otherwise aid in the "exposure of the other leaders in the American Federation of Labor, with the view to virtually destroy the influence of organized labor." The paper, President Gompers said, was to purport to have been signed when he—Gompers—was ill in 1895. This paper, Mr. Gompers said, he had preserved, and while deathlike stillness prevailed in the convention President Gompers drew forth the original document and read it. Mr. Gompers during his recital of the alleged attempt at bribery called upon different delegates present who were with him at times in interviews with Brandenburg to verify his statements. This the delegates, rising in their seats, did.

Great Demonstration.

At the close of President Gompers' speech there was a great demonstration, even Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, the socialistic opponent of Mr. Gompers, declaring that although he had at the convention bitterly opposed the re-election of President Gompers, he will be the one this year to move to make his election unanimous, with a vote of confidence not only to President Gompers, but also to the other officials of the American Federation of Labor.

"This," declared Mr. Berger, "is the answer of the socialists to the Manufacturers' association."

WAS NOT PREMEDITATED.

Mrs. Bradley Did Not Go to Washington to Kill Senator Brown.

Washington, Nov. 21. — That Mrs. Bradley did not come to Washington intending to kill Former Senator Arthur M. Brown of Utah, and that she did not even remember shooting him, she told the jury in her trial yesterday. The statement was not reached until the afternoon session of the court, the first half of the day being given largely to the identification of letters from Mr. Brown to Mrs. Bradley and from her to him, a very few of which were read.

GRADUATE CADETS EARLY.

110 Will Leave West Point in January Instead of June.

West Point, Nov. 21.—The first class of cadets at the military academy probably will be graduated in January, five months earlier than the ordinary date of graduation. The class this year numbers 110 men, and these men are needed, it is understood, because of the many vacancies in the list of commanding officers of the army.

PANIC OCCURS AT FUNERAL

ONE KILLED AND EIGHT HURT WHEN CROWD FIGHTS TO ESCAPE.

York, Pa., Nov. 21. — Eli Gross of Zion's View was probably fatally injured and eight other persons were hurt in a panic in Quickel's church, six miles north of this city yesterday.

While the funeral of the victims of last Saturday's double murder was in progress a report gained currency that the building was falling. The church was crowded to its doors. To aggravate the rumor the heating stove was pushed, and it fell over. The congregation immediately became frenzied and a struggle ensued among the people to escape from the building. Men, women and children fought to get out of the windows and doors. Those who received injuries were hurt by being trampled upon or crushed in the struggle. The injuries of the victims consist principally of broken limbs and cuts and bruises.

The stampede occurred after 425 persons had passed before the caskets containing the corpses of the murdered youths.

In the crush the caskets were thrown to the floor. The funeral services were postponed and the bodies were buried as soon as the injured were removed and cared for.

POWERS WINS BIG POINT.

Special Venire Discharged on Motion of Attorneys for Defense.

Georgetown, Ky., Nov. 21. — Attorneys for Caleb Powers in his fourth trial won for him yesterday the first substantial victory in his fight for life and for his liberty, when Special Judge Morris sustained the motion to discharge the second venire.

The main contention throughout the proceedings so far has been that politics has been injected into the case at all previous trials; that an effort to continue this condition has been made in the selection of the venire of 200 men summoned from Harrison county, and that the defendant could not obtain justice at the hands of a jury composed entirely of political opponents.

SCANDAL IN SWEDISH NAVY.

Americans Said to Have Been Favored While Government Lost.

Stockholm, Nov. 21.—The Vacuum Oil company, an American concern, has been supplying the Swedish navy with oil. Now Marine Director Engstrom reports that the navy lost 180,000 kroner ($45,000) last year as the result of the arrangement. Competitors of the concern allege that the Americans have been favored by the quartermaster's department. The matter has caused some commotion and a sensational investigation is expected.

TAKES MONEY TO CANADA.

Woman Is Afraid to Trust Hoard in American Bank.

London, Ont., Nov. 21. — A middle-aged woman entered the Bank of Montreal yesterday, saying that she had come from Chicago in order to deposit $4,000 in gold and American one-dollar bills, which she had tied up in a towel, feeling that the money would be safer in the Bank of Montreal. The money, she says, was the life-time savings of her grandmother, her mother and herself.

BIGGEST SWINDLE EVER ATTEMPTED

C. E. MARSHALL PULLS FORTUNE OUT OF FAKE MAIL ORDER BUSINESS.

OFFERED JEWELRY VERY CHEAP.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE FROM COAST TO COAST TAKEN IN BY ADVERTISING.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Charles E. Marshall, who for two weeks conducted a mail-order business at 324 Washington boulevard, offering "$50,000 worth of bankrupt jewelry" at something like a cent on the dollar, was not there yesterday afternoon when Col. James E. Stuart, chief inspector of the postoffice, called to see him. Several thousand people all over the country who had sent money to Marshall, attracted by his advertisement, "Buy your Christmas gifts now," would be disappointed, the colonel thought.

He found several hundred copies of newspapers containing Marshall's advertisement, several hundred letters from publishers and nearly 200 bills for advertising.

Collected About $20,000.

Before Marshall took alarm and fled it is believed he must have gathered in between $15,000 and $20,000 from persons who had an idea they could buy diamond rings at $5 each.

Col. Stuart had gone down to his office in the federal building to do a little work before dinner when he received a complaint about Marshall.

This complaint was to the effect that "one of the biggest, boldest and most successful coups of its kind ever perpetrated in Chicago and perhaps in the United States has come to light with the disappearance of Charles E. Marshall, jewelry jobber."

Thousands of Victims.

"Although in operation only a short time," the complaint went on, "the army of victims extends from coast to coast, and I believe when all the victims have been heard from the total will reach from $25,000 to $50,000.

"In addition to this huge sum must be added the thousands of dollars of credit that Marshall managed to secure from hundreds of papers throughout the country for advertising space in their publications."

COURT RULES AGAINST WALSH.

Books of Banks and Other Enterprises Competent Evidence.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Judge Anderson, in the trial of John R. Walsh yesterday, ruled that the books of the Chicago National bank and of the other Walsh enterprises constituted competent evidence, and that counsel for Walsh had no constitutional right to exclude them. Following up this victory the prosecution through the testimony of National Bank Examiner E. P. Moxey proceeded to trace six instances of alleged irregularities in accounts which, it is contended, indicate misapplication of the funds of the Chicago National by its former president. That Mr. Moxey was permitted to testify as an expert in accounts was due to another ruling by the court, who declared his testimony admissible after the defendant's attorneys had made every effort to have it excluded. From book to book throughout the afternoon the bank examiner traced transactions and pointed out connecting links through a maze of figures and at the close of the session it appeared that the task set before him would keep him occupied for days, since each of the 160 counts in the indictment must be traced through a half dozen or more books.

MRS. BRADLEY'S DEFENSE.

Foundation Is Laid for Plea of Insanity.

Washington, Nov. 20. — Foundation was laid yesterday for the plea of the defense in the trial of Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, charged with the murder of Former United States Senator Arthur Brown of Utah. That plea, heretofore made evident, will be insanity, or, more accurately perhaps, mental irresponsibility of the prisoner at the time of the tragedy. The evidence adduced yesterday tended to throw light upon Mrs. Bradley's condition at the time of the tragedy.

Any old kind of money goes nowadays and at present even the Canada kind goes without a discount.

Governor Johnson's boom for the democratic nomination for president has had a blight. Bryan saw it first.

This has not been a good season and not a large number of deer have been killed. Even fewer men have been killed.

William J. Bryan announces that he is perfectly willing to try it for the third time. This will make things easy for Taft.

After we have been truly thankful on Thanksgiving day we can prepare for something else for Congress convenes the Monday following,

We many things to be thankful for next Thursday. Abundant crops, good prices and general prosperity at least in our own community.

Taft is the only Republican mentioned for the presidency who has declared in favor of the revision and reduction of the tariff. We are for tariff revision—and Taft.

If the government officials would raid bucket shops, boards of trade and stock exchanges the same way they do slot machines, roulette wheels and and faro tables we would not be bothered with money shortages and panics.

The newspaper men of the country are about tired of the exhorbitant charges for print paper and will go after the paper trust with a sharp stick. They are demanding that congress repeal the tariff on paper and will keep on kicking until it is done. If it is not done in a reasonable time there will be a bunch of congressmen kicked down and out the back way. Print paper is however not the only article that the greedy trusts are using the tariff to rob the people.

A FOOL QUESTION.

Asked In a Railway Station, It Won a Caustic Reply.

He stood at the ticket window slowly unrolling an old fashioned leather bag while a dozen men stood behind him, driven to madness by the shouting of the gatemen calling their trains. After he got about a yard and a half of bag unrolled he suddenly stopped and said to the ticket clerk:

"Is that clock right?"

"No, sir."

"'Tain't?" shouted the startled passenger, stooping down and making a sudden clutch at a lean and hungry carpetbag. "'Tain't right? Well, what 'n the name o' common sense do ye have it stuck up there for, then?"

"To fool people," calmly replied the clerk. "That's what we're here for—to fool people and misdirect them."

"Great Scott!" said the passenger, hurriedly rolling up his bag. "I've missed my train. I'll report you, I will!"

"Won't do any good. It's the company's orders. They pay a man to go round every morning to mix and muddle up all the clocks, so that not one of them will be right and no two of them alike."

The passenger gasped twice or thrice, but could not say anything. The ticket clerk went on:

"It's the superintendent's idea. He is fond of fun, enjoys a joke, and it does him good to see a man jump about and hear him jaw when he buys a ticket and then finds his train has been gone two hours."

"Which way is this clock wrong?" the passenger asked in despairing accents—"fast or slow?"

"Don't know. That's part of the fun not to let anybody in the building know anything about the right time. All I know is that it's about ninety minutes wrong one way or the other."

With a hollow groan the passenger grabbed his bag and made a rush for the door, upsetting any man who got in his way. In about two minutes he came back, crestfallen and meek, and took his place at the end of the line. When once more he walked up to the window he said, as he named his station and bought his ticket like a sane man:

"What made you talk to me like you did?"

"What made you ask questions like a fool?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

PLEASANT JAILS.

The Way Prisoners In Montenegro Are Treated.

When I paid a visit to the Cetinje jail I found that all the prisoners were out for a walk. For two hours every morning and again for two hours in the afternoon they are allowed to wander about on the green before the prison. There is nothing, indeed, but their own sense of honor to prevent their going farther afield unless they be murderers, in which case they wear chains. The authorities provide them with housing, of course, and with clothes—not uniform—also with a fire at which to cook their food, and they give them fourpence a day each to buy it. The prisoners cater for themselves. Two of them go to the market every morning to buy provisions for the day. They are not required to work unless they choose, and they are classified not according to the seriousness of their offense, but according to their standard of life and general behavior. If a man of education and refinement is sent to prison, care is taken to lodge him, so far as possible, in a room where the other occupants belong to his own rank in life. I found on one bed a beautiful counterpane and a pillow covered with delicate embroidery. "Yes, poor fellow, that's his wife's handiwork," the governor of the jail remarked casually as we passed. In one prison life was made so easy and pleasant that on leaving it I ventured to remark that to be there was no punishment, it seemed to me.

"No punishment!" the official who was with me exclaimed in surprise. "But think of the disgrace of being here. Is not that in itself punishment enough?"

I had and still have doubts on the subject, for I had just seen a cheery old fellow who, although the time for which he was sentenced had expired, stoutly refused to quit the prison.—Edith Sellers in Fortnightly Review.

The Doctor's Imagination.

"I have a good story on one of Washington's best known oculists," said a prominent clubman, addressing some friends in the billiard room of the Metropolitan club. "My eyes had troubled me for some months, and finally I went to see the doctor about them.

"After a thorough examination he said that the muscles were badly strained, and then he gave me a prescription for drops to be used in my eyes three times a day. When I left he gave me an appointment for that day week, as he said he could not examine my eyes for glasses until they were in their normal condition.

"Well, I mislaid that blessed prescription, and as I was particularly busy that week I had no time to get another copy. So in some trepidation I kept my second appointment.

"As the doctor examined my eyes I hesitated a moment about telling him I had not used the drops, when he took the words out of my mouth and the breath out of my body by remarking with pleased emphasis:

"'Your eyes are very much improved. That medicine which I gave you is certainly wonderful. It always has such prompt and satisfactory results.'

"It was all I could do to keep silent," concluded the speaker, laughing. "But I wasn't quite sure how he would take the joke. You see, he may not have a sense of humor."—Washington Star.

There is nothing so true, that the damps of error have not warped it.—Tupper.

White Africans.

The Berbers, who, although African, are as white as Europeans, are the oldest white race on record, says an explorer. They are supposed to have come from the south of Europe in ancient days, the Dundee Advertiser says, and, although their language and customs are entirely different from ours and their religion Mohammedan, they are probably closely akin by descent. Blue eyes and fair hair are not at all uncommon among the Berbers, and many of them have rosy cheeks and features so like our own that were they dressed in British fashion they would easily pass as natives of the British isles.

Equality.

Uncle—Hello! Dot got a new doll? Little Miss Dot—Hush, uncle; don't speak too loud! She is not one of my own, but belonged to Millie Simpson, who was cruel to her and 'bandoned her, so I have 'dopted her, but I don't want her to know, because I mean to make no difference between her and my own dollies.—London Tit-Bits.

What It Was.

"These deceitful women are so ridiculous!" said Miss Passay. "As for me, I was never afraid to tell what my age was."

"No woman," replied Miss Wise, "ever minds telling what her age was."—London Answers.

Second Prize.

St. Paul, Nov. 15, 1907

Geo. L. Austin,
St. Hilaire, Minn.

Dear Sir: Replying to yours of the 14th inst. you were awarded the second prize which entitles you to the $25,00 silver set. The set is now being engraved and when finished will be forwarded to you at St. Hilaire. Trusting you will soon receive the set, I am,

Yours truly,
J. G. Fowler.

I think the above letter explains itself. This butter was entered in a contest held in connection with the annual convention of the Minnesota State Buttermakers and Cheesemakers Association at St. Peter, Minn. The butter was made from nice sweet cream none of which was over two days old and goes to show what can be done when the patrons of the creamery take interest in their work which patrons of the St. Hilaire creamery certainly do.

Below we give the names of the patrons whose cream went to make up the butter for this contest: Lars A. Loberg, J. S. Roy, Charles Seegar Ole Larson, J. P. Fellman, O. L. Larson, John Hedlund, William Cuno. Milk for making the starter was furnished by August Swenson.

Our butter also won second prize at the convention of the Red River Valley Dairymens Association at Crookston. Below we give the names of patrons who furnished the cream for this butter: J. S. Roy, N. E. Beebe, L. A. Carlson, Swan Wiberg, J. P. Fellman, N. A. Nelson, Charles Gustafson, Lars A. Loberg, August Swenson, William Moeller, Henry Rondorf.

I wish to thank every patron of this creamery for the interest they take in looking after the quality of their cream. Good cream makes good butter.

A Wasted Present.

"What in the world shall I send Aunt Betsy, John?" demanded the masterful lady of the mild little man.

"A workbasket or a book?" he suggested.

"Don't be a fool, John! You've no taste. I'll send her one of those fancy boxes of soap."

And she lifted to her nose a box containing six round tablets of perfumed soap.

"Yes," she continued, "this is the very thing!"

"But, my dear, really"— he protested.

"You be quiet, John! Now, wrap this up, miss!"

Two days later a packet arrived from Aunt Betsy, and in haste they opened it to see how she had taken their thoughtful present. Under the wrapping was the affectionate message:

"Niece—Herewith I return the box of shaving soap you sent me. I am too old to appreciate the joke of being regarded as a bearded lady. Your aunt, Betsy."

Then, but only for a moment, the mild little man smiled.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Dreadful Assault.

Justice Ball, an Irish judge, was noted for his amusing manifestations of ignorance, but whether they were real or pretended has never been clearly established. He tried a case in which a man was indicted for robbery at the house of a poor widow. The first witness was the young daughter of the widow, who identified the prisoner as the man who had entered the house and smashed her mother's chest.

"Do you say that the prisoner at the bar broke your mother's chest?" said the judge in astonishment.

"He did, my lord," answered the girl. "He jumped on it till he smashed it entirely."

The judge turned to the crown counsel and said: "How is this? Why is not the prisoner indicted for murder? If he smashed this poor woman's chest in the way the witness has described he must surely have killed her."

"But, my lord," said the counsel, "it was a wooden chest."—Cornhill Magazine.

Maximilian and "La Paloma."

Wherever that haunting air, "La Paloma," is played the memory of the Emperor Maximilian, shot by the Mexicans on June 19, 1867, should be preserved. Maximilian's final request was that "La Paloma" should be played while he stood up to meet his doom. He died with the tune in his ears, and his wife went mad with the shock of his execution.

Forgetful.

"I suppose," said the beautiful girl, "that you often burn the midnight oil?"

"No," replied the poet. "I hang my hat on the doorknob, so the landlady can't look through the keyhole and catch me burning the gas."—Judge.

Inquisitive.

"I'll send my boy to a boarding school."

"What for?"

"Oh, he asks such questions. He wanted to know last night if a shoemaker could breathe his last."

School Notes.

Some change-abouts in teachers' desks were made in the primary and second intermediate rooms. The changes were slight but an advantage or two was gained.

++ o ++

The cabinet for the library books was moved from the empty room Tuesday into the high school room where the books can be got at more readily. With all the new books to read this means not so little in convenience.

++ o ++

A big box of library books was received Monday. The books have been looked for a long while, but probably we shall appreciate them the more because of waiting. Then again, Thanksgiving comes in so handy—new books and a breathing spell in which to read.

++ o ++

Little things are often large in their results. The work at school has been going on with a quietness that means a good deal to the teacher. The cause? The day off for the pupils Friday, the inspiration derived by the teachers in attending the teacher's convention, and the clean floors and blackboards Monday as a result of the thoro scrubbing given them Friday and Saturday.

We are now in a position to read even the coldest temperature that Jack Frost may choose to bring. We are not saying that we are inviting it, but we have a thermometer that will read the degree of coldness even below 39 degrees below. It is a spirit thermometer. Mercury thermometers freeze solid at —39 degrees, while the spirit ones are unfreezable. This one was given to the school by John Tuff, a music dealer of Crookston.

THE DANDELION

One day I went into the garden and sat down by a rose bush to read, when I heard someone talking near by. I listened and heard a voice say, "You're nothing but a homely little dandelion, not fit to be in a beautiful garden like this. I wish some one would pick you and throw you out of this garden." I wondered who was speaking so I went to the place from which the sound came. I saw it was a pansy talking to a dandelion. I stopped to listen again and heard the haughty pansy say, "You have no business to be here for no wild flowers are allowed to grow here, but only beautiful tame ones like me." The poor little dandelion had nothing to say but hung its head bashfully. I had heard every word the pansy said so I ran up to it and picked it. It screamed and kicked, but I thought it deserved it so I threw it over the fence. I did not pick the dandelion but the other pansies did not dare to abuse it for fear of being picked as their sister was.

The Buds.

Old Dr. Ryland, clergyman and educator, was greatly beloved in the south, and his visits were always enjoined by his former pupils and parishioners. In his later years it was his custom to offer prayer whenever he made a ministerial call. On one occasion he called at a house where three of his former pupils were staying. These ladies were all past the thirtieth year mark, but in the eyes of the old gentleman they were still girls, which explains the petition he offered:

"Lord, bless these dear girls, just budding into sweet womanhood."

This was too much for one of the number, who, taking advantage of the doctor's deafness, added this clause sotto voce: "Alas, Lord, budded, bloomed, faded and still unpicked!"

Got His Discount.

"The other day I was in a village general store," said a drummer, "endeavoring to make a sale of jewelry when a farmer entered.

"'Give me,' said the farmer, 'a half pound of tobacco, three bars of soap five yards of blue baby ribbon and a pair of good suspenders.'

"The articles were brought forth, inspected, approved and wrapped up They came to 95 cents.

"'Yes,' said the farmer, '95's right But there's the discount. You advertise a 5 per cent discount, don't you?'

"'We do, sir,' said the clerk, 'but only on purchases of $1 or over.'

"On the counter lay a basket of pocket combs marked at 5 cents apiece.

"'Well, I'll just take one of these,' said the farmer. 'That'll make us square.'"

A Stingy King.

In the beginning of the eighteenth century the now so powerful German empire was nothing more than the little kingdom of Prussia, having just dropped its title of duchy of Brandenburg. The country was very poor and the military discipline very harsh. Frederick William I. was hard, cross and stingy and did not even know what it was to make a present. His reputation was so widely spread that it became a byword to say that a man had worked for the king of Prussia when he had done an unprofitable task.

Comets In Olden Days.

People nowadays do not regard the comet as one of those signs that forerun the death or fall of kings, but the superstition was still current in the time of Queen Elizabeth, though, to the amazement of her courtiers, the queen calmly scorned it. It was also thought that if the sovereign would refrain from looking at the malignant celestial passerby no harm would come to her. On one occasion Elizabeth's attendants shut and curtained her windows, but her majesty, as might have been expected, with "a courage answerable to the greatness of her estate," caused them to be opened, crying as she looked up: "Jacta est alea—the die is cast!" Then, like King Knut on the seashore, she read her people a homily, asserting that her "steadfast hope and confidence were too firmly planted in the providence of God to be blasted or affrighted with those beams which either had no ground in nature whereupon to rise or at least no warrant in Scripture to portend the mishaps of princes."

Queen Elizabeth as an Ale Drinker.

There is an amusing letter written by the Earl of Leicester to Lord Burleigh as to the lack of sufficiently strong ale for the queen at Hatfield. "There is not one drop of good drink for her here. We were fain to send to London and Kenilworth and divers other places where ale was. Her own beer was so strong as there was no man able to drink it." Ale and bread were the chief items of the royal breakfast. The quantity of ale consumed by ladies at breakfast in those days was considerable, for in the reign of Henry VIII. the maids of honor were allowed for breakfast "one chet loafe, one manchet, two gallons of ale and a pitcher of wine." A Lady Lucy made a mighty tonic of the national brew. Her breakfast was a chine of beef, a loaf and a gallon of ale, and for her pillow meal a posset porridge, a generous cut of mutton, a loaf and a gallon of ale.—Westminster Gazette.

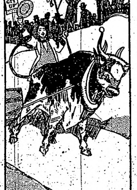
A Fable For Critics

Once there was an Ox. He was a fine, hefty Ox. He could pull a big load. He never balked, but always liked to go straight ahead.

But the Ox had enemies.

There was the Flea and his whole big Family. "We don't care whether this Ox travels or not," said the Flea and his Folks. "All we want is some of his blood." Whereupon the Fleas eternally pestered the Ox and gave him That Tired Feeling.

Then, there was the Tom Cat and his brothers—the Doubting Thomases. "We don't know whether this Ox is going the right way or not," said the Thomases. "Anyhow, we'll scratch his back for him." Whereupon the Felines jumped on the back of the Ox and scratched him for fair, which made the Ox exceedingly sorrowful.



ADVERTISING
GIT UP!
GIT UP!
GIT UP!

Then there was the Fiste Pup and his Fellow Fistes—a whole litter of Fistes. "We don't care how slow the Ox goes," said the Fistes; "the slower the merrier for us. All we want is to lag behind him and bite his Tail." Whereupon the Fistes snapped continually at the Tail of the Ox, which gave the Ox a mighty mournfulness.

Finally the Ox, pestered constantly with the Fleas and the Felines and the Fistes, got to looking sickly. He stopped and lay down on his job, and there was no more going forward for him.

KEY TO THE SITUATION: The town is the Ox. The Fleas and the Felines and the Fistes are those citizens who criticise every progressive movement and do everything they can in their petty ways to make the Ox quit pulling in the right direction.

MORAL: Give the Ox a chance to pull. Everybody holler, "Git up!"

PERUNA A TONIC OF GREAT USEFULNESS.

HON. R. S. THARIN

Hon. R. S. Tharin, Attorney at Law and counsel for Anti-Trust League, writes from Pennsylvania Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Having used Peruna for catarrhal disorders, I am able to testify to its great remedial excellence and do not hesitate to give it my emphatic endorsement and earnest recommendation to all persons affected by that disorder. It is also a tonic of great usefulness."

Mr. T. Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can., writes: "Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well. I also induced a young lady, who was all run down and confined to the house, to take Peruna, and after taking Peruna for three months she is able to follow her trade of tailoring. I can recommend Peruna for all such who are ill and require a tonic."

Pe-ru-na Tablets.

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the solid medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

The fourteen-year-old son of Anton Enge, living about twelve miles south of Benson, was accidentally killed while out hunting. He went out alone in a boat, and failing to return, search was made and his body was found in the boat. He evidently had been pulling the gun toward him, as nearly the full charge had gone through his heart.

The body of John Pe-te-na-wa-cum, a Menominee Indian and policeman on the reservation, was found in the Red river, near the Lutheran school house, north of the village of Phlox. One of the burners of the gas range was open and the old man and child were dead on the kitchen floor when Mrs. Anderson returned at night.

She was always applying something in the way of salves. It troubled her behind the knees, opposite the elbows, back of the neck and ears, under the chin, and then it got on the face. That was about three years ago. She took treatment with a specialist and seemed to get worse all the time. We were then advised to try the Cuticura Remedies, and now I don't see any breaking out. M. ENCOURAGING FACTS

THOSE CONTEMPLATING CHANGE OF RESIDENCE SHOULD READ THEM.

The other day the writer was in the Office of the Canadian Government at St. Paul, Minnesota. On the windows of the building were signs to the effect that homesteads of 160 acres were given free to actual settlers, and in the windows were displays of wheat, oats, barley, other grains and vegetables, which he was told were grown in Western Canada. This could be readily believed for in no other country on the Continent would it be possible to grow such splendid specimens. The world is now pretty well advised that in the growing of such cereals as have been named and vegetables as well the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have no competitor. For several years past specimens have been exhibited at State and County Fairs throughout the State, and these exhibits are looked upon as one of the chief attractions. They have demonstrated what can be done in the climate of a country possessing a soil that will grow things. But that it was possible to grow vegetables such as were seen there seemed to create some doubt. But it was the case. And apples too. Not of course the splendid fruit grown in countries more congenial to such culture, but they were in evidence. Throughout Indiana, the hoosier farmers were forced to stop and think. When a similar exhibit was placed before them during the past few weeks, many of them were forced to stop and remark: "That is much ahead of anything we can do. The quality of the grain we have conceded, for has not so-and-so sent us samples grown on his own farm the like of which we had never seen before. But to think of the vegetables—and such vegetables. Why, we thought everything was frozen up there, and these turnips, cabbages, cauliflowers, beets, mangolds, pumpkins, and squashes are away ahead of anything we ever saw grow." That is the story everywhere. Thousands of Western Canada homesteaders, formerly United States citizens, are growing just such grain, just such vegetables, which yield them a splendid profit with little outlay on the farms that they have secured from the Government of the Dominion of Canada at the nominal cost of $10 for 160 acres. If adjoining land is wanted it can be secured from the railway companies or from private individuals at moderate prices and reasonable terms. By placing your name and address on a postal card and addressing it to the Canadian Government Agent, whose name appears elsewhere, a copy of "Last Best West" telling you all about it will be sent you free.

Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in her study of roots and herbs and their power over disease discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

"Oh, my!" exclaimed the excited woman, who had mislaid her husband, "I'm looking for a small man with one eye——"

"Well, ma'am," suggested the floorwalker, politely, "if he's a very small man maybe you'd better use both eyes."

An Awful Jolt.

"How do you like this little feather in my hat?"

"Very well, Algy," answered the young lady addressed. "But don't you think a tasty toque would be more suitable to your particular style?"

The Other Way Around.

"I suppose your son will adopt a profession."

"Well," answered Farmer Corntossel, "that's the way Josh talks about it now. But I shouldn't be surprised if he'd see the sense of gettin' out an' looking for a profession that'll adopt him."

ATLANTIC COAST SWEPT BY STORM

SHIPS SENT SCURRYING TO PORT WHILE OTHERS STICK TO ANCHORAGES.

SHIPPING SUFFERS SEVERELY

TWO SCHOONERS ARE WRECKED, BUT CREWS ARE RESCUED BY LIFESAVERS.

New York, Nov. 26.—New York was wind-swept and rain-soaked yesterday in the heavy storm which came booming up the Atlantic coast from Cape Hatteras, sending ships scurrying to port and keeping others hugging their anchorages in the harbor, and which was reported as central off the New Jersey coast beaches last night. The weather bureau reported that the wind here reached a maximum velocity of thirty-six miles, while at the easterly end of Long Island it was skipping along at a velocity of sixty-four miles. The rainfall from 1 o'clock yesterday morning to 8 o'clock last night was officially reported at 1.59 inches. No wrecks were reported up to a late hour last night from the life saving stations along the coast.

One Wreck Reported.

Delaware Breakwater, Del., Nov. 26.—A severe northeast gale swept the coast yesterday and shipping has probably suffered severely. One wreck, that of the schooner L. M. Bird, from Charleston, S. C., for New York, is reported. The schooner dragged her anchors while off Cape Henlopen and was blown on the beach at Lowes. Lifesavers brought ashore Capt. Boldt's wife and child, but the captain and crew decided to stand by the vessel. Her situation is dangerous as the gale continues and the schooner may pound to pieces.

Shipping in Danger.

Boston, Nov. 26.—Endangering the shipping all along the Massachusetts coast and tying up many vessels in the harbors, a northeasterly gale blowing at sixty miles per hour set in yesterday afternoon and last night was kicking up a heavy sea. Two passenger steamers were forced by the gale to seek shelter in Provincetown harbor during the day.

Schooner Goes Aground.

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 26.—Seeking shelter in the harbor for the night the Provincetown schooner Lucy went aground on Brown's island and was completely broken up by the driving seas.

The life savers succeeded in taking off the crew.

PORTUGAL ON VERGE OF CRISIS.

Anti-Dynastic Agitation Becomes Greater—Lisbon Under Martial Law.

Madrid, Nov. 26.—Uncensored mail advices from Portugal indicate that the anti-dynastic agitation is growing and that a crisis seems imminent. The Liberal says it has received confirmation of the report of the banishment of the crown prince of Portugal, Louis Philippe, to the Villa Vicosa, where one of the royal residents is situated in a forest fifteen miles in circumference and walled in.

Row in the Palace.

The paper says the prince's banishment followed a tempestuous scene between Louis Philippe and his father, in which the former demanded that King Charles either change his policy or abdicate.

Prince Louis declared the dictatorship regime is turning Portugal into a hotbed of republicans and anarchists and endangering the monarchy. The incident has caused a great sensation. The crown prince is said to be under the influence of the Conservatives, who advocate the abdication of King Carlos in favor of his son.

El Mondo declares it is rumored in political circles that the Portuguese navy has mutinied, but adds that it is unable to confirm this report.

Under Martial Law.

Lisbon, Nov. 26. — The leaders of the two monarchist parliamentary groups opposed to the dictatorship of Premier Franco met last night and secretly debated on a course of action.

The city of Lisbon is now practically under martial law. The censorship over telegraphic dispatches is strict.

Much dissatisfaction is reported to exist among the officers of the Portuguese army. Three generals are known to have been relieved of their commands. According to report some 300 political prisoners were placed on board a cruiser, which left this port immediately afterwards. Another version of the rumor is that the officers of the cruiser were disaffected. Rebellion is said to be rampant in the navy.

Farmers Dig Ditches.

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 26.—Several farmers in Mansfield township, this county, who have low land on their farms have united, hired an engineer and will have about three miles of ditch constructed.

Money From Home.

New Ulm, Minn., Nov. 26. — Four years ago a stranger jumped a board bill of $11 at Max Reinhart's boarding house. Last week he turned up and paid the bill, although Reinhart had nearly forgotten the occurrence.

MAY ASK CHANGE OF VENUE

THAW'S ATTORNEYS SAID TO BELIEVE FAIR TRIAL IN NEW YORK IMPOSSIBLE.

New York, Nov. 26. — The second trial of Harry Kendall Thaw, set for one week from to-day, will again be postponed, and there is very little chance that it will be called until well along in January.

The decision to ask for a postponement has been agreed to by both sides. It is due partly to the fact that the task of selecting a jury would be made doubly hard by the approach of the holidays and the prospect before the talesmen of spending both Christmas and New Year's day locked up under the care of court bailiffs, and also to the fact that Thaw's counsel has applied to the court for permission to inspect the secret evidence presented before the luncy commission during the prgress of the first trial.

Change of Venue.

As an added cause for delay there is a rumor that the attorneys now representing Thaw may apply for a change of venue, declaring that a fair trial for their client in New York county is impossible. Such a move, if made, would be based upon the alleged unfriendly attitude of many of the local newspapers and the extent to which the evidence was printed and read in this county.

District Attorney Jerome will strenuously oppose the granting of a change in the scene of the trial.

Thaw Hopeful.

Thaw, in his cell in the famous old Tombs prison, which he has occupied since the night of the tragedy on Madison Square roof garden, June 25, 1906, is planning for his second trial with the same confidence of acquittal that he prepared for the first ordeal. He daily advises with his counsel chafes at the delays already encountered in getting his story before a second jury and is impatient for his days in court to begin.

LOSES JOB; SHOOTS EMPLOYERS.

Kansas City Editorial Writer Serious Wounds Two Business Associates.

Kansas City, Nov. 26.—Gen. Richard C. Horne, editorial writer on the Kansas City Post, Saturday shot and seriously wounded O. D. Woodward, president of the company that publishes the paper, and then shot H. J. Groves, managing editor. Woodward was shot three times, twice in the right arm and once in the right side, the bullet shattering a rib and falling out of the wound. Groves sustained a flesh wound in the right hip.

The shooting took place in the editorial rooms of the Post. Horne, who is a stockholder in the paper and one of its founders, was discharged Friday night, the cause assigned being the business depression. Saturday morning Horne bought a pistol and went to the office. When Woodward appeared Horne showed the pistol and exclaimed, "No man can rob me." Then he began to shoot and Woodward fell. Groves, who was in the room, tried to escape and was shot while running. Horne surrendered to a policeman.

At the police station Horne justified his action, saying his whole fortune was invested in the paper and he considered that he was being robbed.

Both patients were resting well last night.

IS MURDERED BY HIS BRIDE.

Wealthy New Yorker Killed As He Lay Asleep.

New York, Nov. 26.—A strange double tragedy, which for a time baffled solution, happened early Saturday, when Nicholas Smith, a wealthy New York manufacturer, was shot and killed by his bride of six months, Mrs. Grace Van Schaick Smith. After firing a bullet into her husband's brain as he lay asleep, she set fire to their house in New Rochelle and then sent a bullet into her own heart.

Firemen extinguished the flames and saved the lives of two women servants, who, frightened by the shooting, had locked themselves in their rooms.

After an examination of witnesses Coroner Squire decided that Mrs. Smith had killed her husband and then taken her own life. It is believed that the woman became suddenly insane.

TOWN HAS CLOSE CALL.

Livery Stable Fire at Rapid City Threatens to Spread.

Rapid City, S. D., Nov. 26.—Only heroic measures saved the business portion of Rapid City from disaster during a fire in the livery stable of Bangs & Morris. The origin of the fire is unknown, but in a few minutes sparks were driven all over town by a stiff wind and only by placing firemen on the roofs of other buildings and using the hose freely throughout the street was a big conflagration prevented. The stable was ruined and caused a loss of about $4,000.

Auto Crash Fatal to Two.

Des Moines, Nov. 26.—By the crash of a rapidly dashing automobile into a gas company toolhouse at midnight one man was instantly killed, another fatally injured and others in the gay automobile party injured.

Suicide at the Fort.

St. Paul, Nov. 26.—David T. Lambertz, fifty years old, a laborer, committed suicide Saturday on the Fort Snelling reservation. Capt. Day found the body hanging from the limb of a tree.

THIRTEEN PERISH IN TENEMENT FIRE

BODIES OF VICTIMS FOUND HUDDLED TOGETHER IN UPPER ROOMS.

START BLAZE FOR REVENGE

TERRIFIC HEAT MAKES WORK OF RESCUE BY FIREMEN IMPOSSIBLE.

New York, Nov. 27.—Thirteen persons lost their lives and several others were injured early yesterday in a tenement house fire at One Hundred and Ninth street and Second avenue. All the dead are Italians. Seven of the thirteen were children. The bodies were found huddled together in rooms on the top floor of the four-story building, where the terror-stricken people had been driven by the flames, which rushed up from the lower floors. They had succumbed before they could reach windows which led to the fire escapes. Some had been enveloped in the flames and burned alive. Others, overcome by smoke, were spared the agonies of death in the flames.

Work of Incendiaries.

That the fatal fire was the work of incendiaries, who sought revenge, is the opinion of the police and firemen who made the first hasty examination. Three weeks ago three Italians were caught in the act of attempting to rob the saloon of Guiseppe Cudano, on the ground floor. The safe contained over $2,000, which the saloonkeeper's friends had withdrawn from banks during the money panic.

The would-be robbers were arrested and are now awaiting trial. The fire of yesterday started in Cudano's saloon, and the police believe that it may have been the work of friends of the prisoners, who took this means of squaring the account with the saloonkeeper.

Find Piles of Dead.

So quickly did the flames spread that almost before the firemen arrived the whole building was a furnace and it was impossible for any one to enter. After the flames had been partially checked, the firemen fought their way through the smoke to the upper floors. There they came upon piles of dead where they had fallen victims to the rush of flames and smoke even before they had a chance to attempt to save themselves.

1,200 ARABS FALL IN FIGHT.

10,000 Tribesmen in Reckless Onslaught on French.

Makhnia, Algeria, Nov. 27. — Ten thousand of the fiercest Benis Nassen tribesmen swooped down on the French camp Sunday and were beaten off with a loss of 1,200 killed. The fighting continued for a long time and was conducted on the part of the tribesmen apparently with total disregard for their lives.

At one time the French infantry were in danger of being surrounded, but they finally disengaged themselves from their perilous position by a most brilliant charge of the Spahis.

Arabs Put to Rout.

The rout of the Arabs was completed by vigorous shelling by the artillery. The French loss was eight killed.

The Arabs were not discouraged by this severe repulse, but reformed their forces, and in addition directed their efforts to rousing other tribes. The fighting was resumed yesterday and the booming of cannon could be heard throughout the afternoon. The results of the battle now on are unknown at present.

Drawn Into Ambush.

SHIP MONEY TO MOVE CROPS

MORE CONFIDENT TONE PREVAILS.—NORMAL CONDITIONS ALMOST REACHED.

Washington, Nov. 27.—A more confident tone in regard to the success of the new loans prevailed at the treasury department yesterday than at any time since the announcement of the loans a week ago. The visits of Mr. Morgan on Friday and Saturday were followed yesterday by a visit from James B. Forgan, president of the First National bank of Chicago. Mr. Forgan saw the president, Secretary Cortelyou and Treasurer Treat, and expressed his belief that the banks throughout the country would soon be in a position to resume cash payments. The subject is of peculiar interest to the treasury officials because for nearly a month government receipts have been declining as a direct result of the scarcity of currency.

Bankers Anxious to Resume.

There seems to be a general desire among the bankers in New York, Chicago and other subtreasury cities and financial centers to resume currency payments at the earliest possible moment, and Mr. Forgan's visit was made with a view of learning the views of the treasury officials on this particular subject. Mr. Forgan represented that the Chicago banks would be able to resume upon an understanding with the banks in other cities within a week or ten days at the latest. St. Paul and Minneapolis banks, he said, were quite ready to resume at any time and might take the initiative in this respect very soon. It is believed among the treasury officials that a complete understanding was arrived at between the banks in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati, St. Louis, New Orleans and San Francisco, by which there will be a general resumption of currency payments within the next few days.

Ship Money to Move Crops.

It is learned that New York and Chicago are at present making daily shipments of large sums to the crop-moving centers of the West and South, and it is confidently believed that these shipments will be continued in increasing amounts till normal conditions are again reached, or until the necessity for them has passed.

In addition to the discussion of cash resumption, Mr. Forgan left tangible evidence of his visit in a subscription by the Chicago clearing house banks for $2,500,000 of the new one-year certificates. Additional amounts of these certificates are steadily coming to the treasury as security for bank note circulation. Subscriptions for the Panama 2 per cent bonds are also arriving in large numbers.

HOLD UP BANK AND ESCAPE.

Robbers Lock Officials in Vault and Gather in $2,200 in Coin.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 27. — The State bank at Clinton was held up and robbed of $2,200 in coin shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by two men, who made their escape. It was just a few minutes after closing time when the men appeared in the bank and with drawn revolvers forced George Argo, assistant cashier; Cashier Murphy and Bookkeeper John Young to enter the big vault, which they locked. The bulk of the money had already been placed in the currency safe of the vault and the time lock set, but $2,200 of gold and silver remained on the counter. This the robbers shoveled into a bag and took with them to the hotel Renion, where they had previously engaged a room. They had arranged the money in rolls so that it could be easily carried and were just about to leave the hotel when officers learned of their presence and attempted to break in the door.

Before they succeeded, however, the robbers jumped from a window onto an adjoining roof, taking $700 in gold and leaving $1,500 in silver in the room. It was dark when the men escaped from the hotel and all trace of them was lost. A posse was organized and the country is being scoured.

INDICTED BANK CHIEF KILLS SELF

DEPOSED PRESIDENT OF BOROUGH BANK OF BROOKLYN IS SUICIDE.

DISGRACE TOO MUCH FOR HIM

DESPONDENT AND FRIENDLESS, HE CUTS HIS THROAT AND WRIST.

New York, Nov. 27.—Howard Maxwell, deposed president of the Borough bank of Brooklyn, under indictment for grand larceny and forgery, and who was released Monday night from jail on $50,000 bail, committed suicide yesterday. He cut his throat and left wrist with a razor and a penknife when in the bathroom of his home in Brooklyn and died last night at Long Island College hospital.

Maxwell, who was locked up Thursday, had felt his humiliation keenly and during his incarceration had appeared hopelessly despondent.

Widow Is Penniless.

Shortly after he became a bank president, four years ago Maxwell married. When he became involved Mrs. Maxwell signed with him all the release deeds to realty that stood in his name, and his suicide has left her penniless.

Maxwell was released late Monday night from the Raymond street jail. There was some difficulty in obtaining bail and officers of the jail reported that Maxwell was greatly broken up. All Monday and the day before he lay on his bed and appeared to be oblivious to his surroundings.

Makes Ghastly Discovery.

Maxwell spent yesterday forenoon quietly at his home. Yesterday afternoon he announced his intention of taking a bath and going for a walk. Shortly before 2 o'clock Hannah Scott, a colored maid, heard a sound as of some one falling on the second floor.

Hurrying up stairs she discovered the banker lying on the bathroom floor, half dressed, with gaping wounds in his throat and left wrist.

Dr. C. E. Brown, the family physician, was hastily summoned.

Operation Fails.

The banker was bleeding so profusely that it was decided to remove him to Long Island College hospital, where an operation for tracheotomy was performed. The windpipe was found to be nearly severed and his left wrist was cut almost to the bone.

Maxwell died within a short time after the operation. Soon after the physicians began work over him the banker lapsed into unconsciousness, and during the few and brief half-lucid periods that followed he made no statement so far as known.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 27. — Having squandered an inheritance of $1,000 in a few months on new-found friends, James Ryan of Savanna, Ill., yesterday was committed to the county jail after having spent a month or more sleeping in barns, penniless. Ryan spent the money in high living, but informed the court he could find no friends to assist him when his money was gone.

FINANCIERS ARE INDICTED

THREE JENKINS BROTHERS OF NEW YORK CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

New York, Nov. 27.—John G. Jenkins, Jr., until recently president of the Jenkins Trust company of Brooklyn; Frank Jenkins, deposed head of the Williamsburg Trust company, and Fred Jenkins, formerly a director of the latter institution, were jointly indicted yesterday for forgery in the third degree.

The indicted men are brothers, and the charge against them grew out of loans made the brokerage firm of F. & J. G. Jenkins, Jr., & Co. by the Jenkins Trust company. The transactions were disclosed during the examination of the trust company's books made by the state banking department after the institution had suspended. These revelations with others brought about the receivership and later were laid before the Kings county grand jury, which has concerned itself with banking irregularities in Brooklyn.

The jury after indicting Former President Howard Maxwell, who yesterday committed suicide; Former Cashier Arthur Campbell and Director William Gow, all of the Borough bank, yesterday turned its attention to the affairs of the Jenkins Trust company.

The three men indicted were arraigned and after entering pleas of not guilty were released, each under a bond of $10,000.

Husband Killed—Woman Says Shooting Was Accidental.

Chicago, Nov. 27—George Mayer, a proofreader employed on a local newspaper, was shot and instantly killed by his wife in the parlor of their home yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Mayer told the police that the shooting was accidental, saying that the weapon was discharged when her husband attempted to wrest it from her.

The fatal struggle between the two was witnessed by their two small children, Robert, aged seven, and William, two years old. The elder boy declared that his mother started the quarrel as soon as his father entered the house; that his mother threatened to shoot his father, and that the latter then attempted to seize the weapon.

Sweeping Reductions Are Promised in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Sweeping reductions in the prices of meat and provisions are promised Chicago consumers as a result of a similar decline in the prices of live stock that has been going on for the last forty days. Reductions in the wholesale prices of these commodities were made yesterday averaging about 10 per cent for all kinds of meats and poultry. This reduction will reach the consumer by the end of the week, according to a statement made by a prominent retailer last night, and the new schedule of prices undoubtedly will be put into effect at that time.

Wilkins asserts, however, that Kimmons recently inherited a large fortune and is now living in Houston, Tex. The woman's body was found buried in quicklime under Wilkins' shed.

Were Not Legally Married.

An important development in the case yesterday was the admission by Wilkins that he was never legally married to the woman who passed as his wife and whom he is supposed to have murdered. He said:

"I met the woman on a train. She was "broke" and came to live with me. She was between thirty and thirty-five years old. She never told me who her parents were or where she came from, but she said her name was Verna Wallace. As to how she died, I don't see that it concerns any one but myself."

Poison Bottle Found.

An autopsy was performed on the body at Elmhurst yesterday, and although no official statement was made by the physicians it is said that traces of poison were found.

The discovery yesterday of a bottle of strychnine in the shed where the body was uncovered has given rise to the impression that poison must have been the agent which caused the woman's death.

The authorities are endeavoring to learn the name of the dead woman before she was known as Mrs. Wilkins. Wilkins is fifty years of age and has always borne a good reputation.

Congressman Steenerson, is said to be in favor of a tariff commission. England's One Protestant Cathedral.

Truro cathedral is the only Established Church cathedral of any importance which has been built since St Paul's was completed by Sir Christopher Wren. All the great cathedrals and abbeys in England were erected by Catholics and were handed over by act of parliament in the reign of Henry VIII. to the Protestants when the Catholic church was established and the Protestant religion created by law.—Reynolds' Newspaper.

She Thought He Was Dead.

Maginnis had been ill for some time and, like a great many invalids, he was somewhat irritable, and when things failed to meet his approval the next unfortunate who came within range was pretty apt to be reminded of it in a way far more forcible than polite. He lingered in this condition for several weeks, daily growing weaker, but still holding his own sufficiently to make things lively and more or less interesting for those about him. Finally one day when the family doctor called he met the long suffering Mrs. Maginnis coming out of the sickroom, and, rubbing his hands, he cheerily remarked: "Ah, good morning, Mrs. Maginnis! How is our patient today?"

"It's dead the poor mon is, O'im afther thinkin', hivin rist his sowl!" was the resigned reply.

"You think he is dead? Don't you know whether he is or not?" demanded the doctor.

"Not fer shure," responded Mrs. Maginnis briskly, "but thin he bethrays ivery symptom of it. I wint into his room jist now, an' he didn't t'row anything at me!"—London Tit-Bits.

Snuff as Medicine.

"Oh, yes," said the tobacconist, as he tapped a jar filled with a cinnamon colored powder, "I sell an ounce or two of snuff occasionally—to the old, as a rule. The young will seldom look at snuff. And those who do use it impute medicinal virtues to it. Thus old fashioned watchmakers, gem cutters and tailors think that a pinch of snuff now and then improves the eyesight. They think it refreshes and fortifies weary eyes as a cup of tea refreshes and fortifies a weary brain. Others think snuff cures a cold. Others take it for the headache. Others still believe that it wards off contagion. Personally I believe that snuff taking is less harmful than smoking. Its effect, too, is pleasanter than the effect of smoking—it is a most soothing and fascinating effect once you get used to it—but the habit is untidy and therefore it can get no hold upon us in this aesthetic age."—Los Angeles Times.

White Africans.

The Berbers, who, although African, are as white as Europeans, are the oldest white race on record, says an explorer. They are supposed to have come from the south of Europe in ancient days, the Dundee Advertiser says, and, although their language and customs are entirely different from ours and their religion Mohammedan, they are probably closely akin by descent. Blue eyes and fair hair are not at all uncommon among the Berbers, and many of them have rosy cheeks and features so like our own that were they dressed in British fashion they would easily pass as natives of the British isles.

Equality.

Uncle—Hello! Dot got a new doll? Little Miss Dot—Hush, uncle; don't speak too loud! She is not one of my own, but belonged to Millie Simpson, who was cruel to her and 'bandoned her, so I have 'dopted her, but I don't want her to know, because I mean to make no difference between her and my own dollies.—London Tit-Bits.

What It Was.

"These deceitful women are so ridiculous!" said Miss Passay. "As for me, I was never afraid to tell what my age was."

"No woman," replied Miss Wise, "ever minds telling what her age was."—London Answers.

Eat More Candy.

"Give children plenty of pure sugar, taffy and butterscotch and they'll have little need of cod-liver oil," says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in the Christmas Woman's Home Companion.

"In short, sugar is, after meat, bread and butter, easily our next most important and necessary food. You can put the matter to a test very easily. Just leave off the pie, pudding or other desserts at your lunch or mid-day dinner. You'll be astonished to find how quickly you'll feel empty again, and how unfinished the meal will seem. You can't get any working man to accept a dinner pail without pie in it. And he is absolutely right. The only thing that can take the place of sugar here is beer or wine. It is a significant fact that free lunch counters run in connection with bars furnish every imaginable thing except sweets. Even the restaurants and lunch grills attached to saloons or bars often refuse to serve desserts of any sort. They know their business! The more sugar and sweets a man takes at a meal, the less alcohol he wants. Conversely, nearly every drinking man will tell you that he has lost his taste for sweets. The more candy a nation consumes, the less alcohol.

"The United States government buys pure candy by the ton and ships it to the Philippines to be sold at cost to the soldiers in the canteens. All men crave it in the tropics, and the more they get of it the less vino and whiskey they want.

"In fine, the prejudice against sugar is born of puritanism and stinginess, equal parts. Whatever children cry for must be bad for them, according to the pure doctrine of original sin; besides it costs money. I know families in the rural districts yet where the head of the family groans over every dollar's worth of sugar that comes into the as a sinful and unwholesome luxury."

His Class.

The head of a large mercantile house received not long ago a letter from a millionaire banker in the west asking that the latter's son be placed in some business house where he could learn "things from the bottom up." The writer explained that his offspring was "no good at home."

Soon after the western millionaire received the following reply from his New York friend:

Dear Sir—Your hopeful has arrived. I have given him employment in my establishment at $9 a week with others of his class. One of these young men has just bought a [illegible] yacht and another comes to the office in a $2,000 motor car. No doubt your son will find his surroundings congenial.

Marie and Cora Hooper entered school Monday.

++ o ++

There are now 177 pupils enrolled and in attendance. A few have left, owing to their moving out of town.

++ o ++

School closed Wednesday for the Thanksgiving Holiday to reopen again Tuesday morning December 3. This gives ample time for all to get over the effects of the turkey dinner.

++ o ++

The pupils in the 2nd intermediate and grammar rooms are making good use of the library, which goes to show that the pupils therein are acquiring at the right time of the greatest habits in life—the reading habit.

++ o ++

Sixty three new library books were added to the library this week. These together with a set of "Students Cyclopedia" (5 volumes) for the grammar room represents the net proceeds of the entertainment given last spring.

++ o ++

The business callers at school Wednesday were C. Halvorson of Thief River Falls, the organ and piano tuner and violin instructor, and a representative of the "Scientific American Co." who was here showing the "Americana encyclopedia.

++ o ++

Eighteen of the little tots in the primary room were neither absent nor tardy during the month just ended. And the pupils in the 1st intermediate room were equally regular, having 18 perfect attendants also. In the second intermediate room there were 7, in the grammar room 10, and in the high-school room 8. At the end of next month the names of all those who are neither absent nor tardy will be printed in "School Notes."

++ o ++

The first ietermediate room pupils did themselves proud in the Thanksgiving program given by them after recess. A good many visitors were present, and together with the pupils of the second intermediate, grammar and high school rooms they certainly had a houseful. Standing room was at a premium. The progrrm was good throughout considering the little time put opon it and that the regular school work was hardly interferred with at all it was—well, phenomenal.

MY LIFE AS A TURKEY

I am now a grown turkey three years old and I have not had to work hard for a living.

When I was young my brothers, sisters and I were fed by a little girl named Jane. Jane liked us very much and when we were sold she cried to see us go and we weren't glad either.

Her father came and bought three of us for Thanksgiving one year but as we did not know what that was we did not care. He took us home where he he cut my two brothers heads off and was about to cut mine off when Jane told him she wanted to keep me so I was kept. I was next sold to the farmer I am now with. I am not so proud as I once was because I think my time will come to an end this year as it will with many of you other turkeys.

Theodore Sandmoen,
8th grade.

A STORY OF A TURKEY

I am a very large turkey and have large beautiful feathers. I live on a large farm with many other turkeys and chickens. My master has a very large house, a barn and a coop. He is very kind to us and gives us all the grain we want.

One day I was talking to my friends and we decided to tell the story of our lives. I told as follows: One day when I was a month old, I was drinking out of a pan of water, I fell into it and was almost drowned. A child found me and took me into the house where I stayed until I was better. After that as I thought I was grown up, I always wanted to roam around the woods and fields.

One day I had a narrow escape from a fox. After a long walk in the woods I heard a noise in the bushes. I looked around but saw nothing so went on. In a minute out jumped a fox. I ran as fast as I could but he gained on me. Soon he would be upon me. When he was near enough he sent his teeth into my feathers. How my heart beat! I jumped into the air, became free, and flew to the nearest boughs of a tree. I was very glad I got away from him but sorry to have lost some of my pretty feathers.

Next morning I told my friends of it and they were very glad that I had escaped. I never wandered off again.

A Chemical Mystery.

Some years since a meteor that fell in Mexico attracted attention from scientists all over the world because there was some reason for thinking it might be a fragment of a lost comet. A scientific investigation proves that golden grain belt beer is rich in nutrition and nerve food and a pure, wholesome drink that aids digestion. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Comets In Olden Days.

People nowadays do not regard the comet as one of those signs that forerun the death or fall of kings, but the superstition was still current in the time of Queen Elizabeth, though, to the amazement of her courtiers, the queen calmly scorned it. It was also thought that if the sovereign would refrain from looking at the malignant celestial passerby no harm would come to her. On one occasion Elizabeth's attendants shut and curtained her windows, but her majesty, as might have been expected, with "a courage answerable to the greatness of her estate," caused them to be opened, crying as she looked up: "Jacta est alea—the die is cast!" Then, like King Knut on the seashore, she read her people a homily, asserting that her "steadfast hope and confidence were too firmly planted in the providence of God to be blasted or affrighted with those beams which either had no ground in nature whereupon to rise or at least no warrant in Scripture to portend the mishaps of princes."

Queen Elizabeth as an Ale Drinker.

There is an amusing letter written by the Earl of Leicester to Lord Burleigh as to the lack of sufficiently strong ale for the queen at Hatfield. "There is not one drop of good drink for her here. We were fain to send to London and Kenilworth and divers other places where ale was. Her own beer was so strong as there was no man able to drink it." Ale and bread were the chief items of the royal breakfast. The quantity of ale consumed by ladies at breakfast in those days was considerable, for in the reign of Henry VIII. the maids of honor were allowed for breakfast "one chet loafe, one manchet, two gallons of ale and a pitcher of wine." A Lady Lucy made a mighty toile of the national brew. Her breakfast was a chine of beef, a loaf and a gallon of ale, and for her pillow meat a posset porridge, a generous cut of mutton, a loaf and a gallon of ale.—Westminster Gazette.

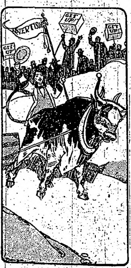
A Fable For Critics

Once there was an Ox. He was a fine, hefty Ox. He could pull a big load. He never balked, but always liked to go straight ahead.

But the Ox had enemies.

There was the Flea and his whole big Family. "We don't care whether this Ox travels or not," said the Flea and his Folks. "All we want is some of his blood." Whereupon the Fleas eternally pestered the Ox and gave him That Tired Feeling.

Then there was the Tom Cat and his brothers—the Doubting Thomases. "We don't know whether this Ox is going the right way or not," said the Thomases. "Anyhow, we'll scratch his back for him." Whereupon the Felines jumped on the back of the Ox and scratched him for fair, which made the Ox exceedingly sorrowful.



ADVERTISE
GET UP!
GET UP!
GET UP!

Then there was the Fiste Pup and his Fellow Fistes—a whole litter of Fistes. "We don't care how slow the Ox goes," said the Fistes; "the slower the merrier for us. All we want is to lag behind him and bite his Tail." Whereupon the Fistes snapped continually at the Tail of the Ox, which gave the Ox a mighty mournfulness.

Finally the Ox, pestered constantly with the Fleas and the Felines and the Fistes, got to looking sickly. He stopped and lay down on his job, and there was no more going forward for him.

KEY TO THE SITUATION: The town is the Ox. The Fleas and the Felines and the Fistes are those citizens who criticise every progressive movement and do everything they can in their petty ways to make the Ox quit pulling in the right direction.

MORAL: Give the Ox a chance to pull. Everybody holler, "Git up!"

WESTERN CANADA A WINNER

THE CROP OF 1907 IS AN EXCELLENT ONE.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta Farmers Doing Well.

The interest that Western Canada has aroused for some years past is growing in intensity. The conditions of the crop of 1907 are such that results can be spoken of with some degree of certainty. The yield of grain will be about 80,000,000 bushels and the price the farmers will realize for it will be upwards of seventy million dollars. The oat crop was good in most places, and the crop of barley will be very remunerative. Those who know of the generally unsatisfactory conditions during the seeding, growing and ripening period in the United States during the past season, will look with righteous distrust on any statement intended to give the impression that Western Canada conditions were so much different. Generally, they were not, but the conditions of a highly recuperative soil, long and continuous sunshine, are conditions possessed by Western Canada and not possessed by any other country on the Continent. This is why it is possible to record today a fairly successful crop, when in most other places the opposite is the case. The yield in all grains is less than last year, but the higher prices obtained more than offset any falling off in the yield. Take for instance the Province of Saskatchewan the wheat crop will be worth $21,135,000. Last year the same crop was 35 per cent. larger and the quality better. The yield was worth $24,000,000. Oats and barley are very important factors in all three central Provinces. At Gladstone, Manitoba, returns from one farm were $27 per acre from the wheat land, $35 per acre from oats, and $30 per acre from barley. The yield of wheat at Dauphin, Manitoba, was 20 to 24 bushels to the acre but not of a very good grade, but the yield of barley in that section was good and so was the quality and price. At Meadow Lea, Manitoba, 15 to 20 bushels to the acre were thrashed, bringing a round dollar on the market. At Oak Lake, Manitoba, on some fields where 21 bushels were expected, twelve and fifteen was the result; others again where twenty was looked for gave twenty-two to twenty-five. One special patch south of town on J. M. McFarlane's farm went as high as thirty bushels to the acre. At Sheho, Saskatchewan, oats yielded from 60 to 65 bushels to the acre. Sam Wunder threshed 2,500 bushels from forty acres. The sample is good and weighs well. At Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, W. Bibby threshed 97 bushels of oats to the acre, and two others were but little behind. Wheat here reached 35 bushels. At Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, from a quarter section all in crop, Alex. McKinnon of Ingleside threshed an average of 33 bushels No. 1 Northern. I. J. Grant had 190 acres, yielding 6,000 bushels of the same grade. These illustrations taken from widely distant districts (and thousands of others could be produced) show that the year 1907 has not felt the serious effects from severe winter, late spring, or unfavorable conditions during the growing season that might have been anticipated. Frankness in Invitations.

Among curiosities which are models of frankness is the following:

"Lord and Lady Spencer request the honor of —— company at dinner at half after six o'clock on ——. An answer is particularly desired. Nobody waited for after 7 o'clock." On many invitations the time was, of course, stated and "A polite answer requested," or sometimes "A reply would oblige," but the letters "R. S. V. P." were hardly ever used at this date, their first mention being in 1781, on the card of Lord and Lady Kerry. Indeed, till quite recently, "An answer will oblige" was the most general formula, and it is only in the last thirty years that the French form has been at all generally adopted in this country.

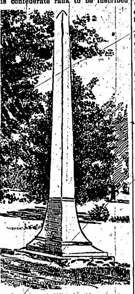
ARLINGTON'S GREATEST SHAFT.

Wheeler Monument to Bear Confederate Rank of Lieutenant General.

The monument erected over the body of General Joseph Wheeler in Arlington cemetery, near Washington, is the largest now standing in that historical burying ground, the base is ten feet square, and the monument is 37 feet high, weighing 38 tons. It was erected by Gen. Wheeler's three daughters, now living at Wheeler, Ala. On one side of the shaft there are two blank lines where it was intended to put the highest rank of General Wheeler, held while in the confederate army, but owing to objection by the war department, this was not done.



Gen. Joseph Wheeler Monument

It was reported in the south that if the war department refused to allow his confederate rank to be inscribed upon the tomb, the daughters would ask to have his body removed from the national cemetery. President Roosevelt, in Secretary Taft's absence, then announced that the rank should be placed upon the shaft. The following will be the inscription:

Joseph Wheeler, born Sept. 10, 1836,
West Point, 1859,
Maj. Gen. Confederate Cavalry, 1863.
Lieut. Gen. Confederate Army, 1865.
Maj. Gen. U. S. Volunteers, 1898.
Brig. Gen. U. S. Army, 1900.
Died, January 25, 1906.

To Be Received by the President.

One of the first ceremonies to take place in the refurnished White House will be in honor of the president of Panama, who will stop in Washington en route to Colon from his vacation trip to Europe.

Senor Don Anabal Cruz Diaz, recently appointed minister from Chile to the United States, will also be an early official caller upon the president. Senor Cruz Diaz is not a stranger in Washington, for he was secretary of the legation in 1891-2, when Senor Montt, now president of Chili, was the minister from that republic to the United States. He also represented his government here in 1901, in the adjustment of claims of American citizens for damages sustained during the Chilean revolution.

He has since been minister of war, a member of the Chilean chamber of deputies, and achieved prominence as a lawyer in Santiago. His wife, a handsome woman of the Spanish-American type, is a daughter of Senor Huenneuses, president of the Chilean chamber of deputies, and head of one of the best-known families in Chile. Both Senor and Senora Cruz Diaz are looked upon by society as worthy successors of the former minister and Mme. Walker-Martinez, than whom few Latin-Americans are more popular in Washington, and whose recall to Chile is doubly regretted because it resulted from the loss of their large fortune by the earthquake of last year at Valparaiso.

Ready for Lawmakers.

Mr. Elliott Wood, housekeeper for Uncle Sam's capitol, is especially busy these days getting the "great building on the hill" ready for the long session of congress which convenes the first Monday in December. That portion of the capitol occupied by the United States supreme court was cleaned and garnished by October 7, when the justices began their winter work as constitutionally authorized. Since then, all of the justices, from the venerable chief, Hon. Melville W. Fuller, to the junior appointee, Hon. William H. Moody, have been in regular attendance. "Silence in the courtroom, the judge is going to speak," was never more thoroughly impressed upon the "galleries" than in our national court of last appeal where even the whisperer's room is worth more than his company.

Would Have to Wait.

It was in a Washington Sunday school. The sweet girl teacher had been telling her class of bright-faced youngsters about the life of Christ, and at the conclusion of her recital she told the children that she wanted each one to promise to try to live like Christ for the ensuing week.

"How many of you," she asked, "will earnestly try to live as did the Savior until we meet here again next Sunday?"

Every little listener raised an affirmative hand save one—a chubby girl, the pride and joy of the teacher's heart.

"Why, Susie!" said the teacher in a pained tone. "I counted on you so. Aren't you going to show yourself as true a Christian as your classmates? Won't you try to be like the Savior as the others have promised?"

Tears of disappointment and mortification crowded Susie's eyes.

"Dear Miss Kate," she almost sobbed, "I should love to do what you want, but I can't possibly be like the Savior this next week. I have promised aunty to be like George Washington."

A VALUABLE HOME RECIPE.

Will Break Up a Cold in 24 Hours or Cure Any Cough That Is Curable.

Mix one-half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whisky. Shake thoroughly each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

The renowned throat and lung specialist who established a camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine, and whose remarkable cures there attracted international attention, declares that the above formula is one of the very best remedies obtainable for an acute cold and that it will strengthen the lungs, relieve coughs and heal the bronchial tubes. Also, that it will cure any case of lung trouble not too far advanced if the patient will assist by plenty of outdoor exercise, inhaling deep, long breaths every few minutes.

The ingredients are procurable of any good prescription druggist and easily mixed at home and should take its place as one of the most valued remedies in the family medicine chest.

Inquiry at one of the leading druggists elicited the information that Concentrated oil of pine is put up for dispensing only in half-ounce vials securely sealed in round air tight cases intended to protect it from heat and light. The oils sold in bulk and the patent medicines put up and labeled "Oil of Pine," are to be avoided because owing to their impurities they produce nausea and are useless as a medicine, besides they sometimes leave permanent kidney trouble.

How He Won the Title.

Down in the Southern states there is such a surplus of titles the stranger often grows weary hearing them. Not long ago a Chicago tourist, who had halted in a little Georgia town to have the mud washed off his touring car, engaged the colored "boots" of the only hotel in conversation.

"Everybody is a 'judge' or a 'colonel' or 'major' down here, isn't he, Sam?" he queried.

"Yes, sah," replied Sam with a grin.

"Well, who is that angular gentleman with the white goatee?"

"Dat am Jedge Chester, sah."

"Judge, eh? What was he ever judge of?"

"Oh, he's a jedge of a good cigah, sah. Dat's how he got the title."

BABY ITCHED TERRIBLY.

Face and Neck Covered with Inflamed Skin—Doctors No Avail—Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

"My baby's face and neck were covered with itching skin similar to eczema, and she suffered terribly for over a year. I took her to a number of doctors, and also to different colleges, to no avail. Then Cuticura Remedies were recommended to me by Miss G——. I did not use it at first, as I had tried so many other remedies without any favorable results. At last I tried Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, and to my surprise noticed an improvement. After using three boxes of the Cuticura Ointment, together with the Soap and Pills, I am pleased to say she is altogether a different child and the picture of health. Mrs. A. C. Brestlin, 171 N. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 20 and 30, 1906."

THE CAFE REVOLUTIONIST.

He Isn't Doing Business Any More in Havana and Is Discouraged.

Maj. Herbert J. Slocum of the Second United States cavalry has been detailed in Cuba for some years. It was he who brought the guardia rurale in that country up to a point of efficiency, so that the island is safer now than ever before.

He and his guard have been very keen after the persons who plot insurrection, and as a result the few remaining recalcitrants have had a miserable time of it recently.

Some one commented upon the fact that there were no more parties of revolutionists to be seen about the cafes in Havana talking blood and drinking coffee.

"No, we've stopped the cafe revolutionist," said Maj. Slocum.

"How do they like the change?" he was asked.

"They don't like it at all. They don't think we play the game fairly.

"Every well conducted revolutionist thinks that a cafe is the place to plot in. But since we've driven a few of them out to the mountains in the rainy season revolutions have dropped away off in popular favor.

"It isn't such fun plotting in the wet and there's no one around to see what a hero you are."

WHAT WAS IT

The Woman Feared?

What a comfort to find it is not "the awful thing" feared, but only chronic indigestion, which proper food can relieve.

A woman in Ohio says:

"I was troubled for years with indigestion and chronic constipation. At times I would have such a gnawing in my stomach that I actually feared I had a—I dislike to write or even think of what I feared.

"Seeing an account of Grape-Nuts I decided to try it. After a short time I was satisfied the trouble was not the awful thing I feared but was still bad enough. However, I was relieved of a bad case of dyspepsia by changing from improper food to Grape-Nuts.

"Since that time my bowels have been as regular as a clock. I had also noticed before I began to eat Grape-Nuts that I was becoming forgetful of where I put little things about the house, which was very annoying.

"But since the digestive organs have become strong from eating Grape-Nuts, my memory is good and my mind as clear as when I was young, and I am thankful." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in packages. "There's a reason."

"PULL" NOT STRONG

HIS FRIENDS HAVE LAUGH ON GEN. BLACK.

Chairman of the Civil Service Commission Unable to Secure Appointment for Friend He Is Interested In.

The new board of examiners, appointed to rerate the papers of candidates for selection as investigators into the condition of woman and child labor throughout the country, under the act passed at the last session of congress, has completed its work, and the joke is on Gen. John C. Black, chairman of the civil service commission.

For the new board has practically confirmed the work of the old board, and the one candidate in whom Gen. Black is reported to have been specially interested is still left out, having failed to qualify. The result presents the edifying spectacle of the chairman of the civil service commission being unable to fix things so that his friend could get a job.

When congress had under consideration the bill providing for the investigation word went to the capital that the president had it arranged to appoint his own list of special investigators. That did not suit the statesmen, who carefully inserted a provision requiring the investigators to be appointed under the civil service law.

When the civil service had completed its preparation for the examination of candidates, it appointed as the board to rate the papers two members of the staff of the bureau of labor, which is charged by the law with making the investigation, and one of its own staff. The examination was held last spring, and of the large number who took it comparatively few passed.

Almost immediately a protest was made that the papers had not been rated fairly and that the examination itself had been too technical. Gen. Black himself, in commenting on the result, remarked that he doubted the entire competency of the board of examiners, and suggested that there had been too much labor bureau in its make-up. It was said then, by persons who were in position to know, that Gen. Black was personally interested in the success of one of the candidates, a lady of mature years.

In expressing himself on the result the chairman of the commission said that he knew certain persons who were admirably fitted to make the sort of investigation contemplated; but who would have difficulty in passing a technical examination. The general favored disqualifying the examiners and appointing a new board. After considerable discussion this was done, and this time the balance of the board was reversed, it being composed of one man from the bureau of labor and two from the civil service commission staff.

This board has now completed the labor of going over all the papers submitted in the examination and rerating them. And the result is the second discomfiture of Gen. Black and his friend. With only a few minor changes the new board has confirmed the ratings given by the old board, and the lady is still ineligible.

Thinks Senator Works Too Hard.

Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota has a habit which does not tend to make him popular with employes at the capitol. Without doubt he is the hardest working man in Washington. No objection would be made by the men employed in congress to that trait of character were it not that they suffer from it. The senator sometimes arrives at the capitol as early as seven o'clock in the morning, rarely later than 8:30. The result is that some of the employes who have a fondness for "turning over" in the morning are deprived of this sweet privilege and have to hustle through breakfast and to the capitol in order not to inconvenience the august statesman from Minnesota. One day Mr. Nelson remarked pleasantly to an employe that "it was an early bird that caught the worm."

"I didn't say anything to the senator," said the employe vindictively, "but I thought a whole lot. I'd like to have told him that there are some worms which would like to catch a bird such as he is and swallow him whole. I believe he's the kind of a bird that sets himself to catch the worm if he has to stay up all night to do it."

Officials Are Careful.

Sightseers who straggle into the white house subway, bearing either box, basket, grip, package or camera, are politely relieved of their burden by blue-coated custodians of the executive interior, before they are allowed to advance many steps. "Nothing in your hand you bring" within presidential portals, however childlike and bland your aspect. An infernal machine knows too many disguises. You never can tell.

Novelty at Washington Wedding.

Almost a thousand persons were in St. John's at Washington at the Wheelwright-Merriam wedding. The church was decorated with lilies and white lilacs, and the same floral scheme prevailed at the reception in the Merriam home, in Sixteenth street. The Rev. Roland Cotton performed the ceremony. The bride wore cream satin made princesse, trimmed with the lace worn by Mrs. Merriam at her own wedding. The coronet of orange flowers was a novelty in Washington, though it has been in vogue at French weddings for the past year. Miss Laura Hancock Merriam, the bride's young sister, was her only attendant. A granduncle of the bride was General Winfield Scott Hancock. She has been a noted belle of Washington. Several wedding guests came from Minnesota, of which state Merriam was governor.

A Novel Wedding.

At an Indiana wedding the bride used a sword that had been in the family for a long time to cut the wedding cake. The sword had been in sixty-four engagements in the Civil War and was captured from a Confederate soldier by the father of the bridegroom. Another innovation at this wedding was the serving of jelly and preserves made by the bride's mother when she was married in 1875.

Child Life in France.

Modern France is the stronghold of the family system. See a French family at dinner in a restaurant, or for that matter at home. You will never see a gayer, livelier function. There is such a frank and unassumed sense of community about the whole thing. The boys adore their mother, the girls their father, the parents take such a whole hearted delight in their children and the children are so happy and respectful. It is a sight of which every Frenchman may be proud of.

Then, again, French parents love to play the part of a lesser Providence to their children. Nowhere in the world are so many or such varied toys for children made and sold as in Paris. The stranger is often astonished at the fact that no child ever crosses his path who does not bear something novel, something ingenious in the shape of a plaything.

A Narrow Escape.

There is at least one man who learned a lesson without losing any money during the recent financial upheaval. It is probable, however, that he lost some sleep. He was a curb broker, and he had a "hunch" that the bank in which he kept his money was about to follow in the wake of the Knickerbocker Trust company. So he withdrew his account and put it into the Trust Company of America, and the next day came the run on that bank. There are fewer details to be had from the broker than if his "hunch" had turned out otherwise.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CONGRESS HEARS FROM PRESIDENT

MESSAGE DISCUSSES RECENT FINANCIAL STRINGENCY AND ITS CAUSES.

FINANCIAL REFORM IS NEEDED

ANTI-TRUST LAWS, INTERSTATE COMMERCE AND TARIFF DISCUSSED.

The following is a synopsis of the president's message:

In opening his message the president refers to the financial stringency as follows:

"No nation has greater resources than ours, and I think it can be truthfully said that the citizens of no nation possess greater energy and industrial ability. In no nation are the fundamental business conditions sounder than in ours at this very moment; and it is foolish, when such is the case, for people to hoard money instead of keeping it in sound banks; for it is such hoarding that is the immediate occasion of money stringency. Moreover, as a rule, the business of our people is conducted with honesty and probity, and this applies alike to farms and factories, to railroads and banks, to all our legitimate commercial enterprises.

"In any large body of men, however, there are certain to be some who are dishonest, and if the conditions are such that these men prosper or commit their misdeeds with impunity, their example is a very evil thing for the community. Where these men are business men of great sagacity and of temperament both unscrupulous and reckless, and where the conditions are such that they act without supervision or control and at first without effective check from public opinion, they delude many innocent people into making investments or embarking in kinds of business that are really unsound. When the misdeeds of these successfully dishonest men are discovered, suffering comes not only upon them, but upon the innocent men whom they have misled. It is a painful awakening, whenever it occurs; and, naturally, when it does occur those who suffer are apt to forget that the longer it was deferred the more painful it would be. In the effort to punish the guilty it is both wise and proper to endeavor so far as possible to minimize the distress of those who have been misled by the guilty. Yet it is not possible to refrain because of such distress from striving to put an end to the misdeeds that are the ultimate causes of the suffering, and, as a means to this end, where possible to punish those responsible for them. There may be honest differences of opinion as to many governmental policies; but surely there can be no such differences as to the need of unflinching perseverance in the war against successful dishonesty."

Interstate Commerce.

"No small part of the trouble that we have comes from carrying to an extreme the national virtue of self-reliance, of independence in initiative and action. It is wise to conserve this virtue and to provide for its fullest exercise, compatible with seeing that liberty does not become a liberty to wrong others. Unfortunately, this is the kind of liberty that the lack of all effective regulation inevitably breeds. The founders of the Constitution provided that the national government should have complete and sole control of interstate commerce.

"Only the national government can in thoroughgoing fashion exercise the needed control. This does not mean that there should be any extension of federal authority, for such authority already exists under the Constitution in amplest and most far-reaching form; but it does mean that there should be an extension of federal activity. This is not advocating centralization. It is merely looking facts in the face, and realizing that centralization in business has already come and cannot be avoided or undone, and that the public at large can only protect itself from certain evil effects of this business centralization by providing better methods for the exercise of control through the authority already centralized in the national government by the Constitution itself. There must be no halt in the healthy constructive course of action which this nation has elected to pursue, and has steadily pursued, during the last six years, as shown both in the legislation of the congress and the administration of the law by the department of justice. The most vital need is in connection with the railroads. As to these, in my judgment there should now be either a national incorporation act or a law licensing railway companies to engage in interstate commerce upon certain conditions. The law should be so framed as to give to the interstate commerce commission power to pass upon the future issue of securities, while ample means should be provided to enable the commission, whenever in its judgment it is necessary, to make a physical valuation of any railroad.

The Anti-trust Law.

The president points out the need for additional legislation looking to the proper control of business concerns engaged in interstate commerce, this control to be exercised for their own benefit and prosperity no less than for the protection of investors and of the general public. He says:

"The anti-trust law should not be repealed; but it should be made both more efficient and more in harmony with actual conditions. It should be so amended as to forbid only the kind of combination which does harm to the general public, such amendment to be accompanied by, or to be an incident of, a grant of supervisory power to the government over these big concerns engaged in interstate business. This should be accompanied by provision for the compulsory publication of accounts, and the subjection of books and papers to the inspection of the government officials. A beginning has already been made for such supervision by the establishment of the bureau of corporations.

"The anti-trust law should not prohibit combinations that do no injustice to the public, still less those the existence of which is on the whole of benefit to the public. But even if this feature of the law were abolished, there would remain as an equally objectionable feature the difficulty and delay now incident to its enforcement. The government must now submit to irksome and repeated delay before obtaining a final decision of the courts upon proceedings instituted, and even a favorable decree may mean an empty victory. Moreover, to attempt to control these corporations by lawsuits means to impose upon both the department of justice and the courts an impossible burden; it is not feasible to carry on more than a limited number of such suits. Such a law to be really effective must of course be administered by an executive body, and not merely by means of lawsuits. The design should be to prevent the abuses incident to the creation of unhealthy and improper combinations, instead of waiting until they are in existence and then attempting to destroy them by civil or criminal proceedings.

"A combination should not be tolerated if it abuse the power acquired by combination to the public detriment. No corporation or association of any kind should be permitted to engage in foreign or interstate commerce that is formed for the purpose of, or whose operations create, a monopoly or gneral control of the production, sale or distribution of any one or more of the prime necessities of life or articles of general use and necessity. Such combinations are against public policy; they violate the common law; the doors of the courts are closed to those who are parties to them, and I believe the congress can close the channels of interstate commerce against them for its protection.

Prohibit Unhealthy Competition.

"Among the points to be aimed at should be the prohibition of unhealthy competition, such as by rendering service at an actual loss for the purpose of crushing out competition, the prevention of inflation of capital, and the prohibition of a corporation's making exclusive trade with itself a condition of having any trade with itself. Reasonable agreements between, or combinations of, corporations should be permitted, provided they are first submitted to and approved by some appropriate government body.

"The congress has the power to charter corporations to engage in interstate and foreign commerce, and a general law can be enacted under the provisions of which existing corporations could take out federal charters and new federal corporations could be created. An essential provision of such a law should be a method of predetermining by some federal board or commission whether the applicant for a federal charter was an association or combination within the restrictions of the federal law. Provision should also be made for complete publicity in all matters affecting the public and complete protection to the investing public and the shareholders in the matter of issuing corporate securities. If an incorporation law is not deemed advisable, a license act for big interstate corporations might be enacted; or a combination of the two might be tried. The supervision established might be analogous to that now exercised over national banks. At least, the anti-trust act should be supplemented by specific prohibitions of the methods which experience has shown have been of most service in enabling monopolistic combinations to crush out competition. The real owners of a corporation should be compelled to do business in their own name.

"To confer upon the national government, in connection with the amendment I advocate in the anti-trust law, power of supervision over big business concerns engaged in interstate commerce would benefit them as it has benefited the national banks. In the recent business crisis it is noteworthy that the institutions which failed were institutions which were not under the supervision and control of the national government. Those which were under national control stood the test.

Would Benefit All.

"National control of the kind advocated would be to the benefit of every well-managed railway.

"Those who fear, from any reason, the extension of federal activity will do well to study the history not only of the national banking act but of the pure food law, and notably the meat inspection law recently enacted. The pure food law was opposed so violently that its passage was delayed for a decade, yet it has worked unmixed and immediate good. The meat inspection law was even more violently assailed. Two years have not elapsed, and already it has become evident that the great benefit the law confers upon the public is accompanied by an equal benefit to the reputable packing establishments. The latter are better off under the law than they were without it. The benefit to interstate common carriers and business concerns from the legislation I advocate would be equally marked."

Pure Food Law.

"Incidentally in the passage of the pure food law the action of the various state food and dairy commissioners showed in striking fashion how much good for the whole people results from the hearty co-operation of the federal and state officials in securing a given reform. It is primarily to the action of these state commissioners that we owe the enactment of this law, for they aroused the people, first to demand the enactment and enforcement of state laws on the subject, and then the enactment of the federal law, without which the state laws were largely ineffective. There must be the closest co-operation between the national and state governments in administering these laws."

Currency Laws.

The president again calls attention to the condition of our currency laws and urges on congress the need of immediate attention to this matter. He says:

"We need a greater elasticity in our currency; provided, of course, that we recognize the even greater need of a safe and secure currency. There must always be the most rigid examination by the national authorities. Provision should be made for an emergency currency. The emergency issue should, of course, be made with an effective guaranty, and upon conditions carefully prescribed by the government. Such emergency issue must be based on adequate securities approved by the government, and must be issued under a heavy tax. This would permit currency being issued when the demand for it was urgent, while securing its retirement as the demand fell off. It is worth investigating to determine whether officers and directors of national banks should ever be allowed to loan to themselves. Trust companies should be subject to the same supervision as banks; legislation to this effect should be enacted for the District of Columbia and the territories.

"Yet we must also remember that even the wisest legislation on the subject can only accomplish a certain amount. No legislation can by any possibility guarantee the business community against the results of speculative folly any more than it can guarantee an individual against the results of his extravagance."

The income account of the nation is in a most satisfactory condition. Nevertheless, the president says, there is an evident and constantly growing feeling among our people that the time is rapidly approaching when our system of revenue legislation must be revised.

The Tariff.

"This country is definitely committed to the protective system and any effort to uproot it could not but cause widespread industrial disaster. In other words, the principle of the present tariff law could not with wisdom be changed. But in a country of such phenomenal growth as ours it is probably well that every dozen years or so the tariff laws should be carefully scrutinized so as to see that no excessive or improper benefits are conferred thereby, that proper revenue is provided, and that our foreign trade is encouraged. There must always be as a minimum a tariff which will not only allow for the collection of an ample revenue but which will at least make good the difference in cost of production here and abroad.

The question should be approached purely from a business standpoint; both the time and the manner of the change being such as to arouse the minimum of agitation and disturbance in the business world, and to give the least play for selfish and factional motives. The sole consideration should be to see that the sum total of changes represents the public good. This means that the subject cannot with wisdom be dealt with in the year preceding a presidential election, because as a matter of fact experience has conclusively shown that at such a time it is impossible to get men to treat it from the standpoint of the public good. In my judgment the wise time to deal with the matter is immediately after such election."

Income Tax and Inheritance Tax.

"When our tax laws are revised the question of an income tax and an inheritance tax should receive the careful attention of our legislators. In my judgment both of these taxes should be part of our system of federal taxation."

Compulsory Investigation of Industrial Disputes.

"Strikes and lockouts, with their attendant loss and suffering, continue to decrease. For the five years ending Dec. 31, 1905, the number of strikes was greater than those in any previous ten years and was double the number in the preceding five years. These figures indicate the increasing need of providing some machinery to deal with this class of disturbances in the interest alike of the employer, the employe, and the general public. I renew my previous recommendation that the congress favorably consider the matter of creating the machinery for compulsory investigation of such industrial controversies as are of sufficient magnitude and of sufficient concern to the people of the country as a whole to warrant the federal government in taking action."

National Inspection of Grain.

"The grain producing industry of the country, one of the most important in the United States, deserves special consideration at the hands of congress. Our grain is sold almost exclusively by grades. To secure satisfactory results in our home markets and to facilitate our trade abroad, these grades should approximate the highest degree of uniformity and certainty. The present diverse methods of inspection and grading throughout the country under different laws and boards result in confusion and lack of uniformity, destroying that confidence which is necessary for healthful trade. Complaints against the present methods have continued for years and they are growing in volume and intensity, not only in this country but abroad. I therefore suggest to the congress the advisability of a national system of inspection and grading of grain entering into interstate and foreign commerce as a remedy for the present evils."

Forestry.

On the subject of forestry the president says:

"We are prone to speak of the resources of this country as inexhaustible; this is not so. The mineral wealth of the country, the coal, iron, oil, gas and the like, does not reproduce itself, and therefore is certain to be exhausted ultimately, and wastefulness in dealing with it to-day means that our descendants will feel the exhaustion a generation or two before they otherwise would. But there are certain other forms of waste which could be entirely stopped—the waste of soil by washing, for instance, which is among the most dangerous of all wastes now in progress in the United States, is easily preventable, so that this present enormous loss of fertility is entirely unnecessary. The preservation or replacement of the forests is one of the most important means of preventing this loss. We have made a beginning in forest preservation, but it is only a beginning.

"Every business man in the land, every writer in the newspapers, every man or woman of an ordinary school education, ought to be able to see that immense quantities of timber are used in the country, that the forests which supply this timber are rapidly being exhausted and that, if no change takes place, exhaustion will come comparatively soon, and that the effects of it will be felt severely in the every-day life of our people. Surely when these facts are so obvious there should be no delay in taking preventive measures.

Inland Waterways.

"The conservation of our natural resources and their proper use constitute the fundamental problem which underlies almost every other problem of our national life. We must maintain for our civilization the adequate material basis without which that civilization cannot exist. We must show foresight, we must look ahead. As a nation we not only enjoy a wonderful measure of present prosperity but if this prosperity is used aright it is an earnest of future success such as no other nation will have. The reward of foresight for this nation is great and easily foretold. But there must be the look ahead, there must be a realization of the fact that to waste, to destroy, our natural resources, to skin and exhaust the land instead of using it so as to increase its usefulness, will result in undermining in the days of our children the very prosperity which we ought by right to hand down to them amplified and developed. For the last few years, through several agencies, the government has been endeavoring to get our people to look ahead and to substitute a planned and orderly development of our resources in place of a haphazard striving for immediate profit. Our great river systems should be developed as national water highways; the Mississippi, with its tributaries, standing first in importance, and the Columbia second, although there are many others of importance on the Pacific, the Atlantic and the gulf slopes. The national government should undertake this work, and I hope a beginning will be made in the present congress; and the greatest of all our rivers, the Mississippi, should receive especial attention. From the Great Lakes to the mouth of the Mississippi there should be a deep waterway, with deep waterways leading from it to the East and the West. Such a waterway would practically mean the extension of our coast line into the very heart of our country. It would be of incalculable benefit to our people. If begun at once it can be carried through in time appreciably to relieve the congestion of our great freight carrying lines of railroads. The work should be systematically and continuously carried forward in accordance with some well-conceived plan.

"I have appointed an inland waterways commission to study and outline a comprehensive scheme of development along all the lines indicated. Later I shall lay its report before the congress."

Panama Canal.

"Work on the Panama canal is proceeding in a highly satisfactory manner."

Postal Affairs.

"I commend to the favorable consideration of the congress a postal savings bank system, as recommended by the postmaster general. The primary object is to encourage among our people economy and thrift and by the use of postal savings bank to give them an opportunity to husband their resources, particularly those who have not the facilities at hand for depositing their money in savings bank. Viewed, however, from the experience of the past few weeks, it is evident that the advantages of such an institution are still more far-reaching. Timid depositors have withdrawn their savings for the time being from national banks, trust companies, and savings banks; individuals have hoarded their cash and the workingmen their earnings; all of which money has been withheld and kept in hiding or in the safe deposit box to the detriment of prosperity. Through the agency of the postal savings banks such money would be restored to the channels of trade, to the mutual benefit of capital and labor.

"I further commend to the congress the consideration of the postmaster general's recommendation for an extension of the parcel post, especially on the rural routes."

Presidential Campaign Expenses.

"Under our form of government voting is not merely a right but a duty, and, moreover, a fundamental and necessary duty if a man is to be a good citizen. It is well to provide that corporations shall not contribute to presidential or national campaigns, and furthermore to provide for the publication of both contributions and expenditures. There is, however, always danger in laws of this kind, which from their very nature are difficult of enforcement; the danger being lest they be obeyed only by the honest, and disobeyed by the unscrupulous, so as to act only as a penalty upon honest men. The need for collecting large campaign funds would vanish if congress provided an appropriation for the proper and legitimate expenses of each of the great national parties, an appropriation ample enough to meet the necessity for thorough organization and machinery, which requires a large expenditure of money. Then the stipulation should be made that no party receiving campaign funds from the treasury should accept more than a fixed amount from any individual subscriber or donor; and the necessary publicity for receipts and expenditures could without difficulty be provided."

The Army.

Of the army the president says:

"Its standard of efficiency and instruction is higher now than ever in the past. But it is too small. There are not enough officers; and it is impossible to secure enough enlisted men. We should maintain in peace a fairly complete skeleton of a large army. A great and long continued war would have to be fought by volunteers. But months would pass before any large body of efficient volunteers could be put in the field, and our regular army should be large enough to meet any immediate need. In particular it is essential that we should possess a number of extra officers trained in peace to perform efficiently the duties urgently required upon the breaking out of war."

The Navy.

In the opinion of the president it would be most unwise for us to stop the upbuilding of our navy, in view of the fact that the proposition for the limitation of armaments met with no favor at all at the Hague conference. He says:

"To build one battleship of the best and most advanced type a year would barely keep our fleet up to its present force. This is not enough. In my judgment, we should this year provide for four battleships. But it is idle to build battleships unless in addition to providing the men, and the means for thorough training, we provide the auxiliaries for them, unless we provide docks, the coaling stations, the colliers and supply ships that they need. We are extremely deficient in coaling stations and docks on the Pacific, and this deficiency should not longer be permitted to exist. Plenty of torpedo boats and destroyers should be built. Both on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, fortifications of the best type should be provided for all our greatest harbors."

CLAP SUNDAY LID ON NEW YORK CITY

ALL THEATERS AND PLACES OF AMUSEMENT TO BE CLOSED ON SUNDAY.

ENFORCE LAW TO THE LETTER

THEATRICAL MEN SAY THEY HAVE NO WISH TO DEFY THE COURT.

New York, Dec. 5.—There will be no entertainments to which admission is charged in this city next Sunday, if the mayor, police and amusement promoters hold to their avowed intentions.

Consequent upon the decision of Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman, who put a ban on all Sunday shows, those most concerned made plain their positions yesterday. Mayor McClellan said:

"The law will be obeyed to the letter."

Knows What to Do.

Police Commissioner Bingham commented:

"When I have such a clear and explicit order I know what to do."

The theatrical men—the term embracing all from impresarios to proprietors of penny arcades—generaly declared they had no wish to defy the court, and that they could afford to stand the monetary loss if the public was willing to dispense with the sort of entertainment it had been accustomed to enjoy on the Sabboth.

No Appeal From Decision.

From the procedure in the test suit against William Hammerstein of the Victoria theater there can be no appeal directly to the appellate division from the decision of Justice O'Gorman, but there is a legal means, nevertheless, of having his opinion reviewed by the higher court. This involves a violation of the law, but up to last night night no entertainment provider had offered himself as a subject for such a test case. There is confidence, however, that the public will bring about a modification of the law's application, or, if necessary, obtain at the approaching legislature an amendment to the law itself.

COPPER WAR JUDGE DEAD.

E. W. Harney Dies Suddenly of Cerebral Hemorrhage.

Butte, Mont., Dec. 5.—Judge E. W. Harney, forty-six years old, died suddenly yesterday of cerebral hemorrhage. Judge Harney occupied the district bench of Silver Bow county during the Heinze-Amalgamated litigation.

It was upon an allegation that Judge Harney had been unduly influenced that the Amalgamated attorneys obtained a new trial of the Minnie Healey case. Judge Harney, soon after charged that A. J. Shores, Charles A. Clark and others, acting in the interests of the Amalgamated company, had offered him a bribe of $200,000 if he would grant a new trial in the case.

CROWN PRINCE TAKES REGENCY

King Oscar Gives Government Over to Gustave.

Stockholm, Dec. 5.—The health of King Oscar again is unsatisfactory, and on the advice of physicians he has handed over the reins of government to Crown Prince Gustave, who yesterday was formally appointed regent.

King Oscar, who is seventy-eight years old, had a serious illness last December, from which he recovered slowly. It is his custom when not well to turn over the government to the crown prince, and it has been reported that he intends abdicating in favor of his son.

LEFT IN WILLIAMS' HANDS.

House Democrats Refuse to Strip Him of Power.

Washington, Dec. 5.—By a vote of 123 to 4 the house Democratic caucus last night voted down the proposition of Representative Jones of Virginia to take the designation of minority members of the committee out of the hands of Minority Leader Williams, and by the same vote adopted a resolution affirmatively placing the power in Mr. Williams' hands.

SAVE STATE $10,000 A DAY.

Louisiana Legislators Adjourn After Doing Good Work.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 5.—Having reduced the expenses of the state nearly $10,000 a day, the extra session of the Louisiana legislature adjourned last night at 11 o'clock. Savings have been effected by reducing the fees of state tax collectors, of county treasurers and sheriffs and of the secretary of state.

TAKAHIRA FOR AOKI'S JOB.

May Be Called From Italy to Be Ambassador at Washington.

Tokio, Dec. 5.—The recall of Viscount Aoki, Japanese ambassador at Washington, is the result of his own expression of a desire to resign, and no official announcement is expected until after his arrival in Tokio.

M. Takahira, at present Japanese ambassador to Italy and formerly minister of Japan at Washington, is most prominently mentioned as his successor.

TAKE UP CURRENCY REFORM

HOUSE COMMITTEE TAKES UP THE DISCUSSION OF THE QUESTION.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The newly appointed house committee on banking and currency held its first meeting yesterday, spending two and one-half hours in discussion of the currency question in several of its phases. At the conclusion of the meeting several of the members stated that as a result of the conference the members of the committee were now nearer together than they ever had been, notwithstanding the same men—with the exception of three—composed the committee during the Fifty-ninth congress.

The only definite action taken at this initial meeting was the authorizing of the chairman to appoint a subcommittee of five to draft and submit a currency bill to correct the present financial situation. There will be no hearing before the committee until the subcommittee has finished its task and the completed draft is in the hands of the chairman.

GOLDFIELD IS RIOTOUS.

Governor of Nevada May Ask That Troops Be Sent.

Washington, Dec. 5. — President Roosevelt issued orders yesterday to have federal troops held in readiness to aid in restoring order at Goldfield, Nev. This action was taken upon representation from Gov. Sparks of that state that the miners at Goldfield are in revolt and riot. Nevada is the one state in the Union which has no state militia. Gov. Sparks does not deem the situation such as to justify immediate federal interference, but as one likely at any time to get beyond his ability to control. The nearest federal military base is at San Francisco.

$20,000 FOR MITCHELL.

Movement for Fund Started by United Mine Workers.

Hazleton, Pa., Dec. 5.—A movement has been started here to raise a fund of $20,000 among the United Mine Workers of American to present to John Mitchell upon his retirement from the presidency of the union which he has built up. Mr. Mitchell's retirement is due to ill health, following years of hard work on behalf of the underground toilers.

ROBBERS GET $15,000 LOOT.

Former Bank President's Home Rifled by Bold Burglars.

Boston, Dec. 5.—The boldest robbery of several that have recently startled the residents of Brookline and Back Bay was made known late last night, when Otis H. Luke, a former bank president, gave out the information that his home was entered during the noon hour yesterday and between $12,000 and $15,000 worth of jewels and gems stolen.

GRAND JURY WILL PROBE THE BANKS

SPECIAL ONE IS SECURED BY DISTRICT ATTORNEY JEROME OF NEW YORK.

RETICENT REGARDING INQUIRY

GRAVE AND IMPORTANT MATTERS TO BE SUBMITTED TO INQUISITORS.

New York, Dec. 5.—A special January grand jury was ordered yesterday by Justice Dowling in the supreme court on application of District Attorney Jerome, who declared that there were grave and important matters which he desired to submit to such a body.

The district attorney, it is said, proposes to make a thorough investigation of the affairs of the International Trust company, which was controlled by practically the same interests which dominated the suspended Borough Bank of Brooklyn, and to look into certain phases of the local banking situation which have developed during the last few weeks. But reticence is maintained by the district attorney regarding the inquiry which the special grand jury will be asked to make.

Of Grave Importance.

In making his application Mr. Jerome said:

"While it is true that there are two general sessions of grand juries sitting, these are fully occupied with routine matters. I will need this third grand jury for the purpose of submitting to it matters of too grave importance to take before a jury that may be hampered with routine matters. The matters I refer to are of such importance that a grand jury to serve the ends of justice properly must devote its entire and uninterrupted time to them."

It is said that deputies of Attorney General Jackson who have investigated the suspended banking institutions are preparing a report which will soon be submitted to District Attorney Jerome.

SEIZES MAD DOG.

Man Holds Dog by Nape of Neck While Ax Falls to End Its Life.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 5.—Holding a mad dog by the nape of the neck while James McConnell ended its life with an ax, Al Bennett, a carpenter, became the hero of the North side yesterday and prevented serious trouble. The canine, a pet of Mrs. Henry Young, went mad in the house, which Mrs. Young left screaming for help. The carpenters at work near by heard her cries and rushed to the home. Bennett entered the house with his hands wrapped in his apron and succeeded in grabbing the dog without being bitten.

TAFT AND CZAR HOLD CONFAB

SECRETARY OF WAR SPENDS FIVE HOURS WITH EMPEROR NICHOLAS.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 5.—Secretary Taft was received in audience yesterday by Emperor Nicholas at Tsarskoe-Selo and received from his majesty the frankest expression of Russia's sentiments of sympathy and regard for the United States. The emperor requested Mr. Taft to convey his greetings to President Roosevelt. The secretary spent about five hours in company with the emperor and enjoyed the honor of a long and intimate conversation regarding the situation in the United States and the problems confronting the American government.

On account of the secretary's expressed desire that he be received unofficially, no salute was fired, but the reception was given a military setting by a parade and regimental festival of the Semenovsky regiment, the officers of which attended the luncheon with Mr. Taft.

Last night Secretary Taft and the members of his party were entertained at dinner by Foreign Minister Iswolsky.

THEATER RUINED BY FIRE.

Building Destroyed at St. Paul—Families in Peril.

St. Paul, Dec. 5.—The Empire theater, Third and Wabasha streets, was destroyed by a fire that started in the basement of the building at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The loss on the building is said to be $15,000, the amount of the insurance, and Sam Fink, the occupant of the building, places his loss at $6,000.

Three families occupied the upper rooms in the theater, and Chief Strapp ordered several firemen to rescue them. Men, women and children were assisted from the burning building without harm.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Nearly a thousand bills were introduced in the senate yesterday and all of them were referred to committees, where they will be taken for consideration after the new senators shall be given committee assignments. No other business of importance was transacted. Almost all of these bills were considered in the last congress and most of them are private pension bills. The house was not in session.

GUARDS LID; LOSES JOB.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 5. — George Sullivan, recently resigned as a policeman, has filed a charge with the city council, alleging that he was forced to resign for impartially applying the lid. As the police force is amenable only to the mayor, the council simply accepted the communication and placed it on file.

Your "Uncle Joe" Cannon has been re-elected speaker and all tariff reduction bills will have poor sledding for the next two years at least.

The newspaper man always has somebody to write about. In the summer it is baseball, in the fall football and at present Congress is in session.

"Farmers have money to burn" says an exchange. Possibly but they are not burning it up this way. Probably saving their fuel for colder weather.

Why do not some of our bright financial lights advocate putting more money per capita into circulation? It cannot be for the reason that there is nothing in it, for the bankers.

This elastic currency idea looks like a scheme of the big banker to have the government issue more bonds, pay them the interest money and they will issue as much money as the bonds cost, and have the interest for their pains. This is a beautiful scheme, for the banker, and is warranted to restore confidence at once, if not sooner.

Broke His Leg.

Peter Johnson of River Falls the owner of the well known Cliffgaard farm had the misfortune to fall off a load of feed that he was taking to the Terrebonne mill last Thursday morning and the wagon went over his leg breaking it below the knee. Mr. Johnson continued his journey to the mill and did not have the fracture set until he returned when Dr. Nelson was called. The break is a bad one and Mr. Johnson will be laid up for a couple of months.

K. R. Killand, Clerk.

What the Cloth Got In Boston.

If you go to San Francisco and meet a friend he will ask you to stay a week with him. In Omaha he will take you home overnight, in Chicago he will take you out to dinner, in New York he will hurry you off to lunch, in New Haven he will hand you a good cigar, and in Boston he will give you an apple.—Congregationalist.

An Intelligent Servant.

The Mistress—Who hung the thermometer to the ceiling? The Servant—I, ma'am. You were complaining because it was so low!—Translated For Transatlantic Tales From Il Motto Ridere.

A Question of Class.

"They are constantly catching more grafters," said the hopeful citizen.

"Not regular grafters," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "Those who get caught are only amateurs."—Washington Star.

One cannot be and have been.—French Proverb.

Subduing Mother's Voice.

The successful merchant invited his parents to visit him in New York city. They came gladly and on the following Sabbath were escorted to a fashionable church in Fifth avenue. Some of the hymns were familiar. In their rendition the visiting pair contributed heartily, with the credit for volume in favor of the father. Although not always in correct time and sometimes in discord, yet the joy of this good couple leaped forth in joyous praise, and they did not see the glowering looks of nearby worshipers or the beetlike face of their devoted son.

"Father," explained the merchant that afternoon while his mother was taking her accustomed nap, "in our churches the congregations do very little singing. It is left entirely to the choir."

"I know, my boy," said the old man as he lovingly placed a hand on his son's shoulder, "that it was very embarrassing to you this morning, but if I hadn't sung as loudly as I did the people would have heard your mother."—New York Press.

Muskrats.

Rare old Captain John Smith in his quaint "History of New England and the Summer Isles," published in London in 1624, gives probably the first written account of the muskrat. He says that "the mussacus is a beast of the form and nature of our English water rat" and adds that "some of them smell exceedingly strong of musk." These animals may be caught in almost any sort of trap baited with sweet apples or parsnips. Muskrats have very strong teeth and can use them on wood effectively, so it is wise to protect all corners and cracks in your wooden traps with pieces of tin or sheet iron. They have good noses and can smell an apple a long distance off. Place your traps in the shallow water at the edge of the mill pond or stream inhabited by these rats and they will doubtless find it without difficulty. Young muskrats are very gentle and playful and may be handled without fear. They do not grow fierce with age if reared in captivity and accustomed to gentle treatment.

Receiving Tommy.

There is a certain inspector of schools who prides himself on his original method of examining, but occasionally his originality receives a shock. In a fatherly manner he had gathered a class of young children round him and soon had their open mouthed attention.

"Now, suppose that you and I were playing a game of marbles," he said to little Tommy Jones. "You have ten marbles and I have eight."

The class gathered closer round.

"At the end of the game you have won half of my marbles, and of course I want to play again to win them back."

The children pressed even nearer.

"At the end of the second game I win half of those you now have. Tell me"—excitement waxed intense—"tell me," he continued, "how many marbles you are left with?"

With a look of inexpressible disgust the boy addressed fell back. "Why, Billy," he said, "blowed if it ain't sums."—London Answers.

Infant Prodigies.

In nine out of ten cases your infant prodigy is a musician. Among painters the prodigy of prodigies was Sir Thomas Lawrence. One of his earliest pictures, it is said, was produced in 1775, quite early enough, for the lovely cherub who painted it was then six years old. He was getting on in life, tottering on the verge of twelve, when the quality crowded his studio at Bath. The fates were kind to the infant prodigy when they made his father landlord of the Black Bull, Devizes, the inn where fashionable men and women called for rest and refreshment on their way to the waters. At the Black Bull the prodigy made his first acquaintance with the great world which flattered him in after life and which he flattered on canvas.—St. James' Gazette.

True Charity.

Every good act is charity. Giving water to the thirsty is charity. Removing stones and thorns from the road is charity. Exhorting your fellow men to virtuous deeds is charity. Smiling in your brother's face is charity. Putting a wanderer in the right path is charity. A man's true wealth is the good he does in this world. When he dies mortals will ask what property has he left behind him, but angels will inquire, "What good deeds hast thou sent before thee?"—Mohammed.

Good Actions.

When we have practiced good actions awhile they become easy. When they are easy we take pleasure in them. When they please us we do them frequently, and then by frequency of act they grow into a habit.—Tillotson.

Corrected.

"Mamma, Mrs. Oldcastle just went wild over our new bust of Shakespeare when she was here this afternoon."

"Burst, my dear, burst. Mercy sakes, how can you use such slang? And you've been to Europe twice too!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

No Joke to Him.

"That fellow," said Tete de Veau, "is always getting off the old joke about the difficulty of finding a woman's pocket."

"But, you know," L'Oignon explained, smiling, "he married a rich wife."—Los Angeles Times.

If thou addest little to little and doest so often soon it will become a great heap.—Hesiod.

A Discourager.

Miss Kreech—Some authorities believe that the practice of singing will keep a person from getting consumption. Mr. Knox—Yes, but most authorities believe in "the greatest good to the greatest number."—Philadelphia Press.

Hurt His Feelings

She—I think Mr. Ryiner, the minor poet, felt hurt at a remark you made the other night. He—What did I say? She—You said there was only one Shakespeare.—London Telegraph.

White Africans.

The Berbers, who, although African, are as white as Europeans, are the oldest white race on record, says an explorer. They are supposed to have come from the south of Europe in ancient days, the Dundee Advertiser says, and, although their language and customs are entirely different from ours and their religion Mohammedan, they are probably closely akin by descent. Blue eyes and fair hair are not at all uncommon among the Berbers, and many of them have rosy cheeks and features so like our own that were they dressed in British fashion they would easily pass as natives of the British isles.

Equality.

Uncle—Hello! Dot got a new doll? Little Miss Dot—Hush, uncle; don't speak too loud! She is not one of my own, but belonged to Millie Simpson, who was cruel to her and 'bandoned her, so I have 'dopted her, but I don't want her to know, because I mean to make no difference between her and my own dollies.—London Tit-Bits.

What It Was.

"These deceitful women are so ridiculous!" said Miss Passay. "As for me, I was never afraid to tell what my age was."

"No, woman," replied Miss Wise, "ever minds telling what her age was."—London Answers.

A Bark For Barker.

The editor sat in his easy chair. Editors always have easy chairs—in fiction. He thought he recognized the handwriting on one of the envelopes. He sighed.

"Another poem," said he, reaching for the waste paper basket. He opened the letter. He was agreeably disappointed. It was prose. It ran as follows:

"A man named Barker had a dog that barked, so he called it Barker because it barked and because his own name was Barker. So the man was Barker, and the dog that barked was Barker. The man didn't bark, although his name was Barker. Barker and Barker went for a walk, and Barker barked—that is, dog Barker, not man Barker. In fact, dog Barker barked so much that man Barker said 'Barker, don't bark so often. You never hear me bark.' Just then man Barker barked his shin on the bark of a tree and barked like anything."

The editor paused. There was a note inclosed, which ran, "Please send check for inclosed to me at 1001 Barker avenue, city." Then did the deus ex machina write, with a smile, "I have received your joke and will send check—when my bark comes in."—Judge.

Legend of St. Winifred Well.

A romantic legend hangs around St Winifred well. Cradocus, a neighboring prince, smitten with the beauty of a Holywell damsel and roused to anger by her coyness, struck off her head as she fled from his unwelcome attentions. The head, rolling down the hill, rested near the church, and from the spot the present copious spring gushed forth as the earth opened to swallow up the assassin. St. Beuno, who was passing, picked up the head and, with a skill which is now lost to the medical profession, restored the maiden, with only a slender white line on her neck as evidence of the miracle. But not only did the well spring from the spot where the head rested, but the moss on its brink was supposed to be possessed of a particularly fragrant smell, while the blood marks on the stones assumed many beautiful tints on June 22, the anniversary of the event. Today the well is contained in a rectangular building, and the water flows into a large basin in the shape of an eight pointed star.—London Chronicle.

Handling Live Wires.

Never handle an electric wire (lest it be "alive") with the naked hand, but use a nonconducting substance as a protector. Any good nonconducting substance will supply protection.

Rubber—In form of gas stove tube or water hose, could be thrown over a wire to pull it from its connection with a live wire.

Porcelain—In form of a bit of common crockery or a floor tile, hand plate for door, a stone ink bottle.

Glass—A stout bottle, a glass rod or a pane of glass could be used to dislodge a wire from its connection with a trolley wire or other current feeder.

Wool—A woolen scarf, stocking, coat or wrap.

Cotton—Any piece of cotton garment or stout cotton twine.

Silk—Scarf or other garment.

Any of these materials in goodly thickness could be used to protect the hand in removing a live wire or even using an instrument to cut it through.

Spain's Canny Railroads.

In Spain the railroads do not lose a chance to make a little profit even in the case of the nontravelers. When you see somebody off in that country you must pay for the privilege. The railroads all sell billetes de anden, which are good for the platform only. These cost generally 5 centimos, equivalent to a cent in American money. Just why this is done it is hard to see, because persons entering a train cannot very well avoid the conductor, who is always making trips to inspect the carriages. If a person attempted to steal a ride in a carriage, he would have small chance of getting away with it. If caught, he would have to pay a penalty of just twice the fare between the point where he was discovered and the point where tickets last were inspected.—New York Sun.

He Had No Choice.

The wife of a dynamo tender went to a haberdasher's to buy a necktie for her husband. She selected a brilliant red one, ready made, whereupon the young and inexperienced salesman, with compassion for the future owner, was moved to remark:

"Excuse me, missus, is this tie for your husband?"

"It is," replied the woman.

"Don't you think he'd rather have some other color? I'm afraid he won't wear this red tie."

"Oh, yes, he will!" said the woman firmly. "He'll have to—he's dead."—London Answers.

The Irish Priest.

Stephen Gwynn has said somewhere excellently that the Irish priest possesses the secret of Irish life. He does, and so entirely is the key to it in his possession that I doubt if any genius, however great, could give an adequate rendering of Irish life without introducing the priest.—Katherine Tynan in Fortnightly Review.

Mr. Lawhead—Why do you treat me so coldly? Why didn't you answer the note I wrote you last Thursday? Miss Brushley—Sir, I don't wish to have anything more to say to you. You began your note by saying you "thought you would drop me a line." I want you to understand that I'm not a fish.

Will Celebrate.

The I. O. O. F. Lodge held an important meeting last Thursday evening and officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

C. L. Hansen, N. G.
O. H. Olson V. G.
O. F. Post, Secretary
Leonard Holmes, Treasurer
H. E. Ives, Trustee.

It was decided by the lodge to hold a sort of a jubilee some time next month to celebrate the fact that the lodge now owns its own building and is entirely free from debt. The lodge was organized ten years ago, in October 1897, and now have their two story store building all paid for, which insures them a good home and a comfortable income. There are few lodges in this part of the state in such comfortable circumstances.

Particulars for the celebration are not complete but it is hoped by the members to have the Grand Lodge officials here and extend an invitation to the neighboring lodges to attend. The event will probably take place some time in January.

More Delay.

The new equipment for the central exchange of the new telephone is on the road but has been delayed somewhere so there will be a delay of another week in starting the service.

Nearly all the phones have been put in and quite a number are connected so many are now enjoying a partial service. Manager Hooper informs us that he hopes to have the system in working order some time the coming week. In the next issue of the Spectator there will be published a list of the subscribers with their phone number. Subscribers are to keep this list until a permanent one can be prepared.

To Restore Life.

It is said that a prominent scientist has discovered a method to restore life to animals and people apparently dead by alternately pumping the gas out of the lungs and pumping oxygen in to produce artificial respiration. The best thing to put new life into an ordinary tired, worn out individual is a glass of golden grain belt beer. It is a wholesome nerve food and restores the energy to weary body and brain. VENUS DE MILO A FRUMP.

That Is What the Modern Woman Would Call Her.

It is questionable whether the real Greek woman, of that immortal epoch when sculpture meant something more than a decorative end to an architectural means, possessed the chaste loveliness accredited to her in the chiseled remnants left to us. It has ever been the whim of artists to work away from the physical facts of their models toward the ideals of their fancy. The sculptor is usually a proudly careless historian and but a poor reporter. All Greek sculpture doubtless is a highly glorified record of true Greek ethnology. But, granting such a woman as, say, the Venus de Milo did exist in all her bodily and facial perfection, she would meet with but cold reception at the hands of our critics of femininity to-day. Her modern women associates would, I am certain, adjudge the classic lady a frump. Ideals change with the centuries, if nature does not.

FASHIONS FOR THE FAIR

IN FASHION'S REALM

GOSSIP ABOUT PREVAILING MODES AND COLORS.

Winter Tints of Striking Hues Are Being Worn — Tailor Modes Absolutely Plain—Large Hoods for Traveling Dresses.

The black tailor mades, unless of the best materials, never are so satisfactory as colors. Brown always is a favorite, as it suits so many women. Gray and blue may be considered suitable for wear at any season of the year and are popular with the economical, while green, purple, and red are essentially winter tints, and always blend well with the fur accessories that are so necessary in the wardrobe at this season. Coats may be short or three-quarter length, some even are longer; but the coat should not be too long if the skirt is short. This, of course, should only just clear the ground, unless the woman has quite shapely feet and is well shod. Good shoes are more important to a well dressed woman, or one that desires to be thought so, even than gloves.

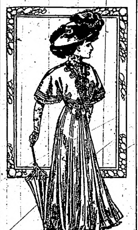
Many of the most fashionable tailor mades are absolutely plain; especially is this true of the striped and check materials, but on smooth faced cloths bias bands piped or heavily stitched frequently are used. Buttons are extensively used as trimmings, and braid can be used without limit. Some costumes recently on display had the coats heavily braided, while the skirts were quite plain. For the girl whose dress allowance is small it would be advisable to make sets of flounces in dark colored silks, which may be buttoned on to black sateen petticoats and removed and renovated when necessary. Much of the good appearance of the tailor made skirt in town depends upon the fluffy petticoat beneath it, and only silk gives the desired effect of fullness about the ankles.

Large hoods are seen on a good many of the coats of traveling dresses. They are an advantage when caught by sudden showers. In the little points which go to give chicness to a costume, belt, gloves, and shoes are worn of the same color—gray suede belt, gray suede gloves, and gray suede laced shoes were the accessories to a navy blue gown. In the hat line charming little toques, both in felt and straw, have appeared for autumn traveling wear. Bright colored wings are their principal decoration. They are covered with thin chiffon veils which tie under the chin. The crepe de chine veil still is kept for motoring. Another new item is a white linen hat of the panama shape, caught up in two or three places with knots of brilliant colored velvet. For the young and pretty a white linen dress, a bright red pique coat, with one of these hats is a getup which must tempt the woman who likes to be looked at.

STYLISH SUIT FOR STREET.

Mole-Color Brocade Is the Best Material for This Costume.

Our artist has sketched a plain but stylish street suit in mole-color broadcloth. The skirt is very full and the fullness around the waist is confined in clusters of fine tucks. A unique little jacket is made with kimono sleeves finished at bottom with five small tucks. Little round scallops of applied bands of cloth form a pretty decoration on each side of jacket, which closes in surplice fashion, and is held in place at waist line with two dull silver buckles. Velvet-colored buttons in same shade as cloth are used in each scallop and on sleeves.



TO MAKE OVER OLD DRESS.

A Little Planning and Labor Will Be Found to Work Wonders.

If you have a dress in your wardrobe which has an old-fashioned waist, run and get it out and rip it apart. Then clean and press it and when this is done you may get your scissors out and cut it over into a little jumper dress.

The waist probably had some fullness in it and if it did cut it in this manner: Cut it out in the front to a point just above the bust line and cut the back to correspond. Leave about an inch and a half over the shoulders. The armholes must be cut fairly large.

The fullness may be adjusted by means of two large tucks at the shoulders, in which case a larger amount of goods will have to be left over the shoulders, or it may be arranged in little pin tucks at the front of the waist. Finish it with either braid or velvet the color of the dress or black.

If braid is used it should be two inches wide and if velvet is used it should be cut into bands two inches wide for the kimono sleeves and an inch wide for the waist.

The size of the kimono sleeve you will have to determine yourself. It is made of a straight piece of velvet or braid, which is sewed to the band over the shoulder and around under the arm.

The round neck is trimmed with the braid or velvet also. If velvet is used it adds a pretty finish to sew little buttons every two or three inches apart on the velvet.

SHORT GLOVES FOR STREET.

Change in Fashion That Will Be Welcomed by Many.

A decided change in street gloves is in the length, and while manufacturers will no doubt regret this different style the consumers will rejoice, for this means that about three pairs of short ones may be bought for the same price as was paid for one long pair.

A buyer for a large house says that by far the largest stock of gloves they had imported were those in two-button length, in plain blacks and whites. And here is a hint to buyers. Already this house is receiving orders by the dozen pairs from single customers, so that the chances are this model will advance in price as soon as the time comes for winter suits.

Heavy grades of gloves, such as cashmere, are ready. These, too, come in black, two-clasp, and cost from 35 cents to 75 cents. The double silk gloves—that is, silk gloves with a thinner silk lining—are very nice this year and are cozy, especially when a muff is carried.

Informal TALKS

Never drop anything into the ear unless it has been previously warmed.

The queen of Norway takes a great interest in bookbinding. The collecting of beautifully bound books is one of her hobbies.

The charm of a nice girl is fascinating, irresistible; no one can get away from it; her smile is contagious and infects her surroundings with the virus of happiness.

For the first time in history Chinese lady students are proceeding to various foreign countries to complete their education with western knowledge. Each student is a graduate of a Chinese college.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the cultivation of good manners has much to do with high-mindedness, which is so essential to every well-regulated life. Politeness always pays, and the nice girl always attracts to her nice people.

Short Girdles.

Short girdles are more in evidence as an accessory of separate waists of all kinds than are those employed as a finish to elaborate two-piece or princess gowns, but all of them are carefully fitted and match the color scheme, if not the prevailing material of the garment.

Baby's Carriage Robe.

Save all the pieces of cashmere wool, serge, and any other soft woolen goods and cut them into strips three-quarters of an inch wide. Join them together and wind into balls. With an ivory crochet hook about the size of a slate pencil crochet in plain stitch six strips about six inches wide and a yard long. With strong silk floss join the strips together by sewing lightly through the edges of each first stitch. Line with silk, any color desired, bringing the edges of the lining over on the right side, about an inch all the way around. Bind down with feather stitching. A slumber robe made in this way would be warm and "comfy" looking if made of dark warm colors.

Pockets and Linings.

Place has been found for pockets on the plainer coats by making an opening over the hips below the arm size and finishing it with an oblong flap, secured by buttons and sometimes trimmed with a velvet inset.

Black coat linings are gruesome, and even with dull-toned coats gray or tan or white is preferable. Heavy satin wears better than anything else; unless fur be preferred, and, although the first cost of fur is greater than all other linings, it is cheapest in the long run, as it may be transferred from one garment to another year after year.

Fashion Decrees Larger Hats.

It was all a mistake about woman's head shrinking. Really, it is growing bigger instead of smaller, and the reports about less elaborate hair dressing and smaller hats are being disproved by the sale of millinery of enormous size in fashionable shops abroad. It is a fact that the ultra fashionable hat to-day is three times as big as the fashionable hat of ten years ago. It has twice as much trimming and its feathers are more costly. Osprey buying has become a fine art. Of course hats have expanded in price as much as they have in size. Everything must be of the best, and the women buy in just the same way in Ostend, Paris or Monte Carlo. Americans do not buy expensive hats generally. They perhaps buy one good one and half a dozen cheap ones.

SORES AS BIG AS PENNIES.

Whole Head and Neck Covered—Hair All Came Out—Cured in Three Weeks by Cuticura.

"After having the measles my whole head and neck were covered with scaly sores about as large as a penny. They were just as thick as they could be. My hair all came out. I let the trouble run along, taking the doctor's blood remedies and rubbing on salve, but it did not seem to get any better. It stayed that way for about six months; then I got a set of the Cuticura Remedies, and in about a week I noticed a big difference, and in three weeks it was well entirely and I have not had the trouble any more, and as this was seven years ago, I consider myself cured. Mrs. Henry Porter, Albion, Neb., Aug. 25, 1906."

Two of a Kind.

"Why did you leave your last place?" she bluntly asked the applicant for housemaid's place.

"I couldn't stand the way mistress and master used to quarrel, mum."

"Dear me, did they quarrel very often?"

"Yes, mum. When 'twasn't me an' 'im, 'twas me an' 'er."

A Prejudiced Reply.

"Our society has just taken up a very interesting discussion," said the psychologist. "I want to ask your opinion on the question, which is this: 'Can a man die twice?'"

TUMORS CONQUERED

Overwhelming Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy Tumor.

The growth of a tumor is so insidious that frequently its presence is wholly unsuspected until it is well advanced.

So called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive monthly periods accompanied by unusual pain, from the abdomen through the groin and thigh.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacements, secure a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, right away and begin its use.

The following letters should convince every suffering woman of its virtue, and that it actually does conquer tumors.

Mrs. May Fry, of 836 W. Colfax Ave., South Bend, Ind., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I also took the Blood Purifier in alternate doses with the Compound. Your medicine removed a cyst tumor of four years' growth, which three of the best physicians declared I had. They had said that only an operation could help me. I am very thankful that I followed a friend's advice and took your medicine. It has made me a strong and well woman and I shall recommend it as long as I live."

Mrs. E. F. Hayes, of 26 Ruggles St., Boston, Mass., writes:

"I have been under different doctors' treatment for a long time without relief. They told me I had a fibroid tumor, my abdomen was swollen and I suffered with great pain. I wrote to you for advice, you replied and I followed your directions carefully and to-day I am a well woman. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system."

Mrs. S. J. Barber, of Scott, N. Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Sometime ago I wrote you for advice about a tumor which the doctors thought would have to be removed. Instead I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to-day am a well woman."

Mrs. M. M. Funk, Vandergrift, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I had a tumor and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removed it for me after two doctors had given me up. I was sick four years before I began to take the Compound. I now recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound far and near."

Such testimony as above is convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for Tumor Growths as well as other distressing ills of women, and such symptoms as Bearing-down Sensations, Displacements, Irregularities and Backache, etc. Women should remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women. Don't forget to insist upon it when some druggist asks you to accept something else which he calls "just as good."

SWEDEN'S RULER CALLED BY DEATH

KING OSCAR, MOST LOVED OF EUROPEAN MONARCHS, PASSES AWAY.

WHOLE COUNTRY MOURNS LOSS

CROWN PRINCE TAKES OATH OF OFFICE UNDER TITLE OF GUSTAVE V.

Stockholm, Dec. 10.—Oscar II., king of Sweden, died at 9:10 o'clock yesterday morning. The death of the venerable monarch occurred in the royal apartments of the palace, where, surrounded by the members of his family, including the aged Queen Sophia and the crown prince, Oscar Gustave, and high ministers of state, the inevitable end had been awaited, while outside the palace great crowds stood with bared heads and tearful eyes long after the announcement came of the death of their well loved sovereign.

Sweden Bowed With Grief.

The whole country is bowed with grief, for King Oscar was something more than a ruler of his people and had endeared himself to them as an intimate personal friend. When the flag on the palace was dipped to half mast there was a moan of anguish from the assembled multitude and many of them cried, "Our dear old king is dead!"

No national mourning will be proclaimed. To-day all the theaters will open again with the exception of the royal opera.

Gustave V. Takes Oath.

The succession to the throne of Sweden now passes to Oscar Gustave Adolphe, duke of Vermland, the oldest son of the late king. At a meeting of the council of state yesterday afternoon the new king took the oath of office under the title of Gustave V. and adopted the motto, "With the people of the fatherland." The princes then took the oath of allegiance and the new monarch accepted the homage of the state officials.

The last hours of the expiring monarch were passed in unconsciousness and up to the end he gave no sign of recognizing those about him. The queen was grief-stricken because he could not bid her farewell.

Wall of Sorrow Arose.

In the palace court yard in the dim cold gray mist of the morning stood a crowd of schoolboys, King Oscar's most devoted friends. Here they stood for hours, blue and shivering, watching the palace flagstaff. There also gathered many old men and women in rags, such as the king had always stopped to comfort with mild words and generous alms when he met them in the parks or streets, their faces tear-stained because their loved king and benefactor was dying. Suddenly the flag dropped to half-mast and a wall of misery and sorrow arose.

Pitiful to Hear.

The old folks clasped their hands and prayed and wept aloud and the schoolboys' lamentations were pitiful to hear.

In the death chamber knelt the heart-broken queen and gathered about her were her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, praying for strength to bear their great affliction. The church bells began to toll and the minute guns boomed. All Sweden mourned its great loss.

Eulogizes His Father.

There was a memorial service in the palace chapel, which was attended by the whole royal family with the exception of Queen Sophie and the new queen, until now Crown Princess Victoria, who will arrive here from the continent this morning.

Gustave V. has published a proclamation addressed to the administrative and ecclesiastical authorities, informing them of his accession to the throne and a further proclamation addressed to the people of Sweden, in which he refers in eulogistic terms to their late sovereign.

Grandson of Bernadotte.

Oscar II., king of Sweden and previous to 1905 king of Sweden and Norway, was born Jan. 21, 1829. He was the third son of King Oscar I. and of Queen Josephine, daughter of Prince Eugene of Luchtenburg, and a grandson of Marshal Bernadotte. Oscar II. succeeded to the throne at the death of his brother, King Carl XV., Sept. 18, 1872. He was married June 6, 1857, to Queen Sophia, born July 9, 1836, daughter of the late Duke William of Nassau. Four children survive King Oscar—Crown Prince Gustave, born June 16, 1858; Prince Oscar Bernadotte, born Nov. 15, 1859; Prince Carl, born Feb. 27, 1861, and Princess Victoria of Baden Baden.

CHICAGO GETS THE MEETING.

Republican National Convention Will Be Held There June 16.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Chicago was selected as the place, and June 16 the time for the meeting of the Republican convention next year. This decision by the Republican national committee followed a long and hard fought contest between the advocates of Chicago and those of Kansas City, Denver, coming in at the end with a formidable but not important effort to secure the convention.

The ballot showed thirty-one votes for Chicago, eighteen for Kansas City and four for Denver. The vote for Chicago was made unanimous.

Every one accepted the decision of the committee good-naturedly, and the sixty or seventy Kansas City and Denver boomers declared that they would "came back after it again in 1912 and would be sure to get it at that time."

The selection of the time for the convention was a compromise between the first of June and the last of June, and all were satisfied on that point also.

LAND FRAUD CHARGES.

Federal Grand Jury Returns Indictment in Arizona.

Globe, Ariz., Dec. 10.—The federal grand jury investigating land frauds in New Mexico returned indictments against R. B. Hobart, superintendent of the Old Dominión Milling company; N. S. Dorray, former superintendent of the same company; Edward W. T. Stewart, its former chief clerk and now county recorder, and Robert Riell, chief clerk of the United Globe mines, for alleged perjury.

JAPS FOR IOWA.

Sugar Beet Company Would Colonize Them to Raise Beets.

Eldora, Iowa, Dec. 10. — As an inducement to farmers to raise sugar beets for a sugar beet factory at Waverly, in Bremer county, agents of the company are agreeing to send Japanese families into this region wherever there are twenty acres agreed upon and have the Japs tend to all of the raising of the beets at a stated figure per acre.

FORGER KEEPS BUSY.

Passes Checks on La Crosse Bank in Twin Cities.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 10.—About a dozen checks drawn upon the account of Frank L. Scott at the La Crosse First National bank have been received here from St. Paul and Minneapolis and returned as forgeries. The checks are drawn in $10 and $15 amounts and appear periodically. Thus far the police have been unable to detect the forgers.

TROOPS WILL NOT HELP OPERATORS

ORDERED BY PRESIDENT NOT TO TAKE SIDES IN TROUBLE AT GOLDFIELD.

UPSETS PROGRAM OF OWNERS

THEY HOPED FOR MARTIAL LAW AND ACTIVE HELP OF THE REGULARS.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 12.—President Roosevelt's communication from Washington to Col. Alfred Reynolds, in command of the federal troops at Goldfield, which was posted in conspicuous places throughout the city yesterday afternoon by direction of the president put a different complexion on the situation here.

The order to Col. Reynolds is to the effect that he is to take no sides in the trouble, to interfere with no person in any way unless such a course becomes necessary to protect life after violence has been committed.

No Martial Law.

This, coupled with the fact that Gen. Funston is now in Goldfield to view the situation and report to Washington, caused a complete change in the program of the mine owners, who had hoped to be able through Gov. Sparks to have martial law declared in Goldfield last night and to reopen the mines to-day under the active protection of the United States troops.

Orders have been issued by Col. Reynolds that none of the soldiers shall be given the privilege of going outside of the guard lines to-day.

Gov. Sparks said that he is satisfied that Gen. Funston will find ample need for the troops here, and that he will advise that they remain in Goldfield all winter.

Wages Will Be Paid.

One thing that developed yesterday is the fact that the John S. Cook & Co. bank will be able to meet the first pay roll under the new wage schedule in Goldfield and that all wages will be paid in gold hereafter. This will have a tendency to induce more of the miners to return to work than might otherwise do so, as the one grievance appearing on the surface that led to the present lockout was the fact that the wages were paid in scrip.

The streets are remarkably quiet and no one seems to anticipate trouble.

Sent to Investigate.

Washington, Dec. 12. — Assistant Secretary Murray of the department of commerce and labor, Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, and Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations, left Washington at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Goldfield, Nev., to make a thorough investigation of the trouble between the miners and mine operators.

Waterloo, Iowa, Dec. 12. — W. A. Bowen, a Waterloo real estate dealer, yesterday received a purse containing $5,000 in currency and notes which he had lost on the train while traveling between Kansas City and St. Louis. The wallet was found by Jim Davis, a negro, of Palmyra, and returned with all the contents intact. A reward has been sent to the finder.

BODY WOUND ON SHAFT.

Mill Employe Is Found Dead in Machinery.

Prairie Farm, Wis., Dec. 12.—Emily Erickson was caught in the shafting in the basement of Scott's flouring mill and was literally torn to pieces. He was in the mill alone at the time, and it is supposed he went to the basement to adjust a belt, and in doing so was caught on the shaft. His body was found wound on the shaft.

HOTEL MAN SENT UP.

Violator of Prohibition Law Gets Ninety Days.

Valley City, N. D., Dec. 12. — Hans Andersen, until recently the landlord of the Scandia hotel of this city, entered a plea of guilty in the district court here to a charge of violating the prohibition law and was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail and fined $250.

COLLISION OF TRAINS.

Three Are Injured in a Smash on the Great Northern at Ray, N. D.

Ray, N. D., Dec. 12.—In a rear-end collision here one man was seriously hurt and two others received injuries on the Great Northern.

About a score of cattle were burned to death and eight or ten escaped in the darkness.

Killed by Fall.

Waterloo, Iowa, Dec. 12. — Samuel Fidiment, a veteran of the Civil war, aged eighty years and quite feeble, fell from a bridge over the Wapsipinicon river near Dunkerton into three feet of water. He was dead when discovered some time after by his son.

BOY SAVES GIRL FROM FIEND

MAN IN JAIL IS THREATENED WITH VIOLENCE AT HANDS OF MOB.

Owen, Wis., Dec. 12.—Suffering from a stunning blow on the head delivered by a boy who rescued a young girl from his attack, Fritz Tedeson is in the county jail at Neillsville, in imminent danger of being dragged out and lynched by a mob from this village. The girl is at her parents' home and is in a precarious condition, but her father is using every means in his power to quiet the people.

Annie Fryslie, the victim of the assault, is the twelve-year-old daughter of one of the leading men of Owen. She was walking in the woods on the outskirts of the village when Tedeson seized her from behind, clapped one hand over her mouth to keep her from screaming and threw her down.

The girl struggled and at last managed to cry out for help. A boy who was nearby heard her, and seizing a club ran to where she was in the grip of her assailant.

Neither the girl nor Tedeson noticed the boy's approach, and he knocked Tedeson senseless with his club, and left him there while he took the girl home.

He returned at once with the marshal and ten men, but Tedeson had disappeared. A three-hour search resulted in his being found by the marshal hiding between two logs near the scene of the assault. Half the men in town were scouring the woods for him, and as the marshal promised protection, Tedeson went with him.

Meanwhile the story of the affair had spread and several mobs were formed. As soon as the threats of lynching became general the marshal took his prisoner out of the jail and drove with him to Neillsville, but the people here are threatening to go to that place to get him and carry out their threat.

CAN WED OUT OF STATE.

Badger Law Is Restricted to Wisconsin.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 12. — Circuit Judge J. J. Fruit made a decision of state-wide importance when he decided in the case of Lanham vs. Lanham that the law passed in 1905 forbidding the remarriage of divorced persons within one year was inoperative when the second marriage occurred outside the State of Wisconsin. The ruling is, in effect, that the law applies only to the state and is in no sense interstate, or binding upon the actions of Badgers while outside Wisconsin.

In the case at issue Sarah A. Lanham was divorced from A. J. Sherman in Vernon county in September, 1905. She was remarried to J. W. Lanham in October of the same year, but the marriage was performed in Menominee, Mich., to evade the new law. Lanham since died and the widow's claim to the widow's portion of his estate was contested by the other heirs, on the ground that the marriage was null.

The suit was decided in favor of the widow.

TO GET MAIN LINE.

Grand Meadow Subscriptions for Dan Patch Road Are Liberal.

Grand Meadow, Minn., Dec. 12. — A meeting of the farmers and business men of this vicinity was held at Grand Meadow to listen to the proposition regarding the sale of stock in the Dan Patch Air line, as presented by Director McCanna, Mr. Morris and Mr. Graham of that company. More than $11,000 was subscribed for stock in thirty minutes, which with the assurance of additional subscriptions from farmers along the proposed route and the citizens of High Forest practically guarantee for Grand Meadow the main line of the road.

NO MAYOR UNTIL SPRING.

No Petitions Are Filed for Candidate to Fill Vacancy.

Hudson, Wis., Dec. 12.—Hudson is likely to be without a mayor until the spring election. The death of Mayor Maguire has made that office vacant, and up to the present time no petitions have been filed to place any one in nomination. The council met last night, but failed to order a special election owing to the fact that no petitions were filed.

Employ Full Forces Again.

Menomonie, Mich., Dec. 12.—A number of Menomonie factories that several weeks ago reduced the number and working hours of their employes on account of the money stringency, have resumed operations and now are running with their full force as usual. The local manufacturers are preparing for a busy season. The sawmills of this city are being repaired and will start for their usual winter's run after the holidays.

Wants to Bowl; Dies.

New York, Dec. 12.—Because he and his wife of two months quarreled over his desire to spend his evening at his bowling club, Jacob Victor killed himself last night.

Towmill Burns at Watertown.

Watertown, S. D., Dec. 12.—The Watertown towmill burned to the ground yesterday. Loss $14,000, with no insurance.

Refuses to Cut Chief's Salary.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 12.—Evidently the committee on police believes that Chief of Police, John Weber is well worth his salary, for it has turned down a recommendation of the police and fire commission that the pay of the office be cut from $2,000 to $1,000 per year.

TOWN IN TERROR OF NIGHT RIDERS

TO RAID HOPKINSVILLE, KY., AND COMPLETE WORK OF DESTRUCTION.

MORE TROOPS ORDERED OUT

GOVERNOR GIVES RUSH ORDERS TO ANOTHER COMPANY OF MILITIA.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 12.—That another raid by "night riders" on Hopkinsville is under way was the startling information received by Gov. A. E. Willson in a telephone message at 9 o'clock last evening. Gov. Willson and Adjt. Gen. Lawrence immediately began an investigation, the result of which was the ordering of Company H, Third Kentucky national guard, to proceed immediately to Hopkinsville.

Gov. Willson and Adjt. Gen. Lawrence decided to remain up all night, and in case the fears of the Hopkinsville citizens prove well founded to order any part or all the state forces to the scene, as may be necessary.

Night Riders Forming.

The most disquieting report came from Maj. E. B. Bassett, who is in charge of the company now on duty at Hopkinsville. Maj. Bassett telephoned that he had received reports from many reliable sources that the night riders from Trigg county were forming for a raid on Hopkinsville with the intention of completing the work of destruction began last Friday night. Maj. Bassett declared that if the raiders should prove as numerous and well organized as during the previous raid his company would prove inadequate to cope with the situation, although he had no doubt as to the loyalty of all the men under arms.

SHADY LAND TRANSACTIONS.

Senate Committee's Report Will Disclose Startling Evidence.

Washington, Dec. 12. — The subcommittee of the senate committee on Indian affairs, consisting of Senators Teller, Curtis and La Follette, which investigated the alleged fraudulent purchases of Kickapoo Indian lands, located in Oklahoma, held a meeting yesterday and practically agreed upon the report that would be submitted to the senate. The report will disclose, and recount at length a rather startling series of more or less alleged shady transactions that went on near the Mexican border, where a number of the Kickapoos were living when the law was passed allowing them to dispose of their lands in Oklahoma, and where some of them were taken by white men. The report will show that facts were developed, which prove conclusively that certain parties of men had formed partnerships and raised capital with the express view of cheating the Indians out of their lands. In this connection the report will mention certain names and charge that there were, through fraudulent practices, obtained at an expenditure of not over $20,000 lands aggregating in value $250,000.

BIG FLEET NOW COMPLETE.

Battleship Minnesota Takes Her Place Among the Warships.

Old Point Comfort, Va., Dec. 12. — The last vacant berth in the imposing double line of Pacific-bound battleships was filled yesterday afternoon when the heavily armored Minnesota, the flagship of Rear Admiral Thomas, steamed into Hampton Roads and took her place at the head of the outward column. The Minnesota is the ranking member of the second squadron of the fleet, and Admiral Thomas, who commands this squadron, has duties and responsibilities second only to those of the commander-in-chief, Rear Admiral Evans.

The last supplies of food and ammunition were being placed aboard the ships yesterday and the roadstead was filled with craft of every description.

Empress Alexandra Ill.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 12. — Empress Alexandra, who for a considerable time has been suffering from a light attack of influenza, was stricken with a high fever yesterday and was ordered to remain in bed. The empress recently called in a specialist and submitted to a severe regimen to reduce her weight and her present affliction is ascribed to this.

New State Elects Senators.

Guthrie, Okla., Dec. 12.—The election of the first two United States senators from the new state of Oklahoma was consummated late yesterday afternoon, when Robert L. Owen of Muskogee and Thomas P. Core of Lawton were duly chosen.

Old Gun Shoots Man in Leg.

Miller, S. D., Dec. 12.—A load of shot from a gun that he did not know was loaded lodged in the calf of Ernest Kast's leg and he may have to have it taken off. He threw the old gun in the wagon to bring it to town and it was discharged.

Loved Neighbor's Wife; Kills Self.

Jefferson, Iowa, Dec. 12.—For love of a neighbor's wife, who did not return his affection, D. H. Broese, a wealthy farmer, forty-seven years old, sent a bullet through his brain.

SENATOR DAVIS LETS LOOSE

ARKANSAS MAN MAKES SENSATIONAL ATTACK ON THE TRUSTS.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Passionate oratory marked the proceedings of the senate yesterday. Senator Jefferson Davis of Arkansas who when elected declared that he would attack the trusts immediately after taking his seat, fulfilled his promise, although he was a few days late in doing so. The speech was filled with sensational declarations and was given with that vigor for which the Arkansas senator is famous in his own state. Quaint phrasing, pointed denunciations and evidence of intense emotion characterized his remarks. He was given a careful hearing by senators and the galleries were well filled throughout the time he held the floor. Beginning shortly before 1 o'clock, he spoke for a little more than an hour. At the close of the speech the senate went into executive session, and at 2:10 o'clock adjourned.

The house was not in session yesterday.

ST. PAUL OUT OF THE RACE.

Louisville and Chicago in the Lead for the Democratic Convention.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The situation with reference to the selection of a place for holding the next Democratic convention had so simplified itself last night that practically all candidates for the honor had been eliminated except Chicago, Louisville and Denver. As St. Paul made no organized effort to secure the convention that city has been dropped from consideration. Mayor Tom Johnson has started a boom for Cleveland and that city will make a bid for the convention.

TOO SLOW FOR UNCLE SAM.

Federal Attoney Bristol Loses Official Head.

Washington, Dec. 12. — It was announced at the department of justice yesterday that the nomination of William C. Bristol for United States attorney for Oregon, which had been sent to the senate, would be withdrawn, in accordance with the department's recommendation to the president. In the opinion of the attorney general Mr. Bristol did not exhibit the application and alacrity in disposing of the land fraud cases that had been expected of him, and that therefore his services should be discontinued.

225 BODIES TAKEN OUT.

Mines Continue to Give Up Victims of Explosion.

Monogah, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Steadily and almost uninterruptedly mines Nos. 6 and 8 of the Fairmont Coal company are giving up the victims of last Friday's explosion. When last night's force of rescuers went on duty there had been a total of 225 bodies taken out, most of which have been buried. Others were brought out in groups of two and three at short intervals.

Heavy Trunk Crushes Skull and Spine, Bringing Death.

Hot Springs, S. D., Dec. 12.—A fatal accident occurred near Stanton's sawmill, between here and Custer, S. D., in which Ernest Knox lost his life by being caught under a falling tree. His neck was broken, his skull fractured and his head badly bruised.

NO THIRD TERM FOR ROOSEVELT

PRESIDENT MAKES STATEMENT WHICH ELIMINATES HIM FROM CONTEST.

WILL NOT CHANGE DECISION

STILL ADHERES TO DECLARATION MADE ON NIGHT OF LAST ELECTION.

Washington, Dec. 12. — President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third term. All doubt on this point was last night dispelled by the authoritative statement from the White House that Mr. Roosevelt still adheres to the declaration of renunciation made on the night of the election, three years ago. In the statement issued last night, President Roosevelt says he has not changed and shall not change the decision communicated to the American people in 1904.

It appears that President Roosevelt had been waiting the call for the Republican national convention to afford the proper opportunity for making his position clear and unmistakable, thus leaving the field clear for Fairanks, Taft, Cannon, Foraker and other declared or receptive candidates for the Republican nomination.

Decision Stands.

The president's statement follows:

"On the night after election I made the following announcement:

"'I am deeply sensible of the honor done me by the American people in thus expressing their confidence in what I have done and tried to do. I appreciate to the full the solemn responsibility this confidence imposes upon me, and I shall do all that in my power lies not to forfeit it. On the 4th of March next I shall have served three and a half years, and this three and a half years constitutes my first term. The wise custom which limits the president to two terms regards the substance and not the form, and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination.'

"I have not changed and shall not change the decision thus announced."

Rescued a "Foxy" Squirrel.

A man in New York state who owns several fine cats stepped out of his house one day to see two of his feline possessions crouched in the grass, and equidistant between them sat a common striped squirrel, not daring to move a hair lest he invite the sharp claws of one or both of his enemies, but the anxious brown eyes rolled from side to side as he calculated his chances of escape between the two. The man walked on toward the squirrel, and when he came within jumping distance the squirrel seized his opportunity and leaped upon the man's trousers and ran nimbly to his shoulder. Then the man backed slowly toward a tree at no great distance from him. Again when within leaping distance the squirrel jumped into the tree and disappeared amid its branches.

A Wasp's Mistake.

It is generally supposed that instinct unerringly teaches birds and insects the best way in which to build their homes or nests and also to provide for their offspring. The following incident will show that instinct is not always infallible:

A naturalist placed three small empty vials in an open box on a shelf in an upright position in close contact, and they were uncorked. A short time afterward it was a matter of surprise to find that these had been appropriated by a female mud wasp. She had placed a goodly number of spiders in the center vial, doubtless intended to serve as food for her future brood, then proceeded to deposit her eggs in those on either side. She next closed tightly the mouths of all the receptacles with a hard lime cement. Having finished her work, she then doubtless went on her way, satisfied all had been done for her offspring that a thoughtful mother could do. But just think of the sensations of those little wasps when they come into existence, for, while starving in their sealed cages, they can plainly see through the impenetrable glass walls the bountiful supply of food which was provided for their use.

White Africans.

The Berbers, who, although African, are as white as Europeans, are the oldest white race on record, says an explorer. They are supposed to have come from the south of Europe in ancient days, the Dundee Advertiser says, and, although their language and customs are entirely different from ours and their religion Mohammedan, they are probably closely akin by descent. Blue eyes and fair hair are not at all uncommon among the Berbers, and many of them have rosy cheeks and features so like our own that were they dressed in British fashion they would easily pass as natives of the British isles.

What It Was.

"These deceitful women are so ridiculous!" said Miss Passay. "As for me, I was never afraid to tell what my age was."

"No woman," replied Miss Wise, "ever minds telling what her age was."—London Answers.

The creamery is paying the farmers thirty two cents a pound for butter fat for November. It sure must feel good to be a farmer when such prices prevail.

A well known farmer who lives but a short distance from this village had occasion to pay a small bill in a neighboring town recently with a check on the local bank. Realizing the scarcity of currency he took the pains to send the information by letter that the check would draw cash at St. Hilaire. It was not altogether a joke either.

We have been having about the best December weather lately we have had for many years and it seems to be getting better right along. It snowed yesterday morning but it was too warm and it is going away fast.

We were reminded of old times this week when Wash Adams came in with a load of cordwood and the request that he be given credit for it on his subscription account. In the days before the sawmill came quite a number of our subscribers used to pay their subscription account with wood but of late we have not been favored in this way.

At the Telephone.

To call Central give one long ring, put the receiver to your ear and wait until Central answers "Number," then, give the number wanted calling the figures thus: two-six, not twenty-six.

Stand with lips about two inches in front of the transmitter and speak in an ordinary tone.

If Central says "line is busy" or "they don't answer" hang up the receiver and try again in a few minutes.

Long distance calls are charged against the telephone from which the call comes and the charges for such services are due the first of the following month.

Subscribers letting anyone use their phones for long distance calls must collect fee and keep same till collector calls.

School Notes.

Mrs. Beebe and her sister, Miss Just paid the primary room a very pleasant call on the 5th.

++ 0 ++

The total enrollment is now 185, in the primary room 55, first intermediate 43, second intermediate 36, grammar room 21, and high school room 30.

++ 0 ++

Miss Eleanor and Ralph Roy resumed their studies in the high school room right after the Thanksgiving vacation. The other new pupils are Vernie Peterson and Louina Oakland, primary room; Dorothy Oakland, Henry Williams, and Alfred and Arthur Stenberg in the second intermediate.

Some kings live and die and when they are dead the world feels relieved. Not so with the late King Oscar II of Sweden. The close of his reign Sunday turns the gaze of the world toward that country. Our interest is revived in its history, its customs, its —everything, and our quickened interest was delightfully satisfied for the time being by the half hour's talk of Rev. Sand Thursday afternoon. Mr. Sand is brimful of his subject, knows the history of Sweden like an open book and crowded his talk full of the interesting incidents that show the human side of it all. The grammar room pupils and some from the second intermediate room came into the high school room to enjoy it also. The lower rooms were dismissed a little early to enable the teachers there to come up. We all appreciated the favor.

++ 0 ++

Beginning on Monday and continuing thruout the darkest winter and shortest days a change in the length of the dinner hour and recesses will take effect. The first recess will be shortened five minutes, and the school will be dismissed for noon five minutes before twelve; the afternoon session will begin at one o'clock instead of 1.15 as heretofore, giving one hour and five minutes for noon intermission; then five minutes for last recess. This arrangement will make it possible to dismiss school that much earlier, thus enabling the pupils to get home and probably render some help before dark on cloudy and stormy evenings; also, the teachers will get more work done which must be done at school and the janitor can get over more sweeping before the night overtakes him. The thing for each pupil to remember about this is to be back at school at one o'clock.

THE STORY OF THANKSGIVING

There once lived a boy and a girl. Their father and mother were dead. The girl's name was Nettie and the boy's name was Frank. They lived together in a little cottage. Frank used to chop wood and other things for the neighbors and thus he got a little money. As it grew near to Thanksgiving they did not have enough money to buy a turkey.

One night as they were sitting by the fire the girl said, "I wish we could have a turkey." The boy thought it would be fine. He thought he would try and get a turkey but he did not tell the girl. The next day he went out to work. He got five dollars but he did not tell the girl. The day before Thanksgiving he came home with a turkey. The girl was surprised. As they were eating dinner the girl said it was the best dinner she had had for a long time.

Worry Worse Than Fatigue.

More people worry themselves out than wear out by work and then when they begin to grow thin from worrying over other things, they worry because they are growing thin. The best thing for nervousness is the regular use of a good malt tonic at meal time. Take a glass of golden grain belt beer with meals and at bedtime. It builds up overworked nerve tissues and insures renewed health to body and brain. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

32 Cents a Pound.

That it pays to hold butter when the prices are low is a fact that cannot be denied, and it surely would pay the patrons of the creamery to have a cold storage large enough to hold a carload of butter at least. The past month when the price of butter went down Mr. Austin made no shipment. This is making it so we are getting 32c per pound for butter fat, a price that would have been impossible to reach had the shipments been made as usual. The amount of business for the month is nearly $3,000 an increase of 27 per cent over the same month last year.

And would cheerfully recommend the use of Peruna, as I certainly do endorse your medicine."

The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I used many kinds of patent medicines, to no avail. A friend teased me to try Cuticura. At last I decided to try Cuticura when my boy was three years and four months old, having had eczema all that time and suffering untold misery. I began to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies. by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

MANKATO METHODISTS DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

The Centenary M. E. Church of Mankato was formally dedicated Sunday evening, but almost an entire week will be bevoted to the dedication services, which will continue until Friday evening.

Sunday morning and evening Rev. H. C. Jennings, D. D., of Cincinnati, of the Methodist Book Concern, preached, and Presiding Elder S. F. Kerfoot, D. D., of Mankato, preached in the afternoon.

D., St. paul, presiding elder of the St. Paul district, preached; Wednesday evening, Rev. F. B. Cowgill, D. D., of Redwood Falls, presiding elder of the Marshall district, will preach; Thursday evening, Rev. J. M. Brown, D. D., of Sioux Falls, S. D., will preach. These three are former pastors of the church.

MUCH BUTTER IS SOLD SHORT.

Inspectors Say Weights Are Not as Marked.

Owing to the fact that the laws on the subject are not sufficiently stringent, the state dairy and food department at its next session will probably ask the legislature to enact such regulations as will prevent the giving of short weights in the sale of butter. Frequent cases of short weight are found, but under the present laws considerable difficulty is experienced in prosecuting the offenders.

During the past few days Inspector J. G. Fowler of the dairy and food department has found a number of cases in which short weights have been given in the sale of butter. This is true of jar butter as well as prints. In fact it has been found that in a majority of cases the pound prints are less than one pound in weight. The greatest imposition upon the public is found in butter sold in jars, in many cases the purchaser buying what is represented to be a five-pound jar finding himself short half a pound.

Out of a few reports of inspectors picked out at random it was found that the weight of the butter sold in jars as five pounds ranged from four pounds and six ounces to four pounds and fifteen ounces. Many of the reports showed the jars to be short six, seven and eight ounces.

It is probable that the legislature will be asked to pass a law requiring the marking of the weight on all packages of butter, whether in jars or prints, so that when a shortage is discovered the prosecution of the seller will be an easy matter. If the dealers are required to mark the weight on each package it is believed the difficulties in the prosecution of dealers giving short weight in butter sales will be overcome and the prevalence of this form of fraud quickly stamped out.

WOULD REACH SKYWARD.

Some idea of the importance of the dairy interests of this state may be gained from some interesting figures compiled by Secretary W. W. Wall of the state dairy and food department with reference to the production of butter by the banner butter county of the state during the past seven yars.

This county has produced in that period more than 28,000,000 pounds of butter. If this were all packed in the ordinary butter tub, containing twenty pounds of butter, each being twelve inches high, and the tubs were placed in a column, they would reach 266 miles in the air.

In the making of this butter 100,667,957 gallons of milk were used, a liquid volume which, if flooded into a vessel large enough to hold it, would float the battleship Maine.

WOMAN IS WEIGHMASTER.

Brainerd is probably the only city of 10,000 population in, Minnesota, if not in the United States, which has a woman weighmaster. The city council has elected Miss Winifred Smith to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her father, D. D. Smith. Since his death the daughter has been conducting the agricultural implement and harness business owned by him and has been discharging the duties of weighmaster.

George Sullivan, recently resigned as a policeman at Brainerd, has filed a charge with the city council, alleging that he was forced to resign for impartially applying the lid. As the police force is amenable only to the mayor, the council simply accepted the communication and placed it on file.

Bernhard B. Hetland, register of deeds of Clay county, passed away at his home in Moorhead after an illness of ten days. Mr. Hetland was serving his third term as register of deeds.

STATE GETS MONEY BACK.

Norman County Repays State for Seed Loans.

The first payment of seed grain loans made by the state under authority of act passed last winter was made last week by Norman county. The pament was $4,951.50, being the first payment on loans aggregating $7,780.80. Similar loans were made in the counties of Clay and Wilkin, but none of this money has been repaid as yet.

The act authorizing these loans appropriated $25,000, or so much thereof as might be necassary, for the purpose of purchasing seed grain for farmers whose crops were destroyed in whole or in part by excessive rainfall in the years 1905 and 1906. The applications for the loans were made to the county auditors and after being sanctioned by the county commissioners as to the amount of each loan and the total to be loaned by the county for this purpose, the county auditors certified these figures to the state auditor. The loans were made by the state to the counties, which promised to repay the amounts with 4 per cent interest.

The law made it a misdemeanor for any farmer to dispose of any of the crop raised from the seed grain so procured without first repaying his loan to the county. It also provided that in case the crop this year should be a failure, the amount of the loan should be levied as a personal tax in the next assessment of taxes after Nov. 15, 1907, and be collected the same as other personal taxes, except that there should be no exemption from this tax.

The loans made to Clay county aggregated $5,684.75 and to Wilkin county $420.

A post-graduate course in embalming will be conducted at the state university Feb. 4 to 14, inclusive, by W. P. The course will terminate in the annual convention of the Minnesota Funeral Directors' association, to be held in Minneapolis Feb. 14. The study course and the convention will bring to Minneapolis about 200 undertakers from all parts of the state. The work at the university will be of a practical charcharacter.

Immediately after the funeral directors adjourn the Minnesota Retail Furniture Dealers will convene in annual session, their meetings being timed for Feb. 14 and 15. The membership of the two organizations practically are the same and the latter convention will be a continuation of the former.

MANY COWS DISEASED.

Twenty-seven cows that have failed to pass the tuberculosis test under the new milk inspction ordinance at Mankato were shipped to South St. Paul to be slaughtered at the stock yards. Sixteen were found in one dairy herd and five in another. With thirty-seven previously slaughtered there is a total of sixty-four tuberculous cows out of about 300 tested, or one in five. Not half of the cows as yet have been tested, but the work is going on as rapidly as possible.

ONLY COLLEGE SUNDAY PAPER.

The "Michigan Daily" Unique in Appearing Seven Days a Week.

There is one thing that distinguishes the Michigan Daily, the newspaper of the University of Michigan, from all other college publications. It is issued seven days in the week.

There is no other college which gets out a Sunday paper. As a matter of fact, it is likely that the Sunday papers from Detroit get more attention in Ann Arbor than does the college paper.

The situation in Ann Arbor cannot be anything like that in Ithaca, where the Cornell Daily Sun takes the place of a morning daily for the entire town. Telegraph news of the world is published in the paper, but never on the first page. It is kept in appearance strictly a college paper.

CUT THIS OUT.

Fine Recipe for the Quick Cure of Coughs and Colds.

Mix half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine with two ounces of glycerine and half a pint of good whisky; shake well each time and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours.

This is the formula prescribed by the renowned throat and lung specialist who established the camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine and whose remarkable cures attracted widespread attention among the medical fraternity. He declares that it will heal the lungs and cure any cough that is curable and will break up an acute cold in 24 hours. The ingredients can be secured from any prescription druggist at a small cost and is easily mixed at home.

Be sure not to buy the ordinary bulk oil of pine nor patent medicine imitations, as they will produce nausea. The real "Concentrated" oil of pine is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Dayton, Ohio, and is guaranteed under the National Pure Food and Drug Act. It comes put up for medicinal use in half-ounce vials enclosed in round air-tight cases which protect it from heat and light.

Beaver on Elk River.

"The impression that the beaver is almost extinct in this country is a mistake," said George H. Hower of Vancouver, B. C. "On the Elk river, a tributary of the Fraser, in my own province, there are this season thousands of these little animals, whose fur is so valuable, building their winter quarters. The Elk river has always been a favorite spot for the beaver, but this year the influx has been so marked that even the most experienced trapper cannot tell whence they came.

"There are now a large number of trappers on the river engaged in catching them as fast as possible. most of the skins are shipped to San Francisco, while some go to Montreal and Toronto. From these cities they will go to other parts of this country and Europe."

BOTH GAINED

Man and Wife Fatten on Grape-Nuts.

The notion that meat is necessary for real strength and the foundation of solid flesh is no longer as prevalent as formerly.

Excessive meat eaters are usually sluggish a part of the time because they are not able to fully digest their food, and the undigested portion is changed into what is practically a kind of poison that acts upon the blood and nerves, thus getting all through the system.

"I was a heavy meat eater," writes an Ills. man, "and up to two years ago, was in very poor health. I suffered with indigestion so that I only weighed 95 pounds.

"Then I heard about Grape-Nuts and decided to try it. My wife laughed at me at first but when I gained to 125 pounds and felt so fine, she thought she would eat Grape-Nuts too.

"Now she is fat and well and has gained 40 pounds. We never have indigestion any more and seldom feel the desire for meat. A neighbor of ours, 68 years old, was troubled with indigestion for years; was a heavy meat eater, and now since he has been eating Grape-Nuts regularly, he says he is well and never has indigestion. I could name a lot of persons who have really been cured of indigestion by changing from a heavy meat diet to Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

F. H. Toersing, a farmer living about three miles northeast of Atwater, was accidentally gored by a bull while leading a cow in his yard. The bull rushed between the cow and Mr. Toersing and struck the man in the face with its horns, inflicting a serious wound.

A disastrous fire occurred at Faribault when the dwelling house owned by Mrs. Barron was completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $10,000; partly covered by insurance. The building was an old landmark, having been built in the early days by Bishop Whipple.

Frank D. Myers, formerly a railroad traveling passenger agent, was found dead in his room at the Nicollet hotel in Minneapolis by the clerk. Coroner Kistler was unable to ascertain the cause of death and could not determine whether it was from suicide or natural causes.

A fire from an unknown source started in the grocery store of P. Germain at Little Falls, and the building and entire stock were burned completely to the ground. The stock was valued at about $500 and the building at about $300. Only a small part of the goods was saved.

Crazed with excitement over the fire which was blazing in her kitchen, Mrs. Grimshaw of Duluth shut her six-year-old boy in an upstairs room, and grabbing her baby, fled down stairs. She was so excited she could not tell the firemen where the child was, and it was suffocated when found.

Swan Swanson, a farmer living two miles north of West Concord, saved the lives of his family from his burning home only by the use of a ladder, which he raised to the second-story window, enabling the persons in the house to escape. Not even the clothes of the family were saved.

Mrs. Maude Ulmer Jones, known throughout the Northwest and in the principal operatic centers for her singing, died at her residence in Minneapolis from cancer. To her friends in musical circles her death came most unexpectedly, as she was supposed to have recovered entirely from an attack last spring.

Carl Holm, the son of a Clay county farmer, living twenty miles west of Barnesville, met with a peculiar accident that cost him the sight of an eye. The boy had bought a new rifle and was shooting at marks when one of the bullets struck an object, rebounded and hit the lad in the eye, destroying it entirely. The boy was taken to a hospital in Fargo.

Henry Keller of Sauk Center, former state senator, died at Omaha of Bright's disease. He was sixty-two years of age and was president of the Keller Manufacturing company. Mr. Keller served ten years in the Minnesota senate, from 1887 to 1897, and was well known throughout the state. His wealth is estimated at $800,000. The remains were taken to Sauk Center for burial.

David Hickman pleaded guilty before Justice Ireland at Moose Lake to the charge of stealing $208 from the home of J. E. Carlson, who lives four miles west of Moose Lake. Mr. Carlson had deposited his money in a bureau drawer, thinking it safer there than in the bank, and was, with his family, attending the funeral of Mrs. Soderberg when the theft was committed.

August Bachman, aged forty years, was fatally injured at St. Cloud in falling from a brewery wagon. His back and several ribs are broken and he cannot survive. It is thought that he fell from the wagon after turning the horses too short.

Edith Armstrong of Akeley appeared before Judge Spooner in Memidji and pleaded guilty to having sold intoxicating liquors without a license at Akeley. The court imposed a penalty on the defendant of a $100 fine and thirty days in jail. The fine was paid.

The new nurses' dormitory at the insane hospital at Fergus Falls was opened with a reception. An address was delivered by Judge Leavitt of the board of control. The building will accommodate nearly 100 nurses.

UNFAIR LIST IS HELD IN CHECK

DECISION OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO LABOR AND BUSINESS INTERESTS.

FEDERATION IS RESTRAINED

COURT'S DECISION ARRAIGNS BOYCOTT AS AN ILLEGAL CONSPIRACY.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Of far-reaching importance to labor and business interests throughout the country was the decision announced yesterday by Justice Gould of the equity court of the District of Columbia, enjoining the American Federation of Labor, with its membership of 2,000,000 or more, from boycotting the Buck Stove and Range company of St. Louis and of printing in its official organ the company's name in "Unfair" and "We don't patronize" lists, and the decision arraigns the action of the federation as an illegal conspiracy.

Would Limit Order.

To-day there will be an argument before Judge Gould over a proposition of counsel for the federation that the court's order putting the injunction decision into effect limiting, in express terms, its application to the District of Columbia and counsel for the plaintiff company will oppose this.

The injunction granted yesterday, while of a temporary character, was allowed in a decision in which Judge Gould exhaustively reviewed the case, made copious citations of authorities, quoted precedents as to boycott definitions and said there was no room for argument as to the conspiracy alleged being established.

Go to Supreme Court.

The question of a permanent injunction will come up probably next spring, and which ever side wins in the final settlement, the case, it is believed will be appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

Judge Gould pointed out from the bench yesterday that he had not in his decision taken up the question of inhibition of the boycott under the Sherman anti-trust law or the interstate commerce commission act.

SERIOUS CRISIS IN PERSIA.

Armed Partisans Erect Barricades and Hold Public Places.

Teheran, Persia, Dec. 19.—The situation here has become more threatening. The reactionaries have taken possession of and are now holding the gun square and open places in the vicinity of the palace, while the Constitutionalists to the number of about 10,000 have erected barricades extending for miles around the parliament buildings. The latter are acting solely on the defensive and in an orderly manner. The rough elements are aiding the reactionaries, and several murders and some looting have occurred.

On behalf of the nation, the Persian parliament has issued a manifesto to the world, explaining the present constitutional crisis and appealing for assistance.

The negotiations between the shah and parliament have up to the present time been without result. The post-office and all shops in Teheran are closed and no newspapers have been published to-day.

Decide on Joint Action.

The British and Russian foreign offices already have decided upon joint action to settle the differences between the shah and parliament and to prevent the trouble which is threatening to break out throughout the country.

Germany claims that her interests are purely commercial. Russia might be called upon to move troops across the frontier, but only in extreme necessity, such as for the protection of foreigners or their property. Within her sphere of influence Great Britain would land troops, relying upon the presence of her warships in the Persian gulf to overawe any body.

MINE VICTIMS, SIXTY-ONE.

Rescue Parties Toil in Mines Against Fearful Odds.

Yolande, Ala., Dec. 19.—Last night forty-two bodies had been taken from the ill-fated Yolande mines, in which an explosion occurred Monday. Nineteen more are reported in the mines, making a total of sixty-one victims. All day long the rescue parties have toiled in the mines here against fearful odds. The hot air and smoke from the explosion have made it difficult to get into the lower entries, and several of the rescue parties have been overcome at different times and have had to be brought to the surface for fresh air.

$8,000,000 CITY BUILDING.

Plans Being Prepared for Twenty-story Structure in New York.

New York, Dec. 19. — Architects have begun work on plans which are to be submitted in competition for New York's proposed twenty-story office building, to be built upon the ground recently secured opposite the Brooklyn bridge entrance. It is estimated that the building will hold all the offices of the city's departments and that it will cost approximately $8,000,000.

ASK FUNSTON TO TAKE HOLD

MANY RUMORS AFLOAT—BREAK IN WIRES IS CHARGED TO VANDALS.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 19.—The power wires of the Nevada-California Power company went down at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and Goldfield was without electric light or power last night. Many rumors are afloat, the most reliable being that the wires have been cut at Palmetto, twenty-five miles distant. Many people are alarmed and an effort is now being made to have Gen. Funston take charge of the camp and patrol it with troops.

Three Mines Operated.

Three mines were operated yesterday with the men brought in from other points and those who have signed the agreement of the Goldfield Mine Owners' association. The mill of the Consolidated company and the Nevada-Goldfield Reduction works also were in operation all day.

The commission sent by President Roosevelt to investigate labor conditions here has been busy all day with statements from the Mine Owners' association, and is receiving visitors who have information bearing on the situation. The commissioners would make no statement last night.

Funston May Stay.

Gen. Funston was to leave for San Francisco to-day, and Gov. Sparks also had intended leaving Goldfield today for his ranch near Reno.

It is hardly probable, however, that either will leave the camp to-day if the break in the power wires proves to be an act of vandalism.

HAYWOOD WILL TESTIFY.

To Give Evidence for the Defense in Pettibone Trial.

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 19.—The prosecution in the Pettibone case yesterday traced the Peabody bomb from the time Harry Orchard said he and Jack Simpkins threw it in a creek at Wallace to its appearance in the court room here at the Haywood trial. Corroborative evidence of the testimony of Orchard in reference to the Vindicator mine explosion was presented, and the state proved that the registered letter and telegraphic money order received by Orchard while at San Francisco were sent by Pettibone, facts admitted by the defense.

William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, arrived in Boise yesterday and sat with the spectators at the afternoon session of the court.

He will take the stand as a witness for the defense.

TRAIN HOLD-UP FOILED.

Posse With Bloodhounds Chases Men and Captures One.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 19.—An attempt was made to hold up the west-bound Northern Pacific train eleven miles east of Spokane early yesterday. Three men attempted to flag the train but the engineer refused to stop.

Harry Draper, with a posse and bloodhounds, hurried to Trent in a special train. A freight train was stopped and three men started to flee from it. One man, D. H. Murphy, was caught by Draper and it is believed one robber was wounded.

The bloodhounds followed the men five miles. Under a bridge near Trent the officers found five dynamite bombs, some fuses and safe-cracking appliances.

ROUGH HOUSE IN COURT.

District Attorney Hurls Inkstand and Spectator May Die.

San Jose, Cal., Dec. 19.—District Attorney James S. Sex and Attorney A. H. Gorman of defense called each other a liar and threw books and inkstands at each other's heads yesterday during a bribery trial. A missile hurled by Sex missed its mark and struck an aged spectator, Zacharius Tucker, on the head. Tucker fell insensible and it is announced by his physician that his skull is fractured and he may not recover from the wound. The combatants were arrested and ordered into the custody of the sheriff.

DROWNS IN BATHTUB.

Cashier of Bank Found Dead by His Wife.

North Attleboro, Mass., Dec. 19.—Frederick E. Sargent, vice president and cashier of the Jewelers National bank of this town, was found dead in the bathtub at his apartments by his wife last night. According to the medical examiner death was due to accidental drowning.

CUT IN WAGES RECALLED.

New York, Dec. 19. — It became known yesterday that the finance committee of the United States Steel corporation has decided to send out notices recalling the recent order to cut wages, which was to have taken effect Jan. 1, 1908.

DENIED BY CORTELYOU.

Rumors of Undue Political Activity of His Friends Are False.

Washington, Dec. 19. — Secretary Cortelyou, in a signed statement given out last night, pronounces unqualifiedly false the current rumors of undue political activity of his friends in forwarding a movement in his interest. The secretary declares that neither he nor his friends have used their influence in behalf of any candidate for the presidency.

AWFUL LOSS OF LIFE IN MINES

GOVERNMENT EXPERTS GIVE DEATH ROLL FOR 17-YEAR PERIOD.

22,840 MEET VIOLENT DEATH

FATALITIES IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES ONE-THIRD AS NUMEROUS.

Washington, Dec. 19. — The coal mines of the United States are killing proportionally three times as many men as are those of most European countries. In the last seventeen years 22,840 men have given up their lives in the mines of this country. As many violent deaths have occurred in the mines during the last six years as during the preceding eleven years. The number of fatal accidents each year is now double that of the year 1905. In 1906 6,861 men were killed or injured in the mines, the dead numbering 2,061 and the injured 4,800.

Gleaned by Experts.

These terrible facts have been gleaned by government experts acting under orders from Secretary Garfield of the interior department to investigate the nature and extent of mine accidents.

Carrying out the suggestions, Joseph A. Holmes, chief of the technologic branch; Clarence Hall, explosives expert, and others made a number of examinations of the more dangerous coal mines of Indian Territory. The conclusions of the experts are found in a bulletin issued yesterday on coal mine accidents, their causes and prevention.

Prophecy Is Fulfilled.

The statement of Mr. Holmes in the bulletin that an increase in the number and seriousness of mine explosions may be expected to continue has already proved fateful, for since the words were written the country has been startled by the news of three mine explosions that cost nearly 500 lives. The first explosion occurred in Pennsylvania in the early part of December and cost thirty-two lives. Then followed the Monongah mine disaster in Virginia, with a loss of nearly 400 lives, and the explosion in Alabama the other day with sixty-one lives lost.

Fatalities Decrease in Europe.

The bulletin shows that in all European coal-producing countries the output of coal has increased greatly during the last ten years, but the deaths per 1,000 miners, instead of increasing as in this country, have undergone marked decrease. This decrease has been due, the bulletin says, to the effect of mining legislation in those countries for the safeguarding and protection of the lives of the workmen and has been made possible by government action in establishing the testing stations for the study of problems relative to safety in mining.

BLIND GIRL KIDNAPPED.

Is Stolen From School in Milwaukee by Strangers.

Milwaukee, Dec. 19. — Little blind Pearl Burnell, also known as Soper, twelve years old, a member of the school for defective vision of Miss Alice Fellows, was kidnapped from the Eighteenth district school No. 2 yesterday.

The child is believed to have been taken from the school by a woman unknown to those who saw her, aided by a man thought to be of Milwaukee.

MAN'S DEATH LAID TO WIFE

AGED DELANO WOMAN IS ARRESTED AS POISONING SUSPECT.

Delano, Minn., Dec. 19.—Theresa Kashelmer, seventy years old, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of having poisoned her husband, Fritz Kashelmer, who died two weeks ago at the age of eighty-seven. The coroner's jury has not finished investigating the man's death, but the arrest was made on motion of the county attorney.

Mr. Kashelmer was taken with severe pains while doing his morning's work shortly after eating breakfast, and died soon after returning to the house. No physician was called until after the man had died, and the doctor, after making an examination, reported the case to the coroner.

A jury was impaneled and the taking of evidence was begun, but before this was completed the jury adjourned and an autopsy was performed. The man's stomach was sent to the state chemist for examination. Yesterday he reported that he had found traces of poison.

In the meantime evidence had been found tending to show that Mrs. Kashelmer, accompanied by one of her daughters, had purchased strychnine at a store in Watertown a few days before her husband's death, and the county attorney yesterday ordered her arrest.

TO MAKE TERMS AT GOLDFIELD.

General Counsel of Industrial Workers Given Powers.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 19.—O. A. Hilton of Denver, general counsel for the Industrial Workers of the World, and special counsel for the American Federation of Labor, arrived in Goldfield yesterday empowered by President Moyer of the Western Federation to make terms of peace with the mine owners of Goldfield. Just what are the terms on which peace may be secured Attorney Hilton refuses to say, but he states they are such that if refused by the Goldfield Mine Owners' association that body will be put on the defensive by the Western Federation.

The commission sent by President Roosevelt is examining witnesses and conducting an inquiry into labor conditions, but no statement of their program is being given out. Gov. Sparks has left for his ranch near Carson City, and to-day Gen. Funston will leave for San Francisco.

TUG SINKS JUST IN TIME.

Duluth Boat Goes Down as She Is About to Leave Port.

Duluth, Dec. 19.—A catastrophe was escaped last night when the tug tow Dowling of Duluth sank at 12 o'clock in the slip at Washburn, Wis., just as she was starting on her return trip to Duluth. Had it happened half an hour later she would have been out on the waters of Lake Superior and probably every man of the crew would have been drowned. The crew got away before the tug sank, but lost all of their personal belongings.

SENSATION IN POWERS TRIAL

WEAPON WITH WHICH GOEBEL WAS KILLED IS PRODUCED IN COURT.

DEFENSE SETS STORE BY IT

WITNESS, HOWEVER, IS NOT POSITIVE THAT IT IS MISSING WEAPON.

Georgetown, Ky., Dec. 19.—For the first time since it sent a bullet speeding on its fatal mission into the body of William Goebel, Jan. 30, 1900, the Marlin rifle about which so much has been said, was placed in evidence yesterday when Grant L. Roberts took the stand in the trial of Caleb Powers, former secretary of state. It is now in the custody of the court as an exhibit in the noted case.

When the gun was brought into court it was found to have been carefully screwed up in a wooden box made for the purpose of its preservation, the box wrapped in brown paper and the whole securely tied.

Is Tense Moment.

Being extracted from its covering the gun, rusty and worn from non-use and lack of care, was exhibited.

Arthur Goebel, brother of the murdered man, sphynxlike sat watching every detail connected with the incident. The moment was tense. Every eye was strained. What might be the outcome none could guess, and its effect upon the noted prisoner was problematical.

That the defense expects to reap some benefit from the introduction of the weapon is certain. That it may not so end is possible, for the witness created one flaw in the defense's plans.

Witness "Pretty Sure."

Grant Roberts would not identify the gun without qualification. He was "pretty sure" that this was the long-missing rifle, which he had bought from Clarence Fugazzi of Frankfort, but would not speak with absolute certainty. More interesting developments in regard to this new piece of evidence are expected to-day, as the court adjourned with Grant Roberts on the stand.

Before closing for the day, Judge Morris, at the request of the defense, issued an order for Henry Youtsey to be brought again from the penitentiary to-day.

S. S. Shepherd, chief deputy United States marshal, at Covingston, who was in the state auditor's office in Frankfort in 1900, testified that on the Friday or Saturday before Goebel was shot he had seen Youtsey enter the office with a gun.

STEALS NAG TO GET RIG.

Then Thief Unhitches Horse and Takes Another Animal.

Marshalltown, Iowa, Dec. 19. — Two horses and a buggy and harness were stolen in the city and nearby country yesterday. The sheriff's officers, who are in pursuit, claim that one man stole both animals. The horse and buggy belonging to A. M. Rhodes was taken from a street corner, where it had been tied. Soon after the barn of H. A. Smith, living northeast of the city, was entered and a mare valued at $225 was taken. Later the Rhodes horse was found in a pasture east of the city, the thief evidently having unhitched it and hitched to the buggy the Smith mare.

ENJOINS ISSUE OF PANAMA BONDS

SECRETARY CORTELYOU CITED TO APPEAR IN WASHINGTON COURT.

CLAIMS STATUTE IS VIOLATED

NEW YORK MAN URGES THE RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUAL BIDDERS.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Justice Gould of the District supreme court yesterday cited George B. Cortelyou, secretary of the treasury, to appear in court Friday, Jan. 3, 1908, to show cause why he should not be enjoined from turning over or delivering the balance of the $21,450,000 of the Panama canal bonds to certain banks and persons to whom he has announced allotments.

The citation issued by Justice Gould is based on a petition filed by George W. Austin of New York, who describes himself as a taxpayer and property owner in the United States, and who declares he made a proposal to purchase bonds of the advertised issue of the face value of $3,000,000. He avers he had agreed to pay at the rate of 1.03.75 and accrued interest per $100 and on notice of the acceptance of his subscription stands ready to deposit the amount with the assistant treasurer at New York.

Statutes Violated.

Mr. Austin informed the court that he has been advised through the public press that in direct violation of the statutes and in absolute disregard of the treasury department's circular No. 68 of the $25,000,000 of the bonds alloted only $1,000,000 were allotted to persons who were individual bidders for the same, and who, in accordance with the statutes and said circular, were given an equal opportunity to subscribe therefor; the remaining $24,000,000 were allotted to divers national banks throughout the United States, and only $3,550,000 of which were allotted to banks which had a higher price than that bid by him.

Would Be Malfeasance.

When he learned that his bid had been ignored and no allotment made to him, he says, he complained to the department, and the response convinces him of the secretary's intention to disregard the statutes and thereby commit a malfeasance, for which, he says, he advises and avers Mr. Cortelyou is not a man of sufficient means to answer to the citizens of the United States.

The petition concludes with the declaration that by reason of the secretary's having ignored these bids, "the United States and the citizens thereof, irrespective of the rights of said bidder, had been deprived of and will be deprived and defrauded of several hundreds of thousands of dollars."

A CHRISTMAS STORY

Jim was a little newsboy who sold papers on the street for a living. He was all alone in the world and so it was hard for him as he was only twelve years old.

One winter he could not sell as many papers as he used to and so many times he almost starved. Christmas day as usual he went to sell his papers but he did not sell any before dinner and so he had to go without his dinner. In the afternoon he sold some and he was just going to go and buy something to eat for his money when he saw old man coming along the sidewalk. He thought he would ask him to buy a paper. The man took a paper and paid for it and then he said, "What is your name?"

"Jim Hale" was the answer.

"Jim Hale?" said the old man, "What was your father's name?"

"His name was Jim too" answered the newsboy.

"I had a brother by that name," said the man. "Did your father ever say anything about Henry Hale?"

"Yes," said Jim, "He spoke of a man by that name many times. He said that Henry Hale was his brother."

Then the old man told Jim to come with him. They went to a hotel and had something to eat and then the man told Jim to come over to his house a little while. Jim went with the man until they came to a large stone house where the man said he lived. They went inside and the old man began to talk with a woman who was there. At last they stopped talking and the man asked Jim if he would like to live there. Jim said he would and so he staid there. That night there was a big Christmas tree with lots of toys on it. Jim thought that that was the happiest Christmas he had ever spent.

A CHRISTMAS STORY

Once there was a little girl and boy who lived in an old house a little way out of town. Their mother was dead and their father had left them in care of their aunt who was very cruel to them. Their father had been away very long and they had almost forgotten him.

One day near Christmas time the children asked if they might go to the Christmas tree the next evening. Their aunt asked where it was going to be and they told her. She said that they could stay home while she went. The little children were very sorry, but did not say a word.

Christmas Eve their aunt got ready and left them to amuse themselves. They were both sitting in a large arm chair when a rap came at the door. They both jumped up and went to open the door. To their surprise they found a man standing there. Who was it but their father. He was very glad to see them and caught them both up in his arms and sat down in the larg arm chair. He talked with them a long time and after a while he sent them to bed. He told them to hang up their stockings as Santa Claus might come around. The children slept soundly that night, and when they woke up the next morning they found their stockings full of candies and they also found other presents. They spent a very happy Christmas and soon went away with their father to a better place.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. BY THE YULE LOG

A rhyme, and a light and lithe one,
That sways like a supple vine;
A song, and a bright and blithe one,
A-flood with the Christmas shine.

A catch, and a clear and glad one,
Like the brook note in the spring;
A stave, and a gay and mad one
That shall make the rafters ring.

Be the beat of the dancers in it,
The lith and the laughing leap,
And the trill from the throat of a linnet
That dies to a rapture deep.

Then it's cheer, my masters merry,
And cheer, my bonny maids, O!
Our song's for the holly berry,
Our kiss for the mistletoe.

A Christmas Tree in a Big Forest

A long, long time ago, before this great country was inhabited from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and when extensive forests stretched over great tracts of land, through which the foot of white man had not left its print, the frontiersman living in "the outer settlements" had small chance to celebrate the Yuletide season. He, with his family, composed a small world, which was too seldom entered by an outsider. Neighbors were at great distances apart, and their time was all occupied in clearing the land which was to become the fine, rich fields from which their children and grandchildren should reap such rich harvests.

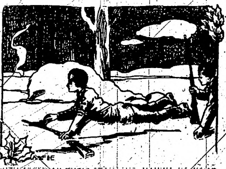
In the early forties a sturdy farmer—or frontiersman, as those "pathfinders" were called—moved from the outer borders of what was termed civilization to a new country, where as yet the woodman's ax had not been heard or the curl of smoke from the log cabin been seen by the red man, lurking about on the watch for the intruding paleface. Into the depths of a shadowy forest the frontiersman, accompanied by his family of wife and two sturdy sons, went, hunting a suitable location for a camp.

After many days of weary travel they halted near a beautiful spring that came from a rocky cliff overhanging a stream that promised to be full of fish. Here the father and sons cut down trees and built a cabin.

One evening, as the family sat around the cheerful fire of logs, chatting of the past, present and future, the mother quickly said: "Well, I decleare, Christmas is almost here, and I'd forgot to think about it."

"Yes, so it is," agreed the father. "Just three days off."

The two sons, aged, respectively, fourteen and sixteen, were not yet too old to enjoy the excitement and pleasure attending the holiday season, although they had had small opportunity to do so since they were in their teens, for their father was a man who was ever looking toward the setting sun, following it farther and farther as the settlements grew and prospered and dangers became less about him.



THEY CREPT ON THEIR STOMACHS, MAKING NO NOISE.

"Well, I'd like to be back at Bertonville," declared Samuel, the elder son. "There'll be great times there, I'll warrant. Neighbor Higgins' girls will have a Christmas tree and a taffy-pull."

"Ah, yes," sighed Thomas Peter, the younger son. "And over at Neighbor Van Smith's there'll be a big wild turkey dinner and a lot of the friends will have an invite there. Do you mind last Christmas, mother?"

Yes, the mother "minded," and it sent a pang through her good, tender heart to recall the pleasant and sociable times they had enjoyed while living on the outskirts of the little village.

The next day Sam and Tom went with their guns to hunt for game, the only kind of meat the family had for their table in this wild part of the world. As they trudged along Sam said: "I wish we could give mother some little surprise on Christmas. But I reckon it's out of the question."

"Father never cares about such things," said Tom. "He's a mighty smart and brave man and has no mind for foolish things. But I am like mother—I enjoy friends and a sociable time. Wish there were some neighbors near——"

"Look!" interrupted Sam, pointing to a curl of blue smoke to be seen rising to the sky through the leafless trees. "That's not an Indian camp fire. White people are where that smoke comes from."

"It must come from around that hill," declared Tom. "Let's go cautiously, for you can never tell what kind of an Indian surprise is awaiting you."

Like two Indians, the boys stole round the hill, which was almost bare of timber. They crept on their stomachs, making no noise. When they rounded the obstructing point there came into view several covered wagons and a newly built cabin, with two or more in course of construction. A number of stalwart men and boys were busy at the building and a number of women and half-grown girls were preparing food over the campfire, the completed cabin evidently not yet having been supplied with a fireplace.

Tom looked at Sam, and Sam looked at Tom, smiles of happiness coming on their faces in spite of their trying to withhold any show of pleasure. Then they rose and timidly approached the new settlers. When within a few rods of the builders their approach was noted, and it turned out that they were as much of a surprise to the strangers as the strangers had been to them.

It was not long before Tom and Sam found themselves seated at the forest board, enjoying a share of the plentiful meal of their cordial hosts and hostesses. Conversation did not drag, and Tom and Sam regretted to have to bid their new friends adieu and continue on their hunt. They promised to come the next day and bring their parents; also extending a cordial and homely invitation to the newcomers to visit their cabin, some two miles distant, toward the river.

When the boys arrived home that evening, carrying a number of fine rabbits, squirrels and a fat opossum, they approached their mother with beaming faces. "We've got neighbors!" Sam cried. And then he and his brother told the good news, repeating everything which had been said by the new-found friends over the hill.

And the next day, faithful to promise, Sam and Tom took their parents to call on the new neighbors, who proved to be quite numerous, for six families had come together to fell the forest and build up a town, to which others would soon come. The day passed in work and sociable intercourse, and, as Sam and Tom walked home beside their mother, their father going ahead to keep a close look-out for their safety, the good woman, with a happy face, said: "What do you think, sons, we're going to have a Christmas tree after all. The new neighbor women have agreed to come over and help me all day Christmas. We'll exchange little trinkets and small articles of clothing and hang them on the tree for our sons and daughters. Then we'll have a taffy-pull in the yard in the evening by the light of a campfire. They have a keg of fine molasses, and they'll bring a good supply over for the taffy."

Neither Sam nor Tom could speak for a minute; their hearts were too full for utterance. Then Sam said: "What kind of a tree will you use, mother?"

"I thought that pretty sapling by the door would answer," she explained. "I'll cover it over with a sheet after the presents have been hung on, and keep it from view till we are ready to hand off the gifts."

"And shall we have a dinner?" asked Tom, eagerly, his eyes shining with happy anticipation.

"Yes, we'll have it at our cabin, but the neighbors will bring a lot of nice things along. They have such fine flour and sugar and some potatoes. I'll cook those fine rabbits and squirrels you brought in yesterday. Oh, we'll have a feast—out here in the forest."

"And, best of all, we'll have a Christmas tree," said Sam.

And three happy hearts beat as they went through the forest homeward.

Brotherly Love.

Tom gazed at his four-day-old sister with an expression of the keenest disappointment. The joys of brotherhood were not so full as she had anticipated. "Mother, mayn't I go play with the boys?" he asked at length.

"I thought that you were going to stay with sister always, and never leave her to play with the boys," she teased him.

"But mother," he blurted out impatiently, "you know that if I stayed in all afternoon you wouldn't as much as let me touch her, and you can see for yourself she's not much to look at."

Soft Boiled Shirts.

She was a dear old lady, but she lived at Hardscrabble, and was a bit behind the times. She had been reading the advertisements in a city newspaper chance had brought her way.

"Father," she asked her husband, "what is these here negligee shirts they talk about?"

Father, being a man, was equal to the occasion.

"Don't know what they be," he grinned. "Well, you are a back number. Negligee shirts ain't quite so stiff and choky as a b'iled shirt.—I mean a reg'lar hard-b'iled shirt. A negligee shirt is something you might call a soft-b'iled shirt."

Physician Called It Eczema in Worst Form—Patient Despaired of Cure—Cuticura Remedies Cured Her.
"About four years ago I was afflicted with black splotches all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of ——. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in the worst form. Their treatment did me no good. Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. My husband purchased a single set of the Cuticura Remedies, which entirely stopped the breaking out. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that ever splotch was entirely gone. I have not felt a symptom of the eczema since, which was three years ago. Mrs. Lizzie E. A Christmas Hint

"Just a little something for a Santa Claus present, you know," he said to the salesman in the jewelry store a week before Christmas.

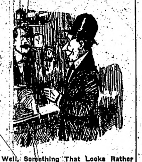
"Something pretty nice?" was queried in reply.

"Well, something that looks rather gorgeous, but doesn't cost too much. I had some thoughts of a sunburst. I was told that you had them here at $15 that couldn't be told from real diamonds."

"Yes, we have them of rhinestones. Here is one with 24 stones in it. Isn't it a beauty?"

"It certainly it. Do you think any young lady could—could——"

"Could tell the difference between this and real diamonds? Young man, don't you make no mistake. If you have a grandmother 90 years old and deaf and blind and on her dying bed, you can safely buy this for her and she will die blessing you, but if you are buying to present to a young lady, don't try any faking business."



Well, Something That Looks Rather Gorgeous.

"But I—I——"

Yes, I know, but don't do it. The young lady you are engaged to has been in twenty times during the month looking over our rhinestone jewelry, and by this time she knows every piece by sight."

"What! Do they go about doing that?"

"Invariably, my son. The up-to-date girl is taking no chances. Hand one of them a rhinestone sunburst in a velvet case as a Santa Claus present and assure her at the same time you cannot live without her, and she'll hand you over $15 in cash and tell you to be careful not to slip as you go down the front steps. If you can't do better, then get yourself sent up for thirty days. Then she will expect nothing, and you will continue to play poker with her father."

JUST AS A FAVOR.

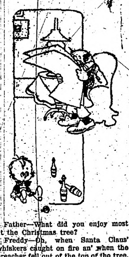
The good woman has been profoundly touched by the story told by the tramp, and has invited him into her kitchen, where she has spread for him a plentiful Christmas dinner. While eating, he has continued his sad story, telling how he was thrown out upon the world, an orphan; how he lost his wife and all his children; how his business was shattered and he became a wanderer upon the face of the earth, and many more heartrending things.

"You poor, poor man," sighed the good woman. "Is there anything I can do for you to make this day, at least, brighter and happier?"

"Yes'm dere's one t'ing I'd like to ask of ye."

"What is it?"

"Please move about a foot to der left. Youse been crying in de pumpkin pie."



Father—What did you enjoy most at the Christmas tree?

Freddy—Oh, when Santa Claus' whiskers caught on fire an' when the preacher fell out of the top of the tree.

Still Ahead.

"Willie" Collier, the comedian, was an irrepressible member of a barnstorming combination which, some ten years ago, did the "tank" towns of the Middle West.

The company had been doing a poor business for several weeks when a certain town in Illinois was reached. Just before the curtain went up that night, Collier was standing at the curtain "peep-hole," sizing up the audience.

"How's the house, Willie?" asked another player.

"Well," answered Collier, "there are some out there. But," he added, impressively, "we're still in the majority, old boy, still in the majority."

The Boarders.

The new boarder started nervously. "What is that sobbing, howling, shrieking and cursing that I hear?" he asked.

"Heavens," muttered the old boarder, turning pale, "the other boarders have gotten down ahead of us."

"But hist, that dreadful noise, what is its meaning?"

"It means," groaned the old boarder, "near-turkey hash again."

So saying (hardened veteran though he was) the old boarder attempted to drown himself in the wash bowl.

APPEAL TO HAVE TROOPS RETAINED

MINE OWNERS WILL LAY SOME NEW EVIDENCE BEFORE PRESIDENT.

WILL SUE THE FEDERATION

ASK INJUNCTION TO RESTRAIN UNION FROM INTERFERING WITH MINES.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 25. — Despite the positive statement which came from Washington yesterday to the effect that the federal troops will be removed from Goldfield on Dec. 30, mine owners have not given up and will appeal again to the president. They will present, they say, some matters which have not been laid before him, one of these being what they regard as positive evidence that at least one deportation was attempted by the Western Federation of Miners, in which four rifles were used.

Organize Rangers.

While the miners yesterday were preparing to send further evidence to the president, Sheriff Ingalls and Capt. Cox were conferring on plans for the preservation of law and order after the troops depart. Sheriff Ingalls said last night that he is seeking at least fifty new men to constitute a force of deputies who will patrol the camp night and day, armed with guns. The rumor has been current here that a company of rangers is contemplated. However, this could not be done without action by the legislature.

Will Sue Federation.

A suit against the Western Federation of Miners is to be brought by the Goldfield Mine Operators' association in the federal court. An injunction will be asked for restraining the members of the local miners' union, which is affiliated with the Western Federation, from interfering in any way with the operation of the mines in Goldfield. This suit will be filed Dec. 26.

"It has been definitely decided that after Dec. 30 each individual mine owner or each company shall take care of their own property, independent of [illegible]. This will ne[illegible] many more guards."

DEADLY GAS STOPS RESCUERS.

Searchers Encounter Deadly Fire Damp and Are Obliged to Stop.

Jacob's Creek, Pa., Dec. 25.—Search for the victims of last Thursday's explosion in the Darr mine of the Pittsburg Coal company was practically suspended yesterday afternoon because it could only be continued at great risk of sacrificing the lives of those in the rescuing party.

Gas in ominous volumes was encountered yesterday, the deadly fire damp especially menacing the men. Forty-six bodies had been brought to the surface and a number of others had been located when those in charge of the rescue work called a halt.

Rescue Work Stopped.

The rescuers had penetrated about a mile and three-quarters, or about a mile and a quarter from the end of the workings when they were obliged to stop.

It had been expected that most of the bodies would be reached to-day, but on account of the delay the rescue is likely to be delayed until Christmas day.

Practically all estimates of the number of dead now exceed 225.

The company's revised list of missing now contains 228 names and most other estimates are even higher.

One Hundred Escape Horror.

Pittsburg, Dec. 25. — That 100 men narrowly escaped cremation in the Schoenberger coal mine at Baird station, thirty miles from here, when fire broke out in the mine Sunday, became known yesterday. There are generally 400 men employed in the mine, but recently the force was reduced. Fortunately the fire was not accompanied by an explosion, or another terrible mine disaster would have been recorded in this vicinity.

The fire occurred suddenly, from electric sparks, it is believed, and spread with great rapidity. The hundred men were compelled to flee for their lives. All night a bucket brigade fought the flames, but absolutely no progress was made. Preparations are being made to flood the mine. The loss will be heavy.

Ill Health Causes Suicide.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 25. — J. Frank Carpenter, secretary of the Carpenter Paper company, one of the largest paper houses in the West, committed suicide at his home last night by shooting. Nervous prostration, which resulted in a complete breakdown, is given as the cause of the suicide.

TO PUSH LAND FRAUD CASES

PROSECUTOR HENEY AND BONAPARTE SET DATE OF TRIAL AT JAN. 13.

Washington, Dec. 25.—Jan. 13 is the date set for the trial of the land fraud cases in Oregon.

This announcement was made last night by Francis J. Heney of San Francisco, the special representative of the department of justice, who has for some time been investigating the Oregon land fraud cases and who will assist in conducting the trial of these cases. This decision was arrived at yesterday at a conference between Attorney General Bonaparte and Mr. Heney, held on their way to Washington from Chicago, where the two met. Mr. Heney stated that a definite agreement was reached between the attorney general and himself in connection with the Oregon land fraud cases, but declined to state the nature of the agreement.

An important conference was held at the White House last night between President Roosevelt and Mr. Heney, at which the status of the land fraud cases in Oregon was considered, but Mr. Heney declined to say what was the result of his talk with the president.

TAGGART HAS ISSUED CALL.

Appeals to All Democrats to Unite Regardless of Past Differences.

French Lick, Dec. 24. — Chairman Taggart of the Democratic national committee yesterday issued the call for the national convention, which is to meet in Denver July 17. The call says:

"Each state is entitled to representation therein equal to double the number of its senators and representatives in the congress of the United States, and each territory, Alaska, District of Columbia, Hawaii and Porto Rico, shall have six delegates. All Democratic citizens of the United United States, irrespective of past political associations and differences, who can unite with us in the effort for a pure, economical, constitutional government are cordially invited to join us in sending delegates to the convention."

Mr. Taggart also announced the following special committee on arrangements for the convention:

Roger C. Sullivan, Chicago; James C. Dahlman, Omaha; Norman F. Mack, Buffalo; R. H. Johnston, Houston, Tex.; John T. McGraw, Grafton, W. Va.; John F. Osborne, Rawlins, Wyo.; Clark Howell, Atlanta, Ga.

Pays First $25,000.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 25. — The first installment of $25,000 of the $100,000 fund pledged to the Democratic national committee by the Denver Convention league was forwarded yesterday to Chairman Thomas Taggart at French Lick, Ind. The remainder will be paid in equal installments on Jan. 22, Feb. 22 and March 22.

FINED $75 FOR KILLING MAN.

Governor of German African Colony Is "Punished" for Cruelty.

Berlin, Dec. 25.—Ex-Gov. Horn of Togoland was yesterday sentenced to a fine of $75 and costs and to be transferred to another post for the ill treatment of a native in Togoland in 1903. The charge against Horn was that he caused the death of a native, a man named Zedu, by having him bound to a flagstaff and leaving him there without foood or drink for twenty-four hours. Horn was first tried for this offense several months afterwards by the superior colonial court at Duala and fined $225.

There has been much criticism in Germany, especially on the part of the Socialist speakers in the reichstag, of this sentence, which was regarded as far too light. Owing, apparently, to these criticisms, Chancellor von Buelow about two years ago ordered a reopening of the case by the imperial disciplinary court for the colonies at Berlin. The case came up for trial on Dec. 11, 1907.

Bryant, was instantly killed by a stroke of lightning that wrecked the house and injured fifteen other persons, though not seriously.

OWNS TO WIFE MURDER.

Edward Williams, Wanted in St. Louis, Caught in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Dec. 25. — Edward Williams, aged twenty-three years, has been arrested here on a charge of having murdered his wife in St. Louis three years ago. He was working on a river boat and said yesterday that he would not demand extradition papers, but would return at once and suffer the penalty for the crime, to which he confessed.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 25. — William Mathies, a billiard room proprietor, was shot and killed by a highwayman yesterday at McKeesport, near here. Before being murdered Mathies knocked one of the thugs down by striking him with a canvas bag containing $50 in silver. The highwaymen escaped, however.

Paris, Dec. 25.—Five persons were killed last night by an explosion of compressed air in the uncompleted Metropolitan subway tunnel under the Seine river, near Notre Dame.

SERIOUS CLASH IN NAVY DEPARTMENT

NAVIGATION AND MEDICAL BUREAUS CLASH OVER HOSPITAL SHIP.

ADMIRAL BROWNSON RESIGNS

SURGEON GENERAL RIXEY HOLDS THAT MEDICAL OFFICER SHOULD COMMAND.

Washington, Dec. 26.—That a serious breach exists between the bureau of navigation and the bureau of medicine of the navy, involving the question of the responsibility of the latter bureau, was made apparent last night in a statement issued by Surgeon General Presley M. Rixey of the navy, in which he touches upon the circumstances leading up to the probable selection by the president of a medical officer to command the hospital ship Relief over the protest of Rear Admiral Williard P. Brownson, chief of the bureau of navigation, who Tuesday sent his resignation to the president. While disclaiming exact knowledge as to the cause of Admiral Brownson's resignation, the surgeon general's statement leaves little room for doubt that the controversy he reviews was a potent factor.

Medical Officer Should Command.

Surgeon General Rixey maintained that hospital ships as a rule always have been commanded by medical officers, with a sailing master and civilian crew for the purposes of navigation. In attempting to unify the medical services of the army and navy he says that a joint army and navy board of medical officers, which was convened by executive order more than a year ago, recommended that hospital ships should be commanded by medical officers and that that recommendation was approved by both the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy in general orders.

Too Much Interference.

These ships, he says, are simply floating hospitals, properly under the control of the medical department, and should [illegible] peace exactly as in [illegible] is especially so, he adds, because during war time officers cannot be spared and do not and should not desire the command of the ships.

"The internal administration of the bureau of medicine and surgery," he says, "has been, in my opinion, too much interfered with by the bureau of navigation. This interference at times has caused me great concern as to how I could meet the needs of those under our care."

Not Brownson's Business.

The hospital ship Relief, he says, should now be with the battleship fleet on its cruise, but the bureau of navigation thought otherwise, and the fleet of 15,000 men with its auxiliary, is without a hospital ship and will be until it arrives at Magdalena Bay, more than three months from now. He adds that he cannot understand how admiral Brownson should be specially interested in the officering of hospital ships, as his duties lie in another direction, and that he should not interfere in a matter pertaining entirely to the bureau of medicine and surgery, and therefore to be decided by the secretary of the navy.

Surgeon General Rixey's statement was shown to Admiral Brownson last night, but he declined to make any comment on it.

CARRY THE FIGHT INTO COURT

MINE OWNERS ASK FOR DISSOLUTION OF GOLDFIELD MINERS' UNION.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 26.—To carry the fight into the federal court will be the next move of the Goldfield Mine Owners' association. To-day a suit will be filed in the circuit court of the district of Nevada asking not only for an injunction against picketing and interfering with workmen, but for the final dissolution of the Goldfield miners' union.

The complaint alleges that the Goldfield miners' union and the Western Federation of Miners are unincorporated, and that it is claimed to be a part of another large organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World, also unincorporated, which has the same principles and seeks to accomplish its results by the same alleged unlawful methods.

It is further alleged that the Western Federation of Miners is organized for the destruction of property and creating "endless strife, disorder, bloodshed and rioting."

The Goldfield union is charged in the bill with intimidation and of being guilty of wanton destruction of property, murder of innocent citizens, lawlessness and anarchy to such an extent that it has instituted a reign of terror in the Goldfield district. It is further alleged that the Goldfield union is a "criminal society."

MINNEAPOLIS MILLS PAY.

Conditions Unfavorable and Exports Decrease, but Dividend Is Paid.

Minneapolis, Dec. 26.—The Pillsbury-Washburn company, which has just closed its business year, announces the usual dividend of 8 per cent on preferred shares, which means the distribution of $200,000 to the stockholders.

In the annual report to the stockholders the extraordinary conditions entering into the operation of the flour industry are commented upon. The extensive damage to crops, the great rise in wheat and the speculation that followed and for a time held the price of raw material above parity with products affected profits materially.

Flour shipments from Minneapolis reflect the poor season, the 1907 output falling nearly 1,000,000 barrels short of the amount shipped in 1906. The number of barrels of flour sent out from Minneapolis by all the mills [illegible] been 13,825,375, while for the corresponding period of 1906 there were 14,573,123 barrels shipped, a difference of 747,748 barrels.

JAP LABORERS TO BE KEPT AT HOME

PLAN FOR LIMITING JAPANESE IMMIGRATION TO UNITED STATES.

CANADIAN TROUBLE SOLVED

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR SAID TO HAVE FURNISHED BASIS FOR AGREEMENT.

Tokio, Dec. 26.—That Ambassador Thomas J. O'Brien of the United States at Tokio is soon to receive the details of the plan for the proposed agreement limiting Japanese immigration to the United States now appears certain, and there seems to be little doubt that the terms will amount to practically the prevention of all Japanese laborers from going to America. The remainder of the terms are said to be much as they were presented to the mikado's government by Mr. O'Brien.

Ignored by Canadian.

It is also claimed that the American ambassador furnished the basis for the agreement which it now seems likely will be made between Japan and the Dominion of Canada, although the Canadian minister of labor, Rudolph Lemieux, has ignored the American embassy so completely in this country that the affair has been the cause of considerable comment in diplomatic circles.

Minister Lemieux, who concluded his negotiation yesterday with the Japanese government regarding the regulation of immigration to Canada, said:

Solution Seems Certain.

"My lips are sealed on the subject. Any statement I have to make belongs first to the Dominion government. My mission will be completed only after my return to Ottawa. My colleagues there will be in a position to fully discuss and consider the whole question in its various phases.

"I have every reason to believe that a solution of the difficulty will soon be reached, and I am pleased to say that my negotiations with the Japanese foreign office were conducted in the friendliest spirit.

"I return with nothing but the most pleasant recollections."

EVANS' MEN HAVE JOLLY TIME

AMERICAN FLEET CELEBRATES CHRISTMAS DAY AT PORT OF SPAIN.

Port of Spain, Dec. 26.—The holiday spirit pervaded the American fleet yesterday, but it was more like the celebration of the Fourth of July than that of Christmas the men had known in colder climes. Decorations there were in plenty and wreaths of holly and evergreen swinging that had been brought along to keep alive the remembrances of the day. And there were special dinners in the mess rooms for the officers, and turkey and other good things for the men.

Yesterday no less than 6,000 or 7,000 of the bluejackets were allowed on shore and they entered into the spirit of merrymaking with the townspeople whose geniality and hospitality have known no bounds.

The feature of the festivities was a regatta in which many of the battleships had crews. There were plenty of exciting finishes and enthusiasm ran high. Rear Admiral Evans, with his staff, watched the struggles of the competitors from his launch.

POSTAL CLERK FINDS INFERNAL MACHINE AMONG CHRISTMAS BUNDLES.

PLOT OF MURDEROUS FIEND

POOR MAN INTENDED VICTIM OF SENDER — INSPECTORS AT WORK ON CASE.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 26.—While distributing Christmas bundles in the South Erie postoffice Tuesday an employe became suspicious of a package, the end of which had broken open, and upon making an investigation the package was found to contain an infernal machine so constructed that the opening of the box would cause an explosion that would have undoubtedly killed all persons near it and set fire to everything in the vicinity.

The package was addressed to Archie Carr, 2208 Cherry street, and had been mailed in this city. The box was turned over to Postmaster Sobel, who called in Chief of Police Wagner, and Detective Pinney. The chief cut out the side of the box and exposed a bottle and contrivances so arranged that the opening of the lid would pull the cork and ignite several matches.

The following inscription was on the inside wrapper: "You may perhaps find the cover will catch when you open the box, but pay no attention to it. Merry Christmas."

Is Plot of a Fiend.

Chief of Police Wagner made a test of the contents of the bottle yesterday. He poured two drops of the white liquid on a piece of wood and taking it to the open air, touched a match to the fluid. When the blaze reached the stuff a sheet of flame at least four feet high shot into the air, proving the solution to be a dangerous one. The bottle is being carefully guarded and will be examined by a chemist to-day. Postal authorities refuse to make any statement, simply saying that inspectors are at work on the case.

Car is employed as a deliveryman in a local department store, and is in poor circumstances. He is married and has three children. Carr says he has not the faintest idea as to who mailed the package, and that so far as he knows he has not an enemy in the world.

The courts in general appear to differ widely on this subject.

APPEAL TO HAVE TROOPS RETAINED

MINE OWNERS WILL LAY SOME NEW EVIDENCE BEFORE PRESIDENT.

WILL SUE THE FEDERATION

ASK INJUNCTION TO RESTRAIN UNION FROM INTERFERING WITH MINES.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 25. — Despite the positive statement which came from Washington yesterday to the effect that the federal troops will be removed from Goldfield on Dec. 30, mine owners have not given up and will appeal again to the president. They will present, they say, some matters which have not been laid before him, one of these being what they regard as positive evidence that at least one deportation was attempted by the Western Federation of Miners, in which four rifles were used.

Organize Rangers.

While the miners yesterday were preparing to send further evidence to the president, Sheriff Ingalls and Capt. Cox were conferring on plans for the preservation of law and order after the troops depart. Sheriff Ingalls said last night that he is seeking at least fifty new men to constitute a force of deputies who will patrol the camp night and day, armed with guns. The rumor has been current here that a company of rangers is contemplated. However, this could not be done without action by the legislature.

Will Sue Federation.

A suit against the Western Federation of Miners is to be brought by the Goldfield Mine Operators' association in the federal court. An injunction will be asked for, restraining the members of the local miners' union, which is affiliated with the Western Federation, from interfering in any way with the operation of the mines in Goldfield. This suit will be filed Dec. 26.

It has been definitely decided that after Dec. 30 each individual mine owner or each company shall take care of their own property, independent of the association. This will [illegible]

DEADLY GAS STOPS RESCUERS.

Searchers Encounter Deadly Fire Damp and Are Obliged to Stop.

[illegible] the deadly fire damp [illegible] bodies had been brought to the surface and a number of others had been located when those in charge of the rescue work called a halt.

Rescue Work Stopped.

The rescuers had penetrated about a mile and three-quarters, or about a mile and a quarter from the end of the workings when they were obliged to stop.

It had been expected that most of the bodies would be reached to-day, but on account of the delay the rescue is likely to be delayed until Christmas day.

Practically all estimates of the number of dead now exceed 225.

The company's revised list of missing now contains 228 names and most other estimates are even higher.

One Hundred Escape Horror.

Pittsburg, Dec. 25. — That 100 men narrowly escaped cremation in the Schoenberger coal mine at Baird station, thirty miles from here, when fire broke out in the mine Sunday, became known yesterday. There are generally 400 men employed in the mine, but recently the force was reduced. Fortunately the fire was not accompanied by an explosion, or another terrible mine disaster would have been recorded in this vicinity.

The fire occurred suddenly, from electric sparks, it is believed, and spread with great rapidity. The hundred men were compelled to flee for their lives. All night a bucket brigade fought the flames, but absolutely no progress was made. Preparations are being made to flood the mine. The loss will be heavy.

Heney of San Francisco, the special representative of the department of justice, who has for some time been investigating the Oregon land fraud cases and who will assist in conducting the trial of these cases. This decision was arrived at yesterday at a conference between Attorney General Bonaparte and Mr. Heney, held on their way to Washington from Chicago, where the two met. Mr. Heney stated that a definite agreement was reached between the attorney general and himself in connection with the Oregon land fraud cases, but declined to state the nature of the agreement.

An important conference was held at the White House last night between President Roosevelt and Mr. Heney, at which the status of the land fraud cases in Oregon was considered, but Mr. Heney declined to say what was the result of his talk with the president.

French Lick, Dec. 24. — Chairman Taggart of the Democratic national committee yesterday issued the call for the national convention, which is to meet in Denver July 17. The call says:

The remainder will be paid in equal installments on Jan. 22, Feb. 22 and March 22.

FINED $75 FOR KILLING MAN.

Governor of German African Colony Is "Punished" for Cruelty.

Berlin, Dec. 25.—Ex-Gov. Horn of Togoland was yesterday sentenced to a fine of $75 and costs and to be transferred to another post for the ill treatment of a native in Togoland in 1902. The charge against Horn was that he caused the death of a native, a man named Zedu, by having him bound to a flagstaff and leaving him there without food or drink for twenty-four hours. Horn was first tried for this offense several months afterwards, by the superior colonial court at Dualla and fined $225.

There has been much criticism in Germany, especially on the part of the Socialist speakers in the reichstag, of this sentence, which was regarded as far too light. Owing, apparently, to these criticisms, Chancellor von Buelow about two years ago ordered a reopening of the case by the imperial disciplinary court for the colonies at Berlin. The case came up for trial on Dec. 11, 1907.

SEAIOUS CLASH IN NAVY DEPARTMENT

NAVIGATION AND MEDICAL BUREAUS CLASH OVER HOSPITAL SHIP.

ADMIRAL BROWNSON RESIGNS

SURGEON GENERAL RIXEY HOLDS THAT MEDICAL OFFICER SHOULD COMMAND.

Washington, Dec. 26.—That a serious breach exists between the bureau of navigation and the bureau of medicine of the navy, involving the question of the responsibility of the latter bureau, was made apparent last night in a statement issued by Surgeon General Presley M. Rixey of the navy, in which he touches upon the circumstances leading up to the probable selection by the president of a medical officer to command the hospital ship Relief over the protest of Rear Admiral Williard P. Brownson, chief of the bureau of navigation, who Tuesday sent his resignation to the president. While disclaiming exact knowledge as to the cause of Admiral Brownson's resignation, the surgeon general's statement leaves little room for doubt that the controversy he reviews was a potent factor.

Medical Officer Should Command.

Surgeon General Rixey maintained that hospital ships, as a rule, always have been commanded by medical officers, with a sailing master and civilian crew for the purposes of navigation. In attempting to unify the medical services of the army and navy he says that a joint army and navy board of medical officers, which was convened by executive order more than a year ago, recommended that hospital ships should be commanded by medical officers and that that recommendation was approved by both the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy in general orders.

Too Much Interference.

These ships, he says, are simply floating hospitals, properly under the control of the medical department, and should be conducted in peace exactly as in time of war. This is especially so, he adds, because during war time officers cannot be spared and do not and should not desire the command of the ships.

"The internal administration of the bureau of medicine and surgery," he says, "has been, in my opinion, too much interfered with by the bureau of navigation. This interference at times has caused me great concern as to how I could meet the needs of those under our care."

Not Brownson's Business.

The hospital ship Relief, he says, should now be with the battleship fleet on its cruise, but the bureau of navigation thought otherwise, and the fleet of 15,000 men with its auxiliary, is without a hospital ship and will be until it arrives at Magdalena Bay, more than three months from now. He adds that he cannot understand how admiral Brownson should be specially interested in the officering of hospital ships, as his duties lie in another direction, and that he should not interfere in a matter pertaining entirely to the bureau of medicine and surgery, and therefore to be decided by the secretary of the navy.

Surgeon General Rixey's statement was shown to Admiral Brownson last night, but he declined to make any comment on it.

CARRV THE FIGHT INTO COURT

MINE OWNERS ASK FOR DISSOLUTION OF GOLDFIELD MINERS' UNION.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 26.—To carry the fight into the federal court will be the next move of the Goldfield Mine Owners' association. To-day a suit will be filed in the circuit court of the district of Nevada asking not only for an injunction against picketing and interfering with workmen, but for the final dissolution of the Goldfield miners' union.

The complaint alleges that the Goldfield miners' union and the Western Federation of Miners are unincorporated, and that it is claimed to be a part of another large organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World, also unincorporated, which has the same principles and seeks to accomplish its results by the same alleged unlawful methods.

It is further alleged that the Western Federation of Miners is organized for the destruction of property and creating "endless strife, disorder, bloodshed and rioting."

The Goldfield union is charged in the bill with intimidation and of being guilty of wanton destruction of property, murder of innocent citizens, lawlessness and anarchy to such an extent that it has instituted a reign of terror in the Goldfield district. It is further alleged that the Goldfield union is a "criminal society."

MINNEAPOLIS MILLS PAY.

Conditioins Unfavorable and Exports Decrease, but Dividend Is Paid.

Minneapolis, Dec. 26.—The Pillsbury-Washburn company, which has just closed its business year, announces the usual dividend of 8 per cent on preferred shares, which means the distribution of $200,000 to the stockholders.

In the annual report to the stockholders the extraordinary conditions entering into the operation of the flour industry are commented upon. The extensive damage to crops, the great rise in wheat and the speculation that followed and for a time held the price of raw material above parity with product, affected profits materially.

Flour shipments from Minneapolis reflect the poor season, the 1907 output falling nearly 1,000,000 barrels short of the amount shipped in 1906. The number of barrels of flour sent out from Minneapolis by all the mills so far this year has been 13,825,375, while for the corresponding period of 1906 there were 14,572,123 barrels shipped, a difference of 747,748 barrels.

JAP LABORERS TO BE KEPT AT HOME

PLAN FOR LIMITING JAPANESE IMMIGRATION TO UNITED STATES.

CANADIAN TROUBLE SOLVED

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR SAID TO HAVE FURNISHED BASIS FOR AGREEMENT.

Tokio, Dec. 26.—That Ambassador Thomas J. O'Brien of the United States at Tokio is soon to receive the details of the plan for the proposed agreement limiting Japanese immigration to the United States now appears certain, and there seems to be little doubt that the terms will amount to practically the prevention of all Japanese laborers from going to America. The remainder of the terms are said to be much as they were presented to the mikado's government by Mr. O'Brien.

Ignored by Canadian.

It is also claimed that the American ambassador furnished the basis for the agreement which it now seems likely will be made between Japan and the Dominion of Canada, although the Canadian minister of labor, Rudolph Lemieux, has ignored the American embassy so completely in this country that the affair has been the cause of considerable comment in diplomatic circles.

Minister Lemieux, who concluded his negotiation yesterday with the Japanese government regarding the regulation of immigration to Canada, said:

Solution Seems Certain.

"My lips are sealed on the subject. Any statement I have to make belongs first to the Dominion government. My mission will be completed only after my return to Ottawa. My colleagues there will be in a position to fully discuss and consider the whole question in its various phases.

"I have every reason to believe that a solution of the difficulty will soon be reached, and I am pleased to say that my negotiations with the Japanese foreign office were conducted in the friendliest spirit.

"I return with nothing but the most pleasant recollections."

EVANS' MEN HAVE JOLLY TIME

AMERICAN FLEET CELEBRATES CHRISTMAS DAY AT PORT OF SPAIN.

Port of Spain, Dec. 26.—The holiday spirit pervaded the American fleet yesterday, but it was more like the celebration of the Fourth of July than that of Christmas the men had known in colder climes. Decorations there were in plenty and wreaths of holly and evergreen swinging that had been brought along to keep alive the remembrances of the day. And there were special dinners in the mess rooms for the officers, and turkey and other good things for the men.

Yesterday no less than 6,000 or 7,000 of the bluejackets were allowed on shore and they entered into the spirit of merrymaking with the townspeople whose geniality and hospitality have known no bounds.

The feature of the festivities was a regatta in which many of the battleships had crews. There were [illegible] of exciting finishes and [illegible] ran high. Rear Admiral Evans, with his staff, watched the struggles of the competitors from his barge.

DEADLY BOX IS FOUND IN MAIL

POSTAL CLERK FINDS INFERNAL MACHINE AMONG CHRISTMAS BUNDLES.

PLOT OF MURDEROUS FIEND

POOR MAN INTENDED VICTIM OF SENDER — INSPECTORS AT WORK ON CASE.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 26.—While distributing Christmas bundles in the South Erie postoffice Tuesday an employe became suspicious of a package, the end of which had broken open, and upon making an investigation the package was found to contain an infernal machine so constructed that the opening of the box would cause an explosion that would have undoubtedly killed all persons near it and set fire to everything in the vicinity.

The package was addressed to Archie Carr, 2208 Cherry street, and had been mailed in this city. The box was turned over to Postmaster Sobel, who called in Chief of Police Wagner and Detective Pinney. The chief cut out the side of the box and exposed a bottle and contrivances so arranged that the opening of the lid would pull the cork and ignite several matches.

The following inscription was on the inside wrapper: "You may perhaps find the cover will catch when you open the box, but pay no attention to it. Merry Christmas."

Is Plot of a Fiend.

Chief of Police Wagner made a test of the contents of the bottle yesterday. He poured two drops of the white liquid on a piece of wood and taking it to the open air, touched a match to the fluid. When the blaze reached the stuff a sheet of flame at least four feet high shot into the air, proving the solution to be a dangerous one. The bottle is being carefully guarded and will be examined by a chemist to-day. Postal authorities refuse to make any statement, simply saying that inspectors are at work on the case.

Carr is employed as a deliveryman in a local department store, and is in poor circumstances. He is married and has three children. Carr says he has not the faintest idea as to who mailed the package, and that so far as he knows he has not an enemy in the world.

The courts in general appear to differ widely on this subject.

The mornings are more than liable to be a trifle frosty for the next six weeks.

It will soon be time to hunt for a man who will stand to be nominated by the Republicans for governor.

About the only way we will ever be able to get even with Joe Cannon will be to have him run for president.

We wish all of our readers a happy new year, health, prosperity, peace and contentment for the new year.

Have your good resolutions and a list of the things you will "swear off" all ready for the new year will soon be here.

The sun reached its most southern point on its southern journey at exactly 12:20 p. m. last Sunday and is now slowly coming back.

Let every patron of the St. Hilaire creamery make a New Years resolution that he will help the creamery do a larger business in 1908.

The people are slowly becoming aware of the fact that Speaker Cannon is about the whole thing in Congress and that he will not allow anyone to do anything to his pet hobby the tariff.

The big dairy meeting at Red Lake Falls last Saturday was attended by a large number of farmers of the county. Meetings of this kind are rapidly convincing the farmers of this county that in dairying the farmer can be prosperous.

The Bullfight.

We went to a bullfight and wished we had stayed away. It is quite as unpleasant as people say, and the cruelty to the horses turns one sick. If it was merely an affair between the men, who are undoubtedly very skillful, and the bull, which is probably so mad with rage as to be past feeling much pain, one could shrug one's shoulders at the queer game and find some excuse, but for the torture of those poor old blindfolded screws there can be no shadow of palliation. After three bulls had been killed we had seen more than enough, especially as the horses in the third encounter had already been badly gored in the second, and the third bull was not killed neatly, but ran about bellowing for awhile with the espada's sword sticking out of his shoulders.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Forest of Natural Columns.

There is in Bulgaria a group of natural columns much like the Giant's Causeway in Ireland. On the edge of a plateau in the open country rises this forest of natural columns, which gives the impression of an antique ruin. The columns, which are about fifteen to twenty feet high, are absolutely cylindrical, and they are often as much as three feet thick. The stratification of the rock resembles joints and vertical erosion due to rain has formed Doric flutings.

The cost of advertising is small compared with the trade it brings, yet there are some who think that money paid out for advertising is money thrown away. A well worded ad, changing every week, showing what you have to sell and the price you want for it will always bring results. When the holidays are over and times seem dull is just the time to push your advertising; many people don't know that they want an article which you have until they see your ad and learn how much it will cost, and an article of general use in any community will advertise itself, when one neighbor has it.—Cass Lake Times.

E. J. Erickson of Fertile was arrested while in this city at the instance of Inspector E. B. Heiberg of the Pure Food Department of the state, and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of selling rotten eggs to a local hotel. 10 dozen were found to be bad in two cases and Erickson admitted that they had not been candled. Judge Wilde imposed a fine of $50 which was paid. Mr. Heiberg will stick around a while and satisfy himself that eggs shipped to Crookston are all in good shape, together with meats and there may be more arrests. The eggs were bought fresh eggs. This is the class of work that makes the pure food department popular with the consumer.—Crookston Daily Journal.

THOUGHT CHILD WOULD DIE.

Whole Body Covered with Cuban Itch —Cuticura Remedies Cured at Cost of Seventy-Five Cents.

"My little boy, when only an infant of three months, caught the Cuban Itch. Sores broke out from his head to the bottom of his feet. He would itch and claw himself and cry all the time. He could not sleep day or night, and a light dress is all he could wear. I called one of our best doctors to treat him, but he seemed to get worse. He suffered so terribly that my husband said he believed he would have to die. I had almost given up hope when a lady friend told me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used the Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment and he at once fell into a sleep, and he slept with ease for the first time since two months. After three applications the sores began to dry up, and in just two weeks from the day I commenced to use the Cuticura Remedies my baby was entirely well. The treatment only cost 75c, and I would have gladly paid $100 if I could not have got it cheaper. I feel safe in saying that the Cuticura Remedies saved his life. He is now a boy of five years. HIS MUTE PLEADERS

By DORA HASTINGS

(Copyright.)

The time was morning, the scene a farm-house kitchen; the actors, two people, man and woman. The woman, Amy by name, was small in stature, light in frame and quick in motion; her face was plain, its white, healthy color marred by freckles, its mouth over-generous. Her eyes, too, were large, with such honesty and sincerity in their depths of gray, they furnished the owner a certificate of character wherever she carried them. She had come into the kitchen, holding in one hand a cake, at which she glanced with something of the same fondness which an artist shows for a masterpiece. As she had entered the kitchen, she had stopped suddenly by the door, her large, bright eyes taking in quickly the details of the scene before her, while her face assumed an expression of such dismay, as brought a broad smile upon her companion's merry face. She hurriedly placed her cake upon the table, then shrank back at her first glimpse of its grease spots and kettle crock; her eyes roved to the floor and mopboard, where they seemed to transfix the dust with their steely glance. There was an unwashed frying-pan on the hearth. She looked at it with eyes of pity; then turned, with the same expression, toward her companion. She made a quick, restive motion with her hand. "Wouldn't you," she said, falteringly, "like to have me—have me sweep a little for you, now I'm here? I like to sweep and clean, just as another woman likes to sing and play the piano."

"No," he said, laughing; "I think it is enough for one woman to clean out the cracks in her own floor with a hair-pin. I couldn't think of consenting to such waste of strength in my behalf."

She turned, with just a touch of vexation in her cheek.

"Good morning," she said abruptly, as she started across the piazza toward her own home. She hurried on, as if some important duty waited her coming. As she clicked the latch of the gate, she turned toward the house, which she had just left. He was still standing there by the door; his face, which had been but a minute before, mirth-illumined, had become suddenly grave. She saw it, and its reflection fell upon her own. Yes, she knew it was lonely over there. She went on slowly into the house. The room which she entered partook of her own character; it was small, dull in color, and spotlessly kept. Her mother, diminutive like herself, sat by the fire busily knitting, the lines of her withered, sharply-chiseled face showing clear above the white kerchief at her throat. She had the same gray eyes and the same grave earnestness.

"Well, what did he say to the cake, Amy?" asked the mother, looking over her spectacles at her daughter as she entered.

"He said he was obliged," replied Amy, drawing a chair up to the fire. "You ought to see the kitchen," she went on; "dirt and dust in heaps everywhere. You can't hardly see the table for the grease and crock," looking piteously at her mother; "and all the rest is just as bad. There is a frying-pan there that I shall remember as long as I live."

"What can we do?" asked the mother earnestly, laying aside her knitting, as if that impeded the course of thought; "what's to be done?"

"I don't know," said Amy, despairingly. "He wouldn't let me clean. I asked him again."

"I've thought sometimes," remarked the older woman, "that perhaps he don't like it—your not wanting to marry him; sort o' resents it, maybe."

"There'd be no sense in that," said Amy, with a show of energy and surprise. "You might as well blame me for liking pickles. My mind is set naturally on living single. I can't help it."

"He hasn't asked you lately, has he?" said the mother, when they were launched safely on the steady stream of work. Amy shook her head.

"Maybe he's getting tired of it," remarked the mother.

"I don't know," said Amy, a little crossly. "He says he asks me once a year; but that's his way joking about things that are no joke. It's but a half dozen times."

"It's too bad," said the mother, summing up the situation; "but what's to be done?"

That question presented itself often to the two women, as they sat around their own well-kept hearth, and thought of the kitchen in the house opposite. From time to time Amy ventured over with a cake and took note of the increase of dust.

"It's piling up on the mopboard," she said to her mother, who was ever an eager and sympathetic listener. "He scratches around with a broom sometimes; but he never hits the mopboard."

The frying-pan, too, appeared occasionally in its unwashed, unkempt condition; it had the forlorn air of one who had seen better days.

The winter wore away at last. When the spring had fairly come, the mother gladly came out of her winter prison house, and stepped briskly about the door-yard, drawing on the accumulated wisdom of years, as she offered suggestions about the sowing of seeds and the preparation of the soil. One morning, when John had gone away, she and Amy with an air of stealth such as would be natural to a soldier reconnoitering the enemy, went noiselessly to their neighbor's house, crossed the piazza, and took one long look at the begrimmed and dust-weighted kitchen. A deeper shade of gravity rested on the mother's face when she came away. They were silent, returning, but as soon as they reached their own home, they chattered like magpies over the details of that unfortunate kitchen.

"I wish," said the mother, pathetically, "that I had never seen it, for I shall carry the memory of it with me all my days."

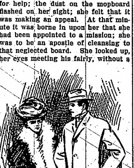
Yet the place had a kind of fascination. They stole over again and again to get a glimpse of it.

It was a fine moonlight winter evening. John and Amy had come home from church together. She had stepped a little beyond him, and had gone into her own little yard and closed the gate. How he hated the click of that gate! He was talking on, with the manifest purpose of keeping her there a minute. "Yes," he said, "it's been an open winter. I like snow, myself, plenty of it. I'd like to tunnel through the drifts once more. I'm growing old, I guess; nothing seems so good as it used to, not even the snow; that's colder and not so white. Everything is different but you, Amy; you never change."

"I think I grow old, too," said Amy.

"No you don't; you're just the same girl you were 15 years ago. It takes something besides time to make people grow old. I'm getting gray myself." He laughed without apparent cause and pushed away the snow with his foot. "Amy," he said, merrily, as if he was about to tell an amusing story, "I haven't bothered you with that old annual question of mine this year, have I? I suppose it wouldn't be of any use, anyhow, would it?"

He was looking at her wistfully. They say that sometimes the mind works rapidly in the emergencies of life. There came to Amy a vision of that kitchen. A frying-pan, mute yet pleading, was on the hearth; a kettle, with rusty countenance, was asking for help; the dust on the mopboard flashed on her sight; she felt that it was making an appeal. At that minute it was borne in upon her that she had been appointed to a mission; she was to be an apostle of cleansing to that neglected board. She looked up, her eyes meeting his fairly, without a shadow of hesitation or doubt. "I don't know," she said, simply. "I think perhaps there might."



"I Suppose It Wouldn't Be Any Use, Anyhow, Would It?"

"Are you sure?" he said.

"I—I'm afraid so," she faltered.

He placed his hand upon the latch of the gate. She saw the motion and glanced quickly up at him, then turned and ran swiftly into the house.
